COTTON SPECULATION.

Bitter English Criticism of Price and Sully.

In connection with the recent trouble between English cotton mill owners and their employes over the request of the latter for advances in wages, the English newspapers are giving great publicity to American methods of cotton speculation, or, "cotton gambling," as they put it bluntly, alleging this to be the root of all the trouble. The bitterness of the criticisms are illustrated by the following article taken, in part, from the London Standard:

"This gambling in cotton has assumed such proportions during recent years, and has had such very grave consequences to the trade as a whole, that it has not infrequently been suggested that the British Parliament and the United States Congress should take steps to prevent it. Yet, although it is now generally known that there is a great deal of such gambling, comparatively few people are aware of the colossal nature of the operations which are carried out.

To begin with, there is the matter of the highly inflated value up to which in some years the season's crop is forced. It has been shown that cotton can be grown, distributed, and sold to spinners in Lancashire and New England at 3½d. a pound, everybody concerned obtaining a reasonable profit. When, however, there is a shortage, as was the case in 1903-4, the price of the raw material is naturally increased, but in legitimate circumstances it need not be more than 4d. a pound. A bale of American cotton weighs about—for it varies—485 pounds, so we may put down a bale as worth, to the spinner, about £8. If, then, the whole crop yields some 10,500,000 bales, it will be seen that it has a real value of, in round figures, £84,000,000. It is with this £84,000,000 worth of produce that the operators, great and small, gamble.

The object of "bulls" like Mr. Sully, the ex-cotton king, and Mr. Theodore Price, who now practically rules the cotton market, is to make cotton as dear as possible, and they frequently succeed in forcing the price up to 5d., 6d., or 7d., and even—as Mr. Sully did—to very little short of 9d. a pound. The "bulls" might in one day of heavy operations force up the price to the extent of a halfpenny a pound, as was the case early in June this year—an advance which means that £1,000,000 has been added to the value of 1,000,000 bales. Suppose, then, that a million bales of cotton are sold in the course of a day on the Exchange at 7½d. a pound—and this has occurred—we have it that instead of the amount of money which changes hands being £8,000,000 it is no less than £15,000,000—£7,000,000 more than it probably would be if the gambler left cotton alone.

change. When the Government estimate of the season's crop was issued on Dec. 3, 1903, there was a wild rush to buy, and 1,000,000 bales were sold at about 6¼d. a pound, that is, for nearly £21,000,000. On Feb. 9, 1904, 2,000,000 bales—a record—were disposed of at 6¾d. a pound, or for a total sum of £27,000,000.

The almost incredible immensity of the operations is thus obvious, but to all practical intents and purposes these operations are sheer gambling, carried on by professional speculators. Of genuine purchases—that is, purchases of cotton intended for consumption in a mill—there were but few.

If the daily sales of a busy fortnight were added together it would be found that to all appearances a season's crop had been disposed of. But the operations are carried on without cessation for month after month, and therefore we see that every bale of the staple is bought and sold over and over again—thrown about like a cricket ball from hand to hand. The men who buy the cotton have no legitimate use for it; they are merely speculating in differences. The bales are nothing but the counters in the game. If prices are showing a decided upward tendency a speculator may buy, say, 1,000 bales at 5d. a pound, and a couple of hours later, when the price has reached 5¼d., he will sell them. He bought them for about £10,000 "on the nod," as it were, and sells them for £10,500. The difference—£500—is his profit.

Bogus Buying and Selling.

It may be argued that this is, after all, legitimate, though perhaps not praiseworthy, business. But then it so happens that a vast amount of this buying and selling is absolutely bogus, for—as everybody who has even no more than a superficial knowledge of Stock Exchange transactions is well aware—it is a common practice for "bear" speculators to sell what they have not got, and nowhere is this more frequently done than on the New York cotton market.

However, the "bulls" who wish to corner a raw material must, of course, get hold of as much as they possibly can of the visible supply. The Sully clique did this very successfully. They bought every bale they could, and the more they bought the more the supply went up. But, of course, they bought only to sell, though their sales had to be effected secretly—that is to say, the market had not to know whose sales they really were. The "bull" clique might, by means of their agents—who to all appearances were acting in opposition to them—unload 200,000 or 300,000 bales in the course of a day at a handsome profit, and then, confident of their ability to send prices up still higher, would at once set about repurchasing these self-same bales at a reduced price.

By tactics such as these the Sully "bull" pool are supposed to have made about £4,000,000 previous to the time when the great slump caused all their schemes to collapse like a house of cards and bring them to ruin. Mr. Theodore Price, who is said to be the shrewdest cotton operator of recent years, is reported to have made immense sums of money in a few recent weeks, but Lancashire is in hopes that he will meet with his Waterloo before long.

THIS LUDLOW AIRSHIP HAS SOARED 500 FEET

Aeroplane No. 8, with a Tug Doing the Pulling, a Success.

FERRYBOAT SENDS IT DOWN

By Making the Tug Slacken the Kite-Rope—Aeronaut Comes Down to the North River Easily.

Israel Ludlow, the west side lawyer whose hobby is building aeroplanes and who has had several flukes with his machines, had a success yesterday afternoon with his Aeroplane No. 8. His birdlike structure, sent up like a boy's kite, but with a tug pulling at the string to hoist the kite, soared, with a man in its basket, 500 feet above the North River. If the big ferrybost Albany hadn't done its best to botch the job, the aeroplane apparently could have stayed up all day and all night.

The big kite had what seamen would call a sail area of 680 square feet. The rope that the tug pulled was 700 feet long and a quarter of an inch thick. Three strands were tied to the aeroplane, one at its centre and the others to the left and right. The big tug De Witt C. Ivins did the pulling. The aeronaut who went up in the machine was C. K. Hamilton, a young Texan who seems to like nothing better than risk his neck in lofty feats; he has been at it for several years, and has broken only five ribs. His professional name is Campbell.

About 1,000 persons, mainly small boys, gathered at the pier at the foot of West Seventy-ninth Street to see the fun. They were all as enthusiastic as the few friends of Mr. Ludlow who were in the crowd. One joyful person began the fun by climbing into the airship while it was on the pier and then pretending to go to sleep. He was dislodged by some of the more purely scientific of the crowd.

"If I can't fly I'll swim," said he.

Then he ran to the edge of the pier and jumped overboard. Although he was in heavy clothing he swam about like a porpoise. Policeman Fitsgerald of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, pulling off his coat, started to the rescue, but soon saw the man was in no danger. The man was soon dragged ashore after a rope had been thrown to him. The crowd then went back to see what fun there might be with the airship.

Mr. Ludlow, looking over his machine before going to the tug, explained that he had made some modificatione to make it more like a bird.

The technical part of it, however, didn't interest the crowd a bit. What the crowd wanted was action, and it said so. Then the kite rope was taken aboard the tug, the aeroplane remaining on the pier.

The big tug made three starts at full speed across the river, dragging the airship almost to the water's edge. The aeroplane, though, failed to rise, the rope being slack on the tug. After a long wait a fourth attempt was made. The kite leaped from the ground, with the little aeronaut hanging to a rope like a sling and seated on some light cord tied criss-cross over two of the bamboo frames.

There was a cheer. Then the crowd kept still. Up, up, almost as if it had been shot from the ground, the great kite rose, until the man in the air looked like a fly. The machine, in fact, appeared to rise almost directly above the tug. Then a ferryboat entered the game.

The ferryboat crossed the bows of the De Witt C. Ivins, forcing her to swing to starboard and upstream, giving a heavy slack to the line. The aeroplane, still on a level keel, slowly descended, setting upon the water like a sea gull. The aeronaut stood up on the framework, and the water reached only to his shoetops. The machine skipped along for some distance like a motor boat. Several launches started out to the rescue, among them the swift Arcadia, with J. D. Roach and a party of friends aboard. They took the little Texan from his floating airship into their motor boat and hurried him to another, where dry clothing was ready for him. The women offered him tea to steady his nerves. Laughing, he took it.

"As I went up," said Hamilton, "there was a mighty rush of the winds, just like a great storm. It was very different from the feeling as one goes up in a balloon. The wind was terrific, and made the piano wire hum. Then the bamboo would crackle and creak and seem to be about to break.

"I felt almost certain that with the heavy strain on it the frail thing must collapse, but it was not a time to worry, as I had to shift my position, leaning forward or backward to preserve the equilibrium of the big bird. I could see far out into New Jersey over the Palisadee and over New York and Brooklyn to the Long Island coast line.

"I remembered the time in Iowa when I was far up and the bag of the balloon ripped, and how, climbing into the rigging, I caught hold of the ragged edges so that we did not come down too fast and landed on top of a house. Then it occurred to me that it would be a different thing if the skeleton of the kite would smash. Still I felt there was enough canvas to lessen the fall so that I would not bump upon the bottom of the Hudson.

"Then the tug changed her course because of the ferryboat. I could see it very plainly, and see Mr. Ludlow with his crutches [Mr. Ludlow sprained his ankle at the hazardous game of walking the other day] moving excitedly about. The buzzing of the wires and the crackling sound of the bamboo ceased. We began to glide toward the river gently and at no great speed. It was much more comfortable than falling with the parachute. It was delightful, just like being a bird, and I enjoyed the sensation immensely.

"Ludlow has succeeded, and I knew he would. Others said it could not be done. Mr. Ludlow says that with a longer rope he is going to take me for a sail outside of Sandy Hook one of these fine days when there is a southerly stiff breeze. I am longing for the fun."

YALE MAN'S FATAL WAGER.

Hurled Down Steep East Rock Which He Tried to Scale.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 22.—As a result of attempting to climb the face of the East Rock here to-day John Tracy, a young man taking a couree in the Medical Department at Yale, lies dying in Grace Hospital.

His injuries are indirectly due to a wager which he made with two other youg men to climb the face of the rock, which is estimated to be about 150 feet high. The other men who also attempted the feat are Michael J. Quinn, also said to be a student at Yale, and Arthur McKeown, employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad.

East Rock has been the spot from which several life-tired men have jumped, and has been the scene of many accidents caused by attempts to scale it. The fact that the feat has often been accomplished by students and others has prompted many venturesome young men to try it.

Tracy's exploit was provoked by a dare. The three young men began the perilous climb up the face of the rock about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The loser was merely to forfeit the price of a dinner for the three.

McKeown led in the ascent. He had already climbed about three-quarters of the distance when, on a little projection of some kind, he paused for rest. He noticed that Tracy was close behind him; that Quinn was endeavoring to get back to the ground again, having as he explained afterward decided that he would rather pay the forfeit of a dinner than continue the ascent.

At that moment Tracy lost his footing, and McKeown yelled:

"Look out, Quinn! look out!"

It happened that Quinn was in a slight indentation of the rock, which enabled him to "look out," and he crouched just in time to get out of the way of the falling Tracy.

Quinn tried to get down, hut made the discovery which many had made before him, that it was more difficult to descend than to ascend when one had once begun the climb. He thereupon continued upward, and landed eafely at the top, where McKeown had preceded him. The latter had already, by a circuitious route, started down tc where Tracy lay unconscious.

Tracy was found to be terribly injured. His head was cut open, several bones in his body were broken, and he was also, as was determined later, injured internally. He was hurried to Grace Hospital, where it was said late last night that he would probably die. Tracy is 22 years old. He lives at New Haven.

WOMAN A SEASHORE SUICIDE.

"Miss Scott of New York" Shoots Herself at Atlantic City.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 22.—Young, good-looking, and richly dressed, "Miss Annie Scott of New York" shot and instantly killed herself in one of the finest suites of Haddon Hall yesterday afternoon. Strong efforts were made to keep the suicide a secret. Police Headquarters did not hear a word of the case until 9 o'clock to-night, a full hour after a man describing himself as a relative of the dead woman had settled all expenses and left the city with the body.

"Miss Scott" arrived here on a morning train yesterday. She engaged apartments at the hotel, and declined to set any definite time for the length of her stay. She appeared to be melancholy. Immediately after luncheon she went to her room. Less than an hour later the report of a pistol was heard by a chambermaid. Investigation disclosed the woman dead on a couch. The nearest physician was called, and said death had been instant. She was shot through the temple.

County Physician Souder said to-night that the case was too plainly one of self-destruction to call for a police investigation. The woman, Dr. Souder said, had left a large bundle of love letters. He declined to discuss their contents further than to say that he inferred the young woman's fiancé had died.

A brief note left by the woman asked that a man whose identity is not disclosed beyond the fact that his name is Davis and that he is employed by the Winchester Firearms Company in New York, be notified of her death. The hotel management notified Davis by telephone, and he claimed the body. Dr. Souder said he understood that Davis was a cousin of the suicide.

"Miss Scott" is said to have made her home at the Normandie in New York.

The clerk at the Hotel Normandie said last night that until ten days ago Mrs. John Peck of Haverstraw, N. Y., had been stopping there, and that a Miss Scott, her daughter, frequently visited her. At Mrs. Peck's home at Haverstraw, however, it was said that the Miss Scott who killed herself in Atlantic City was no relative of Mrs. Peck, and that Mrs. Peck knew nothing of her.

BALTIMORE FIRE NOT OUT.

Grain Ignited in Great Conflagration Found Still Burning.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22.—Although the business section of this city, destroyed by fire on Feb. 7, 1904, has been almost rebuilt, flames to-day burst from a lot of grain that has been smoldering since the general conflagration.

This grain was in the ruins of the William Hopps Company warehouse on South Street, near the docks. The grain had been covered with bricks and other débris, and when the workmen uncovered it today fire and emoke arose. No attempt was made to put out the flames, as they could do no damage. Crowds soon gathered, and watched the spectacle.

The ruins have been flooded by heavy rains time and again, but fire experts say the grain has been burning continuously since the big fire.

WEIGHTED BOAT SINKS; FIVE DROWN IN HUDSON

Persons on Yonkers Shore See Party Go Down in Midstream.

EFFORTS AT RESCUE VAIN

Nine-Year-Old Boy with Father and Friends on Fishing Trip—Mother Nearly Crazed.

Special to The New York Times.

YONKERS, Oct. 22.—A boat in which were four men and a boy suddenly sank in midstream in the Hudson River off Fernbrook Street this morning, and all five occupants were drowned. The accident was witnessed by persons on the Yonkers shore, but before a boat could reach the spot the men had gone down.

Three of the victims were members of one family, the husband, son, and brother of a woman who is left a widow. Henry Nelson, Henry, Jr., 9 years old, and his brother-in-law, Carl Thomson, all of 113½ Clinton Place, with Benjamin Benson of 114 Herriott Street and P. Simpson of 54 Herriott Street, had set out for a day's fishing on the river.

The men were all members of the Hudson Boat Club and owned a large rowboat which had been fitted up with a sail. The craft was heavily ballasted with old iron and was uneafe.

The party left the boathouse, at the foot of Downing Street, about 9:30 o'clock. When about in the centre of the river the wind died out. Then the men were seen to get out oars and etart rowing. This continued for several moments when she men were seen to jump up excitedly.

Within a minute or two the boat disappeared, leaving the five men struggling in the water. No one could understand from the shore how it happened that the boat should sink without turning over.

As soon as the accident was noticed a boat in charge of John Coughlin and John Pfeiffer put out, but when they reached the spot there was no sign of the five. On the way out Coughlin and Pfeiffer had heard plainly the cries of the boy, "Oh, papa! Save me! Save me!"

The men eearched for an hour, and were joined by three other boats, hut the only things seen were two overcoats and a cap. Word quickly reached the Nelson home, and Mrs. Nelson, almost crazed with grief, ran to the river side. No one could comfort her, and she insisted on remaining there to awalt the recovery of the bodies.

Towarl night, however, Mrs. Nelson consented to go home, where three other children awaited her. The three men with Nelson were married and had families, and lived within one block. The police and the members of the life-saving station kept up search for the bodies.

Benson's body was recovered this evening and taken in charge by Coroner Van Houton.

SIX LOST IN THE DELAWARE.

But Three Rescued After Barge Capsized a Launch.

BEVERLY, N. J., Oct. 22.—A launch containing nine men, all of Philadelphia, had a collision with a barge in the Delaware River off thie place late this afternoon, and six men were drowned. Three were rescued by the crew of the tugboat Bristol, which was towing the barge.

Those rescued are Capt. John Winch, the owner of the launch; W. F. Russell, and J. Rutherford. William Winch, son of the launch owner; John Ellis, John Stephenson, Samuel Heron, Norman Delany, and James Yonkere are dead.

The launch was hired by eight of the men, most of whom lived in the northeastern part of Philadelphia. The elder Winch took his son, to assist in running the boat. The day was spent near Croyden, on the Pennsylvania side, and the start home was made late in the afternoon. Opposite this place the launch met the tug Bristol, towing a barge to Bordentown.

Capt. Winch attempted to cross the tug's stern. Capt. Mott on the tug hailed him and tried to prevent him. The hawser knocked Capt. Winch overboard, and the launch capsizing, rolled under the barge. Three bodies were recovered before dark. The launch washed ashore.

GASOLINE LAUNCH EXPLODES.

Two Persons Drowned and Two May Die from Burns.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 22.—Tbe tank of a gasoline launch which was carrying four passengers on the Mississippi River exploded this afternoon near Ivory Station.

Frederick Phee and a companion were drowned, while Edward Duffy and his son were probably fatally burned.

POLICEMAN SHOT BY MISTAKE.

Was Answering a Call for Aid from a Tug—May Die.

Henry Hadlich, a plain clothes man attached to the Delancey Street Police Station, was shot by mistake and fatally wounded soon after midnight this morning as he was responding to an appeal for protection from the Captain of the barge Ida Gibson, lying at the foot of Grand Street.

The Ida Gibson's Captain, Frank Bradley, with Milton Corderey, the mate, were walking along Grand Street, a short distance from the ferry, when they became involved in a quarrel with a gang of east side roughs. They ran back to the boat, with the members of the gang calling after them that they would follow and "clean out the barge."

About midnight Capt. Bradley, fearing that the roughs would put their threat into execution, came ashore to ask for police protection. He met Hadlich, who was with Policeman Singleton, and asked the two to go back to the barge with him.

The policemen consented, and Hadlich boarded the barge in advance of the Captain. Corderey wae standing guard with a shotgun. When Hadlich appeared he thought the policeman was one of the men who had threatened him, and fired without warning. Hadlich fell to the deck with a wound in his side.

An ambulance surgeon from Gouverneur Hospital said that Hadlich had little chance of recovery. Corderey and Capt. Bradley were arrested.

Hadlich had been on the police force about six years and had a good record. He ie married and lives at No. 331 East Tenth Street.

TO LEND RUSSIA $300,000,000.

Agreement Between Bankers' Representatives Expected.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 22.—It is not expected that the negotiations for the floating of a new Ruesian loan will be completed before the end of this week. The repreeentatives of the French, American, Englieh, and German groups of bankers have not yet arranged the bases of participation, and some delay is being caused by the illness of one of the French representatives.

Nevertheless tbe negotiations are reported to he proceeding harmoniously and the flotation of an international loan approximating $300,000,000 seems to be assured.

No definite information can be obtained as to the terms of issue or the price of the bonds, but it is stated that the bonds will be issued in series for separate listing on the Exchangee of the respective countries. The French group is said to be insistent on this point in order to prevent speculation in the honds on the Paris Bourse by the other foreign groups.

SAY JOHN A. McCALL IS POOR.

New York Life Officers Tell of Mortgage on President's Home.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 22.—"President McCall is not a rich man. He is deeply in debt. His home is mortgaged, and if he were to die to-morrow all his family would have would be the life insurance aggregating about $500,000, which he hae kept up for their protection."

With these words Hamilton Cooke of St. Louis, Director of Agencies for the New York Life Insurance Company, startled fifty Kansas City underwriters of that concern at a dinner here last night.

John T. Boone, a manager of agencies, with headquarters in New York, also declared that Mr. McCall is deeply in debt. It was said later that the mortgaged home cost Mr. McCall $450,000, and that it is incumhered to the extent of $200,000.

TWO RUN OVER BY AUTOS.

Accidents on Amsterdam Avenue Hill —One Chauffeur Speeds Away.

A child of five years and a youth of sixteen were run down by separate automobiles within two hours yesterday afternoon at pointe forty feet apart at the crossing of Ameterdam Avenue and 125th Street.

The child, Charles Turck of 510 West 125th Street, suffered a fracture of the left leg. The chauffeur put on power and escaped. In the car were a woman and several men. The child was taken to Roosevelt Hospital.

William Hasteadt of 1,322 Amsterdam Avenue was riding a bicycle cautiously down the slope of Amsterdam Avenue toward 125th Street when an automobile came down behind him, smashed his wheel, and ran over tne boy's knee, spraining it.

The chauffeur halted and, accompanied by two women paseengers, lifted the boy up. The chauffeur handed to a bystander a slip of paper from hie notebook, saying: "That is my address. If there is anything I can do for the boy let me know."

LAKE WATERSPOUTS NOW.

Three Imperil a Steamer Near Ashtabula, but Swerve Aside.

ASHTABULA, Ohio, Oct. 22.—Three huge waterspouts paesed down Lake Erie over five miles out this morning, and apparently bearing down upon a large steamer. They ewerved from their couree, however, and the vessel passed in safety.

The action of the spouts and the seething water at their baees could be plainly seen from shore, and the phenomena were watched with great interest by many.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—A telegram was received here to-day by the Captain of the Corrigan fleet that the steamer Progress, which had been missing four days and was believed to have been sent to the bottom by the storm during the past several days, had arrived at the Soo late Saturday night. The Progress carried a crew of fifteen besides the Captain, Thomas J. Brady of Detroit, and John Maxwell of Buffalo, chief engineer.

BUGHER SUMMER HOME BURNS

Robbers Suspected of Arson at Oakdale, L. I., Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

SAYVILLE, L. I., Oct. 22.—Tbe country home of Capt. Frederick H. Bugher, United States Navy, at Oakdale, adjoining those of William K. Vanderbilt and Commodore Bourne of the New York Yacht Club, was destroyed by fire on Saturday night. It is supposed that robbere set the fire.

Suspicious men had been seen about the building by several neighbors. A cottage was destroyed by fire only about a week ago in a neighboring village.

The building destroyed is the one in which Admiral and Mrs. Dewey were entertained shortly after their marriage. The fire started ebortly before Saturday midnight. The local firemen responded, but were powerless because Oakdale has no water supply. They did break into the burning building and save a few pieces of furniture of little value.

The house contained several valuable paintings and considerable bric-à-brac. The loss is estimated at $30,000. The Bughers had started for New York only a few hours before the fire started, preparatory to sailing for Europe.

ASTOR-VANDERBILT DENIAL.

Never Owned Any Power Stock and Never Met Hoadley or Judson.

NEWPORT, Oct. 22.—On behalf of John Jacob Astor and Cornelius Vanderbilt, whose names were mentioned in the testimoney at the hearing in New York Friday in the suit of William B. Franklin and George I. Scott against Joseph H. Hoadley and others to recover $65,800, Lewis Cass Ledyard issued a statement here tonight denying that either Mr. Vanderbilt of Col. Astor ever owned stock of the International Power Company, as asserted by a witness, Mr. Ledyard says:

"Yesterday the newspapers contained reports of testimony given in tbe suit relating to the International Power Company troubles, from which it appears that Joseph H. Hoadley testified that Cyrus Judson told him that he had sold about all the stock to John Jacob Aetor and Cornelius Vanderbilt.

"Col. Astor and Mr. Vanderbilt, who are clients of mine, are now in Illinois inspecting the lines of the Illinois Central Railroad, of which they are Directors. Upon seeing this statement these gentlemen at once telegraphed to me asking that it be contradicted. Each of them states: 'I have never met either Hoadley or Judson and never owned any such stock.'"

MENELEK'S MESSENGER TO ROOSEVELT HERE

A Sin in His Country to Tell How Many Children You Have.

HE'S A COAL-BLACK PASHA

Wants to Pray on Top of the Park Row Building This Morning Because It's Tall.

El Hadji Abdullahi Pasha, Governor of the Province of Harar, in Abyssinia, an intimate friend of Menelek, the Negue of the Abyseiniáns, arrived here yesterday on the White Star liner Celtic, from Liverpool. What brings el Hadji Effendi to the United States is not known, and it will not be until somebody is found who can translate a letter that he brings from Menelek to the President of the United States.

Somewhere on the way the Pasha had changed his Abyssinian clothes for European costume. When he got off the boat he wore a fez, a frock coat, and pinstriped trousers. Had it not heen for the fez he might have been taken for an American negro. His skin is coal black.

The Pasha is etaying at the Hotel Breslin. When seen in his suite of rooms there last night he laughed and made a lot of gestures, but he couldn't or would not make his mission clear. He eaid he came to see "King Roosevelt," who, he declaree, next to the Abyssinian monarch, is the greatest of living men.

When he landed from the Celtic yeeterday El Hadji Effendi wae met by William H. Ellis and several other men who are familiar with conditions in Abyssinia. Soon after he landed the Pasha managed to create the impression that he was here to study the American industrial situation. Later two letters were forthcoming, one to the President and the other to Menelek's friend Ellis.

Through a fellow-traveler the Pasha informed the reporters that on bis way here he had stopped for three weeks in Constantinople, where he was received by the Sultan.

"I am the only black Mohammedan," he said, "who has ever been received by the Sultan. While I was in Constantinople I had the great honor of kneeling and praying with the great Sultan, who presented to me 5,000 pounds sterling to distribute among the Mohammedans of my own country. From Constantinople I went to Berlin, thence to Paris and London, and next to Liverpool, where I hoarded the steamship for the great country on this side of the Atlantic."

"How many wives have you?" some one asked.

"None," he answered. Then he changed the reply to "One."

"How many servants have you?" was another question.

"None," he replied, "but I have 2,000 slaves."

"He means servants," interrupted Mr. Ellis, "for there are no slaves in Abyssinia now."

From the pier the Pasha was taken for a drive through the city. When he was informed how high the Park Row Building was he turned to his interpreter and remarked that the huilding was as big as all tbe structures in Harar.

"I must be called before breakfast in the morning," be said, "so that I can proceed to the top of this magnificent structure and pray."

In the Plaza the Pasha insisted on leaving hie carriage. Then he prostrated himself before the Sherman statue and prayed.

When he returned to the Breslin the Pasha through Mr. Ellis summoned the reporters. He had discarded his European clothes for Abyseinian garb. The Pasha said he was willing, as far as possibe, to try and tell them sometbing about himself.

"How many wives has Menelek?" was the first question.

"One," he replied.

"How many children has he?"

"I don't know."

"How many children have you?"

"It is a sin in my country to tell," was the reply.

"He means it's a sin for a Mohammedan to answer such a question," explained Mr. Ellis.

In addition to being Governor of Harar, which comprises about one-third the territory ruled by Menelek, El Hadji is chief of all the Mohammedans in Abyssinia and a General in Menelek's army.

MOVE TO TIE UP NEW TUNNEL.

Unions to Quit Steinway Bore To-morrow Unless Non-Union Men Go.

A general strike of workmen employed in the tunnel under the East River from Forty-second Street to Long Island City was decided upon yeeterday to go into effect to-morrow morning unless a number of non-union men are discharged today. Complaints have been made by the delegatee of the eafety engineers, rock drillers, hoister runners, and others. The delegates of all the trades will meet this evening to act on the contractor's reply.

A letter was read at yesterday's meeting of the Central Federated Union from Ralph M. Easley, Chairman of the National Executive Board of the Civic Federation, in reply to a request that he try to bring about a conference with Auguet Belmont in reference to the completion of the Subway on the west side. Mr. Easley eaid that Mr. Belmont was still in the hospital, but an effort would be made to bring about a conference as soon as he was able to attend. The Federated Union decided to write to Mr. Belmont asking him to fix a day.

MARRIAGE ON A LINER.

A Widow from England Met at the Pier by the Bridegroom.

There was a marriage on the American liner St. Paul yesterday soon after she docked. Mrs. Mooney, the immigration matron, was bridesmaid.

The bride, who was Mrs. Henry Gale of England, a widow with two young daughters, came over in the second cabin. To the immigration officials she explained that she had come over to marry John Tinan of New Rochelle.

When the vessel was docked Mrs. Mooney went to eearch for the bridegroom and found him trying to persuade tbe guardians of the gangway that he had urgent business bn board. She took him on board, and it was decided that there would be no tronble with the immigration officials if they were married at once. A messenger was dispatched for a notary, this official soon arrived, and the ceremony was performed.

EARTHQUAKE IN VERMONT.

Houses Shaken and Crockery Smashed in Newport.

NEWPORT, Vt., Oct. 22.—The heaviest earthquake ever felt in thie eection occurred early to-day. The vibration of the earth shook houses, smashed crockery, and caused considerable alarm.

There was only one ehock, which lasted for a few seconds, and which was accompanied by a sound like a distant explosion.

KILLED IN A FOOTBALL GAME.

John C. Dondero Dead and His Brother Will Lose an Eye.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Oct. 22.—John C. Dondero, 27 years old, died to-day as the result of an injury received in a football game in Jewett City.

Dondero was a member of the Willimantic team, and it ie said that he was in no condition to play. After a scrimmage he lay on the field unconscious and was taken to a hotel, where he died. Doctors state that a cerebral hemorrhage was the cauee of his death, superinduced by the player's poor physical condition at the time of the game.

A brother of Dondero was kicked in the eye in the same game, and will lose the eye.

TWO RUN DOWN BY TRAIN.

New Haven Road Employes Killed at Bartow—Thought They Were Safe.

Patrick Clancey, a division track master, and Francisco Marcelli, a track walker, both employed by the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad, were killed by a train at Bartow station on the Harlem River Division last evening.

The two men were walking ahead of a south-bound train and heard it, but supposed it was the "Fishermen's train," and thought they were beyond its stopping point. Instead it was a seven-car train and ran them down. Great excitement ensued among the passengers. The conductor, Charles N. Baes of 684 East 135th Street, was allowed to take his train to Harlem and then returned under arrest to the Westchester Police Station.

MOB COWS A MOTORMAN.

He Put on Speed After Running Down Cab—Driver May Die.

A thousand persons held up a Madison Avenue car shortly before 6 o'clock last night at 108th Street, where it had struck a cab, demolishing the vehicle, injuring the horses, and throwing the driver to the street. Michael Healy, the driver, suffered a fractured skull and broken rib. At the Harlem Hospital last nigbt it was thought that he could not live.

After the accident the motorman started to put on power. The crowd, headed by Emil Lukatis of 660 Madison Avenue, attacked him and made him stop. An Inspector came, and started tbe car through the crowd, whioh had to give way. Policeman O'Brien of the East 104th Street Station happened along, hut refused to make arrests, saying that he had not seen the accident. Members of the crowd went to the police station, where they lodged complaint against the officer with the Sergeant, who promised to make an investigation.

STOPPED CAPT. MAHAN'S TALK

Boston Audience, Tired of Oratory, Ended It with Applause.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—During Capt. Mahan's address at the Nelson commemoration last night the audience, wbich already had been surfeited with oratory, manifested in a good-natured fashion its readiness to be dismissed.

Capt. Mahan's address was a long one, and as he went on he was interrupted by applause, begun in admiration, but prolonged by persons whose anxiety to get home got the better of their sense of courtesy due to a stranger.

Still, so far as could be observed it was a good-humored remonstrance and not at all an insult.

GIRL SOLVED OLD MYSTERY.

Larkin Cashier's Confession Vindicates a Postal Clerk Who Resigned.

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISON, N. J., Oct. 22.—The confession of Mary E. Golding, cashier of the Larkin Company in New York, about her system of theft from her employer cleare up a loss which had reflected on Station 4 of the Newark Post Office, in Harrison.

Nearly a year ago Mrs. Hogan of 502 Harrison Avenue sent a ten-dollar bill in a registered letter to the Larkin Company. The Larkin office reportsd tbat the money in it had been taken out. A Post Office Inspector found that the letter had remained over night in care of a clerk at the Harrison office, who sent it away the following morning. The young man resigned.

ACROBAT 8 MONTHS OLD.

Baby Cannot Walk with His Feet, but Can Do So with His Hands.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Oct. 22.—Eight months old and an acrobat, unable to walk or talk, yet possessing such remarkable muecular development of the arms and shoulders that he can balance himself on his hands and with heels in the air proceed across the room—these are among the remarkable characteristics of the son of William Scbare of this city.

The baby is no bigger than moet other infants of eight months, but the ligaments and muscles of his chest, arms, and shoulders are like tiny cords of steel. He can swing from a cane held in the hands of his father with the ease of a trained trapeze performer.

I'M NO PUPPET, CRIES OSBORNE TO JEROME

And Your Administration Hasn't Done Such a Lot.

TAMMANY CANDIDATE ANGRY

Oh, He's Honest, Jerome Says—Grand Jury Refused to Indict New York Central Directors.

James W. Osborne, tbe Tammany nominee for District Attorney, opened campaign headquarters yesterday in the Hotel Imperial. He celebrated the opening by issuing a long statement in reply to District Attorney Jeromo's reference to him as a house-broken pup feeding out of tbe hands of the Tammany leadere.

"If elected I shall be controlled by no political organization," said Mr. Osborne. "There ie no man in political life to-day who is more independent than I am, and Jerome knows it, too.

"Mr. Jerome has stated in effect that the other candidates for the office of District Attorney, including myself, are puppets, and will, if elected, be subservient to political influence. I denounce this charge as false in whole and in part, and I say that Mr. Jerome must have known it to be false when he made it. I call upon Mr. Jerome to produce the proof of this assertion or to apologize to me, as a gentleman should do, when he hae been guilty of a slander.

"If I were a puppet dancing to strings pulled by a political boss in 1901, why did he reappoint me, and why did be publicly announce in his canvass that I was an honest and a capable man, and that by my experience and ability I had earned the right to a nomination for the office of District Attorney? Why did he intrust me with tbe complete charge and control of the most important cases in his office, including those in which political influence was most likely to be exerted? Why did he retain me as an Assistant District Attorney until I resigned of my own volition, and why did he tell me then that he was sorry to have me go? Have I changed in character or in integrity by accepting the nomination, which he admits that he would have accepted if it had been offered to him?

"I ask him again if I were a pup and 'house-broken' in 1901, I ask him if I have changed since 1901, and, if so, I ask him to produce hie proof, or to point out any fact tbat justifies bis assertion."

On Supposed Shortcomings.

Mr. Osborne went on to compare Mr. Jerome'e administration of the District Attorney's office with thoee of some of his predecessors, to the former's disadvantage.

"On April 13, 1885," he said, "Charles A. Buddeneleck wae erecting a building which fell on account of hie criminal negligence in its construction, killing several pereons. Buddeneleck was prosecuted by DeLancey Nicoll, a Democratic District Attorney, and was convicted. During the administration of Mr. Jerome the Darlington disaster with its terrible loss of life occurred. I have heard of no convictions or effective prosecution by Mr. Jerome against any one on account of that disaster.

"In February, 1891, the first collision in the tunnel of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad took place. The Directors and principal officers of that railroad were indicted by the Grand Jury and prosecuted by Mr. Nicoll. They were tried before the late Judge Van Brunt in the old Court of Oyer and Terminer, and were acquitted by the jury.

"In the eimilar disaster in the same tunnel during Mr. Jerome'e administration there has been no prosecution and not even any indictment of any officer or Director of the road. The engineer, Wisker, was the only person indicted."

He also referred to the fact that there have been no State prosecutions on account of the Slocum disaster, and said that in spite of Jerome's "reckless accusations" against public officers he had prosecuted neither boodlers nor the Directore or officers of a great truet.

"It seems," he concluded, "that Mr. Jerome has had, therefore, no monopoly of efficiency or success. His mountains labor constantly, but the mice are small."

Mr. Jerome's Reply.

A copy of Mr. Osborne's etatement was ehown to District Attorney Jerome at his headquarters in the Gilsey House. After reading it through Mr. Jerome said:

"As to Mr. Osborne's not having heard of any effective prosecution of those responeible for the Darlington disaster I would say that if he had kept himself posted on the news he would have known that the police permitted the guilty person to get away and that he now is a fugitive from justice.

"Regarding the prosecution of the Directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad by Mr. Nicoll, if my recollection serves me right tbe court took every single case except one away from the jury, and in the latter case there was an acquittal, permitting the inference that there was no ground for prosecution. In regard to the manner in which I handled the later tunnel disaster, Mr. Osborne was in my office at the time, and he knows that I made three appeals to the Grand Jury to indict the Directors of the New York Central. Twice I went before that body in person, urging indictments, and once Mr. Rand appeared. All the evidence we could obtain was placed before the Grand Jury, as the minutee will show, but still that body did not see its way clear to indict anybody except Wisker, the engineer.

"As far as the prosecution of the Tobacco Trust by Judge Olcott is concerned it's true there was a prosecution, but Mr. Osborne fails to state the result. The Slocum disaster was in the hands of the Federal authorities, where it properly belonged.

Are the Aldermen Boodlers?

"Mr. Osborne makes much of the fact that the boodle Aldermen were prosecuted by a Democratic District Attorney. I wonder if Mr. Osborne means that the present Democratic Board of Aldermen is composed of boodlers? If he means that, why doesn't he say so? If not, where is there any neglect on my part?

"Now, I want to ask Mr. Osborne a question or two. Is he willing to state now whether if elected he will follow in appointing his assistants the same principle I followed—to appoint them without regard to their political partisanship and with an eye single to their fitness?

"I want to say that I did not think Osborne a puppet dangling at the end of a boss's string nor a housebroken pup in 1901, or I would not have appointed him. It is true I regretted his leaving my office. It is also true that I assigned him to important cases, as it is true that after he left my office I have in every shape, way, and manner, where that has been possible, by kind words spoken in private and in public, tried to add to his success in his private practice.

"When I said that he was the puppet of a political boss I meant that in no way was he singled out by the will of the people to be their candidate, but was simply picked out by a boss who ordered the convention to nominate him.

"I have not the slightest doubt regarding Jimmy Osborne's personal honesty. His difficulty will be the difficulty of every public officer who has been simply picked out by a boss. You cannot in honor have things carried to you on a silver salver by a boss and then turn about and fight him after you have been elected. If you are to take political preferment from the hands of a boss at his absolute dictation, then your responsibility in honor is to the boss, and not to the people. It is for this reason I have said repeatedly that I am running not against Osborne, but against Charley Murphy."

FORD AND COLER SPEAK.

At People's Meeting—Ex-Senator Talks of Purchasable Senators.

The doctrine of municipal ownership was preached yesterday by John Ford and Bird S. Coler at the regular people's meeting held at the Harlem Opera House under the joint direction of the Rev. Madison C. Peters and the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur. Mr. Ford, who is running for Controller on the Hearst ticket, said the lack of municipal ownership was partly responsible for the conditions which prevailed at Albany when "the Senators were bought like bags of salt to vote against the Eighty-Cent Gas bill." Many of these, Mr. Ford said, he knew personally.

Mr. Coler said he wouldn't discuss the political side of municipal ownership, though he confessed the temptation was almost overwhelming. He made a few remarks on "graft," and how it flourishes under present conditions better than it possibly could under municipal ownership.

Francis B. Thurber and the Rev. Mr. Peters also spoke. The latter said he would like to be informed if municipal ownership wouldn't afford greater and more frequent opportunities for stealing than with present conditions prevailing. Mr. Coler argued that a much more honest administration of affairs could be had through municipal ownership. He believed that employes would work better and more honestly for the city than they would for private corporations. He believed there was enough patriotism for that.

Besides speaking of purchasable Senators, ex-Senator Ford said that municipal ownership contained a good deal of practical Christianity. He asked why some of the subways had not been "planned to serve the interests of the common people." His audience laughed when he referred to the acquisition of the Staten Island Ferry and made fun of Mayor McClellan as a municipal ownership man. He asked why the Mayor boasted because the city now owned the ferry; there was no haste, he said, to take over gas and franchise privileges that were profitable.

McCLELLAN RESTS.

Murphy Dines with Cram—Leaders Looking Into Hearst's Strength.

Mayor McClellan took advantage of Sunday to slip out of town to his country place in Princeton for a rest from his first week of campaigning. With all of the speeches scheduled for him this week the candidate wanted to get some fresh air. He will be back to City Hall this morning for official business and will take the stump again to-night.

In addition to the tours planned into Queens Borough for Wednesday night, Brooklyn on Thursday night, and the Bronx on two occasions, the Mayor will appear once in Richmond, although the date has not yet been fixed.

Charles F. Murphy was at the Democratic Club for a short time yesterday afternoon. He dined with J. Sergeant Cram at the latter's home. While he met some political friends and lieutenants the Tammany leader was looking for rest, and did not encourage intrusions upon his Sunday.

The Tammany election district Captains are now going through their territory with great care to discover the Hearst strength. Each has been told he will be held personally responsible for his figures.

None of the leaders of the Hall can yet figure more than 100,000 votes for Hearst under the most favorable conditions.

There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee this week, either on Tuesday or Wednesday, and then, with the situation before the leaders, the final work of the campaign will be mapped out.

MR. CASSIDY SAYS:

That Hearst Can't Write, or Talk Without Manuscript—He Does Both.

Borough President Joseph Cassidy of Queens paid his respects yesterday to William R. Hearst as well as to Joseph Bermel, the Republican nominee for Borough President of Queens. "I do not want Democrats to be misled with all this rattle-trap about that man Hearst. You know that Hearst cannot write, and that all he is supposed to write is written by Arthur Brisbane. I know Hearst, and I know that he could not write a letter as well or as good as any Long Island City schoolboy under the age of 15 years."

Mr. Cassidy apparently did not know that Mr. Hearst spoke extemporaneously on Saturday night. "I don't know what would happen to Hearst if he should lose the manuscript of any of his speeches," he went on. "The other night he was to address three meetings in Manhattan, and he must have lost his speeches, or Brisbane must have forgotten to write them. Anyhow Hearst was late getting to the meetings.

"My opponents in assailing my administration have found that I have accomplished something, and, in fact, they came into my administration to get a candidate against me. They must have thought that my opponent could tell them the secret of my success in securing improvements for Queens, but in that they are disappointed, for my secret of success is locked up in my breast."

State Senator Luke A. Keenan, who represents President Roosevelt's home district at Albany, will take active management of Cassidy's personal campaign in Queens to-day.

STOKESES GUESTS OF HONOR

And Get Most of the Applause at an East Side Gathering.

J. G. Phelps Stokes and his wife were guests of honor at an anniversary supper and ball given last night in the Volks Lyceum, in Second Street, between Avenue B and Avenue C, by the New Era Club, a Jewish organization aiming to do social work on the east side. Other guests were Attorney General Mayer, Deputy Controller Phillips, Mrs. Mary Graves Quackenbos, attorney, and Miss Mary S. Tensley, a magazine writer of some note on east side questions.

Attorney General Mayer talked a little about the nobility of politics. He said that he holds in contempt the kind of man who disdains to get into politics.

"That is not the true American sentiment," said he. "I would not have the young man get into politics for his life work, but he should keep posted. Get into politics. Keep in touch with what is going on. There is Mr. Stokes over there. He has got into politics, and is having the time of his life. Whether he will be in politics three months from now I do not know."

Mr. Stokes was called on for a speech. There was five minutes of applause when he rose.

"I appreciate your invitation to come here; I appreciate your cordial reception," said he. "I heartily approve of the idea of the New Era Club. It stands for fellowship, good fellowship, good friendship. And only so long as men advance in the formation of good friendships do they advance in the higher things of life."

The Republican, Democratic, and Municipal Ownership organizations were all represented at the gathering, but the sentiment of the club, which has a membership of about 200, was plainly for the municipal ownership people. Every mention of Hearst's name was loudly applauded.

MR. IVINS TAKES UP THE MAYOR'S PROMISES

None Kept, He Says, Except the One on Partisanship.

HIS IS THE ERA OF GRAFT

Devery's for Him, Mr. Ivins Adds—Now Will He Promise to Stay Four Years in Office?

William M. Ivins, the Republican candidate for Mayor, will invade Brooklyn to-night. His first appearance in that borough, in which for many years he made his home, will be at a mass meeting in the Clermont Avenue Rink. Ex-Lieut. Gov. Woodruff will preside.

Mr. Ivins went to the country yesterday to get fresh air and rest to strengthen him for the arduous week of campaigning which is before him, beginning to-day. He will speak at not fewer than three meetings every night this week, and for some nights four and five meetings are on the schedule which has been arranged for him by his campaign manager, Senator Eisberg.

Before he left for the country yesterday Mr. Ivins had a good deal to say in rejoinder to Mayor McClellan's appeal for votes on the record which he had made. Mr. Ivins said:

"Mr. McClellan has intimated that I am making promises to win votes, while he points to performances. It is very gratifying to me to have the Mayor take this position, because it affords me an opportunity to remind the people of his promises. In his speech of acceptance of Oct. 10, 1903, he said: 'The obligation which I shall incur in accepting your nomination must be met by proving my gratitude by deeds and not in words.' That was his first promise. Gratitude is a personal matter, and proof of gratitude in deeds is also a personal matter and not an official matter. This promise Mayor McClellan has kept well. Appointments like those of Oakley, Crane, Lantry, Best, Pallas, and Hopper prove this thoroughly."

The Mayor, Mr. Ivins said, had promised a partisan government and had kept his word, "has made the machine supreme." Mr. Ivins then quoted a declaration of the Mayor that he would appoint no man to office whose record did not warrant the appointment.

"With one or two notable exceptions," said Mr. Ivins, "he has placed no man in office whose record would warrant his appointment, but has appointed only politicians, in proof of his 'gratitude in deeds.'"

Of the Mayor's promise to clear the city of graft Mr. Ivins said that his administration had become known as the era of graft. "Plunkitt," he added, "reduced it to a gospel in his book, and Murphy has indorsed it with a preface, and Devery has declared for McClellan."

The Mayor, Mr. Ivins continued, had not kept his promise in regard to schools or his promise for an abundant supply of wholesome water. The streets, he declared, were never dirtier. There were no "free bridges," he said, "only engineers' quarrels." Of the Mayor's promise to require "sufficient and rapid transit," Mr. Ivins said, "ask Brooklyn." Mr. Ivins continued:

"The most important and most humorous promise made by the Mayor, however, was, 'If I am elected Mayor I shall be responsible to the people and to no one else, not only for every appointment I make, but for every act of my administration.' As a matter of fact, the Mayor has been responsible for his appointments to nobody but Tammany Hall, and his promise in this respect has fallen as ludicrously short in performance as his promise with regard to graft, and water, and free bridges, and common carriers.

"Mayor McClellan was a good promiser two years ago. He now has a chance to make a promise that he can easily keep. If he is elected Mayor on the score of his character and ability, will he promise to place that character and ability at the service of the people for the full term of four years and not abandon the people of Greater New York in pursuit of some other political ambition?"

Mr. Ivins ended with a denial of the declaration of the Hearst speakers that financial powers controlled him.

"Let the people vote against me, if they like," said he; "but let it be for some other reason than my supposed subservience to any political machine or any amenability to selfish and sinister capitalistic influence or power."

The Ivins campaign will be opened in the Thirty-fourth Assembly District tomorrow night by a ratification meeting in the hall of the North Side Republican Club, 142d Street and Third Avenue. There will be fireworks in front of the clubhouse and a band will play. Richard W. Lawrence will preside, and speeches will be made by Candidates James L. Wells, Hal Bell, and George W. Mathews.

350 REPUBLICANS TALKING.

25,000 May Hear Spellbinders Nightly —McClellan's Promises the Issue.

More than 350 Republican spellbinders are engaged nightly expounding the Republican platform in Manhattan and the Bronx. More will be sent out this week. The speakers' bureau is in charge of Frank K. Bowers, who has managed it for several years. All speakers have instructions to dwell upon the promises made by Mayor McClellan two years ago, and ask if they have been kept.

Some of the larger halls of the city which have been engaged by the committee for the coming two weeks are Cooper Union, Harlem Casino, Majestic Hall, Amsterdam Opera House, Zeltner's Hall, and Muller's Casino, in the Bronx. These halls will enable Republican orators to address about 25,000 persons nightly.

"SIR CHAWLES," GOOD GROUND

Jerome Finds a New Title for Murphy —Who Were Those Emissaries?

District Attorney Jerome spent Sunday recuperating from his speechmaking and preparing for the work of this week, which will be the crucial one of his campaign. He dropped in at his headquarters in the Hotel Breslin for a little while in the evening.

"There isn't much in this campaign fit to discuss on Sunday," said Mr. Jerome, "except to reiterate the question of which I'm afraid New York may get tired before I get through asking it, but of which Sir Chawles of Good Ground will get a great deal more tired. I mean:

"Where did he get it?"

Mr. Jerome repeated that he is very anxious to have Mr. Murphy name the "other emissaries" who were sent by the District Attorney to see him and ask for Mr. Jerome's nomination on the Tammany ticket.

"If there were any others, surely Mr. Murphy's power in his own organization is enough to force them to come out and tell what they know," said Mr. Jerome. But I said the other night that Murphy's friends would fall on his neck and suppress him.

"I told how J. Sergeant Cram would dash to the rescue in his Tuxedo coat, bearing a great and tight-fitting cork, and fit it in Murphy's face. Even then I did not think they would shut him up so promptly. I didn't think they would send him out to Good Ground, cross and sulky, to play with his automobile and atop talking."

The Jerome Campaign Club sent out yesterday from its headquarters in the Union Square Hotel a call for volunteers to do duty as speakers, campaigners, or watchers at the polls. Anybody who has an hour to give up for a good cause now or on election day is invited to apply at the headquarters of the club, where he will be assigned to duty where he can do the most good.

BUSY WEEK PLANNED FOR CANDIDATE HEARST

Meetings in Brooklyn, the Bronx, and a Labor Demonstration.

ALLEGED FRAUDS UNEARTHED

City Ownership Managers Say They Have Found 1,000 Illegal Voters In Leader Murphy's District.

Three big meetings, one in Manhattan, one in Brooklyn, and another in the Bronx, at all of which William Randolph Hearst and his running mates on the Municipal Ownership ticket will speak, have been planned for this week. The first will be held to-morrow evening at Zeltner's Hall in the Bronx. This will be in the nature of a ratification of the city, county, and borough tickets.

The other two meetings will be labor demonstrations. The first will be held on Thursday evening at the Clermont Avenue Rink in Brooklyn. This is the biggest meeting place in that borough, and has been rented by the Hearst forces for every evening until the campaign closes. They have no intention of using it every night, but as it is practically the only hall of any size available in Brooklyn, it will be a severe handicap to their opponents.

This meeting will be Mr. Hearst's first appearance in the central part of Brooklyn. Plans are being made for overflow meetings, and it has been announced that Mr. Hearst and the principal candidates will speak at these. The climax of the week's campaign will come on Saturday with the labor meeting in Durland's Riding Academy in West Sixty-sixth Street. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the Workingmen's Municipal Ownership Association, and will be preceded by parades of several organizations.

Plans for Mr. Hearst's share in the week's speechmaking have not been made beyond these three meetings, but it was announced yesterday that he had recovered from the cold he caught on his trip to Brooklyn last week, and that in all probability he would speak at other meetings.

The Hearst managers will complete today their copies of the registration lists in the Eighteenth Assembly District, of which Charles F. Murphy of Tammany is leader. It was announced at the Hearst headquarters that out of the 9,300 names of registered voters, a preliminary investigation had indicated that the lists had been padded to the number of at least 1,000 names. Secretary Thomas F. Smith of Tammany Hall, when told of this, said the charge was absurd.

The Hearst managers on the strength of reports received from their agents supplemented yesterday the former offer made by Mr. Hearst of $1,000 for the first arrest and conviction for illegal registration by offering ten rewards of $100 each for the ten next arrests and convictions for that offense. To facilitate discovery the registration lists have been printed, and will be distributed from house to house in the district of Tammany Leader Murphy.

The names have been divided according to house, number, and street, so that it can be seen at a glance how many names have been registered from any one house. The Hearst managers declare that many residents of private house will be surprised to learn that in some cases a dozen or more alleged voters, strangers to them, have been registered from their homes.

The Lawyers' Municipal Ownership League has sent out an open letter to the bar, signed by fifty lawyers, calling upon their confrères to rally to Hearst. The College Men's Municipal League, another Hearst organization, is planning a mass meeting for next week.

NO MISSISSIPPI QUARANTINE.

Barriers Against New Orleans and Other Points Are Dropped.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 22.—The health authorities of Mississippi announced to-night that the State was open to the world, withdrawing quarantines against New Orleans and other places infected with yellow fever.

The announcement will cause surprise among the Southern health officials. Three new cases at Natchez and three new cases and one death at Vicksburg were reported to-day.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—The yellow fever report to 6 P. M. to-day is: New cases, 2; deaths, none; new disease centres, 1; cases under treatment, 73.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 22.—Yellow fever cases took another jump to-day and to-night there were reported twelve new ones and one death. The new cases are distributed in various sections of the city.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 22.—Texas today lifted its quarantine against all points in Louisiana, except those infected. Persons who enter this State will be required to take oath as to point of origin, but no health certificates will be required.

TRAP FOR McCLELLAN.

Kings County Candidates Left Out of the Meetings Where He'll Speak.

Democratic politicians were deeply interested yesterday in reports that it has been deliberately planned to put Mayor McClellan in an embarrassing position when he goes to Brooklyn next Thursday night. The McClellan meetings are to be held under the auspices of the Brooklyn League of Democratic Clubs, made up of the men who opposed the leadership of Senator McCarren in the primaries.

Mayor McClellan is expected to speak at these meetings. No one of these three meetings will have as a speaker any of the candidates on the county or borough ticket.

Robert F. Gillen, who approved James B. Bouck for leadership in the Fourth District, is President of the new league. It is said that he secured from the Mayor his promise to attend. When the Mayor learns, however, that the county ticket is to be left out of the discussion it is believed that he will decline to address the meeting.

Saratoga Man Disappears Here.

John H. O'Brien, a merchant tailor, 48 years old, of Saratoga, has not been seen by his relatives or friends since he arrived in this city on last Wednesday, and yesterday his son, John S. O'Brien of 201 West Twenty-first Street, reported his disappearance to the police. A general alarm has been sent out. O'Brien had been ill for several weeks. He left the train at the Grand Central Station, but did not reach his son's home.

PARK GOOSE MYSTERY SOLVED

A Rare Arctic Pair Presented by W. E. D. Stokes—Caged for Safety.

After mystifying the geese guardian of Central Park for two weeks by their exclusiveness as they swam the lake, two little black arctic geese were removed from the open water to the flying cage in the menagerie yestrday, by order of Director Smith. W. E. D. Stokes of the Ansonia Hotel established the identity of the geese, and a Federal Game Warden in Alaska valued them at $500 as rare specimens.

The geese guardian, feeding his flock about a month ago, noticed the strangers. There was something about them that differentiated them from the rest. Other geese took their food and swam away with it. The little black pair swam way with it. The little black pair swam around the others and sized up the bits of food. When they found the largest bit they would swoop down on its possessor and take it away. Director Smith spent a day studying them, and concluded that they were of a variety he had never seen.

About two weeks ago Mr. Stokes cleared up the mystery. In a letter to Director Smith he said he had liberated a pair of arctic geese in the big lake, and hoped they were thriving and being well cared for. From the fact that several suspicious-looking individuals had been found in the neighborhood of the geese house, Director Smith believed that the value of his acquisitions had become known in other quarters, and yesterday he ordered the removal to the protection of the flying cage.

Motor Boat Capsized; One Drowned.

MARIETTA, Ohio, Oct. 22.—While returning from Beverly to Marietta in a motorboat this morning, M. L. Williamson, a dentist; Probate Judge C. H. Nixon, and William Selby, son of an oil producer, went over a dam on the Muskingum River at Lowell. The boat capsized and Williamson was drowned. The others swam to a bridge pier and were rescued. A dense fog had caused the party to miss the canal.

Life Insurance

HOW I SAVED $50,613.73 FOR A POLICYHOLDER.

Here are the facts.

His policy—$100,000. The premium $5,131 a year for 20 years.

He had been insured for three years. Alarmed at the exposures in the extravagantly managed companies, he called on me for expert advice.

I advised that he take a paid up policy for $15,000—the amount allowed by the company for the premiums he had paid.

Then to take out a 15-year policy under my plan for $85,000—making a total of $100,000—at an annual premium of $3,273.10.

RECAPITULATION.

Yearly cost of old policy	$5,131.00
Yearly cost under my plan only	$3,273.10
YEARLY DIFFERENCE	$1,857.90
Multiplied by years	15
	9,289.50
	1,857.90
Saving in 15 years	$27,868.50
Interest on $1,857.90 each year for 15 years at 4½% compounded	$12,483.23
Two additional payments on the old policy	10,262.00
Representing a clear cash saving to the policyholder	50,613.73

This clear cash saving of $50,613.73 is exclusive of the dividends he will receive every year under my plan, and which under the old policy were lost entirely in case of death before maturity.

These are the facts. They ought to appeal to your intelligent self-interest. No matter what the amount—a proportionate saving can be shown on policies in force 1 to 6 years.

The figures I have deduced are an absolute certainty.

I represent no company, simply advise you where you can get the most for your money.

An interview costs you nothing.

THIS WEEK AT AEOLIAN HALL

Special Demonstrations of The PIANOLA PIANO

SO MUCH interest was shown by the public in the Special Demonstrations of the Pianola Piano advertised two weeks ago that it has been decided to renew the opportunity during the coming week.

Accordingly, on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, the Pianola Piano will be on exhibition, played and explained, in a special room at Aeolian Hall, from 10 to 12 each morning, and from 3 to 5 each afternoon. These Demonstrations are not Recitals, but are of an informal character, so that the public may fully satisfy its curiosity in regard to this remarkable achievement in piano construction and at the same time without any feeling that a call will be construed as indicative of an intention to purchase.

To lend additional interest to these Demonstrations, the following selections, specially metrostyled by eminent musicians during the past summer for the Pianola and Pianola Piano, will be played:

ALBENIZ.....Les Saisons
Interpretation by the Composer

CHOPIN.....Valse Op. 64—No. 3
Interpretation by Francis Plante

GRIEG.....Troldtog
Interpretation by the Composer

GILLET.....Loin de Bal
Interpretation by the Composer

LISZT.....Polonaise No. 2
Interpretation by Arthur Friedheim

LISZT.....Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 2
Interpretation by Arthur Friedheim

LISZT.....Paganini Etude
Interpretation by Arthur Friedheim

MANEN.....Scherzo Op. 21
Interpretation by the Composer

MOZART.....Rondo A Minor
Interpretation by Carl Reinecke

De SANTESTEBAN.....Zapateado
Interpretation by the Composer

SCHARWENKA....Polish Dance Op. 3—No. 1
Interpretation by the Composer

SGAMBATI.....Prelude from Suite in B Minor
Interpretation by the Composer

SGAMBATI.....Valse from Suite in B Minor
Interpretation by the Composer

The above interpretations have all been made during the past few months and this will be the first time that they have been publicly rendered. Considering the high rank of the musicians who have made the interpretations, it will be seen that this is an occasion of much interest to New York's music-lovers.

This reproduction of the composer's or virtuoso's own interpretation is made possible by the Metrostyle, a feature exclusive with the Pianola and Pianola Piano.

With such complete artistic ability and such unlimited resources embodied in one instrument, it is no longer a matter of wonder that owners of high-grade and hitherto satisfactory pianos should hasten to exchange them for this revolutionary type of instrument.

Any make of Piano will be taken in exchange for the Pianola Piano. Monthly payments will be arranged at the convenience of the customer.

THE AEOLIAN CO., Aeolian Hall, 362 Fifth Avenue, near Thirty-fourth Street, New York.

SINKING, CUT TOWLINE TO SAVE ANOTHER SHIP

Nine Heroic Men and a Woman Went Down on Lake Schooner.

LINKED TO FRAILER CRAFT

Their Vessel Loaded with 75,000 Tons of Wheat Would Have Carried the Melrose Under.

PORT HURON, Mich., Oct. 22.—Details of the loss of the schooner Minnedosa, which went down in Lake Huron during the storm on Friday while in tow of the steel steamer Westmount, have now reached here. Eight men and one woman aboard, who went down with her, cut their sinking craft loose in order not to carry under a smaller schooner, the Melrose, which was being towed behind her.

The Minnedosa, which carried a cargo of 75,000 bushels of wheat, had been so badly battered that she was leaking in many places and all on board knew that she was settling beneath the raging waters. Why should they take others with them? Perhaps if cast loose the Melrose could save herself. Capt. Jack Phillips's voice rose in command over the howling storm. One of the crew held a sharp axe. It fell, and the blow set the Melrose free. A few moments later the Minnedosa, with its nine heroes, lurched to the bottom off Harbor Beach.

When the trailing towline was pulled aboard the steamer Westmount, which had been towing the Melrose and Minnedosa, the tow post of the Minnedosa came with it. The towline had not broken.

Those who went down with the Minnedosa were: Captain John Phillips, Kingston, Ont., Mrs. Phillips, the Captain's wife; Arthur Waller, mate, Nova Scotia; George McDermott, Bellcville, Ont.; James Allen, Nova Scotia; a passenger and three sailors, names unknown to the captain of either the Westmount or the Melrose, and whose bomes are believed to be at Kingston.

"The Minnedosa went to the bottom without a signal of distress," said Capt. Milligan of the Westmount to-day. "We did not know how serious was her condition.

"Out into the lake where the Minnedosa's men had cut her loose, the Melrose was beaten. For an hour and a half we tried in vain to pick her up and take her to shelter, but every time we failed. I gave up for a while, trusting she would last until daylight. But at 4 o'clock I was convinced that she had a short time on top of the water unless she was taken in tow. Again I made the attempt. Toward 5 o'clock we were successful. She had drifted twenty miles from shore."

Capt. R. H. Davey of the Melrose had his wife and daughter and his little son with him on board the Melrose during the storm.

"We never expected to see land again," he said. "The Melrose had 50,000 bushels of wheat in her hold. She is an old boat and in the gale that swept the lakes Friday night she had small chances to get into shelter alone. Suddenly there came a snap and the severed 10-inch hawser that held the Melrose to the Minnedosa was pulled in. A clean cut marked the work of the axe. The crew of the Minnedosa had realized their doom and sought in the last moment to save the Melrose."

MOSCOW ALMOST CUT OFF.

Employes of Four More Railroads Strike—Famine is Feared.

MOSCOW, Oct. 22.—Traffic on seven of the nine main trunk arteries of commerce radiating from Moscow was completely paralyzed to-day by the railroad strike, and the commercial heart of Rusala has been shut of from all communication with the rest of the Empire, except with the narrow section to the northwest, including St. Peteraburg and the Baltic provinces.

The employes of four more railroads struck to-day and only the lines to St. Petersburg and to Riga and other Baltic ports are open.

The strikes to-day forced the office employes of three more lines to quit work. There is already a milk and meat famine here and a few days' continuance of the strike will cause serious embarrasament and even suffering to the population. The renewal of the factory strikes is not improbable.

THE HARDMAN PIANO

of our suit and coat section

OUR suit and coat salons, like the exclusive shops of Paris, are the cynosure of the fashionable set during these Autumn days. Smart dressers who you know could spend fortunes on their apparel are prominent among the interested throngs, proving our claim that even the smartest tailor to ladies can give no touch of style to the suit or costume that is not embodied in the creations we are showing at about half his price.

Suits that you could not distinguish from the originals of those famous Paris designers are included at prices that will surprise you. You will scarcely believe your eyes till you have examined the garment, when your surprise will change to admiration of the dainty effects in the trimming—the zip and dash of the skirt and coat—wonderful, you will say.

Suit and Coat Section—3d floor.

You will notice that we specialize no particular garment to-day. On the other hand, six exceptional values are featured to-day. The scope of this section has become too broad to permit of our laying too much stress upon one value, save at certain times. To-day you may select a style that appeals to you and depend upon receiving a value you cannot duplicate.

Many new models ready to-day.

Suits in unfinished worsteds, plain cheviots and light mixtures—long or short coats—tight fitting—satin lined—colors, blue, brown, green, plum or black—including the mixtures—plaited skirt. Price.. 22.50

WOMEN'S SILK MERCERIZED HOSIERY

Value 50c. Special, 35c.

3 pairs, 1.00

Very high grade imported silk lustrous fast black mercerized hosiery—the newest and most desirable sold by any store at 50c. a pair, and scarce at that; sheer quality with the low heel and double soles. Not the cobweb kinds, which do not wear, but a quality and weight suitable for year round service. Monday—one day only—at 35c., 3 pairs for $1.00.

Main Floor.

Imported spangle robes, $5

WE'LL be better prepared to-day. To tell the truth, we didn't expect so many smart dressers to buy robes last Monday. The sale broke all records and goes to show that no smart dresser is going to be without one of these robes when she can get it at half price. We'll have more salespeople to wait upon the crowds to-day.

Now don't judge the value of these robes by what we say they are worth. You'll find them better, but we'd rather you'd be surprised than disappointed, and so instead of overestimating we have underestimated.

Take the spangle robes at $5 for instance—we don't believe you'll see the equal of many of them elsewhere for less than $12. They're but a small part of the collection, though. In fact, nearly every smart style is represented.

Endless variety and a most attractive display, including:—

To-day—1.75 colored silk chiffon velvets 1.10

TWO WEEKS ago we held a sale of the same quality of chiffon velvets, and ever since that time it has been the talk of the town among smart dressers. The demand has doubled. Hundreds are emphatic in their request for another sale. They have seen the quality we sold. Comparison has proven to them that it is not to be had elsewhere at the price we ask, and it means that to-day all records will be eclipsed for the sale of chiffon velvets in New York. Never has any dress material exceeded them in popularity, and it promises to increase as the season advances.

When we tell you that we have succeeded in securing 500 pieces genuine $1.75 quality chiffon velvets to sell at $1.10 we want you to take into consideration the vogue, the demand, the scarcity of this quality at $1.75, and under no circumstances fail to select a suiting from this beautiful showing at $1.10.

THE TWO EXTREMES IN dress goods value giving

WITHOUT any special values advertised, without a line of publicity of any kind, our dress goods section would still be the centre of attraction to a multitude of smart dressers because of its reputation for always having the correct fabric in the latest effects and many that are not shown elsewhere.

Main Floor.

But with the two extremes in value giving remedy for to-day in the two materials over which fashionable women are going into ecstacies, in shades most difficult to find, we intend to crowd this magnificent rotunda section to-day as it has never before been crowded.

ENORMOUS INCREASES IN THE GERMAN TARIFF

American Exports Hard Hit by the New Schedules.

OTHER COUNTRIES FAVORED

Big Differences Between General and Conventional Rates—Duty on Oil 71 Per Cent. Ad Valorem.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—A statement of the German customs tariff, comparing the rates of import duty levied in Germany under the old and the new tariffs, was given out to-day by the Department of Commerce and Labor. A table has been compiled expressing the difference between the old and new rates in ad valorem terms, based on the German estimates of the import value of the articles in 1903, the latest year for which figures are available.

The estimates as to what percentage ad valorem the new general and conventional rates will constitute can only be approximately correct at best. If the prices of commodities should not change greatly, as compared with those prevailing in 1903, the estimates of what the new ad valorem rates will amount to will be fairly accurate, otherwise they will not.

Among the products constituting the most important items in the trade of the United States with Germany the highest ad valorem rate of duty affects mineral oils, being 71 per cent. ad valorem on illuminating and 72 per cent. on lubricating oils. The specific rate on illuminating oil has been increased 66 per cent. in the new general tariff and left unchanged in the conventional tariff.

The duty on tobacco is 57 per cent. ad valorem, and has not been changed in either of the new tariffs.

A series of notable increases affects agricultural products. Thus rye, the duty on which until now constituted the highest ad valorem rate, viz., 35 per cent., is advanced to about 70 per cent. ad valorem under the new general tariff and 43 per cent. under the conventional tariff.

The specific duty on wheat is advanced 114 per cent.; on wheat flour 157 per cent.; corn, 212 per cent.; dried fruits, 150 per cent., and fresh oranges, 200 per cent. The conventional tariffs are somewhat lower. Thus, while oranges coming from favored nations will be subject to a duty of 24 per cent. ad valorem, those imported from other countries will have to pay about 80 per cent. ad valorem.

The rates on provisions also have been advanced greatly. The specific rate on bacon is advanced 80 per cent., pork 176 per cent., beef 200 per cent., the conventional tariffs being somewhat lower.

As regards manufactures, the old rates are for the most part moderate. The duty on sewing machines, representing the highest ad valorem rate under the existing tariff for important articles of export from this country, viz., 22 per cent., is raised 46 per cent (i. e., to about 32 per cent. ad valorem) under the new general tariff, no provision having been made under the conventional tariff. Agricultural machinery, which pays on the average about 4 per cent. ad valorem, will be subject to rates from 20 per cent. to 88 per cent. higher. The rates of duty on steam engines and motors of all kinds, which were hitherto the same as those on agricultural machinery, and averaged 4 per cent. ad valorem, are advanced all the way from 40 per cent. to 1,150 per cent. Motive machinery coming from countries not enjoying the convention rates will be subject to duties as high as 50 per cent. ad valorem, while that coming from favored nations will pay duties ranging from 5½ per cent. to 35 per cent. ad valorem.

Duties on boots and shoes are increased from 70 to 177 per cent., the ad valorem increase being from 8 to 15 per cent. On cottonseed oil the advance is about 25 per cent.

These new tariffs will be the subject of serious negotiation between this country and Germany, and the matter will probably be taken up soon after the return to America of Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German Ambassador.

HELD FOR MANY BURGLARIES.

Electric Company's Superintendent in Middletown Accused.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 22.—The mystery of a great many burglaries which had baffled the skill of the police for the past month is believed to have been solved by the arrest of Charles Boos, a Superintendent of the Inter-State Electrical Company of Reading, Penn., which has charge of construction work for the Wallkill Transit Company of Middletown.

Among places entered were the residences of Alderman Joel B. Wheeler, F. P. S. Crane, J. L. Pendleton, and Budwig & Co., clothing store. Suspicion, the police say, pointed toward Boos through his selling copper wire to a junk dealer. His room was searched and as a result he is accused of having there a large quantity of stolen property, of forging a great many pay checks belonging to men under him, and of tapping the wires of the trolley company and running wires into his room at his boarding house for five 100-volt lights.

SALE OF HISTORIC LAND.

Washington's Headquarters to Go in the Mayor Belcher Wreck.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, Oct. 22.—Washington's Preakness headquarters, from which all general orders were issued while his army was in Northern New Jersey, is to be disposed of at Sheriff's sale because of the default of William H. Belcher, the missing Mayor, in the payment of interest due on two mortgages. Belcher had a hobby for gentleman farming, and purchased Preakness headquarters and the surrounding farm land from Henry Ibserman, giving a mortgage for $2,500 and assuming a previous mortgage for $2,000 held by the Howe estate.

The farm was one of half a dozen maintained by Mayor Belcher. Like the others it was mortgaged at nearly its full value, and for more than a year Belcher had neglected to pay the interest.

The building is practically as it was when Belcher occupied it. At that time it was known as the Dey Mansion. The rooms are large, and few of the country mansion in the vicinity compare with it.

AMERICAN FISHERS SAFE.

Newfoundland Officials Not to Interfere with Them.

HAMILTON, Mass., Oct. 22.—Secretary of State Root to-night sent this telegram to Congressman A. P. Gardner.

"This department is advised by the British Ambassador on authority of a telegram to him from the Governor of Newfoundland, that no Newfoundland official is preventing any American vessels from fishing on the treaty coast; that no distinction is being drawn between registered and licensed vessels; that the local officers in Newfoundland have been told that American Captains must not engage crews off the Newfoundland coast to fish for them, but no objection is made to their using the nets themselves.

"You may advise your constituents in Gloucester in order that they may inform their Captains on the treaty coast that any prohibition which there may have been by Newfoundland officers against fishing by registered vessels can now be ignored, and American vessels, whether registered or licensed, may now proceed to take any kind of fish.

"If any vessel has in its crew any men shipped within three miles of the Newfoundland Coast, such men should be discharged."

Mr. Gardner sent the telegram to the Gloucester Board of Trade and the board immediately telegraphed information to Captains of vessels at Bay of Islands. There are nearly a score of Gloucester vessels at Bay of Islands, the herring having struck in about ten days ago.

FEAR TAFT HAS BEATEN REPUBLICANS IN OHIO

Gloom in Party and Democrats Offer Odds Without Takers.

COX MACHINE IS IN DANGER

May Trade Off Herrick in Order to Save Itself from Defeat in Cincinnati.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 22.—Alarm has seized upon the Republicans of Cincinnati and Ohio generally to-day. The speech of Secretary of War Taft at Akron has been the talk of all who follow politics, and the members of his party fear that it will bring disaster to the ticket in the State and in this city.

Democratic leaders jubilantly predict a sweep of the State in consequence of Mr. Taft's attack on George B. Cox, boss of this city. They were ready to-day to back their opinions with odds, but Republicans declined to take bets. Yesterday there was plenty of Republican money in sight and the odds were against the Democrats.

Mr. Taft's declaration that he would bolt the Cox ticket here if he were to vote this year caused the greatest gloom among the Republicans. It is feared that thousands of Republicans will be influenced by his denunciation and will feel free to follow his example.

The Cox machine has a hard fight on its hands, anyway.

Vice Mayor Gordon, its nominee for Mayor, is opposed by Judge James Dempsey, who, after the nomination, wrested control of the Democratic organization from John R. McLean's lieutenant, Lewis Bernard, and is making his fight on an anti-graft platform. Exposures of millions of graft and corruption and the machine's alliance with the lawless element has already aroused the public, hitherto pacified by the low tax rate.

Cox in this emergency may bend all his energies toward the election of the city ticket and will throw Gov. Herrick overboard. Friends of the Governor fear that he will trade off the State ticket.

Throughout the State Mr. Taft's speech is expected to turn thousands of votes to John M. Pattison, the Democratic candidate for Governor, as the Secretary admitted the charges made by Mr. Pattison against the Cox ring. The Herrick men have been trying to down this issue, which was raised because Cox forced the renomination of the Governor, but to-day it is regarded as the chief question of the campaign.

Some references of Mr. Taft to Mr. Herrick's temperance attitude have also given concern to the Republicans, as they are regarded as too strongly condemnatory of the temperance people.

Should disaster come to the Republicans this Fall, Secretary Taft's supposed Presidential ambitions would be seriously affected. Many Republicans are already criticising him bitterly for launching his attack on Cox in the midst of a campaign, and are saying that they will fight him should he ever come to the fore in the future.

MOORS' CAPTIVES FREED.

Capt. Crowther and Lieut. Hatton at Tangier—Were Well Treated.

TANGIER, Oct. 22.—The scout ship Pathfinder has arrived here with Capt. Crowther and Lieut. Hatton, the British officers who were captured by Moroccan tribesmen.

The liberation of the officers was effected through the good offices of the Shereef of Wazzan and in exchange for the brigand Valiente, whose brother headed the Anjera tribesmen, who made the capture. In an interview the Shereef said that there was no difficulty in effecting the exchange of prisoners, and that no ransom was asked and no other condition was imposed.

The officers said they were well treated by their captors.

OVATION TO TOGO IN TOKIO.

Entire City Turns Out to Welcome Him —Mikado Thanks Him.

TOKIO, Oct. 22.—To-day was made memorable in the annals of Japan by the public entry of Admiral Togo, who came to report to the Emperor the return of his fleet from the war.

The party entered five imperial carriages placed at their disposal, and, led by his Majesty's aide, Admiral Inouye, drove to the palace, reaching there at 11 o'clock, when they were received in audience by the Emperor.

Admiral Togo's carriage, escorted by a bodyguard of troopers, passed under a triumphal arch in front of the railway station. The streets were lined with crowds, which shouted hearty "banzais" as the party passed. The enthusiastic cheers, mingled with the noise of the bands, were audible for a great distance.

Admiral Togo after his audience of the Emperor returned to his ship.

In receiving Admiral Togo's report the Emperor warmly praised the services rendered by him and his officers and men.

RUSSIAN ARMY BREAKING UP.

Being Moved Rapidly—Russo-Chinese Bank to Reopen Branches.

HARBIN, Oct. 18, (Delayed.)—Now that the ratification of the peace treaty has been announced to the army, permission has been given by headquarters to telegraph the fact that the troops are being rapidly demobilized. All northbound trains from the positions are loaded with troops and their equipment. Half of all the native buildings in the northern part of Kwang-cheng-Tse and its vicinity have been requisitioned for the use of troops preparatory to their movement home, and many of the huts and buildings there and elsewhere will be used by the soldiers whom the authorities will be unable to move before Winter.

Lieut. Gen. Linevitch, who has been here since Oct. 15, contemplates a visit to Vladivostok.

A prominent General has been appointed to conduct the movement of Russian prisoners from Nagasaki.

The Russo-Chinese Bank is preparing to reopen its former branches along the line of the South Manchuria Railroad and is arranging to establish agencies at Dalny, Port Arthur, Yin-Kow, Mukden, and Tie Pass.

The Amur Railroad will immediately be extended to Blagovestchensk and Khabarovsk.

Local industries are being re-established.

GRANT FAMILY GATHERING.

A Big Association to Meet at Windsor Homestead Next Saturday.

At Windsor, Conn., next Saturday, the Grant family association, composed of the descendants of Matthew Grant, will hold a reunion in the old family homestead. Matthew Grant was born in England in 1602, and came to the Colonies in 1632 on the Mary and John, landing at Dorchester, Mass.

Young Grant settled at Windsor, where he received a grant from the crown.

The house as it stands to-day is not entirely the home of Matthew Grant's time. The rear part of the original house still stands, while much of the front was erected in 1734.

Of Matthew Grant's descendants it is estimated that there are more than 8,000. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant and the Huntingtons, Phelps, Stokes, Logan, Goodrich, Palmer, Wolcott, Delano, and Tompkins families are in the list of descendants.

MET DEATH IN HER AUTO.

Woman Upsets Machine in Avoiding a Pedestrian.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Theodore Planz, wife of a merchant tailor, was killed while driving an automobile to-day. While speeding along Van Ness Avenue she made a quick turn to avoid running down a pedestrian. The automobile was upset, and the occupants were thrown out.

Mrs. Planz met death almost instantly, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Henry Planz, was severely hurt. Theodore Planz, the husband of the woman who was killed, and his two nieces escaped with bruises.

Distinctive

Fur Lined Coats for Men

Fifty to Eight Hundred Dollars

The brunt of it we will have to stand if ever a fur-lined coat of ours goes wrong. There is none upon whom to shift the blame, since the garments are tailored and lined in our own shops.

Our fur man selects the skins in the rough with discernment and discrimination which insures good service. In that we are not alone. Perhaps other fur men know their business as well as we know ours.

But so far as we know we are alone in this: instead of making the usual "shell," without grace or style, our garments are designed after the most authoritative overcoat models and tailored with all the character and distinctiveness which that exacting standard of ours demands.

Our collection of fur lined coats is big and most diversified, including those lined with natural, blended and black raccoon, Japanese and far eastern mink, Persian lamb, beaver, sealskin, marmot and kindred furs.

Even for the most inexpensive garments we have imported the fabrics.

LOUBET ARRIVES IN SPAIN.

Enthusiastic Demonstration on President's Departure from Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—President Loubet left Paris for Madrid this morning, accompanied by Premier Rouvier, to return the recent visit to France of King Alfonso.

The departure from the Orleans Station was made the occasion of an enthusiastic demonstration by enormous crowds. On the platform was a brilliant assemblage of officials, including all the members of the Cabinet or their representatives, the Presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, and distinguished military officers, as well as many Spanish residents of Paris. The Presidential train started amid sustained cheering and a salute by a guard of honor.

At all the stations on the way to the frontier there were crowds which greeted the President with cheers for France and Spain. There was an official reception at the frontier town of Irun, where a special mission on behalf of King Alfonso met and welcomed the President.

The President will continue his journey through the night and will arrive at the Escurial (twenty-seven miles from Madrid) at noon to-morrow. There he will place a wreath on the grave of King Alfonso XII. He will then proceed to the capital. He will be received in state at the Madrid railway station by King Alfonso.

POPE'S BIRTHPLACE EN FETE.

Monument to Pius X. Unveiled—Patriarch of Venice Present.

ROME, Oct. 22.—A monument to Pope Pius X., subscribed for by Catholics all over the world, was unveiled this morning at Riese, the little village in the Venetian Province where the Pope was born. His Holiness is represented in the act of administering a benediction.

The entire village was decorated, and national flags were conspicuous everywhere, while the walls were covered with inscriptions, one of which read, "Long Live Pope Pius X., the First Citizen of the World!" The authorities formed a procession, headed by the Patriarch of Venice and six Bishops of the neighboring dioceses, to the house where the Pope was born.

The eldest sister of the Pope and other relatives, who own an inn called the Two Swords, where they themselves serve the customers, were the recipients of much attention. Many telegrams were sent to his Holiness.

A rumor spread through this city this morning that the Pope was ill. Dr. Lapponi, his physician, authorizes the announcement that "the statement is inexact," the Pope merely having a cold, so slight that it can scarcely be called an indisposition. Since his last attack of gout, in January, his Holiness has enjoyed perfect health. To-day the Pope received over 200 persons.

TURKEY DEFIES THE POWERS.

Joint Ultimatum and Naval Demonstration Talked Of.

VIENNA, Oct. 22.—It is reported here that the powers intend to present a joint ultimatum to the Turkish Government on account of its resistance to their financial control of Macedonia.

It is said that if the ultimatum should be disregarded the powers will make a naval demonstration.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 22.—The Porte has addressed a note to Baron von Calice, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, protesting against the presence at Uskub of the financial commissioners of the powers and demanding the cessation of interference by the powers in the internal affairs of Turkey.

NEW PROTEST TO THE PORTE.

We Accuse Turkey of Breaking Faith in Vartanian's Case.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 22.—Mr. Leishman, the American Minister, has addressed a note to the Porte protesting against the violation, involved in the retrial of Ghirkis Vartanian, of the Porte's assurances that judicial proceedings would be suspended pending the settlement of the question of principle arising from Vartanian's claim to American protection.

Vartanian was sentenced to death by the Criminal Court at Stamboul for the murder of Aplk Undjian on Aug. 26.

He said he was a naturalized American citizen, and owing to the intervention of Mr. Leishman his sentence was quashed and a new trial was ordered. He was resentenced to death on Oct. 19.

New Minister from Peru.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The President of Peru has appointed his brother, Señor Philipe Pardo, Minister to the United States. He is to arrive in Washington about Dec. 1. His recent marriage to a Spanish girl will give the Diplomatic Corps here its only bride of the season. Señor Calderon, the former Minister, has been appointed Minister to Chile.

A Genuine Cordovan Regal

This handsome extra-high-cut Regal shoe is made of genuine imported Hamburg "shell" Cordovan leather,—and it would cost you exactly $8 anywhere outside of a Regal store.

We have had a strong demand from many of our old and new customers for certain special lines of shoes that—even by Regal cost-saving methods—simply can not be built for $3.50 per pair.

Thirty-five of the 75 Regal styles are new this Fall,—and the regular price, right through the whole list, is $3.50, as usual. But to meet this insistent demand for special shoes we have made up a line of 15 special models at $4 per pair that we could never before include in the Regal list. This new "Campus" is one of the fifteen. It costs you 50 cents more than the regular Regal—but it costs you just half the price the regular shoe-store would have to charge for it.

The "Campus" is an ideal outdoor shoe for the business man—an exact duplicate of a shoe which is selling for two Guineas in London. And outside of its English original, we know of no other shoe of this style at any price that has the same quality of leather, the same features of fit, comfort and wear, and the same superiority of workmanship and finish. Every square inch of material in every part of the shoe is the best of the best.

Quarter Sizes as in all other Regal models.

GOOD WOMEN SAFE, HE SAYS

Declares Dooley Was Misrepresented —If You Arrest the Innocent, Look Out, He Adds.

Police Commissioner McAdoo visited the Tenderloin Police Station, in West Thirtieth Street, yesterday afternoon, and for the first time in the history of the department an outgoing platoon of men was personally addressed by the head of the department.

The Commissioner was called to the station by the reports that Capt. Dooley's men were in revolt against his order to arrest women known to be disorderly when they saw them in the streets. He demanded support for Capt. Dooley, whose order, he said, had been misunderstood. This was after a long talk over the telephone with Capt. Dooley early in the afternoon. Some women were arrested on Friday night, and on Saturday morning they were discharged as fast as they faced the Magistrate.

Capt. Dooley complained to the Commissioner yesterday that his men were greatly dissatisfied as a result of the order, and that, believing they had the backing of the newspapers, he was afraid they were not going to do their duty. The Commissioner said he would be at the station at 4 o'clock and take the situation in hand himself.

The order that caused all the trouble was issued about the middle of last week and came to light on Friday morning when three women were arraigned in the Jefferson Market Police Court on the general charge of vagrancy. One of the policemen who figured in an arrest declared, when asked to make a specific charge, that Capt. Dooley had instructed the uniformed men under his command to arrest all unescorted women found on the streets in his precinct after 10 o'clock at night.

When questioned by a NEW YORK TIMES reporter on Friday afternoon, Capt. Dooley said:

"The order I gave was to arrest any woman known to be disorderly if she appeared in the street on my precinct without an escort after 10 o'clock. If a woman is known to be disorderly by the policeman it doesn't make the least difference what she is doing. He must bring her in. If a policeman don't know the disorderly characters on his beat then he has no business on the force."

Shortly before 4 o'clock the Commissioner drove up to the station in a cab. Later Inspector Schmittberger entered. Usually when the platoon is on the floor all persons not connected with the department are compelled to step outside, that they may not hear the police orders. Yesterday the reporters were asked to remain. After roll call the Commissioner began his address, which he had in typewritten form:

When the Commissioner came to the end he turned to the newspaper men present and begged them to "be fair" to Capt. Dooley and himself and not to write news in the interests of lawbreakers, who, he said, were trying to drive the Captain from the precinct.

The Commissioner prefaced his address by saying that it was apart from the usual custom for him to go to the men directly, but the message was of such importance that he was justified, he thought, in going to them personally.

The Commissioner repeated his address to the incoming platoon. He then emphasized the same points that he had emphasized at the first reading.

"My coming here to-day," he said, "must not be construed as showing any lack of confidence in the honesty and earnestness of Capt. Dooley. I came here because there is an evident intent to misrepresent orders which have been given you with reference to keeping the streets free from vagrants and disorderly women. It was stated in the newspapers that Capt. Dooley had issued to you an order that any woman unescorted found on the public streets after 10 o'clock P. M. was to be arrested. You and I know that that was not true, that no such order was ever issued by Capt. Dooley or any one connected with the Police Department. It was also charged in the public newspapers that Capt. Dooley had ordered you to arrest women found in the streets known to be disorderly characters, whether you had evidence against them or not, if you believed them to be of such a class.

"I have before me a copy of an address made to you yesterday afternoon by the Captain. It was taken down by a stenographer, and shows that statements in the press are false. What Capt. Dooley did say to you, and which I fully approve, was this: He told you that he would hold the men on post responsible for the enforcement of the laws for the arrest of vagrants and disorderly persons plying their trades on public streets, and for other violations of the law committed in their presence. He did that because it has come to be a custom for the men on post to believe that the enforcement of the laws against vice and excise are wholly committed to men in plain clothes or to special squads created for that purpose.

"The position the Captain has taken is fundamentally right. The men on post must enforce all laws. Now, I am here to-day as the head of the Police Department to state to you specifically the law and the rule with reference to the arrest of women in the public streets. I have put it here in writing. It is the rule that must govern you, and no other rule. All persons, women as well as men, have the right to be on the public streets and avenues at any time of the day or night on their lawful business or pleasures. During the hours of the night, more especially if their conduct be suspicious, they are proper subjects for police surveillance for the prevention of crime.

"Strictly speaking, a woman is not required by law to have a male escort to walk on the streets. A detached female has the same rights and liberties on the public streets and avenues as a man. The law does, however, recognize a certain class of women and has specially enacted clauses against them. You can and should arrest a woman whom you know and can prove has 'no lawful employment whereby to maintain herself.' You must produce proof of this in court, otherwise you cannot make the arrest on that ground.

"If you are intelligent and zealous policemen, you will find no difficulty in getting the proof required by law, and when you find these people on your post you must act yourself on the acquisition of such evidence. I do not believe that any one of you once in ten years would ignorantly make a mistake in regard to those persons. Where, therefore, it is proved to me that a woman has been arrested illegally, and is otherwise of good character, I will consider that a prima facie case has been established against the officer, and that he did not make the arrest through ignorance, but willfully, and in all probability intended to discredit the Captain of his precinct, or to make the enforcement of the law odious, and to bring the Police Department and the Commissioner into disrepute.

"On the face of it, such an arrest carries all of the suspicion against the officer who makes it, and I will hold him to the strictest responsibility.

"You are combating great influences in enforcing these laws. The owners of the property who reap large profits from the base and criminal uses to which it is put; the various business interests which thrive on the very profligacy and prodigality of vice, and who are now complaining that with them trade is dull, and lastly, and more potent than all, those men who have grown rich on crime and vice, to whom it is a legitimate industry, whose millions are stained with the blood and tears of wretched women and outcast men. They do not want a police captain here whom then cannot own, and even now they and their hirelings are threatening political disaster to the honest head of the City Government for maintaining in office a Police Commissioner who isn't afraid of them.

"Now, men, you must be loyal to the Captain, that is all there is to it. You must be loyal to the Police Commissioner. You must enforce the law. You must not conspire with evil-doers. You must not go behind our backs and tell things to the newspapers by way of criticism. If I should become convinced that this precinct is, as it were, in mutiny, I will act so suddenly, so swiftly and surely, that those concerned will not forget it for many a day to come. You know me well enough now not to doubt it."

WATER IN WHISKY BOTTLED IN BOND

Finger of Suspicion Points at Spirits Labeled Proof.

GOODS MAY BE CALLED IN Careless Bottle Washers, Say Perturbed Distillers, Must Have Left In Water Accidentally.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The discovery has been made by the Internal Revenue Bureau that even bottled-in-bond whisky is not certainly the ark of refuge which fastidious drinkers have imagined.

Its chemistry bureau, which for some time past has been devoting its attention to patent medicines, is now at work analyzing samples of bottled-in-bond whisky, with the sad result that in several cases the samples have been found to fall several degrees short of the required proof. The distilling interests are uneasy, and representatives of several well-known houses have come to town to look after the interests of their people.

The trouble began over a week ago, when one of the agents of the Internal Revenue brought in a sample of bottled-in-bond goods which was considerably below proof. The result was the investigation which has already shown that a number of brands do not contain the right number of degrees. They range from one to four degrees below proof, and the distillers fear that they may be ordered to call in their goods already distributed throughout the country.

There has not yet been discovered anything to show that the distillers purposely watered their whisky. The theory offered by one of the distilling agents is that, through carelessness among the washers, some of the water with which the bottles have been washed may have remained in the bottles, and that this may account for the decrease in the proof.

AN INSULTING BURGLAR.

Woke His Victim and Called Him Name for Having $400.

Isaac Spero, a merchant of 720 Liberty Avenue, Brooklyn, left $400 in his trousers pockets when he went to bed on Saturday night. At midnight he was awakened by a noise in the room. He was almost blinded when he sat up and stared at the glare of a dark lantern.

"Just keep quiet," whispered a voice into his ear, "and you won't get hurt."

The owner of the voice was a powerfully built man who tried to shield his face by pulling his hat down over his eyes. While he was speaking to Mr. Spero he was examining the contents of the pockets of the merchant's trousers. A satisfied chuckle told Mr. Spero that he had discovered the money.

"Here, what do you think I am—a fool?" said Mr. Spero, becoming indignant as he saw the burglar quietly put the money into his own pocket.

"You're a sucker," replied his unwelcome visitor, as he placed the revolver against the astonished merchant's head. "Keep quiet, now."

Then he waved before Mr. Spero's eyes a bottle which Mr. Spero believes contained chloroform.

"I'll keep quiet," replied Mr. Spero; "but leave me the price of my breakfast."

"You don't even deserve that," was the reply. "When a man is foolish enough to carry around so much money, it serves him right if some one comes along and helps himself to it."

Then the visitor helped himself to Mr. Spero's watch and pin. He pulled out the drawers and ransacked them, finding in one $28.

"I am going down stairs now," he said, "and if you make a move I'll come up and blow all kinds of holes into you."

Mr. Spero lay quiet while the burglar down stairs helped himself to some of the silverware. An hour later the merchant regained his courage, and went down stairs. The burglar had gone through an open window.

DIRECTORS DENY LIABILITY.

Enterprise Officials to Fight Judgments Obtained by State.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 22.—The Directors of the Enterprise National Bank will fight the $2,500,000 judgments filed against them to cover the State deposits in the bank. President Gwinner alleges that the bonds were given under a former administration, and that he gave no bonds for existing deposits.

Mr. Gwinner says he has been told by the Bank Examiner that the aggregate loss of the bank shown to date is $1,500,000.

It is also asserted that instead of the State Treasury having only $782,000 deposited in the bank, the total deposits foot up to $1,032,000. Most of this is from the current fund, but a large amount of it is from the sinking fund. This is never advertised by the State, and only a few people know where this money is deposited.

The Rev. Mr. Greene, pastor of the Presbyterian Church adjoining the Enterprise Bank, which lost its deposit, while thousands of dollars were lost by members of the congregation, in a sermon today advised the church members to vote against the political party which brought about the disaster. He declared that the State machine was sending the aged and infirm to the almshouse.

FIRES A RAILROAD BUILDING.

Pyromaniac Destroys an $80,000 Structure in Memphis.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 22.—After four attempts in almost as many weeks a pyromaniac has succeeded in burning the Katzenberger Building and with it the general offices of the Illinois Central Railroad of the lines south of the Ohio.

The building was a five-story structure on Main and Madison Streets, the most important business corner in Memphis. Its ground floor contained the city ticket office of the road, the commercial offices of freight and passenger departments and those of the heads of departments filling the upper floors. The building is a total wreck, entailing a money loss of $80,000, but the heaviest damage to the road lies in the loss of valuable records, many of which can never be replaced.

NO FALL RIVER AGREEMENT.

Cotton Operatives Reject Compromise Offer by Employers.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 22.—The Fall River Textile Council, representing the organized cotton mill operatives of the city, to-day decided to reject the offer made by the Manufacturers' Association last week to advance wages 5 per cent. and introduce a profit-sharing plan. No immediate trouble in the mills is anticipated as the result of the disagreement.

HARPER'S BOOK NEWS.

A History of Our Own Times

In these new volumes (IV and V) Justin McCarthy carries his admirable history to completion from Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee to the accession of Edward VII. This is one of the very few histories that deserve a place also as literature. The author, widely known as a historian and scholar, is especially happy in his portraiture of the various statesmen, reformers, authors and scientists whose lives figure prominently in the times of which he writes.

London Films

Mr. Howells carried an appreciative mental kodak with him during his recent London sojourn, and his delightful talk about sights and people in the English metropolis is most engaging. He draws apt and humorous contrasts between New York and London, chatting about the weather, street sights and noises, rambles about town, and his adventures with English lodgings and hansoms. Every page offers charm and entertainment.

$500 AWAITS "MIKE."

But It's Stage Money—Attempt to Blackmail a Custom House Employe.

"Dear sir: If you don't put five hundred dollers in elivator piller at number 320, 9th Avenou, put it in a tomato can, we will steal your girl. Don't try no detective business. MIKE."

This letter was received last Thursday by George Phillips, a Custom House employe who lives at 763 Ninth Avenue. Last night he went to the West Forty-seventh Street station and asked that it be investigated.

The police put Detective Fitzgerald on the case, and the sleuth got a bundle of stage money, put the roll in a tin can, and deposited it in elevated pillar No. 320, which is near Eleventh Street. Then a policeman was sent out in plain clothes and told to watch for the "conspirators." The policeman was still watching at midnight, and the elevated pillar was still there.

A Remarkable Sale of Pianos

Which No One Can Afford to Miss.

If you have any intention of purchasing a Piano, and think the question of saving money of any importance, here's an opportunity which will at once impress you. A chance like this may not occur again for a year, because this Sale is an annual event, during which we dispose of all Pianos that have been out on rental.

First of all, rest assured that these Pianos are in no way misused. In fact, we believe that they have been benefited during the short period of time that they were out of the house—the tones mellowed. We know the history of each Piano so well that we unhesitatingly guarantee every one for ten years. These instruments are as good as new.

57 Pianos in this Remarkable Offering.

Truly a very small number for the Big Store to dispose of in the Annual Sale—therefore we urge you to come as early as possible and judge for yourself how great the values really are.

Instruments That We Stand By for Ten Years to Come.

As a further inducement you may take advantage of the easy payment plan. We earnestly believe this to be the greatest opportunity to purchase Pianos at a legitimate saving in price that has ever been announced.

MAIL TUBE SERVICE LIKELY TO STOP TO-DAY

Receivers Will Take Charge Unless Bond Interest Is Paid.

GOVERNMENT IS HELPLESS

Tubes Connect the Produce Exchange with the Post Office, the Grand Central, and Broooklyn.

As the result of the troubles in the Tubular Dispatch Company and the New York Mail and Transportation Company, for which ex-Postmaster Charles W. Dayton and Emanuel Blumenstiel have been appointed receivers, the pneumatic tube service in this city may be stopped to-day at noon. The tubes connect the Post Office with the Produce Exchange, the Grand Central Station, and Brooklyn.

There is little prospect that the United States Government will interfere to prevent the crippling of the mail service. Postmaster Willcox said last night that the tubes were private property, and that he did not see how the Government could do anything, although it has a contract with the company. Mr. Willcox said that if the tube service was stopped arrangements would be made for the speedy distribution of mail. There are six miles of the tubing.

The tubes in New York City are owned by the Tubular Dispatch Company and in Brooklyn by the New York Mail and Transportation Company. This company leases from the Tubular Dispatch Company, and is in possession of all the tubes. The New York Mail and Transportation Company has the contract with the Government.

The Tubular Dispatch Company floated a mortgage for $600,000 a few years ago bearing 5 per cent. interest. The company defaulted on the interest nine months ago. The bondholders had to wait six months before they could enforce their rights under the mortgage, and no payment having been made at the expiration of that time they employed Dos Passos Brothers to begin proceedings. The lawyers took the case before Justice Truax of the Supreme Court, and the receivers were appointed. Negotiations were begun to adjust the affairs of the company, but no settlement has been reached.

The bondholders assert that both the Tubular Dispatch Company and the New York Mail and Transportation Company are liable for the bonds. The Tubular Dispatch Company was until very recently controlled by Howard Gould and a syndicate, but according to John R. Dos Passos, the controlling interest has been transferred to the American Pneumatic Tube Company of Boston.

This company operates tubes in Boston and Chicago, and its purpose is to acquire ownership of all the tubes in the United States. Among the bondholders of the Tubular Dispatch Company are D. O. Mills, Cornelius J. Ryan, William M. Bliss, and Robert K. Porter of Pittsburg.

If there is no settlement with the bondholders by noon to-day, the receivers, Messrs. Dayton and Blumenstiel, will take possession of the property, and this may result in the stoppage of the pneumatic tube service. John R. Dos Passos, counsel for the bondholders, said last night:

"We regard it as an extraordinary thing that the New York Mail and Transportation Company should fail to pay interest on the bonds, as it receives nearly $114,000 a year from the Government. The interest on the bonds is $30,000 a year. My clients are ready to carry on the business for the Government in a satisfactory manner and give any guarantee that may be required as an evidence of good faith. We have asked the New York Mail and Newspaper Transportation Company to give us the power to run the tubes until we can substitute our own power, but it has refused. If there is a stoppage of the tube service, it must be charged to it."

Charles A. Gardner, counsel for the Tubular Dispatch Company and other interests involved, could not be found last night.

AUTO TANK BLOWS UP CAR.

Two Men in Newark Hospital — Women Slightly Hurt.

A large green-bodied touring car containing two women and two men was wrecked by explosion of its gasoline tank while speeding along Springfield Avenue, on the Hilton flats near Newark, N. J., early yesterday. The car suddenly made a jump into the air and upset, the explosion following.

James Wilson, 21 years old, of Central Avenue, Madison, with collarbone and three ribs broken, and Morris Cook, 30 years old, of New York Avenue, Madison, collarbone broken, are in the City Hospital. They were taken there from 94 Green Street by order of Dr. C. F. Baker, who was called in to attend them. The injured men, after the accident, had boarded a trolley car and ridden to the Green Street address with the women, who, it is said, were Miss Rose Peterson and Miss Laura Wilson. The women, who suffered slight bruises, were both injured in an automobile accident on Roseville Avenue on Oct. 12.

PROF. S. D. JUDD A SUICIDE.

Hangs Himself at His Baltimore Home After Leaving an Asylum.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22.—Prof. Sylvester Dwight Judd, aged 35 years, formerly an assistant in the United States Geological Survey at Washington and Professor of Biology at Georgetown University, was found early this morning hanging by a rope from a rafter in the garret of his home on the Old Frederick Road, he having committed suicide.

A year ago Prof. Judd, owing to mental trouble, lost his Government position. He was sent to an asylum, where, after having been treated for melancholia and homicidal mania for about ten months, he appeared to be much improved and was discharged about two weeks ago.

UNIONS AFTER THE BANNERS.

Federation to Prod Tammany About Its Campaign Work.

The Central Federated Union became excited yesterday over the question of union and non-union political banners, a subject brought up by the delegate of the Sign Painters' Union.

"Except the banners of the labor candidates," he said, "I see none with a union label. We are after the candidates of the Republican Party and must have Tammany Hall seen to."

The Secretary was instructed to write to the Executive Committee of Tammany Hall asking that all its banners be painted by union firms.

Oil Tank Steamer in Trouble.

Capt. W. T. Evans of the Mallory liner San Jacinto reported yesterday by wireless, by way of the station at Savannah, that at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon he spoke the oil tank steamer Lansing, which signaled "Machinery out of order and looking for trouble hourly." In response to the San Jacinto's offer of aid, Capt. Conner signaled that he needed no assistance.

STOKES ON CHECKING VICE.

To Rockefeller Class He Denounces Success Which Injures Others.

"Perhaps the millennium is not so far away, not so impossible as we are apt to think," said J. G. Phelps Stokes yesterday afternoon as he was concluding his lecture on "Social Responsibility" before the Young Men's Bible Class, of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is leader. "As disease is held in check, so, I think, vice can be controlled by improving the general conditions in this city."

That was as near as Mr. Stokes came to anything like an allusion to the fact that he is a candidate for the office of President of the Board of Aldermen on the Hearst ticket. Mrs. Stokes, who was Rose Harriet Pastor, went to the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, where the lecture was delivered, with her husband.

The officers of the class were not completely successful in keeping women away from the meeting. Many wives and sweethearts of members of the Rockefeller class surmised that Mr. Stokes would have his bride with him, so they went, too. Before the service was well begun at least fifty women had been admitted to the balcony, where Mrs. Stokes sat.

"I think the education in the average school is defective in this," he declared, "that teachers look too much to personal effect. The average child is taught that personal success is the goal. Now, personal success means triumph over others. This inspires to and leads to the development of selfishness.

"We need men now who deprecate that kind of success. We need men who realize that no success counts which is got at the expense of others. That no triumph is a real triumph which is attained by pulling others down, or by keeping them down. In fact, that no life is worth very much which does not consider the welfare of others."

BIG SOUTHERN CONFERENCE.

1,500 Delegates Expected to Attend the Sessions at Chattanooga.

CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 22.—The arrangements for the South Immigration and Quarantine Conference, to be held here Nov. 9 and 10, have been completed. Upward of 1,500 delegates are expected. All of the Governors who signed the call, with one exception, have promised to be present. The delegates will include almost the entire Southern contingent in both houses of Congress.

Gov. Cox of Tennessee will call the conference to order and addresses of welcome will be delivered by United States Senator Frazier, Mayor Frierson of Chattanooga, and Lapsley G. Walker, editor of The Chattanooga Times. Responses will be made by Gov. Folk of Missouri and Charles P. Lane, President of the Alabama Commercial and Industrial Association.

The opening day's programme includes addresses on "The South; It's Past, Present, and Future," by Gov. Glenn of North Carolina, and "Yellow Fever; Its Origin and Prevention," by Dr. Walter Wyman, Surgeon General of the Marine Hospital Service.

On the following day an address on "Citizenship; Its Duties and Responsibilities," will be delivered by Robert S. Fulton, Chancellor of the University of Mississippi, and there will be a conference of the Governors, with more addresses.

BICYCLE AND AUTO COLLIDE.

Rider Thrown Into a Manhole and May Die—Car Wrecked.

John Gilano, 20 years old, of Liberty Avenue and Vermont Street, Brooklyn, was fatally injured last night in a collision with an automobile owned by George H. Montrose of 125 Westminster Road, Flatbush. Gilano was hurled ten feet, striking a sewer basin. The automobile was wrecked against a tree and the four occupants were thrown out.

Gilano was learning to ride a bicycle in Vermont Street. Mr. Montrose was coming along Glenmore Avenue in his automobile, at a speed of five miles an hour, when he was suddenly confronted by Gilano, who was attempting to cross the avenue on his wheel. Mr. Montrose did his best to avoid a collision, but Gilano was so excited that he lost his head and ran head on into the automobile. The impact was so great that he was thrown against a sewer basin on the corner and his body was forced halfway down the manhole, when several citizens, who witnessed the accident, pulled him out.

The collision caused Mr. Montrose to lose control of his machine. It ran up on the sidewalk and bumped into a tree. He and his three friends were thrown out, but escaped without injury. Gilano's skull was fractured.

SPEEDWAY BRUSHES LIVELY.

Luke Burke's Trotting Team Defeats Cockerill's Pair and Bernie.

Rarely, if ever, has a Sunday morning crowd on the Speedway seen a better programme of sport than was held yesterday. As usual, the pacing division was the more prominent. The arrival of John F. Cockerill behind his trotting mares, Miss Hibbard and Gracie, stepping like clockwork, called attention to this class, and after several warming jogs they were turned to a good start with a team of black pacers from Edgewater, N. J., handled by a trainer. Odds were in favor of the pacers, and they stepped away at a two-minute clip, holding a lead of a couple of lengths until the stretch was reached, where the Cockerill team reached even terms and in the last few strides nosed out winners. A second heat was called for, but it proved slow in comparison with the first, the pacers being carried to a break in the first quarter and distanced in the stretch.

The event of the day, however, was the half-mile heat between the Cockerill team, Luke A. Burke's famous team of black trotters, El Mora and West Wilkes, and the trotter Bernie, driven by J. J. Timmons, Jr. Some difficulty was experienced in getting the trio away on anything like even terms, but once started Bernie jumped into the lead and held an open length to the quarter post, where the teams closed in on either side of him, and for a distance the five horses stepped head and head. Near the entrance to the stretch the Cockerill pair made a bad break, and before they recovered their footing the rival pair, showing a wonderful burst of speed, stepped out in front of Bernie and passed the post a winner by an open length.

Not satisfied with this victory, the Burke team was started in company with Bernie a second time and won easily. The old Grand Circuit trotter David B., driven by John Cornish, showed some of his former speed by finishing in front of the trotting gelding The King, driven by M. L. Simon, and the pacers King Tom, driven by Christopher Hackett, and Alice Drake, driven by her owner, Andrew Cone, stepped a dead heat. Nathan Straus's great trotting mare, Ida Highwood, was on hand bright and early to have a heat with her rival for the championship of the road, Mona Wilkes, owned and driven by Ackley C. Schuyler. The result was disappointing, for it was evident that the Wilkes trotter was not up to her usual form and speed, for she lacked speed at the finish, and was defeated by a half length. James Murphy's crack pacer Free Advice won two straight heats from the chestnut pacing gelding Star Pugh, driven by C. S. Rice.

AUTO TOURING EVENTS IN POPULAR FAVOR

Will Be Conducted Next Year on More Practical Lines.

ECONOMY RUN NEXT WEEK

Marquis de Dion Proposes International Motor Car Trip—Glidden Cup Changes.

Touring competitions promise to be the big automobile feature of the coming year. Baron Adrien de Turckheim, who represented the Automobile Club of France at the recent Vanderbilt Cup race, showed plainly how his countrymen felt on this subject when, just before sailing for home, he expressed the wish that America might hold a big touring event next season, which might be conducted along such lines as to bring out more prominently a larger number of practical facts regarding the reliability of the competing cars. He stated that he would be glad to see, if possible, certain class distinctions made, as, for instance, compiling accurate statistics of all cars of a given horse power, meaning the piston revolutions, the stroke, and other mechanical details, in addition to the economical running of the cars.

In refusing to hold another Gordon Bennett cup race on the original lines, the French Automobile Club has evinced its preference for long touring competitions. Germany is also advocating touring contests as opposed to speed races, and the same is true in Italy. The Automobile Club of Great Britain has taken steps to repeat its successful tourist trophy event of last season, and the fever is spreading to a number of other European countries. The Marquis de Dion, however, has broached a more ambitious plan than any of the others. He advises a big international contest which will carry the competing cars through France, Germany, Italy, Austria, Belgium, Holland, and Switzerland. All the foreign clubs, it is believed, would favor such an event, and for those who could not complete the entire trip sectional tours might be arranged, perhaps by countries. It has been proposed that a general conference on the touring projects for 1906 be held in Paris in December during the Paris automobile salon, and it is more than likely that something definite will be determined at that time.

In this country the subject is attracting more attention, and the week's economy tour planned by the New York Motor Club to begin on Oct. 30, is a marked illustration of the tendency toward which automobile interests are tending. This tour will be run on broader and more practical lines than any economy event previously held, and the winning cars, after completing the three different runs, aggregating 682 miles, will be deserving of study.

Observers will accompany each car. The rules have been drawn up on such strict lines as to make the test not only severe, but one that will contain many valuable lessons for the practical automobilist. Not only will the endurance of the car be put to a hard test, but the cost of running it, the amount of gasoline used, the repairs, tire troubles, stoppages for whatever cause, in fact, every detail affecting the running of the car will be accurately noted.

The big tour in America next year will undoubtedly be the second contest for the Glidden trophy. A preliminary meeting of the Glidden Cup Commission was held last week. It is interesting to note that, in view of the efforts that are being made abroad to give a more practical tone to future touring competitions, a number of suggestions were advanced which may be embodied later in the rules. Mr. Glidden proposed that, in view of the expected larger number of entries, the party travel in three divisions, one leaving at 6:30, one at 8, and the last at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, and each to be preceded by a pacemaker. Noon controls will be established for luncheon, and the three divisions will be required to finish within specified hours in the evening.

That the tour will last more than a week seems assured. It is not likely, however, that Chicago will be the objective point. Present indications favor Buffalo as the western limit of the tour, with a run from that city to Canada, stopping perhaps at Quebec and Montreal, and including a number of Summer resort localities in the run. This would add to the enjoyable features of the tour, while supplying sufficient opportunities for testing the endurance of the cars.

Automobile Notes of Interest.

Renault Freres Agency, Incorporated, is the latest important concern formed for the purpose of handling the well-known foreign racing and touring cars of that name. C. A. Tileston, President of the company, has spent the last year at the works of Renault Freres, Billancourt, France. The new models for the coming year will be the 20-30 horse power, 14-20 horse power four-cylinder cars, 8 horse power and 10-14 horse power two-cylinder cars. There will also be shown at the Paris exhibit a new 10-14 horse power four-cylinder and a 40-50 horse power model.

Percy F. Megargel, who is making the first automobile round trip across the continent in the Reo Mountaineer, is now near the boundary line of Oregon and Idaho. He is still being seriously handicapped by deep and frequent washouts, by rough roads, and the more recent Idaho snowstorms and blizzards. He says that his car is plowing through the long stretches of snow and sand drifts with wonderful ease

With the Los Angeles-Santa Barbara endurance contest, where there were fifty-eight starters, forty-two of which finished, in which the economy and reliability trophies were awarded to a stock Reo touring car and runabout, still fresh in their minds, touring motorists are looking with interest toward the National economy test which is to be held under the auspices of the New York Motor Club in the week of Oct. 30. A 16 horse power stock Reo touring car was among the first entrants, and it is predicted that a new world's record in economy and reliability will be made.

Travel over long distances under touring conditions with an economical consumption of gasoline are two very important points in connection with automobiles. Two performances have been made during the last week that indicate the excellent condition to which the smaller type of automobiles have climbed. Charles Fleming drove an eight-horse power Maxwell car from New York to Boston in ten hours and twelve minutes, covering 280 miles, on a gasoline consumption of thirteen gallons, or an average of about twenty-two miles per gallon. Ralph F. Coburn of Boston drove a Maxwell car from Holyoke to Boston last week in five hours, covering the 118 miles on five and one-half gallons of gasoline—an excellent performance considering the steep hills encountered.

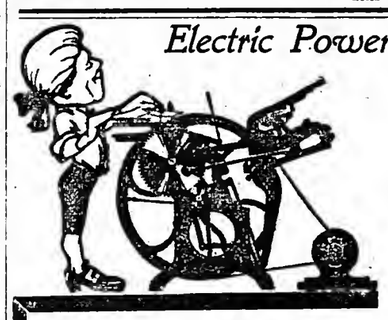
Electric Power.



More than 50% of the Power Consumed in New York is Lost in Belts and Shafting

THE EDISON SYSTEM, eliminating all belting and shafting, eliminates this loss. Whatever the machine used, the motor may be directly attached

To-day the greatest problem before the manufacturer, large and small, is the exact and definite knowledge of the cost of production. Keen competition requires that each operation in manufacturing be figured to a certainty

This is practically impossible where obsolete power methods are employed

With the adoption of the EDISON SYSTEM all question of fluctuation in the cost of power is eliminated. Hot, dirty, noisy, expensive engine rooms with the attendant high-pressure boilers may be abolished to the obsolete past

The EDISON SYSTEM means that the cost of production will always be in exact proportion to the power consumed —to the results produced

ELECTRIC POWER is adaptable to every form and kind of machinery

Each manufacturer owes it to himself and to his business to investigate the cost of electric power and the EDISON SERVICE

Estimates will be gladly furnished to any one

COLLEGE TEAMS FEAR COMING BIG CONTESTS

Saturday's Results Not Encouraging to Followers of Leaders.

COLUMBIA'S POOR OUTLOOK

Tigers Look for Easy Time Next Saturday—Penn Worried About Indians —Yale Meets West Point.

The hard contests of Saturday on the gridiron inaugurated the big games of the season among the college teams. From this time on every Saturday will introduce some one match of pre-eminent importance. This week Columbia meets the Tigers at American League Park, while Yale plays West Point at the Military Academy. Harvard plays Brown's team, while Pennsylvania engages the Carlisle Indians.

Coach Morley's hopes that the Blue and White team would catch Princeton napping and trounce the Tiger went glimmering on Saturday. To the most ardent supporter of the Morningside team there was nothing to enthuse over in the play of their favorites against Amherst. The lucky scoring of the field goal in the closing play of the match, skillful as it was on the part of Schultz and indicating good judgment on the part of those who guided the team, is not of the sort that wins important games against big teams. Moreover, there is not the consolation that Amherst showed particular strength, for she did not. Aside from a well-concentrated attack, that, once started, struck the line fast and hard, the visitors had nothing particularly formidable to display.

The Blue and White team lost the game because they were demoralized. The forwards charged through the line again and again without knowing what to do once they were through. The backs ran in a disconcerted, headless sort of way that would have made them easy for any alert team of calibre. In the first ten minutes, inspirited by a lucky fumble and by their freshness, they plunged through the Amherst line for good gains, but after that Amherst solved their attack and they only gained spasmodically, on delayed passes and deceptive interference, sent in another direction from that the runner took. Individually Van Saltza, until retired, played a mighty good game, but there did not appear to be any possibility of effective team play developing out of the rest of the eleven.

Princeton ought to have no trouble in winning, and by a good score. The Tigers did well against Lafayette. The heavy Easton team knows some football, and to make a score of 22 to 4 against them at this season in their first real trial was highly creditable. The defense is not up to the Yale standard by a great deal, for the Lafayette men gained considerable ground, but it was good at critical times and showed the possibilities of strength.

The showing of West Point against Harvard has made Yale men sit up. It was expected that Harvard would make a good score against the Army boys, who had been badly handicapped all year by injuries. Yet the cadets were able to outplay the heavy Crimson team in the first half and a good part of the second when they evidently tired.

West Point gained more ground than did Harvard by rushing Beaver's long runs, adding to their total materially. His rounding of the Crimson end time and again emphasized the trouble Reid has been having all year trying to find satisfactory players to cover his flanks. The Crimson backfield was largely composed of substitutes, and undoubtedly the regulars would have made more ground, but that does not excuse the defense. It was only the luck of getting the ball on a fumble after it had been kicked across the army's goal that decided the issue. Only in taking advantage of fumbles did the Crimson show exceptional merit.

The Quakers have the toughest proposition of any of the teams when they go against the Indians next Saturday. Besides playing the strongest kind of football in the early part of the year, the Indians are coached by the one man who is thoroughly familiar with the Pennsylvania system and who, if any one can, ought to be able to pick flaws in it. The chances of a Penn defeat are excellent. Indeed, if the eleven comes through the game with Carlisle successfully it ought not to be fearful of any game later on the schedule.

West Point's crippled squad stood the game very well, although a few minor injuries resulted. Erwin, who had to leave the game on account of a crack on the head, seemed to be all right yesterday, although he had to be taken into the hospital. Christy, Torney, and Hill are also on the sick list. Christy had a cut over the eye. Hill has a sprained wrist and Torney has a bad ankle. Torney seemed to be overtrained and will have to rest. There will be very little practice during the coming week, since the men will have to be saved to meet Yale. Much time will be spent on the second and third elevens, which are expected to furnish good material for next year. West Point is rather cheerful over the result of the game with Harvard, although the game was lost. The team did so much better than was expected that the result was virtually a victory. However, there were faults exhibited which will prove fatal if not corrected before the end of the season. Every effort will be made to profit by the experience against Harvard and to be ready to give Yale a good game next Saturday. There is not much hope of winning against Yale.

In spite of the fact that Princeton rolled up such an unexpected score against Lafayette on Saturday, the coachers are far from satisfied with the showing of the team. The Tigers played in splendid form during the first half, and made a record that was a surprise to even their most enthusiastic supporters. They seemed to completely exhaust their energies, however, in the first thirty minutes of play, and when the second half started were thoroughly incapable of the hard task set for them. They found it impossible to gain against the heavy line of Eastonians while Lafayette in turn penetrated the Princeton line at will.

One Princeton authority, in discussing the situation, explained this fact by saying that the Tigers as a whole are in poor physical condition, while several of them show marks of being trained a little too fine. Knowing their hard job they worked like demons in the first half and played themselves out. It is reported that several of the players will be sent to Atlantic City to-morrow for fear that they might go stale on the eve of the harder game. The undertaking of the coaching staff this week will be to develop the defense. In the middle of the second half of the Lafayette game the forwards weakened noticeably, and had it not been for the heavy backs in the second line of defense the Tiger goal would undoubtedly have been crossed. On one occasion McAvoy tried an end run, and eluded all tacklers who rushed out from the side. He even got by Tenney, who was playing back, and had a clear field to the goal when he was grappled from the rear, and a score narrowly prevented. The fumbling, which was so much in evidence, will also be one of the chief points attacked by the coaches. Princeton has seldom been so guilty in this respect after the season was over half finished.

The defeat of the team of the University of North Carolina at Annapolis on Saturday by the decisive score of 38 to nothing has strengthened the midshipmen in their belief that the Navy team is much stronger this season than for many years. The Navy has won all of its five games and scored 141 points, while no score has been made against them. They play the team of Maryland Agricultural College on Wednesday, and with that contest will end the Wednesday games. On Saturday next Swarthmore will probably furnish the hardest game of the season excepting that with the Army. On the Saturdays in November the games will be with strong teams, Pennsylvania State, Bucknell, University of Virginia, and Virginia Polytechnic Institute, which lately defeated West Point, being met successively. A great element of strength of the Navy team this season is the fact that the many strong candidates for each position insure a strong team if a number are injured. With the possible exception of right tackle filled by Grady, and left end by Welch, there is not a position on the team for which there are not at least two strong candidates, with little to choose between them.

ROWING COMMITTEES BUSY.

Oarsmen Inspect Pelham Bay Course and Approximate Cost at $150,000.

Rapid progress is being made in the plans for the new regatta course at Pelham Bay. A meeting of the sub-committee was held yesterday and a visit paid to the location to inspect the proposed course and approximate the cost of its construction. The delegation, headed by President Pilkington, consisted of Fred Vilmar, New York Athletic Club; J. J. F. Mulcahy, and Fred Khafka, Atalanta Boat Club, and W. H. Bethel, Harlem Rowing Club. Upon their arrival at Pelham Bay, the committeemen inspected the location from the shore side and afterward went over the course in a launch. It was the first time that the oarsmen had officially visited the course, and they were unstinted in their praise of its possibilities. It was found that excavations will not be as great as was at first expected. While no definite cost can be estimated until the plans and charts have received municipal sanction, President Pilkington said yesterday the entire cost would not exceed $150,000, and probably much less.

It was learned last week that the Government would offer no opposition to the projected course. It is necessary to show the officials the plans for approval, but as the promise of assistance was assured, in view of the improvement which would follow the building of the course, it is the committee's intention to work in harmony with the local government representatives. The latter turned over to Mr. Pilkington a duplicate set of plans showing the soundings, rocks, sands, and depth of different parts of the proposed Pelham Bay course.

Another general meeting will be held in a couple of weeks, when the committee expects to be able to present a complete report. No attempt will be made to rush the project through with undue haste. This week the Park Commissioners will be requested to ask the Corporation Counsel for an opinion on the project, but as the members of the commission are known to favor building the course, a favorable opinion is expected. It is thought that the consent will come through the Park Commissioners, on the grounds of improvements to Pelham Bay Park, over which the Commissioners have full power and jurisdiction. An application will then be made to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for a grant to the Park Department for Pelham Bay Park improvements, which will include the proposed course.

Fred Khafka expects to have the plans of the course ready before the end of the week. In the meantime, Mr. Pilkington will secure the co-operation of the different interests which will be benefited by the new course. Among the organizations which will be asked to join the movement are: Board of Trade, Taxpayers' Association of Mount Vernon, City Island, and Pelham Bay, and the New York Central Railroad. An effort will be made to complete all arrangements in a couple of weeks, but nothing official will be done until everything is in thorough shape for action.

IRISH SPORTS FOR CHARITY.

Games at Celtic Park Realize Good Sum for Laughlynn School.

There were 3,000 sons and daughters of Old Erin at Celtic Park yesterday afternoon for the Irish sporting carnival held for the benefit of the Industrial School at Loughlynn in Ireland. Nearly $2,000 was realized for the Sisters in charge of the school and will be sent on by Father Michael O'Flanagan, who had the games in charge. It was an eminently successful day.

There was a hurling match between two crack teams representing Brian Boru and Meagher. The Garryowen team was also there, but owing to the late hour did not play the winner of the first match as planned. There were three football games—two between the men of Cork and the men of Sligo counties and between the men of Kerry and the men of Louth. The winners then met in a deciding game, the Corkmen winning handily. John Kelly, who is styled the champion dancer of Ireland, gave an exhibition of characteristic Irish dances on a platform erected on the field and evoked thunders of applause by his cleverness and grace.

To the winning teams in the preliminary games jerseys made at the industrial schools were presented, and to the victors in the deciding game gold and silver trophies styled after ancient Irish designs were presented.

The first game between Cork and Sligo was closely contested and resulted in a victory for Cork by a score of 3 points to 0. The second was between Kerry and Louth, and was won by Kerry by a score of 5 points to 0. The final game between Cork and Kerry was won by Cork by a score of 9 points to 0, the play being constantly in the Kerry men's territory. Only remarkably quick work on the part of Kelly and Ryan at the goal prevented a larger score.

The hurling resulted in a victory for the Brian Boru team by a score of 3 goals and 8 points to Meagher's 1 goal and 4 points.

The two football teams that faced each other in the final match were composed as follows:

Cork—Ryan, O'Brien, Maguire, McCarthy, Murphy, Donovan, Connolly, Sullivan, Kelly, Flanagan, O'Shay, Clancy, Meehan, McQueen, and Fogarty.

Kerry—T. Murphy, P. Murphy, Patrick, McGuigan, Donnelly, Duffy, G. Sullivan, M. Ryan, D. Ryan, T. Sullivan, Riley, Denny, Ferguson, Mahoney, and Kelly.

SAILOR FOOTBALLERS LOST.

Knickerbocker Team Defeated U. S. S. Brooklyn Team 18 to 0.

The Knickerbocker football team yesterday defeated an eleven from the United States ship Brooklyn at Ontario Field by the score of 18 to 0. The St. Peter's Lyceum team, which made a good record last season, was scheduled to play the Knickerbockers, but was unable to get a team together, and the sailors were substituted. The latter were out of condition, and although they put up a good game, they tired quickly and were unable to stop the rushes of the Knickerbocker players. Soon after the kick-off the Knickerbockers carried the ball to the sailors' fifteen-yard line, when Sweet went around right end for a touch-down and afterward kicked the goal. The Brooklyn seamen then took a brace and kept the play in midfield for ten minutes, when the home team drove their opponents back into their own territory and Sweet scored a second touch-down and added another goal, the score at the end of the first half being 12 to 0 in favor of the Knickerbocker team.

In the second half the sailors played better and repeatedly held their opponents for downs. Just before the call of time the Knickerbockers scored a third touch-down and goal. The line-up:

Knick'b'k'r F.C., 18.	Position.	U.S.S. Brooklyn, 0.
Thomas	Left tackle	Johnstone
Keller	Left guard	Sands

JAMAICA TRACK RIVALS BRIGHTON FOR SPEED

Time Records for Sprint Distance on Two Courses Now Equal.

KIAMESHA AFTER NEW MARK

Ravenswood Handicap May Give Her the Chance to Lower Six Furlongs Time.

The racing for the one week that the Jamaica meeting hae been in progress has justified amply the predictions made by the officials of the Metropolitan Jockey Club that, following the redressing of the course, Jamaica would take rank with the fastest of the mile tracks in the East. In the first week of the meeting, track records at three of the five distances run were lowered, leaving the five and a half furlongs and the mile and a eixteenth the only distances over which races have been run this Fall for which old records stand.

The best showing in the matter of time at Jamaica hae been at the shorter distances, with the etart on the back stretch, and only a single turn to the etretch run for home. Over this course, at eix furlongs, the time record at Jamaica has been cut to exactly the eame figures ae tho six furlongs course at Brighton Beach, which long hae been counted ae the fastest mile couree in the East, and which for six-furlong races has an advantage over Jamaica in a straight run through the back stretch out of a chute. On the six furlongs at Jamaica the three-year-old Quadrille eimply romped in first under a pull in 1:12, on Thursday, equaling the track record of Brighton, made at a more favorable eeason, and which hae stood for more than a year. At five and a half furlongs the time recorded for the flying Lady Amelia laet May etill holds good at Jamaica, but two-year-olds only have run at that distance at the Fall meeting, and these have raced very close to the track's best figures. At a mile and a furlong Eugenia Burch set a new record on the first day of the meeting, and The Southerner made new figures for the mile and a quarter. Aside from Eugenia Burch, none of the Jamaica recordmakers of the Fall can pretend to anything like high clase, and the improvement made in the course therefore becomes the more apparent, and gives excellent promise of fast races when Jamaica is fortunate enough to draw a better quality of horses than those which have made up the racing of the Fall to date.

It is quite probable that if the weather remains good this week a full set of new records will be made, for several etakes that are on the programme promise to bring out horses of a higher grade than have raced at Jamaica so far this Fall. Chief of these is the fast filly Kiamesha, which is engaged in the Ravenswood Handicap, at six furlongs, to be run Thursday. Kiamesha's starting, of course, will depend on the weight that the handicapper assigns to her, and in view of her race at Belmont Park, when she equaled the world's record for a mile, it le not to be supposed that she will get in anywhere except among the top weights. It is the intention of the Oneck stable to send her at least one more race this year, and unless Kiamesha is weighted out of the contest, the Ravenswood Handicap probably will be the fixture selected for the fast mare's final appearance in public this eeason.

Two other stakes that promise to attract fields of unusual class for the seaeon are the Cutchogue Handicap, at six furlongs, for two-ycar-olds, to be run on Saturday, in which Security, the winner of the $20,000 Great Trial Stakes, and conqueror in that race of Burgomaster, Bohemian, George C. Bennett, Ironsides, and other star colts, and the fast and stout filly Tiptoe are the most prominent entries, and the Southold Handicap, one mile and a sixteenth, for two-year-olds and upward, in which about all the best horses left in training are engaged, these including Eugenia Burch, Dolly Spanker, Bad Newe, Spring, Bedouin, Coy Maid, Ormonde's Right, Pretension, and Grapple. The Jamaica meeting will continue through this week and three days into the next week, closing on Wednesday, after which the racing will move to the Aqueduct track for the last race meeting of the New York turf year.

The succese achieved through all the Fall meetings by new-comers among the riders, and notably by apprentices who were practically unknown in the late Summer, threaten to make a big change in the grading of the popular jockeys of next season, especially as the new-comers already are commanding the best riding at Jamaica, leaving the older jockeys comparatively idle. The most conspicuous of the successful apprentices at present are Wiley and Sewell, while Garner, for a beginner, has been much employed. Of the other lightweights that only recently have commanded riding Miller, McDaniel, and Notter stand out from the rest, though all of them only recently completed their apprenticeship. This under Jockey Club rules is a term of one year from the time that the apprentice rides his first winner.

The present prominence of apprentices is such that American horsemen are not likely to approve any change in the rule, though in England, from which country the apprentice idea was borrowed, The Jockey Club is considering a proposed alteration in the rule, which will extend the period during which allowance is made to apprentices to three yeare, from the ridlng of the first winner, the allowance to be made in handicaps of less than $1,000 in value, as well as in selling races. As riders have developed in America in the past few seasons, the idea of three yeare of apprenticeship seems beyond reason, as that is a fair term for a jockey's career under present conditions.

SEELEY WON ROAD RACE.

Close Finish in Tiger Wheelmen's Fifteen-Mile Contest.

A. Seeley won the fifteen-mile handicap road race of the Tiger Wheelmen held on the Merrick Road, at Valley Stream, yesterday. Seeley had a seven-minute handicap, and managed to win by a small margin from N. Kind, who was forty yards in front of his brother, C. Kind. H. McDonald, C. J. Baum, and S. Morris started from scratch, and made a close race for the time prize, which went to McDonald, with Baum, second. The riders finished as follows:

Name.	Hdcp. M.S.	Net Time. M.S.
A. Seeley	7:00	50:10
N. Kind	5:00	49:12
C. Kind	5:00	49:48
H. McDonald	Scratch	44:54
C. J. Baum	Scratch	44:52 2-5
H. Johnson	3:00	49:15
A. Karsch	7:00	54:51 4-5
S. Morris	Scratch	48:48
C. B. Hunter	3:00	50:48 2-5

THE ISSUE IN BROOKLYN.

The most important office to be filled at the coming election is, for Brooklyn, that of the Borough President. That borough, like the others, is, of course, deeply interested in the choice of a Mayor, but it will not make as much difference to its people whether Mr. McCLELLAN or Mr. IVINS is the executive of the whole city as it will whether Major EBSTEIN or the unspeakable RIDGWAY be the President of the Borough.

It is the misfortune of Brooklyn, which, in size and in the character of its population, is in reality a great city, to be practically under the control of a Democratic "boss" of peculiar recklessness and aggressiveness, unscrupulous, greedy, treacherous, of miserable associations, base appetites, and sordid aims. Whether in or out of favor with Tammany, he embodies in his own life and in his ambitions and methods all that is worst and most dangerous in Tammany. It has come about that Mr. McCLELLAN, under the stress of political necessity, has made up the quarrel of this man with Tammany, and such advantages as good men enjoy when bad men fall out are no longer within the reach of the community. Tammany is no better and McCARREN is more dangerous as the result of this reconciliation. The first evidence of McCARREN'S interpretation of the renewed license attained through the making of peace was the nomination for President of the Borough of the notorious RIDGWAY, whose name was so shamefully linked, at a well-remembered crisis in the affairs of Kings County, with that of the political bandit, JOHN Y. McKANE. It seemed to delight McCARREN to show in advance to the voters of Brooklyn that McCarrenism is the same thing as McKanelsm, only worse.

This outrageous and offensive nomination was made at a time when the Republican nomination for Mayor had been offered in vain to men who were supposed to be especially strong in Brooklyn, and probably McCARREN felt surer of impunity than he now does. If it were to do over again it may be that he would hardly venture such an insult to the decent people of Brooklyn, but if he refrained, it would be from no sense of decency on his own part, it would be from fear only. He knows and cares nothing about decency save as a quality of certain persons who, if they are numerous enough and are aroused, may defeat his schemes. It is possible that he acted too soon and too defiantly in the nomination of RIDGWAY, and that public sentiment can be awakened to the defeat of that singularly unfit candidate.

It ought to be the easier because Major EBSTEIN is, and is known in Brooklyn to be, an extremely good man for the place. He has an excellent character, plenty of executive ability, good judgment, courage, and energy, and he is thoroughly acquainted with the needs of the borough. He would be a great aid to Mr. McCLELLAN, if the latter should be elected, in carrying out precisely that kind of an administration that Tammany would despise and resist. He would equally be an aid to Mr. IVINS, should that gentleman secure a plurality of the votes. In either case his membership of the Board of Apportionment would be of great utility. Whatever the result of the Mayoralty campaign, Brooklyn will do itself a conspicuous injustice and injury if Major EBSTEIN be not elected President of the Borough.

THE Y. M. C. A.

There was a simple cordiality in the tribute paid on Saturday to the Young Men's Christian Association for its work in the garrison of Governors Island and in the Department of the East by Gen. FRED GRANT which must be gratifying to the workers in the association. The tribute is richly deserved. "It is the duty of the commander of a department," said Gen. GRANT, "to weed out the bad and develop the good, and the Young Men's Christian Association has helped in this regard."

It is one of the chief titles of the association to confidence and respect that its methods are adapted to raise the standard of character and conduct among considerable bodies of young men brought together by their occupations, as in the present instance of the army, and as in the railway service. Daily contact among such bodies of individuals tends to produce a certain common mode of thought and feeling and the association aims to make this a good mode. Its success has been very marked, and the fact that Gen. GRANT'S hearty praise of it followed on earlier doubts and misgivings is significant. We think that the influence of this association, which is steadily increasing in force and in the extent of its application, is one of the most encouraging signs in an age which some anxious religionists regard with despair. In a way it is the successor of the influence of the mediaeval monkish fraternities, which in their day were very powerful, and it is unquestionably more beneficent.

BANK DIRECTORS AND DIRECTION.

At the recent convention of the Bankers' Association in Washington, Mr. RIDGELY, Controller of the Currency, delivered a rather elaborate address on the relations of his office to the general management of the National banks, and especially on the duties of bank Directors as to that management. On the whole he made out a remarkably good case for the law and the department, especially with reference to numerous instances in which errors, not mixed with fraud, can be corrected on the reports of examiners and by co-operation between the bank officers and the Controller's office. The real troubles, which are relatively not numerous, come from hopeless mismanagement or from fraud.

A bank does not often fail suddenly. The condition which leads to it is apt to be of comparatively slow growth. Far the most frequent cause of failure is a large line of loans to some concern or group of concerns in which the officers are interested, or to the officers themselves. When the loans are new they look all right, and frequently are good. But if things go wrong and the outside venture loses money, the loans begin to increase, and soon good money begins to go after bad, with the inevitable result. It is surprising to see in how few cases men who may have been theretofore honest and square have the honesty and moral courage to face the failure of their bank when due to bad judgment or incompetency, without resorting to frauds of some kind. It is extremely rare to find a bank has failed without some of the officers committing fraudulent or illegal acts to hide it.

This is the case of mismanagement, tainted with selfishness from the start and culminating in fraud. There are others that are still more difficult:

The hard cases are where the officers are dishonest and untruthful, and perpetrate all kinds of frauds to conceal the condition. A common device is to put forged notes into the bank, ostensibly signed by people of good credit. Another is to fail to cancel and deliver to customers notes which have been paid, and to keep them in the bills receivable. One can readily see how hard it is for an examiner to discover such frauds when they are perpetrated by shrewd scoundrels who have every advantage of being in the bank all the time, while the examiner comes only twice a year.

Against these and like dangers protection lies first in the honor and ability of the executive officers of the bank, and secondly in the care and intelligence of the Directors.

The duty of a bank Director, if he would fulfill the obligation imposed by his oath and protect the interests of the shareholders for whom he is a trustee, and the creditors, to whom he is under even greater moral obligations, requires that he should know positively that the affairs of the bank are being properly managed. Meetings of the Directors should be held regularly and frequently, and be well attended by all the members of the board. At these meetings the officers should be required to make full, complete, and intelligent reports in such form and detail as to be easily understood by the Directors. All loans and important transactions should be reported and passed upon, and especially all notes and securities should be submitted for the personal inspection of the members of the board who are not active officers. All loans to officers and Directors should be more closely scrutinized and examined than any others, and the amount of their total liabilities clearly understood. In addition to such exhibitions as are made at regular meetings, the Directors should have frequent thorough examinations made by committees of the board, or experts employed for the purpose. These should be made independently of the active officers of the bank.

It can do no harm, and it may do much good, that this plain statement from an official having such wide experience should be made at a time when revelations of moral obliquity and of mental crookedness among men of high standing in the financial world are occurring. But it is only reasonable to say, in connection with the statement, that the principles laid down by Mr. RIDGELY are very widely observed in institutions of good repute, certainly in this city, and undoubtedly in all parts of the country. Frequent meetings of the Directors, fairly full reports by the executive officers, scrutiny of loans, and independent inspection by committees or experts are not new inventions. They are old and recognized means of securing safety and prosperity. Directors are not selected, and cannot be, to administer immediately the business of a bank. They are usually chosen for the prestige, the aid, and the influence they can bring to the bank, for their judgment as to its policy, for their knowledge of their special line of business and its paper, and their vigilance is in addition a valuable qualification. Their responsibility is not very precise or specific, but it is very real, and a man acting in good faith and with vigorous common sense will recognize that responsibility and meet it fully.

POLITICS IN THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a constant reader of your interesting editorials, I notice that you seem to know a good deal about the United States customs. So perhaps you can tell me if you believe a civil service position can really be gotten in the New York Custom House without political influence.

I would like to try for a place there, but haven't any political influence. A friend of mine took an examination for clerk once, but didn't get an appointment, although he had a good mark. He told me that the appointing officer, Mr. STRANAHAN, had held office a long time and had got to think he owned the Port of New York, and consequently appointed only such employés as were recommended by Republican bosses. Will you please give me your opinion? ANXIOUS.

Stapleton, S. I., Oct. 21, 1905.

The Civil Service rules, in accordance with the law, require that for every appointment in the Custom House, which comes under the rules, three names standing highest on the list of eligibles shall be certified to the appointing officer, and no name shall be certified more than three times to the same appointing officer. The result is that only two names can be skipped out of five down the list. The law does not forbid selections within the limits above indicated influenced by political recommendations, but the limits are very narrow. We have no evidence that Collector STRANAHAN has violated or evaded the rules or the law. On the contrary, it is the experience and observation of the Civil Service Reform Association and of the Federal Commission that he is "very square." It is our belief that applicants for appointment under competitive examinations in his office are treated according to their merits, as brought out by the examinations.

There is a good deal of misunderstanding as to the intent and effect of the Civil Service rules They do not exclude political preference in appointments from among applicants whose fitness has been properly tested by competition. They do prohibit all promotions, reductions, or removals on account of political affiliations. The outcome is that the general standard of appointments since the rules were put in force has decidedly been raised, and there is far less favoritism and far less oppression for political purposes than formerly. The improvement would be still greater if there were a greater number of qualified applicants not depending on or seeking party backing. That will come in time.

YOUNGER MEN FOR THE NAVY.

Admiral DEWEY is anything but premature in lending the weight of his authority to the statement "The Nation will assuredly meet with disaster in a naval war unless younger men are given command of the ships of our navy." The Admiral pays a deserved tribute to the men whom he would retire. There is nothing personal or critical in his remarks. The long and short of it is that we ought to be ashamed and afraid of the system which gives us grayheaded Lieutenants, and superannuated officers of higher rank.

The Admiral refers to the difficulty which we experienced from aged officers in the civil war. Defeat followed defeat until younger men replaced them. Congress, when previously dealing with the present difficulty, swept away at once one-half of the Captains, one-third of the Commanders, and one-fifth of the Lieutenants, the juniors at once filling the vacant places. Nothing could be more inept than the present effort to rejuvenate the service. At the very time when the Naval Academy course is being shortened in order to get officers more quickly, veterans are being bribed to retire by the offer of advanced rank. They have been educated at large expense, and they are being pensioned off at a large annual cost, although they are the best men for Admirals our Nation contains.

The difficulty is a legacy of the civil war. The roster was then swollen by large numbers of officers of similar age. Hence there is a "hump" over which advancement is unnaturally slow. Men have been Lieutenants for twenty years, although in the interests of efficiency they ought to have had their own ships by forty, their battleships by five years more, and senior flag rank by fifty. Then they would have, as they should have, a dozen years as Admiral before statutory retirement. It is unjust to the Admirals and to their country that they should reach that rank just as they are facing compulsory shelving. Naval requirements are now so severe and specialized that it no longer follows that experience in the lower rank fits for the promotion. It is no longer assured that a good "luff" will be a good Captain, or that a good Captain will be a good squadron commander, or that a Captain who manoeuvres a squadron efficiently can combine squadrons into fleet manoeuvres. These things do not come by light of nature, nor yet by academy routine, but by experience. It is derisory to expect highest service from officers whose entire experience as Admirals is limited to one single first and last cruise. Ten Admirals are upon the eve of retirement. Within two years nineteen Admirals will be replaced by Captains, but the youngest of them will be 59. The names will be different, but the age will average the same within months. Our Captains are all so old that there is not one of them who can complete a cruise as battleship commander, another as squadron commander, and have time enough left for a single cruise as Admiral. Rockingchair Admirals are all very well in yacht clubs, but there is nothing funny about them in the navy.

Our Captains average thirteen years older than the Japanese, nine years older than English and German, seven years older than Russian. England's compulsory retirement of Captains at 55 would not leave our service a single Captain in a year. At Trafalgar the Captains averaged 40. JONES captured the Serapis at 32, and died at 45. NELSON died at 47. TOGO is 54, and his Rear Admirals average 49. The situation calls for some such thorough treatment as already referred to. Retirement at the top by wholesale is necessary, and promotion right down through the list. Bribing men to leave the service in their prime is a blunder.

We heartily trust that the predictions of our Washington dispatches as to the policy to be pursued with the Philippines this Winter will turn out to be correct, but they involve a change in the temper of the Republican leaders which is hard to believe in. For SERENO PAYNE and Gen. GROSVENOR to be convinced that Philippine products should be admitted to our ports free or almost free of tax is something no one would have dared to suggest a couple of years ago. Every one that had responsible connection with the Administration of the islands, the President, Secretary ROOT, Secretary TAFT, the Civil and Military Governors who have had to deal with insular affairs, all saw the facts plainly enough. But for a long time it seemed that the leaders in the House could not and would not understand either our duty or our interest in the premises. Immense wrong has already been done through their obstinacy and perversity; but if now they are willing to do the decent thing, it will be the beginning of a new and better era for the islands.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Inviting a Disaster.

Capt. DOOLEY, in his new position of police command over the "Tenderloin," has already shown a somewhat too Roosevelt-ian confidence in his excellent intentions and the admirable ends he has in view. What is also Rooseveltian in its way, he manifests a more than slightly dangerous inability to see that, even after an accurate determination of what should be done, there still remains the problem of selecting means and methods that are legal as well as effective. The Captain's proclamation that "no woman, believed by the policeman on post to be an improper person, may walk through the streets of the Tenderloin without an escort after 10 P. M.," under pain of instant arrest, might reasonably—that is, by a process of straight reasoning—be expected quickly and permanently to accomplish a desirable object. One cannot, to be sure, quite understand how a policeman can at sight do what most of us find so difficult—discriminate between "improper persons" and others without the assistance of an overt act—and why the presence or absence of an "escort" should make all the difference between freedom and imprisonment is not easy to see. The fact remains, however, that if policemen cleared the streets of everybody whom they suspected of impropriety in the sense under consideration, the streets would be pretty well cleared. And that fact, apparently, is all that Capt. DOOLEY observes or ponders. He has forgotten that even the "improper person" has certain rights, including that of walking the streets of the city at any hour of the day or night, under exactly the same, and no more, restrictions than are imposed upon persons entirely proper. He forgets that the law, of which he is a representative, deals with acts, not with the possibilities or even the certainties of character, and that the arrest of an "improper person," when unwarranted by the law, is an abuse of power, punishable as such, no less than like treatment of persons of another and better sort. This is good logic, but it is a little academic, and we are willing to confess that what troubles us most, if not wholly, in regard to Capt. DOOLEY'S arbitrary establishment of a curfew regulation is the certainty that its enforcement will soon subject perfectly respectable women to shameful humiliation. Many such women have frequent and adequate reasons for passing through the streets unattended, and they do it on both sides of midnight. It is the duty of the police to see that they are protected there, to subject them to no judgment except that founded on conduct. A single arrest of such a woman, if she happened to belong to the articulate class, would get Capt. DOOLEY and his patrolman into trouble of a seriousness which they would long remember.

A Difference of Temperament.

It is more than slightly amusing to note how different is the way in which the British Government and public confront the problem of getting back the officers captured by Moorish bandits, and that in which we viewed a similar situation in the case of Miss STONE. Our cousins are entirely calm. The two officers are in the hands of men who are able, though only a handful of barbarians, to do anything they choose to their prisoners before the British Government, by the exercise of all its power, can reach them, and they are ruffians likely to choose to do something highly unpleasant unless the ransom they demand—the release of an imprisoned chief of theirs—is paid. Our cousins do not seem to be at all troubled by the morals of the affair. "What we want and must have," they say in effect, "can only be secured by setting free a murderer; all right, we will set him free." We couldn't, or at least didn't, take our like dilemma with any such calm and "practicality." Though we were only asked to pay a few thousand dollars to men engaged in a struggle for which, so far as we had anything, we had sympathy, the idea of being blackmailed by patriots not easily distinguishable from brigands was terribly repugnant to us. It seemed an intolerable abandonment of the National dignity, and we carefully argued out that, as Miss STONE had voluntarily taken her chances in a country well known to her to be unsafe, we could only attempt her rescue through the regular channels of diplomacy. We did, indeed, at last find a way to get the money to the blackmailers, but, with all our care to preserve appearances, our consciences suffered a lot from our compromise with evil, and we were unhappy for a long time.

Automobiles Are Hard on Roads.

When automobiles were only beginning to come into general use their friends were fond of declaring that among the advantages of the new vehicles over their predecessors was the fact that instead of hurting road surfaces by passing over them they would have the contrary effect of improving them. And nobody doubted this particular claim, for it seemed obvious that broad, soft tires would not only not work the injury of narrow steel ones, but would tend in a marked degree to make smooth and easy the way for all of us. Experience has hardly borne out prophecy. It was forgotten that the automobile propels itself by pushing backward with the lower surface of its rear tires against the surface of the road, and that the force thus exerted, in the case of the larger machines and when moving at high speed, is far from small in amount. The effect of its application is seen, first, in the production of dust in clouds hitherto unknown in ordinary highway traffic, and, second, in the rapid wearing away of all except the very best roads wherever the number of automobiles is at all large. The truth is that the automobiles have not solved our old road problem; they have only promised to make its solution unnecessary—at the cost of creating a wholly new road problem; and our success in solving the other was not so prompt or so nearly complete that we can very confidently expect soon to cope with the present difficulties.

AID FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

Daisy Fields Home Will Be Open All Winter—Money Needed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a meeting of the Board of Managers of the "Daisy Fields Home and Hospital for Crippled Children" at Englewood, N. J., held Oct. 10, it was voted to keep the entire house open all Winter, as has not been done for several years. This has been made possible by the gift of a new steam heating plant. It will, however, necessitate increased running expenses, to meet which it is hoped those interested in the crippled children of the poor of New York City will contribute of their substance.

Nearly all the children are from among the very poor, who pay little or nothing toward their support. The institution is supported entirely by contribution. It is doing a great work for this most unfortunate class. To quote from the report of Dr. Warren O. Plimpton, the Surgeon in Chief:

"I believe that if those who have given so generously in the past, and those who would do good in the future, could see these little patients as I have—wan, feeble, and diseased, in the city—changed in a few months' times in your institution to rosy-cheeked, active, robust children in appearance, they would need no other argument or solicitation to aid the Hospital's maintenance, as well as help enlarge its capacity for the accommodation of a greater number in the future.

"No class of patients that I treat make better progress than those at Daisy Fields. * * * Altogether, the hospital merits the worthy attention and help of that charitable and philanthropic portion of society who would wish to do a great good for that most unfortunate of all classes, the crippled children of a great city."

POLICEMEN HAVE NO EYES?

An Italian on New York Methods of Dealing with the "Black Hand."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I write a bad English, but I write without partisan interest, and only by the great love that bind me to my countrymen. So, let me say that the statements made by Mr. Petrosino are pretty "humbugs."

I think, I believe, alas! that among my people, like in all others peopole, we can find the delinquents; but, that in New York or in the U. S, Mafia and Camorra, and Mano Nera, are existing, is a story for childs. I aske an answer: Would Mr. Petrosino, which present himself as the "Attila" of the tremendous supposed associations, be still in life, if these associations really existed?!?

But if, by damned supposition, Mr. Petrosino tell the truth, why do not He suggests to close ths Italian "restaurants" and coffeehouses etc in Mulberry, Broome, Spring etc, not after 12 p. m.? Everybody know how disorderly houses are the Restaurants in Broome Str, in Mulberry etc: where wine and beer are sold without license, and where, all the night long, game is done, and where day and night are the Conventions of the wice-men! But what is Mr. Petrosino doing? "Verba, Verba pretereagne nikil"; why? Because he know, pratically he know, that Police get money not to have eyes!....And that is what in Italy is called the true Camorra!.....

Let Restaurants and Café not open after 12 p. m.; dont allow them to sold wine and beer and liquor without license, and you will see....Don't you believe?

New York, Oct. 19, 1905. ITALY.

They All Love It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Commuticus," whose letter you published this morning, is apparently one of the poor unfortunates that are obliged, by one reason or another, to make themselves the victims of the most remarkable railroad system in the world. I have traveled on a good many roads at home and abroad, but outside of a comic opera I have never seen or heard of a railroad that could in any way equal the Long Island. All who travel on the road agree on the verdict. The only reason for its existence is that it has no competition and that Long Island has such superior attractions in Summer that people will brave the terrors of getting there.

Of course, situated as the Long Island Railroad is, without competition and in a garden country, it could go on with its opera bouffe methods forever unless a vigorous protest was made publicly. F.

Americans In Paris.

From The London Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Three Americans, having met on the boulevards yesterday, decided to make a night of it. They started early in the evening and visited innumerable bars. Toward 4 in the morning they landed in an establishment of the Rue Taitbout, the only one still open, and sat there drinking champagne for three hours. At 7 o'clock the chief barmaid thought it high time to present the bill, which amounted to £20 or so. One of the Americans put his hand into his pocket and drew out not banknotes but a revolver, which he discharged pointblank at the barmaid, who fell badly wounded. The police arriving, removed the man in a hopeless state of intoxication to jail. The barmaid is in hospital with a bullet in her shoulder.

A Charles I. Memorial.

From The London Standard.

For the first time for at least 150 years Sunday service was conducted in the chapel of St. Nicholas within Carisbrooke Castle Oct. 8. Canon Clement Smith, chaplain to the King at St. Nicholas, was the preacher. He remarked that it was only right and fitting that among the memorials to King Charles I. there should be the restoration of that chapel in which, doubtless, he worshipped during his months of captivity at Carisbrooke Castle.

Costly as Motoring.

"Why has your husband given up deer hunting?"

"He couldn't afford it. You see, it cost him so much to settle with the families of the guides he shot by mistake."

IT IS "UP TO" THE VOTERS.

Not Jerome Personally, but the Principle He Stands For, Is on Trial.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has never been any more clearly marked line of battle in any political contest than that marked out for the voters in New York. All the criminal forces of the city are arrayed togethsr against Jerome, and not wholly against Jerome, but more especially against what he represents. In fact, ths issue of this campaign, so far as it relates to the District Attorney, is not so much against the individual candidates as against the sentiment which they represent. And it is not a local issue so much as it is a National issue, for Jerome, or, rather, Jerome's office, stands before the people of this country as representing official integrity and fearlessness.

There is seldom, if ever, been a contest in this city in which there has been so little partisanship manifested among independent thinkers and better-class citizens, and the whole city is to be congratulated upon the severance of party ties in this campaign. There seems to be an almost hourly demand on the part of all the fearless and bsst type of citizens "in favor of the Jerome habits," and what Jerome stands for, irrespective of his personality. Every corruptionist, grafter, and criminal fears ths Jerome sentiment, and, as representing such a sentiment, Jerome is hated by every type of culprit with a deadly hatred. He stands alone and has been turned down by all parties, not in response to the best element which exists in such parties, but in response to that other element which is in close sympathy with wrongdoers.

It is to be regretted that the consistency, so-called, of partisanship compels parties at times to show their power by killing politically the office holder if he fails to bow to their demands. Parties have to exist, and thsy often do a great and good service when their best elemsnts control. But their very existence at times demands a ssrvitude on the part of their office holders. It is, therefore, far better for this community, as well as for the country at large, that Jerome should stand alone and represent a contest untrammeled by the ties and obligations which partisanship would place upon him or upon his office.

Of course, the nominee by the Republican Party has been selected more as a joke than for any serious purposs, and the nominee of the Democratic Party, Mr. Osborne, is to be respected for his ability and integrity, and as an individual he is to be highly commended. But the election of Mr. Jerome has a far-reaching purpose, and the whole community is intcrested in his retention in office, not only for what he can do or may have done, but for the purpose of encouraging in this city and this country the very qualities which he represents, and he should not simply be elected, but he should be elected by an overwhelming majority, in order to emphasize an independence of spirit, and earnestness and fearlessness in the discharge of public dutics, which should be encouraged.

The moral welfare of this whole country demands that every man, woman, and child who believes in honoring and encouraging the right, and condemning and punishing the wrong, should unite in perpetuating the Jerome sentiment in every household and in every community; and the best way to encourage such a sentiment is to continue the present organization of the District Attorney's office, and thus make more timid and cowardly the culprits and criminals that are now raising heaven and earth to annihilate forever the "Jerome sentiment."

GOLD IN THE TREASURY.

Most of It In Circulation as Certificates and Greenbacks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read, with interest, your editorial on the subject of gold in the Treasury in THE TIMES of this morning, and am glad you called attention in the first part of your editorial to the incorrect statement made by parties for political reasons, that there is nearly $800,000,000 of gold in the Treasury.

Will you permit me to suggest that you make more clear this point, as the following in the concluding portion of the editorial seems to take a different ground: "The answer we suggest is that there is too much gold in the Treasury and too little in circulation, because the Treasury is in the banking business, and holds much gold which would perform similar duties more usefully and economically if it were in banking reserves or in people's pockets."

In the statement of the Treasury balances in your issue of the 15th inst. you will see that $521,000,000 of the gold now in the Treasury is represented by outstanding certificates; all of it, therefore, is in circulation as effectually as if the gold itself were, and the Government no more owns this gold than does a warehouseman the cotton, wheat, or other merchandise stored in his warehouse for which he has given receipts. Such receipts would correspond with the gold certificates.

The $150,000,000 gold reserve held for the redemption of the greenbacks is, also, practically in circulation, since the greenbacks are; and if the greenbacks should be redeemed (and they are liable to be presented at any time) the $150,000,000 would be drawn out and would be in circulation instead of the greenbacks themselves; so that this $150,000,000 is practically in circulation.

The only gold in the Treasury which the Government can control is the free gold, amounting now to in the neighborhood of $120,000,000, and this, you will concede, is not an unreasonable amount for the Government to retain; indeed, it is doubtful if it is sufficient.

In 1902 an attempt was made to have Congress pass a law requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to redeem the silver dollars in the Treasury, about $480,000,000, with gold. For this purpose the $120,000,000 would be grossly insufficient. The redemption of the silver dollars is entirely unnecessary. The public prefers the silver certificates, of which you and I and all other persons hold more or less in our pockets.

The question of the gold and silver in the Treasury is grossly misunderstood by many people. An eminent financier once said in my hearing that it would be better for the Government if the $480,000,000 of silver dollars in the Treasury could be dumped in the sea and removed from being a menace. I then asked him with what he would redeem the silver certificates outstanding if deprived of the silver dollars which they represented. The remark only shows how easy it is to make a mistake in this important matter.

Life Insurance Connotations.

From The Springfield Republican.

Philanthropy—Getting one's family in on the ground floor.

THE GAS PROBLEM.

If You Solve It This Way, It Certainly Seems Easy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Pardon this intrusion, but I am attracted by the error you make in this morning's editorial on "Mr. Ivins's Platform" concerning the prodigious municipal expense that you foresee if the city purchased its gas plant. To quote:

Where would he (Mr. Ivins) find the money to buy the gas works? The Consolidated Gas Company has $80,000,000 of capital. The shares are quoted on the New York Stock Exchange at about 185. Its share capital therefore pays 8 per cent. dividends. Whether the commission of appraisal took earning power or market price as a basis of valuation, the city would have to increase its debt by a prodigious amount to pay the bill.

From the report of this company it is apparent that 4,000,000 of people are working hard to pay $9,000,000 in annual net profits, on properties that have a real value of a comparatively few millions, as shown at the recent gas investigation. No great brain work is required on the part of the Gas Trust. No remarkable invention or great risk is involved that can excuse these colossal net profits—net profits of probably 50 per cent. of the actual cash invested.

When the city is ready to take the gas businesses neither the "earning power," which only shows how extensively 4,000,000 of people can be "tapped" without a murmur, nor the "market price," which only shows how easy it is to make people believe a little is worth a great deal, with the aforementioned "earning power" as a bait, will be considered. The properties will be appraised, their intrinsic value discovered, the properties condemned and taken.

It is truly a misfortune that numbers of our honest and unsuspecting citizens should be "taken in" by this "earning power" bait, and misled into believing that our 4,000,000 people would continue for all time to labor on and pay $9,000,000 annual "velvet."

I am opposed to municipal ownership, and I think and believe that if a gas plant was corporated for just what it costs the public would be only too glad to patronize it at prices that would net the company 5 or 6 per cent. in preference to city ownership. But how can this be done with the present grasping financiers controlling things?

Maryland's Tobacco Interests.

From The Baltimore Sun.

The Tobacco Growers' Association, organized at College Park, Md., Thursday, promises to do for the tobacco interest in Southern Maryland what a like association is doing for the cotton interest. Direct selling is desired instead of the present commission method, which leaves the tobacco grower at the end of the season without a profit. The tobacco industry is said to be decadent under the present system. If the crop could be held in reserve for a time a higher price, it is believed, might be obtained. The past season has been so disastrous that new methods are imperative if Maryland is to continue a producer. Enterprise in seeking a wider market was suggested. A grower of tobacco related to the assembled farmers at College Park how well his tobacco sold when displayed in New York. The idea was enforced that it will no longer do to sit still and wait for buyers. The success of the French Government in getting Maryland tobacco for a song was, perhaps, due to this inaction and the narrowness of the market hitherto relied upon. A more careful grading and packing of the local product, the association thinks, will increase demand. At the meeting of the association to be held on the 20th further discussion and action will be had. This is right. There cannot be too much attention concentrated upon careless methods of growing, grading, packing, and marketing. A general awakening of the growers affords prospect of better days for the tobacco interest in this State.

The French Beet Crop.

According to the Journal des Fabricants de Sucre of Paris, the beet root crop, from which sugar is made, will show a considerable increase over last year, although the richness in sugar will be less. The analyses carried out by the laboratory of the French Sugar Makers' Association on Aug. 17 show that the average weight of the root is 247 grams, against 240 in 1904 and 241 in 1903, the proportion of sugar being 13.76 per cent. against 15.20 per cent. in 1904 and 12.19 per cent. in 1903. According to these data the crop promises to be very satisfactory compared with that of last year as regards quantity, but inferior in quality. Much, however, will depend on the temperature between the present time and that for pulling up the roots. Reports from other Continental countries, excepting Russia and Spain, in both of which the plants have suffered from drought, show that the situation is very similar to that in France.

LONESOME.

Say, little boy, be friends with me and I'll be friends with you;
And I won't never tell on you, no matter what you do.
It's awful lonesome over here and, goodness, but it's hard
To have your mother say that you must play in your backyard.
There's lots of daisies where I am, and butterflies as bright
As anything you ever saw, and I just saw one light;
Perhaps you'd catch it in your cap if I would help you to—
Coms over and be friends with me and
I'll be friends with you.

I'm all the children we have got—I'm lonesome as can be,
I wish you wouldn't be afraid to come and play with me.
I don't care if your face ain't clean or if your clothes are torn,
I didn't have no clothes at all the time that I was born.
We got ripe apples on our trees and I will boost you so
That you can get some if you come, and when it's time to go
We'll fill your cap and pockets full to take home. Don't you see
I'm willing to be friends with you if you'll be friends with me?

I've got a lot of wooden toys, as fine as they can be,
But I want something that's alive to run around with me,
And play with Indians and bears, and if you'll come and play
Perhaps my mamma 'll let me come and play with you some day.
We've got some dandy hollow trees, the finest anywheres,
And one of us can hide in them when we are playing bears,
And growl just like he's awful cross,
and all the time you know
It's only make-believe, of course, but then it scares you so.

I wish you'd come and play with me. I've got a jumping jack
I'll give you for your very own to keep when you go back,
And you can ride my velocipede most all the afternoon
And blow some bubbles with my pipe and play with my balloon.
I've got an awful lot of toys and I will let you play
That they are yours as much as mine for all the time you stay,
I'm all the boys my folks have got. I'm lonesome as can be,
Come on, and I'll be friends with you
if you'll be friends with me.

DON'T GLOAT OVER INSURANCE FRAUDS

Felix Adler Says: They Bring Humiliation to Us All.

OUR IDEALS NEED CORRECTION

You Can't Get Millions Without Paying a Price You Should Not Pay—Lesson for the Rich.

The evil of wealth getting, with particular reference to the revelations made in the insurance investigation, was the theme of a lecture by Prof. Felix Adler in Carnegie Hall yesterday morning before the Society for Ethical Culture. It was the thirtieth anniversary of the society and the opening session of the season. Every seat was occupied:

Prof. Adler in his address said:

"The past Summer has been a period in which have occurred some very painful and shocking revelations. No one interested in public affairs, not to speak of public morality, can fail to be alarmed. Some of those who occupied the seats of the mighty in this community have been pulled down and dragged through the dust. Others have suffered less in reputation, but will never again occupy the position which was once theirs.

"There should be no rejoicing over the overthrow of these men in a gloating sense. Rather should we all be humiliated. Our own self-respect is impaired when those whom we respect are pilloried as rascals.

"The end of the insurance investigation is not yet. We of the public do not yet know to what depths we will be called upon to descend or through what foul ramifications of fraud we will be asked to follow. This much is clear. The developments have shown an ulcer on the body politic, and the symptom is one which runs deep down into American life.

"It is not so much the question of those who have suffered in reputation with which we are concerned, as with the underlying causes of the disease itself. How are we affected? To what extent have we contributed to this condition of affairs?

"In the revelation we are struck by two facts: First, the enormity of what has been done; that dishonest men have not hesitated to despoil funds dedicated to widows and orphans, the sacred fund, the saving fund that the American husband and father puts aside for those whom he leaves behind when his hand has been paralyzed by death.

"Apart from that view, one cannot help recoiling from another and a more ominous fact—the moral obfuscation of those men in whom we had been wont to repose our confidence; the blunting of the gentleman in them; the obscuring of their moral perceptions; the fact that men who once stood high seem no longer able to distinguish between right and wrong, the fact that they have become so muddled and degraded that they have no moral sense.

"Morally Obtuse" Trustees.

"Men have, as Trustees, allowed themselves to profit from funds intrusted to them as Trustees. They have openly admitted it and have not seen that in so doing they have published themselves as morally obtuse, deficient in the elementary principles of honesty and the essence of fiduciary obligations. You cannot be buyer and seller at the same time. You cannot deal with yourself as contractor and as trustee. Of necessity any such dealing opens the door to dishonesty, and any conduct, even though it be consistent with honesty, which exposes the door to temptation, is morally reprehensible. A man may be honest individually, but when self-interest and public interest conflict he is exposed to violent temptation.

"You can light a fuse near a powder magazine and the spark may not fall, but there are ninety-nine chances out of a hundred that it will. The selfish interests of men are powder magazines.

"Take the matter of contributions to political funds. Here is a whole nest of moral sophistry involved, and yet we find a man who stands high in this town unblushingly proclaiming that he has contributed so many thousands of dollars to one of the political parties on the insolent assumption that he knew best what the public interests demanded—that the American citizen had no right to take sides. By such a stand he robs you and me of our independence, of our assets of political conviction, of our franchise, and our citizenship.

"Even assuming that the contributions of which this man boasted were dictated by honest motives—and unfortunately we have reason to more than suspect the influence of very improper motives in this particular case—even assuming that the President of this insurance company was convinced that a financial crisis threatened, he had no right to give way to his convictions, for, as self interest is violent, so also is partisan bias.

Corruption in Self-Defense.

"Finally, we have the most awful and disgraceful plea of all—that it is necessary in self-defense to corrupt our lawmakers; that there is a group of political blackmailers who must be conciliated; that the great corporations cannot wait until the blackmailer is driven from power, but must buy him off.

"I believe that such a plea is fallacious. I believe that the two political parties create and sustain each other. I believe that those corporations engaged in questionable businesses and using questionable methods sustain the political banditti. They could, if they had clean hands, throw their cases into the court of public opinion and challenge the blackmailers to do their worst.

"There are perfectly legitimate businesses in this city which suffer annoyance from the petty persecutions of corrupt officials, but I can't see that this is sufficient reason for paying a bribe. It is cowardice that makes you pay. If you were manly you would play the nobler part, and if enough of you stood up there would soon be raised up in this community a power that would sweep this vicious system out of existence.

"Since when has duty only been obligatory when it can be done only without inconvenience or loss?

"There are between 2,000 and 3,000 millionaires in this country. The American people look up to them and say that there are no ideals in business. That is a mistake. There are ideals in business, just as there are ideals in the practice of medicine or of the law; just as there are ideals in the work of preachers. The trouble is that our ideals need correction.

How the picture of unlimited wealth allures! How you envy one of our American Croesuses! But would you like to stand in his shoes? Not until we have answered that question in the negative have we ceased to contribute to that disease the symptom of which is revealed in the insurance investigation.

The Tollgate of the Golden Land.

"It is the popular idea that the men of many millions have arrived—that they have the good things. I tell you that you can't get these millions without paying a price you don't want to pay, or should not want to. There is a tollgate on the road to the golden land, and the keeper makes demands which it were best not to grant. There may be exceptions, but we are justified in saying that the great fortunes are not accumulated without grievous sin, without oppression or unfair advantage. If you were offered untold wealth to commit murder, and guaranteed—if such a thing were possible—against discovery, would you be ready to pay the price?

"Satan took Jesus to the top of a mountain and showed Him the wealth of the world if He would fall down and worship. Stop and think. Argue it out, and you will find that these men of millions haven't arrived, but only have seemed to, that for all they have they have paid the price.

"Take the frame of mind of the American wealth getter. His constant cry is 'More.' He has a mania for money, and no leisure in which to enjoy that which he has. Avarice is like the grave. Its jaws are always open. The nobler faculties are atrophied. The habit of mind developed by the pursuit of riches is the calculating habit. Morality and unselfishness are cast aside. The sciences and arts are dependent upon the maintenance, on the part of its exponents, of a disinterested attitude, and thus the higher life is barred to the wealth getter.

Clinging Taint of Self-Reverence.

"The wealth-getter may and does support science. This much grace is granted him; but he cannot enjoy it. The humblest teacher in the university he founds has the advantage of him in this respect. He may stock great art galleries, and the lowliest visitor may have more good of them. He may pour out money like water in public benefactions, yet somehow the taint of self-reverence is never absent, and the real joy of giving is denied him. His gifts meet with a certain recognition. He is flattered and adulation is his, but traps are laid for more of his money, and he fails when he essays to gain the good-will of the public. It is love that is wanted, and a man may offer up all that his house contains for love and still be laughed at. A kindergartner, spending himself in humble service, gets more love than all the money in the world could buy.

"There is a distinction, though, between wealth and money. Money is really not wealth, but its token. There is no suggestion of limitation in money, but there is in wealth. Wealth is the means to the attainment of human ends. There is no objection to wealth, provided we accumulate it as a means to those ends. Some of the worthiest effort in the world has been expended in the pursuit of wealth. It is when money is made the end and not the means that it becomes a curse.

Is There a Cure?

"The only cure I can see is a change of the inner view, a departure from the mean and the sordid. The tender ends of life are the only ends. If wealth comes to us in excess of our needs, then there are the public uses to which we can devote it.

"This change is bound to come. We may not keep on selling ourselves for something cheaper than we are. Those who are hurt are not in the long run going to remain silent. There will come a counter move, and it is the part of the preacher and teacher to help guide it and keep it sane."

ALICE NIELSEN RETURNS.

Went a Comic Opera Star, Comes Back a Grand Opera Prima Donna.

Four years and a half ago Alice Nielsen sailed to London to sing in "The Fortune Teller." She left America as a comic opera prima donna.

Yesterday she returned to her native land, a full fledged prima donna in grand opera, with a reputation in England and on the continent, and billed for a five months' operatic concert tour of the United States, which will give her old friends an opportunity to hear her in new roles.

When she told America goodby she sang in English. She sings in Italian now. She still talks in English, though, and her enthusiasm over getting back home is a joy to the beholder.

"I cannot begin to say how glad I am to return," she said yesterday afternoon in her apartments in the Hotel Astor, where she went after leaving the White Star liner Celtic. "I am happier than I can say over my success abroad, but after all I am an American girl, and when I drove to Harlem to-day to see my mother, whom I had not seen since my departure, I was fairly bubbling over with happiness. I have high hopes of my coming tour. From what I am told, the outlook is very encouraging.

"Before I went to London I had sung a few grand opera roles in English. Singing in the Italian language is ever so much better. Italian is really the language of music. It helps the voice to be natural. There are no jarring consonants. It is all liquid melody.

"I am wholly devoted to grand opera. Of course it is a harder mistress than comic opera, for when I was singing here before, if my voice was a little out of gear, I could gloss it over. In grand opera the voice is everything."

At the time of Miss Nielsen's London début Henry Russell, the son of a composer whose "Cheer, Boys, Cheer" and "Three Cheers for the Red, White, and Blue" were popular in this country forty years ago, was one of the foremost vocal instructors of London. Mr. Russell had no sooner heard Miss Nielsen sing than he advised her to go into grand opera, offering to work the change himself. About this time he went to Rome. Miss Nielsen followed, and for a year she studied under him there.

When the year was up Miss Nielsen got an engagement with Newman, of Queen's Hall, London, for the musical festival under Nikisch. After this was over she went back to Naples, where she sang Marguerite at the Theatre Bellini. So marked was her success that she was engaged the following year for the San Carlo, the greatest opera house in that city. She made a tour of Italy, singing in the operatic centres, and was then engaged by the Grand Opera Syndicate of London to sing in the Mozart Special Cycle, under Richter, at Covent Garden.

At this stage of Miss Nielsen's career Mr. Russell turned impresario and started the Autumn season of grand opera at Covent Garden. Caruso went over to open the season. Miss Nielsen took Melba's place and sang all her rôles.

Last Summer she opened the Shuberts' new theatre, the Waldorf, in London, with a company brought especially from Italy. She and Calve alternated, Miss Nielsen singing all the principal rôles of the lighter operas. Her last appearance was when she sang before the Liverpool Philharmonic Society about two weeks ago.

The American tour, which will be under the management of Mr. Russell and the direction of the Shuberts, has been planned to take five months. It will probably be extended. Miss Nielsen will sing acts from those operas in which she is at her best.

The tour will begin with little delay. She leaves with Mr. Russell for San Francisco next week. Mr. Russell will lecture on voice production in the cities where Miss Nielsen sings. His lectures will be under the direction of the Shuberts.

Saturday morning, while the Celtic was still far out at sea, Miss Nielsen received a marconigram from Victor Herbert, welcoming her home. He was associated with her American fortunes as composer. Last night she and Mr. Russell were guests of Mr. Herbert at his concert.

Stella Beardsley Joins Lew Field.

Stella Beardsley, in "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," has been engaged by Hamlin, Mitchell & Fields to play the Countess Pokota in "It Happened in Nordland." Grace Field will play to-night the rôle of Helen Canting, the heroine in the burlesque of "The Music Master;" and Georgie Lawrence will return to her original part, Jennie.

MR. ROOSEVELT LEAVES FLORIDA FOR BUSY WEEK

Attends Church and Has a Sea Bath at St. Augustine.

MOBILE TO OFFER A MEDAL

Son of Admiral Semmes Will Present It—Confederate Veterans for Personal Escort.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Oct. 22.—President Roosevelt started to-night for his tour of Alabama. He left St. Augustine at 9 o'clock and is not scheduled to make a stop of any length until he reaches Mobile to-morrow afternoon at 4:30.

His day in St. Augustine was a quiet one. He attended services in the Presbyterian Memorial Church at 11 o'clock. The pastor, the Rev. James Coffin Stout, preached from the text, "Worthy the Lamb that was slain." He made no reference to the President. The church was crowded.

At the conclusion of the services the President was taken for a short drive about the city. After luncheon, accompanied by Secretary Loeb, Surgeon General Rixey, John McIlhenny, and John Greenway, the last two of whom have been his guests on the trip South, he drove to Fort Marion, where they boarded a launch and went to Anastasia Island for a bath. The President greatly enjoyed the dip in the salt water, and seemed in excellent condition for the hard work that lies before him this week.

When the party left the hotel for the fort the mounted policeman of St. Augustine, who had been waiting in front of the hotel, started ahead as an escort. The Secret Service men who were on the box with the drivers of the President's carriage said to one of them:

"We do not need you now."

"That's all right," responded the officer; "we will go along. It's coming to you, anyhow."

They galloped to the fort, where they stood at attention while the President boarded the launch.

Dinner was served at the hotel to-night, after which the President drove to his train. St. Augustine was full of strangers to-day. A large crowd lingered around the hotel all day, anxious to catch a glimpse of the President. He received few visitors.

After visiting Mobile to-morrow, Mr. Roosevelt will spend Tuesday at Tuskegee, Montgomery, and Birmingham. Wednesday he will devote to Little Rock, Ark., and Thursday he will visit New Orleans, leaving that evening on the cruiser West Virginia for Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Oct. 22.—President Roosevelt on his arrival here Monday will receive a badge consisting of a gold bar with the words "Mobile, Ala.," inscribed on it, below a gold magnolia, and another bar with the inscription "Blessed be the Peacemaker."

The presentation will be made by Judge Oliver J. Semmes, son of the famous Confederate Admiral, Raphael Semmes. At a recent meeting of the veteran camp of this city some members opposed taking part in the reception to the President. Judge Semmes said:

"How do you think I must feel when this man has called my father a pirate? But at the close of the war I surrendered my feelings, and I stand ready to welcome the President of the entire United States."

One hundred veterans attired in gray will act as the President's personal escort in the parade to-morrow. Orders were received for 500 members of the Coast Artillery companies stationed at Fort Morgan at the entrance to Mobile Bay to march in the procession.

VICTOR HERBERT'S CONCERT.

A Crowded Audience Welcomes the Beginning of His Series.

Victor Herbert and his orchestra began last night a series of Sunday night concerts at the Majestic Theatre. There was one of the largest audiences that the playhouse has ever held. The stalls were filled, the galleries packed, and there was generous applause for the programme. Mr. Herbert's concerts will continue through the Winter.

The first part of the programme was devoted to the classic school, although the conductor gave as encores a number of light selections. Miss May Naudain was the soloist, and was heard in Delibes's aria "Thou Great Mighty Sea," a song of Ronalds's, and "Love Laid His Sleepless Head," the music of which is by Mr. Herbert to the lyrics of Swinburne. She gave as encores "Serenata" and a slumber song.

The orchestra gave the "Roman Carnival" overture of Berlioz; Lizst's "Liebestraume," "Butterflies," from Arthur Nevin's suite "Love Dreams"; Rubenstein's "Trot de Cavallerie," with the same composer's "Melodie in F" as an encore, and Godard's "Kermesse."

The second part of the programme consisted entirely of Mr. Herbert's compositions, the overture from "Mlle. Modiste," Fritzi Scheff's new opera; the ensemble from "Miss Dolly Dollars," and the final march from "Wonderland," the new Julian Mitchell opera, which opens to-morrow night at the Majestic. The last number was Mr. Herbert's "Grand American Fantasie," which aroused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

IS SHAW SINCERE?

Robert Loraine Says He Is—"No," Says a Man Who Knows Him.

The members of the New York Playgoers' Club gathered in the College Hall of the Hotel Astor last night to discuss George Bernard Shaw and his play, "Man and Superman."

The meeting, which was composed largely of women, was presided over by Miss Edyth Totten. Robert Loraine, the actor now playing the part of John Tanner in the much-discussed play, was the principal speaker.

Mr. Loraine's speech was made up mostly of quotations from Mr. Shaw's plays. He said:

"The other day a lady in the street car suddenly addressed me with the staggering question: 'Is Shaw sincere?' As I was within half a block of my destination, I said 'yes.' The conditions did not permit of hair-splitting analyses or elaborate explanation.

"Shaw's life is the best proof of his sincerity. He has sacrificed everything for his plays. The man has long ago parted with all temptations except that of turning his blood into ink to reveal his soul. A one-hundredth part of the ridicule showered upon Shaw in the past would suffice to discourage the average author."

After the applause from the women had subsided the Chairwoman called upon Eden E. Greville to address the meeting.

"I have known Shaw, the man, fifteen years, and I am not sure whether he means anything he says or knows himself," Mr. Greville began.

"He is one of the most brilliant writers before the public, but I am not sure that he can construct or is even a playwright. He attacked Shakespeare, and said that he was entirely antiquated and provincial. The only man I ever knew him to admire was Ibsen. I am not sure that everything Mr. Shaw does is not a pose or an advertisement. He used to come to the theatres in London dressed in an old tweed suit and a dirty cap in the hope that some of the ushers would throw him out, but they never did.

"At the Avenue Theatre when 'Arms and the Man' was produced the whole house applauded, except one man in the gallery, who hissed. Shaw came on the stage and said: 'I quite agree with you, Sir, but what are we to do when all these fools applaud?' When Shaw first came to London he was a big red-headed man, and looked like an 'untamed bull.' If he sees this expression in the papers he may cable over and ask me what I mean."

Then several members of the club stood up and said things about Shaw and his plays and the meeting adjourned.

EDWARDES'S COMPANY HERE.

Apollo Theatre Players in New York to Give Us "Veronique."

George Edwardes's musical comedy company from the Apollo Theatre, London, which next Monday will present "Veronique" at the Broadway Theatre, arrived here on the Cunarder Umbria yesterday. In the company were John Le Hay and Mrs. Le Hay, Misses Ruth and Agnes Vincent, Miss Valli Valli, and Aubrey Fitzgerald.

"Veronique" has just added a two years' run at the Apollo Theatre. Mr. Edwardes is expected to arrive in New York this week.

ISLAND'S CHAPLAIN DEAD.

Father Broderick Had Been a Jesuit Missionary in Many Fields.

The Rev. Father John J. Broderick, chaplain at Randall's Island, who died last Saturday, had labored as a missionary in some of the hardest fields. His first work was among the negroes and poor whites in Southern Maryland, where he was sent by the Jesuits. He was sent then to Jamaica and Mexico, where he worked among the peons and Indians.

Two years ago he came to this city, becoming a member of the clergy of St. Francis Xavier's Church. From that church he was assigned to the chaplainship at Randall's Island. Funeral services are to be held this morning at St. Francis Xavier's Church, Sixteenth Street, near Sixth Avenue.

Charles William Wills.

Charles William Wills, 65 years old, President of the Rex Imperial Leather Company, died at his home, 273 Clinton Avenue, Newark, Saturday. He was a native of England and spent his early childhood at Windsor, the home of his godmother, Baroness Woodford, who was at one time Lady-in-Waiting to Queen Victoria. Mr. Wills was a playmate of the Prince of Wales, the present King of England. He came to this country while the civil war was on, and served for three years in the United States Navy. He leaves a widow, three sons and a daughter.

The Rev. Dr. F. Gifford Nelson.

The Rev. Dr. F. Gifford Nelson, secretary to Borough President Swanstrom in Mayor Low's administration and Secretary of the Board of Trustees of the new Academy of Music in Brooklyn, died last Saturday at his residence, 235 East Eleventh Street, Flatbush. Dr. Nelson was the founder of the Bedford Avenue Baptist Church and the Baptist Church of the Redeemer of Flatbush. He was a reporter in Brooklyn before he took a course in Hamilton Theological Seminary.

A RELIGIOUS BAND OF TRAVELING MEN

You Must Be a Church Member, Also a Christian to be a Gideon.

SUNDAY SERVICES IN A HOTEL

An Organization Formed in the West for Lonely Drummers Is Getting a Foothold Here.

The Gideons held religious services yesterday afternoon in the Broadway Central Hotel. The Gideons are commercial travelers. To join their organization a drummer has to be not only a church member in good standing, but also a Christian. The Gideons do not consider that church member in good standing and Christian always mean the same.

These services are held by the Gideons of Camp No. 1, covering New York State, who happen to be in the city on Sunday afternoon. They take place at 4 o'clock in Room 205 of the Broadway Central Hotel, which has been devoted to them by the hotel management. Yesterday's was the first Sunday service here. The New York Gideons have also been holding Saturday noon prayer meetings in the John Street Church, and these will be continued.

Out West, where the Gideons are stronger and where the organization originated, these Sunday meetings have been held for two or three years. Kendall Hall, Chairman of the Committee on Meetings, explained the object of the services yesterday. He said:

"For a drummer to be in a hotel on Sunday is very uncomfortable. The merchant rarely ever asks a drummer to go to church. Few people think about the drummer in that light. But there is open to him always the saloon and the brothel. These Sunday services help many a drummer to pass the day enjoyably and wholesomely."

There was no music at yesterday's meeting. It was like an old-time religious service in its simplicity. The Gideons present just sang and prayed and related personal experiences. But it was promised that future meetings will be more ambitious.

The Rev. Charles L. Goodell of the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church will preside at an early meeting, it is hoped. And soon there will be quartets, and maybe an organ. W. A. Douglass, who arranged yesterday's services, said that informality was one characteristic of the Gideons. They get up and do things when the spirit moves, regardless of previous preparations.

"Not long ago," he went on, "a man of Gideon found himself sitting next to another drummer who had deep convictions. They got to talking the matter over, and the man of Gideon said, 'Why, just lean your head over on the back of the forward seat, and we'll pray together.' They did; the man of convictions wanted to shout; he became a member of the church and a Gideonite as soon as he could.

"And so we picked up here to-day and started these meetings. Here are some hymn books we got from a publishing house. We haven't an organ or anything else. We'll sing now 'At the Cross.'"

They sang that and "Take Time to Be Holy" and many other well-known hymns. Then several of the members gave their experiences.

F. K. Ringsmuth, who has a tone and an accent like "The Music Master," told how he had been an infidel twenty years. Then he became a Gideon.

The Gideon badge represents the jug and the torch spoken of in the seventh chapter of Judges.

"That badge stands for square dealing everywhere now," one of the Gideons said. They all pity a Gideon who doesn't wear his badge. On account of the emblem they are often called "The Pitcher Band."

The genesis of this organization, whose members work always and everywhere actively for the advancement of Christian principles, is interesting. One Sunday night in 1899 John Nicholson, a drummer, appeared at a hotel in Janesville, Wis.

"Sorry, but we have no room left for you," said the clerk. "We can double you up with one of the boys, though, if you are willing. Mr. Hill—S. E. Hill—this is Mr. Nicholson. You're both on the line. You will not mind doubling to-night."

They doubled. Nicholson stayed out pretty late that night, but Hill was awake when he came in. Nicholson pulled a book from his grip, sat down, and began to read it.

"Read it aloud," said Hill, not knowing what the book was.

Nicholson read passages from the Bible. Soon there was an impromptu prayer meeting up in the little room.

"Let's organize the drummers into some sort of a Christian band," suggested Hill.

A meeting was held the next Sunday, and the organization was begun. It now has more than 5,000 members, and publishes a magazine. It is particularly strong in the West, and it is growing in the East.

"We have men wearing the pitcher badge in every land under the sun," said one member. "We have men of Gideon in every important city in Europe. We are growing."

Obituary Notes.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Cool weather continued during Saturday night, and this morning freezing temperature was general throughout the West, except in the Coast States, and there were general frosts throughout the East and South, except in the lake region, where there were local rains and snows.

Heavy to killing frosts occurred in the northern portions of the East Gulf and South Atlantic States, and light frosts almost to the shores of the Gulf. There was a general rise in temperature Sunday, except in the Upper Mississippi Valley and lake region, with fair weather, except in New York, the lower lake and northern and Western upper lake region, where there were showers.

There will be rain or snow Monday in the north upper lake region, continuing Tuesday and extending into the lower lake region. There will be also rain or snow Monday night or Tuesday in North Dakota and Montana. Elsewhere generally fair weather may be expected.

Temperatures will rise slowly over the east half of the country and change but little to the westward.

The winds along the New England Coast will be light to fresh west to southwest; on the Middle Atlantic Coast, light west to south; on the South Atlantic Coast, light to fresh north; on the Gulf Coast, light to fresh northeast to west; on the lower lakes, light to fresh southwest to south; on the upper lakes, fresh and mostly southwest.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Fair Monday and Tuesday; light to fresh southwest to south winds.

Western New York—Fair, warmer Monday; Tuesday, increasing cloudiness, probably local rains; light to fresh southwest to south winds.

Western Pennsylvania—Fair Monday, with slowly rising temperature; Tuesday, partly cloudy, probably rain; light to fresh southwest to south winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, warmer Monday; Tuesday fair; light to fresh southwest to south winds.

Delaware—Fair Monday and Tuesday; light to fresh southwest to south winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1904.	1905.		1904.	1905.
3 A. M.	56	40	4 P. M.	55	49
6 A. M.	58	40	6 P. M.	54	49
9 A. M.	56	43	9 P. M.	50	48
12 M.	56	49	12 P. M.	49	44

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 46; for the corresponding date last year it was 54; average on the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 53.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 40; at 8 P. M. it was 49; maximum temperature 51 degrees at 1:30 P. M.; minimum 40 degrees at 8 A. M. Humidity 73 per cent. at 8 A. M., 61 per cent. at 8 P. M.

McClure's —
The Marketplace of the World

The November number of McClure's Magazine more than justifies its title: the Marketplace of the World. It contains 227 pages of advertising, a volume of business never before equalled by any other periodical. There has never been such an exposition of industrial and commercial enterprises between two covers. It is a complete Marketplace.

But although it is a complete Marketplace, there are certain shops that cannot be found in it. There are no saloons here. It is impossible to buy a cigarette in this Marketplace. There are no enterprises in it where you can invest money at from twelve to twenty per cent. There are no places where baldness can be cured, neither can patent medicines be purchased.

SEYMOUR LEADS BATSMEN OF NATIONAL LEAGUE

Official Averages Place Cincinnatian First for 1905.

DONLIN HEAD OF CHAMPIONS

Centre Fielder Third in List of 145 Players—Lumley Best Hitter of the Brooklyns.

As generally expected, the official batting averages of the National League for the season of 1905, as compiled by President-Secretary H. C. Pulliam, place Seymour, centre fielder of the Cincinnati Club, at the head, with a percentage of .377 for 149 games. Second in the list is Wagner, short stop of the Pittsburg Club, who played in two games less than the Cincinnatian and finished with a percentage of .363. The New Yorks, the World's Champions, have the third representative in "Mike" Donlin, who played in 150 games and has an average of .356. Last year Wagner led the League with a percentage of .349. Donlin, who played part of the season with Cincinnati, was second with .329, and Seymour was fourth with .312.

Of the 145 players whose averages have been computed, there are twelve in the .300 list, as against nine last year. New York has four representatives among the first twenty, Pittsburg five, and Philadelphia three. Of the Brooklyns not a player reached the .300 mark, but Lumley, Sheckard, and Gessler are placed among the first twenty-five.

BENDER'S TEAM WON.

Indian Pitcher and Other Philadelphia Professionals Beat Ridgewood.

Bender, the Indian pitcher, was the only member of the Philadelphia Athletics who took part in the game against the Ridgewoods at Ridgewood Park yesterday. The rest of the team was made of semi-professionals of the Quaker City. Lindemann was mainly responsible for the loss of the game in the second inning, when, after two men had struck out, with a runner at first, he sent three men in succession to first on called balls, and with the addition of two hits six runs were tallied. The score:

HARD GAME FOR MANHATTAN.

Celtic Football Team Held West Side Eleven Down to 6 to 0.

The failure of the West Point Engineers to meet the Manhattan Square Athletic Club football team yesterday at Equitable Park was a disappointment to a big crowd which was on hand. The West Point team is badly crippled, and on Saturday requested a postponement of the game until later in the season. The Celtic team of the east side was substituted, and put up a stiff argument, holding the Manhattans down to the score of 6 to 0. After ten minutes' playing in the first half the Manhattans worked the ball down the field by line plunges, when Nelson went through tackle for a touchdown and Leopold kicked the goal. Just before the end of the first half G. Sturges was tackled hard and carried off the field with a broken rib. The players were hampered in the second half by the spectators swarming on the field. The Celtic players made a much better showing during the latter part of the game, and held their opponents safe. The line-up:

Manhattan Sq.A.C.	Position.	Celtic A. C.
J. Sturges	Left guard	Riley
Thompson	Centre	H. Krinberg
Sulger	Right guard	Chink
Rivas	Right tackle	M. Krinbarg
Morris	Right end	G. Flood
Edwards	Quarter back	Deemy
Leopold	Left half back	Nys
G. Sturges—De Sarto.	Right half back	A. Krinbarg
Nelson	Full back	Weatherby

Touch-down—Nelson. Goal from touch-down—Leopold. Referee—Mr. Cohen. Umpire—Mr. Melding. Time of game—Twenty and fifteen minute halves.

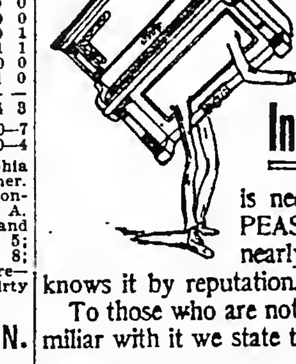
PIANOS AND ORGANS.



No Introduction

is necessary to the PEASE PIANO; nearly every one knows it by reputation.

To those who are not personally familiar with it we state that the

is not a low priced product, but in proportion to its high quality the prices (from $325 up) are VERY LOW. Cases all of solid trim, full bronzed plate, highest quality action, with patented take-up for the lost motion when using the soft pedal, are a few of its many features.

We give 3 years to pay for a piano if desired. Used pianos of nearly every make from $125 up. Renting, exchanging. Write for catalogue.

BERARD, EUPHILIA.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent.—To Georgianna W. Vogdes, Emily G. Smith, Katharine G. Swartwout, Mary H. Swartwout, Annie S. Wolfe, Grace H. Harrington, Mary (otherwise Minnie) Matthews, Julia A. Deese, Claude R. C. Berard, Walter M. Berard, John H. Berard, the heirs and next of kin of EUPHILIA BERARD, deceased, and said Katharine G. Swartwout, being executrix named in the will of said deceased, send greeting:

Whereas Eugene M. Berard of Hackensack, New Jersey, has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Euphilia Berard, late of the County of Columbia, State of Pennsylvania, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 1st day of December, one thousand nine hundred and five, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto [L. S.] affixed. Witness, Hon. Abner C. Thomas, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 6th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and five.

JAMES A. DONNELLY, Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

BUSINESS IN ENGLAND.

Trade Continues Very Satisfactory—Shipbuilders' Orders Increase.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The Times in its financial supplement to-morrow will say:

"The general tenor of the industrial reports is of a highly satisfactory character. Business, both for home and export account, is steadily increasing in the most important branches, and manufactures in some directions are gaining upon the high prices of raw material, although there are few instances where the two are as yet on a normal parity.

"The grain markets are generally higher, the indifference of sellers being a prominent feature. Seeds and seed oils are firm.

"The cotton trade has been firmer. The raw material has been more active, with steadily rising prices. Yarns have been bought more freely by consumers. The position of cloth has been strengthened by the distribution of fairly general business

"Wool is in better demand and is tending upward. The demand for manufactures shows further expansion, overtime being worked in most districts.

"All centres report large business in iron and steel. Pig iron and hematite have further advanced, and there are also a number of advances in the finished products.

"Shipbuilders' orders are increasing in spite of the higher cost. Shipbuilding materials are being heavily contracted for.

"Copper, tin, and spelter have further advanced, spelter to the highest point of the year."

WANTS GOVERNMENT CONTROL

Arkansas Hot Springs Superintendent's Plan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—In his annual report to the Secretary of the Interior the Superintendent of the Arkansas Hot Springs reservation recommends direct governmental control of the springs there. He says:

"Experience has demonstrated that the present system of operating the baths through the medium of private lessees is in conflict with public opinion and incompatible with local conditions, and the Government should, as soon as practicable, consistent with existing conditions, assume absolute and complete control of this reservation."

THE SPECULATIVE SITUATION.

The bull element, led by a group of aggressive professional operators, made the most of a relaxation in the call money market last week. The final installment of the last Japanese loan, amounting to about $20,000,000, was paid by the subscribers on Monday, and a large part of this money was made at once available on call to Stock Exchange speculators. In consequence, call money rates last week averaged about 4¾ per cent., as compared with 5¾ per cent. in the preceding week and 7 per cent. the week before. With the funds thus placed at their disposal, those leaders of the bull speculation, whose operations in high-priced railroad stocks had been checked by the limitations of the money market, reasserted their control of the speculative situation and had considerable latitude in the market. They confined their activities chiefly to so-called specialties and low-priced industrial issues, realizing, no doubt, that the money available for general speculation would go further in that class of securities than in high-priced stocks. The week's activity was largely in stocks selling under par. On Friday a general demonstration was begun against a large short interest in the standard issues, which until then had been somewhat neglected and were lagging, and this movement, embracing stocks like Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, and others upon which the strength of the bull speculation had previously centred, gave the market an appearance of great general strength.

There were nineteen stocks in which transactions during the week amounted to 50,000 shares or more, enumerated as follows:

Stock.	Shares Traded In.	Net Price Chg. for the Wk.
Amalgamated Copper	255,000	+ ⅝
American Car & Foundry	118,000	+ 3⅞
American Locomotive	274,000	+ 7⅞
American Smelting	99,000	+ 1⅜
American Woolen	55,000	+ 8⅝
Brooklyn Rapid Transit	290,000	+ 6⅜
Canadian Pacific	80,000	+ ½
St. Paul	56,000	+ 1
Erie common	94,000	+ ⅝
New York Central	63,000	+ 4
Pennsylvania	138,000	+ 1
Reading	804,000	+ 2⅝
Republic Iron & Steel	50,000	+ ⅞
Rock Island common	87,000	— ⅞
Southern Pacific	162,000	+ 2⅛
Southern Railway	56,000	+ ⅞
Union Pacific	836,000	+ 2
United States Steel	272,000	+ ⅝
United States Steel pf	76,000	+ ⅝

To this list might be added six more industrial stocks of lesser activity, as follows:

Stock.	Shares Traded In.	Net Price Chg. for the Wk.
Tennessee Coal & Iron	81,000	+ 8¼
Railway Steel Spring	19,000	+ 3⅞
Corn Products	20,000	+ 1⅜
Distillers Securities	7,500	+ 1½
International Paper	18,000	+ ¾
Pressed Steel Car	49,000	+ 5⅜

It will be seen that the prominence of cheap industrial stocks was a remarkable feature of the market last week. In this part of the list the "equipment stocks," led by American Locomotive, were by far the most conspicuous. There has been a great deal of comment of late on the immensity of railroad tonnage, the probability of a serious shortage of cars and motive power before the situation is relieved, and the imperative need in many regions of increased railroad equipment, all of which serves to advertise favorably the shares of equipment manufacturing companies. This immediate inspiration of the present speculation in these stocks, however, is the tremendous advance that has taken place in a few weeks in the price of American Locomotive common. In its first stages this movement was attributed to the Hoadley element in the stock, but its operations left off somewhere in the fifties, and at the point where they ended the operations of another and more powerful group of speculators began. The Hoadley element has since been eliminated from the board.

The leadership recognized in the stock market last week was of a highly professional character. Wherever any special activity developed the same following of similar tactics and a common initiative were more or less in evidence. This, no doubt, was the result of aggressive co-operation among certain professional operators, all working on the bull side, and all willing to help one another. It was, in other words, one bull crowd everywhere in the market. Its handling of the situation was deserving of as much admiration as may be vouchsafed to such leadership. Unfavorable news served only to make it more aggressive. It is said that before the President began to make his speeches in the South the members of the bull crowd held council and agreed not only to disregard anything he might say about railroad rate legislation, but to put the market up on it. Whether this be true or not, the President's utterances on that subject were treated with scant speculative interest. The failure of the Amalgamated Copper Directors to increase the dividend was disappointing to the bull leaders, but they simply turned from Amalgamated Coppor to other stocks.

The advance of exchange and other indications suggesting the possibility of gold exports at no distant time were similarly disregarded. More noteworthy, perhaps, from the trader's point of view was the manner in which the bull crowd got under the market on Thursday and supported prices against the bear attack launched from Boston. It had to take stocks in this instance, and it took them very willingly. Somebody had to take a lot of Steel common at 37, and somebody else had to take a large amount of Union Pacific on the level of 131. Steel common on Saturday touched 38¾, and Union Pacific sold at 134⅜.

So far the response of the commission house element has been unsatisfactory. The amount of general outside buying which may appear this morning, representing an accumulation of outside orders over Sunday, will mark the extent to which the public has been impressed up to date. There is no less pronounced a division of banking sentiment on the subject of money than there has been. The same powerful interests who have checked the market repeatedly in the last five or six weeks and who have insisted all along that the condition of the money market would not permit of an active bull speculation from this level of prices, at least not for the present, are of that opinion still, and they would presumably use their influence again to check the market if the situation should demand it.

GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY

What Has Made Men Rich

Trace down the pages of the biographical history of the wealthy men of our country and you will find at least 75 per cent. of them who began life as a poor boy, but industry, economy, and energy have made their names household ones in the business and professional world. You will say that luck makes men wealthy. It is not so; though there are cases—a small percentage—where a windfall dropped into the lap of some man by his predecessor or his relationship or in the game of chance. But where there is one thus fortunate there are ten others who started on life's highway with strong arm and a clear mind, without friends, without money, and without influence, to battle against the whole world and mold for themselves by energy and endurance a fortune honorably made.

My dear wage-earner, if you desire the proof and convincing evidence of the headline of this advertisement, how men became wealthy, go out and ask the first successful man you know what made him rich—how did he start on nothing and become wealthy. He will repeat what we have said: GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY.

The poor man, or the young man to-day without means, has greater chances and finer opportunities of getting rich than the boy or man twenty years ago.

Dame Fortune Knocks To-day at Your Door and Shouts, "Invest Now In the Suburbs! Grasp the Opportunity!"

Land Has Increased in Price Since 1900 in Westchester 500 Per Cent. Land Has Increased in Kings Since 1900 300 Per Cent. Land Has Increased in Queens Since 1900 500 Per Cent. Let Us Picture Now for You the Next Five Years and the Locality Where You Can Get Rich if You Will Grasp This Opportunity.

The great activity for investment and for homes will in the next five years be just outside of Greater New York on Long Island—just where the wage-earner can reach inside of 30 minutes for a 5 or 10 cent fare; where the line of travel by steam or electricity will be frequent day and night.

The Star of Prosperity Is Now Rising in the East, Coming Over the Fertile Fields of Long Island, and To-day It Reveals a Tale of Prophecy and Makes Known the Future Outside of Greater New York.

TO-DAY.	1910.
60 Trains a Day. One Every 20 Minutes. 10 Minutes from Jamaica. 30 Minutes from New York. 5 and 10 Cent Fare.	120 Trains a Day. Everything Electricity. 6 Minutes to Jamaica. 20 Minutes to Herald Square. Only 5 Cent Fare.
Finest Roads. Cheapest Land. Best Railroad Service Outside of Greater New York. Population 5,000.	Beautiful Parks. Beautiful Homes. Largest Municipality on Long Island. With a Population of 30,000. Great Industrial Centre.

Lots and plots of land at Mineola will increase in value 500 per cent. in 5 years. Why not? Star of New York destiny says so. Lots at the Bronx have increased from $500 to $5,000 in the past 2 years.

MINEOLA.

It lies just three miles outside of Greater New York—just twelve minutes' ride from Jamaica by steam cars, where three lines of the Long Island Railroad centre—all trains from the North Line, from Oyster Bay and Roslyn, all trains from the east on the Main Line, from Greenport west; all trains from the south, Hempstead and Garden City; and, in addition to all, the connection with New York by the Queens County electric car line. No such railroad facilities or transportation anywhere outside of Jamaica. WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH SERVICE? WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH AN ACCESSIBLE PLACE FOR A HOME?

WE HAVE BOUGHT $150,000 WORTH OF THE MOST CENTRALLY LOCATED LAND IN MINEOLA.

We have bought it close to schools, churches, stores, and within a few blocks of the depot, where every choice residence lot we have ought to be business property in ten years. And the announcement of this sale will pass through this city into the homes of hundreds of thousands of investors and homeseekers to-day. AND WE BELIEVE EVERY LOT WE HAVE WILL BE SOLD IN TEN DAYS. Such things have happened to us before. Therefore, we want you to be there at the

Grasp the opportunity. It means a great profit to you. It means a home near your work.

When you read this, sit down and write for maps and tickets. A postal card costs but a cent.

Our Titles are guaranteed by the Title Guarantee Company of New York. Our Titles are always perfect.

We have provided for 10,000 people during the six days at Mineola. Lunch will be served under our spacious tent, and accommodations with horses and carriages to see all our properties there. There is not a lot but what is a high, dry, level piece. Prices only govern lots by the accessibility to depot and cars. Excellent building sites on three broad macadamized roadways.

THREE BELATED LINERS IN.

All Had Rough Weather—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phipps Among Homecomers.

Three transatlantic liners due here Saturday landed their passengers yesterday morning. They were the American liner St. Paul, the Cunarder Umbria, and the White Star liner Celtic. Rough weather and fog were responsible for the delay.

Passengers on the St. Paul were Ivan de Ruhido-Zichy, Secretary of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy at Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman, F. W. Peckham, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ballantyne, Dr. Frederick M. Ives, and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Leeds.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phipps were on the Celtic. Other passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ogden and the Misses Ogden, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Lorillard and Miss Lorillard, Mrs. Sarah I. Greenway, Mr. and Mrs. Julian W. Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. William G. McCormick and the Misses McCormick, Mrs. Henry K. McHarg, Mrs. E. W. and Miss Gillett, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Bradley, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Davis.

On the Umbria came the Rev. P. J. Cherry, Mrs. Hilda Scott, the Rev. M. J. White, Marcus Spurway, Greek Consul at New York, and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hoagland.

MARRIAGE CAUSED ARREST.

Dennis's Anxious Wife Gave Clue—Police Break Up Celebration.

Just as he was beginning to celebrate with some friends his marriage, which took place a month ago, Israel Dennis was arrested yesterday afternoon at his home, 317 East Third Street. The charge is a robbery a year and a half ago.

If he had not married Dennis might still be free. He was away from home for a day or so last week, and his wife, in anxiety, appealed to the police to look him up. They did, for her description of the man tallied with that of one for whom they had been looking for several months. Dennis got home last Saturday to carry out the plans laid with his wife for their celebration yesterday.

Dennis's wife, who had no intimation of a cloud upon his past, clung to him and frantically tried to prevent the detectives from taking him away. Friends persuaded her that she could not prevent his being locked up.

The warrant charges Dennis with robbing William Goldberg, a saloon keeper, of 255 Grand Street, of $1,100 by the use of knock-out drops on April 21, 1904. The police say Dennis's picture is in the Rogues' Gallery.

BICYCLE HITS A HEARSE.

Tandem Rider's Skull Fractured in Brooklyn Bridge Smash-Up.

Jacob Alsofrom, 12 years old, and Max Macharus, 14, both of 136 Attorney Street, started to cross the Williamsburg Bridge yesterday afternoon on a tandem bicycle, on their way to Coney Island. They went by the south roadway.

On reaching the Brooklyn tower, where there is an incline, the boys noticed that there was a funeral procession ahead of them. Alsofrom shouted that he was going to pass it, and the boys sent the tandem forward with a spurt. At the anchorage their feet slipped from the pedals and the bicycle went down the incline at a terrific rate. It struck the rear end of the hearse.

Alsofrom's head struck the hearse doors and his skull was fractured. Macharus was injured about the head. Alsofrom was removed to the Williamsburg Hospital. It is not thought that he can live.

PISTOL FIGHT IN CAR FOR ELEVEN BLOCKS

Two Gang Members and Their Quarry Badly Wounded.

PASSENGERS IN A PANIC

And Are Cut Trying to Escape from Early Morning Eighth Avenue Battle—Policemen Absent.

For several minutes early yesterday morning three men, two of them members of the "Slaughter House gang," fought with revolvers in an Eighth Avenue car while it was speeding from Thirty-first Street to Twentieth, the motorman and conductor meanwhile making frantic efforts to find a policeman along the route.

All three men were wounded. Five passengers, one of them a woman, were in the car. That they escaped with no injuries except from broken glass in their frantic efforts to get out of the car is considered little short of miraculous.

Two of the men were able to appear later in the Jefferson Market Court, where they were held to await the result of the injuries inflicted on the third. They are William Daly, a bartender, of 389 Ninth Avenue, who is said by the police to be Henry Prang, and Thomas O'Brien, a truckman. The other man, who is in the New York Hospital, is Thomas Sullivan of 495 Ninth Avenue. He was shot in the wrist and leg.

According to the police Daly and Sullivan, who are the members of the "Slaughter House gang," made a determined attempt to kill O'Brien, who emptied his revolver at them to protect himself.

The car, in charge of Albert Mealing, conductor, and John Cunningham, motorman, was going down Eighth Avenue when O'Brien ran out of Thirty-first Street, closely followed by the other men. Four other men, said to be members of the same gang, brought up the rear, yelling to the two ahead not to let O'Brien catch the car.

O'Brien swung upon the platform, however, and as he did so he pulled a revolver, and, placing it at the head of the conductor yelled, "Go like thunder, or off comes your head." Mealing gave the bell-cord two frantic jerks, and the motorman, seeing that there was trouble, kept on at full speed.

Just as O'Brien started to go into the car Daly and Sullivan jumped upon the platform and made for him, although he was facing them with a revolver. Then O'Brien fired one shot. By that time Daly and Sullivan had got out their weapons and had begun to blaze away. O'Brien pulled the trigger as fast as he could, and by the time his revolver was empty he had wounded Sullivan twice and Daly once. One of his pursuers had also shot O'Brien in the neck.

The wounds didn't end the fight. Sullivan and Daly knocked O'Brien down and battered him over the head with the butts of their revolvers until his head was covered with wounds. Meanwhile the solitary woman in the car crouched down in a corner screaming at the top of her voice, while the four men passengers broke several windows with their fists and made frantic efforts to climb out, although the car was going at full speed.

Just after the shooting began the car slackened up a bit, and the conductor dropped off the back platform and ran to the front. The motorman, Cunningham, was hanging his gong all the time, and this, with the revolver shots, started several persons running after the car, but none of them was able to catch it. The conductor and motorman decided that it would be better to keep on at full speed at least until Twentieth Street was reached, as the police station in that street is a short half block from the avenue. Not a policeman was passed in the entire run of eleven blocks.

As the car slowed up near Twentieth Street, Policeman Scheedel jumped aboard and bolted the rear door while the motorman locked the front. The three men, although weak from loss of blood, were still struggling on the floor of the car.

Cunningham kept his gong going, and Sergt. O'Neil headed his reserves from the station, and they surrounded the car. The four men passengers and the woman were taken out of the car first. They got away so quickly that the police did not get their names. They saw, however, that two of the men were bleeding from cuts on their hands.

O'Brien was insensible by this time. Sullivan and Daly were so weak that they could make no resistance. The latter had been shot through the cheek. Sullivan had received a bullet wound in the arm and another in the knee. All three fighters were taken to the New York Hospital.

O'Brien told the police that Sullivan and Daly and several other members of the gang who had run to the car wanted to kill him, but he absolutely refused to say why. Sullivan and Daly also refused to talk. Detective Sergeant McMullen said that O'Brien was a brother of "Talky" O'Brien, whose loquacity has got him into trouble with gangs on several occasions. He said that the man whose life was sought probably learned something about the Slaughter House gang, and that they determined to put him out of the way. It is believed by the police that he was lured to Thirty-first Street, which is dark now as a result of the Pennsylvania station digging, and is a good place for thugs to work in.

An examination of the car after the row showed that at least ten shots were fired. There were six bullet holes in the woodwork and four bullets were carried by the combatants.

O'Brien's head was completely covered with bandages when he was arraigned in court, but he still refused to say anything about the cause of the trouble. Daly was equally reticent. Both were held for a hearing on Wednesday.

HAZERS' PETITION SUBMITTED

Will the Columbia Faculty Now Discipline Them for Confessing Too Much?

The sophomores of Columbia University have handed to Dean Van Amringe their petition for reinstatement of the three members of the class who were suspended for hazing at the opening of the present college year. More than 150 names are appended to the petition as having taken an equal or greater part in the hazing than the suspended men. The Faculty's action on the petition is awaited with interest.

Bijur, Beck, and Brown were suspended because they confessed hazing. Now the whole class practically has done the same thing.

It is likely that the Dean's decision will be announced in a day or two. The university authorities believe that some of the men who signed the petition were exaggerating when they said they took an equal part in the hazing with the suspended men. If this proves true, the men guilty of the misstatement will be disciplined.

The promise to stop hazing if the three men are reinstated is not likely to weigh heavily, as the same promise was made last year.

CANFIELD PREPARING TO REOPEN, SAYS JEROME

District Attorney Hears That Decorators Are at Work.

CALLS CRAM MURPHY'S BOSS

Candidate Addresses Three Meetings and Is Enthusiastically Received at Each—Many Women Hear Him.

Mr. Jerome, instead of waiting for questions last night, forestalled them by telling his audiences unasked just why he had not sent Canfield to jail or locked up all the New York Central Directors or indicted any Presidents of insurance companies. His explanations seemed to strike the six or seven thousand people who heard them as satisfactory. The usual question of "Where did he get it?" was not forgotten, and was received with the usual applause. But Mr. Jerome went further.

"It might be all right, even," he said, "to be ruled by a boss—but how about the boss's boss? How about J. Sergeant Cram and his tuxedo? Murphy may have a right to his power by reason of his fight for it. But what mandate has Cram to be a leader of leaders, a boss of bosses? And he is. Has he not crammed the plug into the throat of Murphy that he cannot answer plain, ordinary questions?"

The first meeting was in a way a private and informal affair. The Hamilton Athletic Club—a social organization of the Fourth Ward—is strictly non-political. It is also for Jerome. So the members have organized a Jerome Campaign Committee that is wholly distinct from the club, except in membership, and they have opened headquarters at 49 Henry Street.

In his brief and informal speech in Henry Street, Mr. Jerome paid his compliment to "Jimmy" Osborne, saying that a more honest man was not to be found. There was not gold enough in America to buy Osborne, he said.

"But," he added, "now Jimmy Osborne is a puppet. He is a tool of the boss. He is a toy in the hands of the man against whom I am fighting. He is so by reason of his very honesty. Having got political preferment at the hands of the boss, he is too honorable a man to fling the boss aside when he is elected. And I do not want to be the servant of any boss. It is bossism I am fighting against."

When the cheering had died away which greeted his appearance in the Amsterdam Opera House, Mr. Jerome smiled and said:

"I guess it would be to the taste of the people here if I handed out a few hot ones."

And from every corner the response came:

"You bet! We're ready! Go for 'em!"

At this meeting the proportion of women was unusually great. Each time Murphy or Odell was mentioned by name the audience hissed long and angrily, and the women were particularly energetic. Mr. Jerome was in excellent voice and spirits.

Going over the Canfield case, Mr. Jerome said:

"When Canfield pleaded guilty, if he had stood trial then, I would not have had the evidence to convict him. [Applause.]

"I did not have it, and I could not get it. There are a lot of these things about the District Attorney's office that he cannot tell. You often try to suppress the evildoers by the power of bluff, and if they fall to the bluff, that is unfortunate—for them. But you'll rather stand criticism than tell. If I had not got him, where would I have been with the others? Why, every one of them would have given me a fight."

The Majestic Hall is an odd place. It has more nooks and corners and side corridors than any other public hall in town, and every inch of that sort of extra space was crowded last night as tightly as the hall itself. In the rear men stood ten deep, so close that it was impossible to raise an arm.

By winding hallways and back stairs Mr. Jerome was led to the stage, and the distance from the entrance to the stage appeared a block long. Along that whole route the people stood packed three and four deep on either side in places where they could have no hope of hearing or seeing anything after Mr. Jerome had got into the hall.

In telling of the Canfield case Mr. Jerome said:

"I have closed that place for the first time in its history; for the first time in twenty-six years, I am told. It has remained closed. It is closed still—but I hear they are redecorating the place now."

Then Mr. Jerome took up the insurance matter, explaining why he had not interfered with the work of Mr. Hughes and the legislative committee, and explaining also that any action on his part would have implied a very serious interference with the work of the committee, because such action would have closed up all sources of evidence.

"And more important than the punishing of the individuals who have done wrong," he continued, "is that the flaws should be corrected which made possible the pilfering of the property of widows and orphans. How cheap and easy it would have been for me to have butted in and indicted those men just before election, and then go staging them around and crying: 'Here I am, the great protector of your rights.' If you want me to deal with the situation as a whole and as it should be honestly dealt with, then say so on Nov. 7, and I pledge you I will do it."

Mr. Jerome told the story of the tunnel disaster next, and told it more fully than he ever did before, how he took every piece of evidence and went three times before the Grand Jury, and how he failed to persuade that body to return an indictment against any other person than the engineer.

"I am not the Grand Jury," he concluded. "Nor have I any reflections to make on that Grand Jury. They were an honest and intelligent body of men who differed in opinion from me. I wanted the Grand Central people indicted, not for causing the accident, for that was in my opinion caused by the engineer, but for maintaining a railroad with a defective system of signals. But the Grand Jury honestly differed in judgment on the facts, and they would not indict."

"How much did they get for differing?" cried a man in the rear of the hall.

"Nothing, my friend," Mr. Jerome rejoined quickly. "There are a lot of crooks in the world, but everybody is not crooked. Where there is one crook, there are a hundred honest men."

Then the meeting cheered again.

GOV. FOLK FIGHTS FIRE.

Leads Firemen and Saves Executive Mansion—His Guests Escape.

Special to The New York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 23.—The Missouri Executive Mansion narrowly escaped destruction by fire at 3 o'clock this morning, and Gov. Folk and his guests were for a time in danger of their lives because the density of the smoke made it very difficult for them to find their way out.

Gov. Folk and his household were aroused by the smell of smoke, which soon grew so thick as to be almost stifling. The Governor immediately rushed to the telephone and summoned the Fire Department, and then, donning a rubber coat, proceeded to fight the fire with such means as he had at hand. As soon as the fire company arrived he directed all its operations in person, and the members of the company followed his leadership implicitly.

The house was filled with dense smoke, and the only flames visible were near the ceiling of the main hall above the mantel. The stream was turned on there, but did not reach the source of the trouble, and the Governor at once summoned a squad up the stairs through the blinding smoke and directed them to chop a hole in the middle of the floor. Immediately the flames shot upward, and proved that the Governor had diagnosed the situation correctly. A stream was turned on at this place, and the fire was soon put out. Gov. Folk was perfectly cool and collected during the whole excitement.

The fire was caused by a defective flue, and the damage is estimated at about $15,000. The mansion had been newly furnished throughout.

Among the guests of Mrs. Folk in the mansion was Mrs. W. H. Gilbert of New York. The Governor and his wife were obliged to take up their abode in a hotel to-day.

KILLORAN CAUGHT IN VIENNA.

Ludlow Street Jail Breaker Robs Depositor at Bank Window.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 23.—The Federal authorities here to-day received a letter from the Austrian Consul at New York informing them that Joseph Killoran was under arrest at Vienna, and asking them to send identification papers. Killoran, it is charged, stationed himself in front of a bank in Vienna. When a customer carrying £20,000 for deposit entered the bank Killoran followed.

While the depositor was standing in front of the teller's window, it is alleged, Killoran seized the money and fled. He was soon arrested, and gave his name as James Howard.

Killoran, with Sid Yennie, Harry Russell, Charles Allen, and George Carson, robbed the Springfield Post Office at noon one day in 1895 of $5,000 in stamps and the wedding silverware of Harry H. Devereaux and Postmaster Ridgely's daughter. They were arrested in New York. Killoran, Allen, and Russell escaped from Ludlow Street Jail, but were recaptured and served terms in Chester, Ill., penitentiary.

For many a day after July 4, 1895, when Killoran, Allen, and Russell practically walked out of the antiquated Ludlow Street Jail, holding the keepers at bay with briar pipes that were mistaken for revolvers, the laugh on Sheriff Tamsen's "Der chail iss ould" traveled about the country. Killoran was the leader of the gang, and had undergone imprisonment repeatedly, but often had broken jail.

At the Central Office last night some astonishment was expressed that Killoran should be at large in Vienna. The officer in charge of the Detective Bureau said it was his impression that Killoran was "doing time" somewhere.

FIRE SCARE AT ALMSHOUSE.

Blaze in Wooden Shanty on Blackwell's Island Alarms Patients.

Several hundred inmates of the Almshouse and the City Hospital on Blackwell's Island got a bad scare late last night when a tailor's shop in a one-story frame structure about 150 yards from the buildings caught fire, sending smoke, flames, and sparks into the air.

All the inmates of the Almshouse and the hospital were asleep when the fire started. An attendant saw the flames on the roof of the wooden building between the two institutions, and quickly gave the alarm. Some excited person, however, shouted "Fire!" and immediately there were scenes of wild excitement in the wards.

Engine Company No. 49, which is stationed on the island, got to work on the blaze. The building, being of highly inflammable material, was burned to the ground.

Nurses, orderlies, and attendants were rushing to and fro, quieting the inmates and telling them that there was no danger. The aged persons in the almshouse got out of bed, despite the protests of the nurses, and insisted upon going to the windows to see the fire.

In the hospital wards, however, were many bed-ridden patients, who were filled with terror at seeing the red glow on the windows. Nurses and orderlies made light of it as best they could, and the patients who were able to move about were allowed to go to the windows so that they could be convinced.

SECOND PIRATE SLOOP HELD.

Newport Police Find the Bessie's Owner—Dynamite on the Doroda.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 23.—The county authorities who, on Saturday seized the pirate sloop Doroda, now have the sloop Bessie, which approached the Doroda and tried to communicate with it, ignorant of the fact that the Doroda was in possession of the authorities. On sight of the police those on board of the Bessie ran her ashore and escaped. Neither they nor any members of the Doroda's crew have been caught.

On board the Bessie, as on the Doroda, a large quantity of goods, believed to be stolen property, was found. A large supply of dynamite and a large bottle of chloroform were on the Doroda. The Bessie answers the description of a sloop stolen from C. R. Burlingame of Providence.

The Doroda was in Newport harbor two weeks ago Saturday and was overhauled by her crew. It was her first appearance in these waters, but her crew was recognized by men along the shore and careful watch was kept. Nothing was stolen here. Two naphtha launches owned by Daniel R. Case and Robert J. McKay of Bristol were robbed of the engines, tools, boat furniture, and brass and other metal fittings last Friday.

MISS ROOSEVELT LANDS; TRAIN OFF FOR RECORD

Leaves Fastest Pacific Steamer —New York in 62½ Hours.

GIFTS GO ON TO WASHINGTON

She Is Annoyed by Stories Printed in America—Harriman Says the East Is Awakening.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—After a record voyage from Yokohama Miss Alice Roosevelt hurried past San Francisco today to take a special train provided by E. H. Harriman, which will speed to New York with the object of making a transcontinental record that will stand for many years.

Miss Roosevelt, Mr. Harriman, and others arrived on the Pacific Mail liner Siberia, which had made the voyage from Yokohama in 10 days 10 hours and 28 minutes.

The fastest previous trip between the two places had been made by her sister ship, the Korea, in 10 days 11 hours and 5 minutes. The Siberia's time is 28 minutes more than that of the Empress of India's record from the Orient to Puget Sound, but the distance covered was about 275 miles greater.

Mr. Harriman was greatly pleased by the successful trip. He had bet $2,000 with Robert Goelet of New York that the steamer would beat the record. Half of his winnings he gave to the engineers and firemen of the vessel, and the other half he divided among the officers and crew.

Although it had been expected that Miss Roosevelt would spend a few days in and around San Francisco, all the previous plans were changed during the voyage, and neither her party nor that of Mr. Harriman landed here. They were transferred from the Siberia to the tug Arab and taken direct to Oakland, whence they left at 3 o'clock this afternoon over the Ogden route of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

A trip of 3,234 miles in 62½ hours is the task set for the trainmen. The special of seven cars will maintain an average speed of fifty miles an hour over the 2,334 miles of track between San Francisco and Chicago. It will be transferred to the Lake Shore tracks at the Sixteenth Street yards here forty-eight hours from the time it leaves the station at San Francisco. In order to make this run it must average from Cheyenne to Omaha nearly ninety miles an hour to make up time lost going over the Sierra Nevada Mountains and the Rocky Mountain range.

The Union Pacific and Southern Pacific are single track roads, and, to insure safety, the track is ordered cleared two hours ahead of the special. As a further precaution a pilot engine will precede the train.

Accompanying Mr. Harriman is J. Kruttschnett, director of maintenance and operation, who has personally attended to the arrangements for this trip, and J. B. Stubbs, manager of the Harriman roads. The Chicago officials were instructed to arrange with the Northwestern to bring the train from Omaha to Chicago on an unusually fast schedule, and also with the Lake Shore to haul the train to Buffalo. The train will go over the line of the Erie from Buffalo to Arden, near New York City.

The Lake Shore will attempt a schedule between Chicago and Buffalo faster than that of the "Twentieth Century," if possible, by an hour.

Miss Roosevelt looked as ddie and as full of spirits as when she left here several months ago with Secretary Taft. Homage she has received in the Orient apparently had not turned her head. She was chaperoned by Mrs. Newlands and was closely attended by Congressman Nicholas Longworth. Both she and Longworth laughingly declined to discuss their reported engagement, but she called him "Nick."

Miss Roosevelt expressed delight at getting back to America.

"You may say for me," she said, "I am more than ever convinced there is no country like our own. The things that I have seen on this trip have been interesting, of course, and instructive as well. We everywhere had every attention and courtesy, and not a single disagreeable incident marred our pleasure.

"The gifts I received in the various places we visited I accepted as a compliment to my country and not in the nature of a personal tribute. Please deny for me, however, that they represent any such value or are of the fabulous character reported in the newspapers.

"There is no foundation for the absurd story that I took a dive into a tank on board of ship with all my ordinary clothing on, as a result of a dare from Congressman Longworth. Neither did I receive an offer of marriage from the Sultan of Sulu. The circulation of such nonsensical stories is the only part of my trip that I have to regret."

Miss Roosevelt's presents were packed in eight large cases and went through from Yokohama in bond to Washington. Her personal belongings, which were in several trunks, the Collector of the Port wished to pass without examination, but this she refused, saying she wished to be treated like any other American girl. Her things were examined, but none were dutiable.

Mr. Harriman said: "Our visit to the Orient has been one not only of much pleasure to us all, but interesting and instructive. Japan is working out her own destiny. Her rulers are intelligent and alive to the interests of Japan. China is beginning to wake up, and will probably open herself. This awakening has been brought about by the development of railroads constructed during the last six or seven years.

"Korea is still a problem, and her destiny will probably be worked out by the aid of Japan. My opinion is that the Japanese are the dominant factor in the Orient, and that there will be large future development, though not immediate."

Among the passengers on the Siberia were Senator Newlands of Nevada and wife, Senator Warren of Wyoming, Representative Longworth of Ohio; Brig. Gen. H. T. Allen, Chief of the Philippine Constabulary; R. P. Schwerin, Vice President and General Manager of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and Miss Mabel Boardman and Miss Amy McMillan of Washington, D. C., the latter traveling companions of Miss Roosevelt.

JUST CALLED HIM THEODORE.

President's Mother's Bridesmaid Also Patted Him on the Shoulder.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 23.—Calling him Theodore and patting him on the shoulder, Mrs. W. E. Baker received President Roosevelt last Friday in Barrington Hall, her home at Roswell.

Mrs. Baker was bridesmaid when the President's mother was married. She had been invited to a reception at the old Bulloch home, but said that the President must come to her. Secretary Loeb explained that this could not be, as it was contrary to all precedent for a President to visit private homes during a tour. The President missed Mrs. Baker at the Bulloch home, and asked for her. Mr. Loeb told of her refusal to attend a public reception, and the President said he must see his mother's bridesmaid, precedent or no precedent.

When he entered the old home with Mrs. Roosevelt he found Mrs. Baker seated, dressed in black frilled with white lace about the collar and cuffs. She wore a lace cap, and was the picture of contentment.

"And this is Theodore," she said, extending her hand. "I am so glad to see you, Theodore."

Then patting the President on the shoulder, she told him how his mother looked when she was married.

10 TO 3 ON McCLELLAN.

Odds Drop from 10 to 1—Even Money on Jerome.

The odds on McClellan, which were 10 to 1 a few days ago, dropped to 10 to 3 yesterday on the Broad Street curb. J. J. Judge put up $300 against $1,000 of Steele & Dekay's that McClellan would be defeated. The Hearst campaign, say the brokers, has driven down the odds on McClellan. Bettors who take the short end of the wagers calculate that the present Mayor will lose enough votes to Hearst to give the election to Ivins, and they are getting bolder every day.

"It looks to me as if the odds on McClellan would go still lower," said Judge to a TIMES reporter yesterday. "Of course, you never can tell, but things point that way now. The Hearst boom is responsible for the change of odds."

Frank Lawrence bet $200 even that Hearst would get 125,000 votes. There were several bets on McClellan at 4 to 1.

Late last night an even bet of $5,000 on Jerome's election was being negotiated. J. J. Judge was ready to place that sum against Jerome, and Harry Sadler threatened to bet the other way. The final arrangements to place this bet will probably be made to-day. The prevailing odds on the District Attorneyship contest are 2 to 1 against Jerome.

LAWYERS OUT FOR JEROME.

Joseph H. Choate Heads List of Those Who Appeal for His Re-election.

Eighteen prominent members of the New York bar, among them four ex-Presidents of the Bar Association, have organized for the purpose of working for the re-election of District Attorney Jerome. This new organization yesterday issued the following circular:

We, the undersigned, members of the New York Bar, urge our fellow-citizens, without regard to party, to vote for William Travers Jerome for District Attorney, because he has proved himself an able and successful prosecutor and an official of unswerving integrity, who has performed the duties of his high office without fear or favor and solely in the public interest.

Attached to this circular, of which Mr. Jerome and his campaign managers knew nothing in advance, were these signatures:

Joseph H. Choate, William G. Choate, Joseph Larocque, John E. Parsons, Cephas Brainerd, William B. Hornblower, William N. Cohen, Edward Mitchell, Henry E. Howland, Charles E. Hughes, Robert W. De Forest, B. Aymar Sands, Paul D. Cravath, Horace Russell, Henry W. Taft, Lawrence E. Sexton, Lucien Oudin, and Charles C. Burlingham.

SUICIDE AT SON'S BIER.

Father Kills Himself at Side of Boy Who Ended His Life.

Otto Schultz, little more than a boy, committed suicide Friday afternoon as the result of an unfortunate love affair. He was to have been buried yesterday afternoon from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schultz, of 232 Wyckoff Street, Williamsburg. The funeral service was about to begin. With his arm about the waist of his wife, Herman Schultz, the father, approached the coffin and kissed Otto's lips.

"I will kiss him again soon," said the father. "It will be a kiss of greeting."

He placed his left arm again about the weeping wife and mother and walked away from the coffin with her. He had taken but a few steps when, with a rapid movement, he pulled a pistol from his right hip pocket, placed it to his temple and pulled the trigger.

The little parlor in which the coffin rested was crowded with friends of the family. The minister was at the side of the bier. Then the father sank to the floor dead. Those at the funeral were very much frightened, and all of them soon left.

There had not been room enough in the parlor for those who wished to attend the funeral, and there was a crowd about the door. The shot was plainly heard in the street. A policeman was near by, and, pushing his way through, entered the parlor. He found Schultz dead on the floor beside his son's coffin, and Mrs. Schultz insensible.

Through all the excitement the minister and the undertaker retained their presence of mind. They lifted Mrs. Schultz to a sofa and attempted to revive her. Finding this impossible, they carried her to her room. Her condition last night was serious.

Mr. Schultz's suicide made necessary the postponement of the funeral of the son. Father and son will be buried in the same grave Thursday.

GOT A JOB BY WIRELESS.

Marconi Operator on Tank Steamer Drake Accepted It the Same Way.

A novel notification of appointment to a Federal position and its acceptance was announced by Postmaster Willcox's secretary yesterday.

On the Standard Oil steamer Drake, which left Port Arthur last week, was a Marconi operator, who had recently passed a United States civil service examination for a position as Post Office clerk. Three days ago, the applicant's brother, in Brooklyn, received a notice from the General Post Office that the young man had been appointed.

When the Drake was two days out at sea from New York, the brother forwarded the notice through the Marconi operators. Yesterday afternoon the reply came by wireless, stating that the recently appointed clerk would report for duty as soon as the Drake docked.

It is a violation of civil service rules to give out the name of an appointee, so the name of the young man was withheld.

CAPTURED WARSHIPS IN JAPAN'S REVIEW

Fleet of 308 Vessels Aligned for the Mikado's Inspection.

HAD TOGO BY HIS SIDE

Officers of British and American Fighting Craft Received in Audience—Proud Day for Nippon.

TOKIO, Oct. 23.—The naval review today passed off without the slightest hitch. It was a most impressive sight, not, however, on account of the class and, number of the ships, but as a conglomeration of fighting craft fresh from the war and crowned with victories of unprecedented magnitude.

Three hundred and eight warships, including the former Russian battleships Peresviet, (renamed by the Japanese the Sagami,) Poltava, (Tango,) Nicolai I., (Iki,) the ironclads General Admiral Apraxine, (Okinoshima,) and Admiral Senlavin, (Minoshima,) twelve auxiliary cruisers, including three captured vessels; twenty-eight torpedo boat destroyers, including the captured Bedovi and Ryeshiteini; seventy-seven torpedo boats, and five submarine boats were drawn up in six lines.

The Emperor on board the armored cruiser Asama, led by the protected cruiser Yaeyama and escorted by the gunboats Tatsuta, Chihaya, and Manshu, passed along the front of the first line, which was headed by the battleship Shikishima, Admiral Togo's flagship. When the Nicolai I., which was at the end of the line, was reached the cruiser Assma headed due north, and then in a westerly direction, entering between the second and third lines, and afterward resumed her original position. During this manoeuvre Admiral Togo was at the Emperor's side.

The Emperor then received in audience on board the Asama Admiral Noel and the Captains of the British and American warships present, (the battleship Wisconsin and the cruiser Cincinnati.)

Popular enthusiasm was aroused to the highest pitch. Besides the thousands who witnessed the naval pageant from all sorts of large and small vessels in the bay, all the available points of vantage along the shore were densely covered with eager spectators.

The spectacle caused much joy and satisfaction among the Japanese, especially in the breasts of those who recalled that only forty years have elapsed since at that very spot no warships except those of foreign powers had ever floated. It is believed that the review will give a most powerful stimulus to national education.

At the conclusion of the review the Emperor returned to Tokio.

MIGHTY ARMY FACED JAPANESE

Attaches Say Russia Had Considerably Over 1,000,000 Men.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 23.—According to the military attachés who recently returned from the front, Russia had considerably in excess of a million soldiers in the Far East when peace was declared. About 700,000 men faced the Japanese below the Sungari River in addition to a considerable army held in reserve at Harbin. The remainder of this force was partly at Vladivostok and partly scattered through the Province of Primorsk as far south as the Tumen River.

The attachés say that Lieut. Gen. Linevitch had brought his army to a high state of efficiency. They were especially impressed by the Russian common soldier, whom, if properly led, they believed a match for any in the world.

BARRED BY NEW HAVEN ROAD.

Independent Oil Men Say They Cannot Get a Through Joint Rate.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—It is utterly impossible for independent concerns to get a joint through rate on petroleum or its products over railroads operating with the New York, New Haven and Hartford, according to testimony offered by the Fred C. Clark Company of this city and the Waverly Oil Company of Pittsburg at the hearing before representatives of the Inter-State Commerce Commission in this city to-day. The effect of this condition, the complainants assert, is to prevent competition with the Standard Oil Company in the territory covered by the New Haven Road.

President Roosevelt will use the information gathered at the hearing as part of the basis for his rate regulation message to Congress. W. E. Wall, President of the Clark Company, testified that all his concern wanted was a chance to do business in that district, which abounds in manufacturing plants, and is known to be one of the most profitable in the country for the petroleum trade. H. H. Willock of the Waverly Company testified that Division Freight Agents of the Pennsylvania at Pittsburg would not furnish a through rate, and never would furnish information as to why the rate could not be extended. The hearing will be resumed on Nov. 8 here. Chairman Prouty objected to removal to New York, and said the case ought to be argued before the whole commission at Washington, as it was "an important case, involving vital principles."

KING EDWARD'S WISH.

Would Like to See New York Museum —Sir Purdon's Farewell.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Sir Purdon Clarke, the new Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, who sails for New York on the White Star steamship Cedric on Wednesday, bade farewell to King Edward this morning. His Majesty expressed deep interest in Sir Purdon's mission to New York, and said he wished he could see the Metropolitan Museum of Art when Sir Purdon's ideas were executed.

The new Director lunched with Ambassador Reid at Dorchester House to-day and arranged with Mr. Reid to act as Chairman of the Purchasing Committee, which probably will be formed here.

The new Director to-day completed the purchase for the Museum of two small panel paintings of saints by Crevelli, costing $10,000, which will be shipped to America shortly. Sir Purdon takes with him several fine plaster reproductions and also a collection of antique furniture and wood carving, including an old German cabinet, and some French armor and examples of Chippendale work.

Lady Clarke will remain in England until the Spring.

CAPT. DOOLEY THREATENED.

Also Some Suggestions for the Tenderloin Captain.

"This comes of being Captain in the Tenderloin," observed Capt. Dooley of the West Thirtieth Street Station last night with a sigh. He held in his hand a postal card that bore the pictures of two blinking owls and was inscribed:

"Say, Cap, get wise to your job and stop kiddin'."

Then Capt. Dooley produced several threatening letters. Some of them said that he would lose his life if he didn't stop his anti-vice campaign. One said:

"Go back to your farm, you farmer, and get next to yourself."

"Leave us alone in the Tenderloin or we'll fix your business," said another

There were no arrests of women for vagrancy last night up to 12 o'clock. There were about forty on Friday night, when the Dooley curfew law went into effect.

SAVED THE EXPRESS.

Section Hand Closed Open Switch Just in Time.

Special to The New York Times.

BAYPORT, L. I., Oct. 23.—The bravery and fleetness of foot of a section hand prevented the wrecking of the Long Island City express train, which passes this point at noon. Just as the train appeared he discovered that the switch was open, and while it seemed impossible to reach it before the engine and cars had been hurled from the track, a run at top speed carried him to the spot just in time. Then, blinded with dust and almost drawn from his feet by the suction he threw the lever over and prevented the threatened accident.

It is expected that the railroad company will reward the employe whose prompt action probably averted serious loss of life.

MRS. RICE'S BACK TAXES.

Author Admits She Failed to Give Correct Accounting of Property.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 23.—Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice, who four years ago sprang into prominence through the medium of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," appeared in the County Court to-day and admitted that she had failed to give a correct accounting of personalty amounting to $26,000 that is subject to taxation. This has been going on since 1903.

Suit had been initiated against the author by Revenue Agent A. J. Bisot, whose special duty it is to look after back taxes.

BISHOP CRANSTON TO MARRY.

Miss Lucie Mason Parker of Cincinnati His Bride-to-be.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Word has been received here of the approaching marriage of Bishop Earl Cranston of this city and Miss Lucie Mason Parker of Cincinnati, the ceremony to take place on Nov. 15 in the home of William C. Heron in Cincinnati.

Bishop Cranston has been stationed in Washington for less than a year. He is 65 years of age. The marriage of his daughter, Miss Ethel Cranston, to Dr. G. Lane Taneyhill, Jr., of Baltimore was an event of the early Spring season.

The bride-elect is a middle-aged woman of literary gifts and has been a teacher for some years in an Eastern college.

886 KILLED; 13,783 INJURED.

Year's Record of Accidents on American Railroads—Damage $2,410,671.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—In the twelve months ended on June 30, 1905, 886 persons were killed and 13,783 injured in railroad accidents in this country, according to the report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission issued to-day. Comparison with 1904 shows an increase of 11 killed and 4,123 injured.

The number of employes killed shows a decrease of 106. There were 1,231 collisions and 1,535 derailments, of which 163 collisions and 168 derailments affected passenger trains. The damage to railroad property was $2,410,671.

144,145 MILES OF SUN SPOTS.

Two Now Growing to be Largsat Ever Seen, Says Father Rickard.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 23.—The Rev. Father Joseph Rickard, S. J., Santa Clara College astronomer, announced last night the result of his observations of a group of sun spots, noticed several weeks ago. The length of the entire group, he calculates, is 144,145 miles, with a width of 115,532 miles.

Increased solar activity makes it probable that two new spots, first noticed last Friday, will exceed in size any hitherto observed.

IT WASN'T MR. HEARST.

Nor Was the Other Mineola Auto Prisoner Mr. McAdoo.

Some wicked campaign liar scorched in his automobile on the Jericho Turnpike on Sunday, was arrested, and paid a fine of $15 in Mineola yesterday under the name of W. R. Hearst. From Mineola yesterday there also came a story that an automobile in which Police Commissioner McAdoo was riding had been stopped by a Deputy Sheriff near Mineola and his chauffeur arrested.

Mr. Hearst last night denied that he was the person who had been arrested and fined. He said he had not been out of his home in New York all day Sunday.

Mr. McAdoo was indignant in referring to the dispatch concerning his alleged hold-up. He said:

"It is false. I haven't been on Long Island for three weeks."

MAY BE LOST WITH 18 MEN.

Steamer Kaliyuga Believed to Have Sunk in Lake Huron.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 23.—The freight steamer Kaliyuga, belonging to the St. Clair Steamship Company, is believed to have gone down in Lake Huron with her crew of eighteen men. While all hope has not been abandoned, no trace of her can be found, and it is thought that she succumbed to the gale that swept the lake Thursday and Friday nights.

The Kaliyuga, with Capt. F. L. Tonkin of Painesville, Ohio, in command, left Marquette several days ago with ore. The last heard of her was when she passed Sault Ste. Marie.

MOBILE CROWDS WILD OVER THE PRESIDENT

Thousands Rush His Speeding Carriage to Shake His Hand.

RECEIVES A HANDSOME MEDAL

He Speaks of the Panama Canal and on the Proper Training of Children.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 23.—"In all of my receptions, the one accorded me this afternoon in your city was the grandest of all." These were the words of President Theodore Roosevelt as his special train left here to-night at 6:30 o'clock for Tuskegee, Ala.

The President fairly captured the people of this city. After he had made his address, paying tribute to the veterans and volunteer soldiers who acted as his escort, en route to the station thousands of people got to his carriage and shook his hand despite the effort of the Secret Service men to keep them away.

Capt. John F. Cothran, in behalf of the Confederate veterans, told the President he had done more than any other man to reunite all factions. On every side was heard the expression, "If Roosevelt were to run again to-morrow the South would give him a wonderful majority."

Cheering Multitude in Streets.

The President's train arrived at the Union Station at 4:27 P. M. There had been a general closing of all business houses, and along the route of the procession from the station to the stand on Bienville Square residences and stores were covered with decorations of lights and bunting.

The route lay on Government Street, one of the most noted drives in the South, for ten blocks, passing the homes of some of Mobile's most influential citizens, her chief educational institution, and one of her historic churches. The sidewalks and streets were packed with cheering humanity, and at McGill Institute, Barton Academy, and one or two other points hundreds of school children were massed, singing National songs.

The procession was headed by a platoon of police, followed by Col. R. B. Dumont of the First Regiment Alabama National Guard and his staff, with the Mobile Battalion following. Two companies of artillery from Fort Morgan came next, and then the cadets of the University Military School. Behind the boys were Confederate veterans as a guard of honor to the President, in whose carriage were seated Judge Jules Alford, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements; Mayor P. J. Lyons, and Col. Edward Lafayette Russell.

A stand had been erected in Bienville Square, and it was surrounded by 40,000 citizens. The President reached the stand at 5 o'clock and was received by a committee of 500 citizens. His seat was in an elevated dais in a chair built by the students of a technical school in Japan. Back of it was an enormous stuffed bear, eight feet in height, bearing in its mouth a floral independence bell, and above its head a white dove holding a streamer, on which was the inscription "Blessed is the peacemaker."

The bear was killed in a hunting expedition by his Majesty Alexander II. of Russia in 1857, according to the inscription on a bronze plate on the base of the mounting, and was presented by Czar Alexander to "The Duke of Osums, Comte l'Enfantando, Duke de Buenevito, and l'Arcos Prince d'Ebodle." The house of Ebodle became extinct in the eighties, and the effects in the palace of the Prince were disposed of at public sale. The bear was purchased by Hannis Taylor, then Minister of the United States at Madrid.

Semmes's Son Presents Medal.

Judge Oliver J. Semmes, son of the Confederate Admiral, Michael Semmes, then presented to the President and pinned on the lapel of his coat a handsome souvenir badge as the gift of the people of Mobile. Judge Semmes said:

"Mr. President: I ask your attention for a moment. I have been delegated by the people of Mobile to present to you this token, a symbol of their fealty as citizens of the United States. Though of itself of little intrinsic value, yet in sentiment it represents the loyalty, the worth, and the honor of as brave, chivalric, and noble a people as is to be found on the face of God's green earth.

"We, the proud citizens of a proud republic feel and believe that you, as the head of that republic, will by your broad views and judicious actions, so unite in bonds of friendship all sections of our loved country, that Americans will advance till they become the foremost of nations and may without misgiving defy a world in arms. Should this awful necessity ever arise, then the sons of the South will be found a mighty armed camp.

"Take this little reminder, and when you look upon it, amid your arduous and multifarious duties, feel and know that the people of Mobile have buried the past and look without fear to the future, recognizing that you, as is shown by your later utterances, are the President of the North, South, our whole country. They regard you as a broad-minded American, and as such offer you this badge, its pendant a magnolia blossom, pure and spotless, typical of the womanhood and manhood of our Southland, and peculiarly appropriate as you are half Southern."

Judge Alford, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, then introduced the President, who was briefly welcomed by Mayor P. J. Lyons, who paid high tribute to him as a man, statesman, and patriot. The formal welcome was delivered by Col. Edward Lafayette Russell.

"Your coming among us has been a source of inspiration to our people, who are familiar with your record as a soldier and a citizen," he said. "Your wise statesmanship, coupled with your public acts and public declarations, has given them confidence in your sincerity of purpose and patriotism.

"Since you have been President you have demonstrated by your administration of our Federal affairs that you are loyal and devoted to our free institutions, coined out of the blood, sacrifice, and treasure of our ancestors. Such is the faith of our people in you as a patriot that they believe you would cheerfully surrender your life rather than endanger the sacred trust that has been confided to your patriotic keeping."

The President's Speech.

President Roosevelt was cheered as he arose to speak. He said:

"I cannot sufficiently express my appreciation of the magnificent greeting that you have given me to-day. The man would be but a poor American who could meet you here, my fellow-citizens, without being stirred and feeling that he must even more than before strive to do all that in him lies for our common country. I know that the rest of you will not grudge my saying that most of all I am touched by the sight of men who wore the gray in the great parading here to-day.

"I have just been presented by Judge Semmes with a beautiful badge. I passed by the statue of Admiral Semmes as we drove up hither. Admiral Semmes had under him on the Alabama one of my uncles, and it was another uncle who built the Alabama. The Judge's sister, the Admiral's daughter, is the wife of that distinguished ex-Confederate who by his rule as Governor of the Philippines has held aloft the record of American rule for integrity, efficiency, and firmness.

"The last time I came through this beautiful, historical city of yours I was going with my own regiment to the Spanish war, and in that regiment I think there were more men whose fathers wore the gray than there were men whose fathers wore the blue. But they marched in that spirit symbolized by your marching to-day, carrying the United States flag, for they recognized but one spirit of emulation, the emulation to strive which could do most for the flag of our common country.

"In speaking before the citizens of this great seaport of the Gulf, I naturally wish to say a word about the Panama Canal. I hold that as a matter of public policy whatever helps part of our country helps the whole. And I did my best to bring about the construction of the canal in the interests of all our people. But if there was any one section to be most benefited by it, it is the section that includes the Gulf States.

Favored a Nicaragua Canal.

"Originally I had been for the Nicaraguan Canal, but when Congress acted I abided by the decision of Congress. It became evident that we should either have no canal or the Panama Canal, and I am for a canal. If we had not acted as we have, all chance of building that canal would have vanished for half a century to come, and as it is we are now assured of having that canal within a comparatively short time.

"Gentlemen, I want to warn you not to be misled by interested clamor. Every man who had to do with bringing about the construction of the canal knows that for decades it was opposed, and successfully opposed, by great commercial interests which did not wish to see it completed, and did not wish to see a canal speedily dug through the isthmus and communication between the Atlantic and Pacific speedily established.

"It seems to me evident from certain things I see in a portion of the daily press that those causes are still active and that they are going to try to bring up the issue with the hope of putting off for ten or fifteen years or over the digging of that canal.

"Their weapons have been and are every form of misrepresentation, and, gentlemen, they will fail. You need not have the slightest alarm. Uncle Sam has started to dig that canal, and it will be dug and soon. The people who are largely by the circulation of false rumors and by direct misstatement seeking to create confusion, such as will defer the building of the canal, will be disappointed.

"We have as a people the right to feel genuine satisfaction with the progress that has been made. Let me point out something of which you here will appreciate the significance, the sanitation of the Isthmus. Do you remember that a couple of years ago men said you could not dig that canal because yellow fever was always epidemic there? We are digging it and with a cleaner bill of mortality than the Isthmus has ever known before.

"I am happy to be able to tell you from information received this very day, I find that those who have just returned from the Isthmus are not only pleased, but astonished at the excellent trim in which the project is. It is going on well, and it will go on even better in the future.

"Now, of all the things said about me to-day, in the more than kind, in the overkind, allusions to me, perhaps I was specially pleased by what Col. Russell said as to my attitude toward crooked public servants. I will take advice about appointing men, but if I find they are crooked I do not take any advice at all about removing them. We have Scriptural authority for saying that offenses must come and the Good Book says, Woe to them through whom they come.

"I cannot guarantee, and no human being can, that there will not be an occasional man of an improper kind appointed or an occasional well-meaning man who after being appointed goes wrong. But I can say that every effort within the power of the Government will oe made t hunt such a man out of the public service and to punish him to the follest extent of the law.

"Here in this seaboard city I want to say another word, and that is about the United States Navy. Again, Judge Semmes, in passing by the monument of your illustrious father I felt the thrill of pride that all Americans must feel that the names of their combatants in that famous ship duel are commemorated in the names of the Kearsarge and Alabama in the United States Navy now, and that if ever they have to go into action they go into action side by side, manned by Americans against a common foe.

"I know that an audience composed as this audience is, of men who either themselves fought or whose fathers fought in the civil war, appreciate to the full the sound National policy (if I may use the vernacular) of never bluffing unless you mean to make good.

"We undertook to build the canal because we said that owing to our position and interest and stand we were the only Nation that could or should do it. That means that we have got to protect it and police it ourselves. We do not ask anybody else to help us do the work we have allotted to ourselves. We must therefore bring up and keep our navy to the highest point of efficiency.

"We can afford o have a small army, although we must insist upon its being kept up to the highest pitch of efficiency. That, I am glad to say, our regular army in its individual unit has attained. But in the event of war—a war which I hope will never come—the American people in the future as in the past must on land rely mainly on its volunteer soldiers. But while it is a comparatively simple task to turn a man of the proper character, physique, and training into a good soldier, you cannot improvise the battleship or even the crew of a battleship. At sea the battle has to be fought with the ships and the crews that have been prepared before the war begins.

"We wish to profit by the lesson of our own history in seeing that our navy is always kept adequate to our needs. It is not necessary to have a very large navy, but it is necessary that ship for ship it should be just a little the most efficient navy in the world.

"In the battle the shots that count are the shots that hit. There are plenty of gallant fellows—we saw them among the Spaniards—who will go down with their ships.

"That is all right. If there is nothing else to be done, go down with the ships rather than surrender. But try to make the other fellow's ship go down first.

"I want our people to feel that in assuming to dig the Isthmian canal; in assuming the position we have assumed as regards this western hemisphere and in the Oriental seas, we bind ourselves to keep our navy at such a point of efficiency that there shall be no chance of humiliation at the hands of any foreign foe."

Cheered as Train Sped By.

At many of the little stations through which President Roosevelt's special train passed this morning people were gathered, and they cheered and waved their flags as the special sped by, en route to Mobile. Here and there along the railroad farmhouses displayed flags.

At Troy the students of the Normal School were grouped alongside the track and greeted the President with cheers. He appeared on the rear platform of his car and bowed in acknowledgment.

The train stopped at Fomaton for a few minutes, and the President spoke briefly from the rear platform of his car, saying:

"I wish to thank you most heartily for coming to greet me to-day. The last time I came through your great and beautiful State I was with my regiment on the way to the Spanish war. In that regiment I had more men whose fathers had worn the gray than I had whose fathers had worn the blue; but they united in the generous rivalry to know no difference and in the emulation of seeing whether or not each could do all that was in him for the flag of our common country.

"Think how fortunate we are as a people that whereas most great wars leave memories of rancor and bitterness to sunder combatants, we now have the right of Americans all over the country to challenge, as part of the glory of all Americans, all that was done alike by the ex-Union and ex-Confederate men, provided only that man did all that in him lay; acted as he should act in the times that tried men's souls.

"There are surely here in the audience men who are veterans of the civil war, and they have given us a lesson not merely by what they did in war, but by what they did in peace. The same spirit that made them valiant in battle made them when they came home from battle take up the strings of their lives where they had dropped them when the appeals to arms came, and do their best in walks of peace.

"It is because of that quality that we as a people have such a right to glory in the progress made in our land.

"In greeting the people, in greeting the veterans of the civil war, I now want to get down to the other end of the line and say just a word about the children. Children of to-day are going to decide what our country shall be in the immediate future, and accordingly as they are brought up well or ill our country will go forward or back in the years that are now open. While much can be done by schools, do not forget that most of all must be done in the home itself.

"There is nothing unusual, nothing out of the way, demanded in making a good citizen. What we need is not genius, not brilliancy, but the ordinary, commonplace virtues that every man or woman can have if only he or she will.

"The man who is decent in his home relations, who is kind to those dependent upon him, who is a good husband, father, and son, is a good citizen, and an even better citizen is his wife. What we need in the average man in his relation to the State is that he shall have the three qualities—courage, honesty, and common sense."

At Montgomery the President made a short address of greeting from the rear platform of his car and was heartily cheered.

NEW ORLEANS MAKING READY.

Fever Almost Stamped Out—Mississipians to Visit City.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23.—The rapid decline of yellow fever was further manifested to-day with the low record of four new cases and the absence of deaths. Taken in connection with the amelioration of quarantine conditions over many parts of the South, it has been a distinct incentive to the enthusiasm with which preparations are making for the forthcoming visit of the President.

Dr. White, who has been in charge of the Federal forces since Aug. 8, to-day said the end of yellow fever was in sight. As a result of the lifting of the Mississippi State quarantine and the modification of the Texas quarantine, officers of railroads were to-day busily engaged in communication with the Mayors and Health Officers of towns through which their lines run with a view to the restoration of all local trains.

Reports from various parts of Louisiana and Mississippi to-day indicate heavy travel on Wednesday and Thursday in anticipation of President Roosevelt's visit to New Orleans. The President will traverse Mississippi at night, and there will be no opportunity for the people of that State to see him unless they come here.

PRESIDENT AND QUARANTINE.

Tells Official He Wants Regulations Applied to Him.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 23.—W. R. Brassell, Secretary of the Alabama Board of Health, boarded the special train of President Roosevelt at Brinson, Ga., and upon affidavit of Surgeon General Rixey issued a clean bill of health to the Presidential party.

Mr. Roosevelt told Secretary Brassell that he wished to conform with all quarantine regulations.

MORE CASH FOR JEROME.

Contributions Now $22,686, and Scores of Votes Are Also Pledged.

Checks and cash contributions continued to flow into the coffers of the Jerome Campaign Committee yesterday. The total amount received by Mr. Corwine on behalf of the Citizens' Union Campaign Committee reached $1,633 when the count stopped for the day. The largest contribution was a check for $1,000. In the same time Mr. Jerome received in his personal correspondence checks aggregating $833.

The total amount received by the Jerome Campaign Committee in response to the two circulars issued by it with appeals for funds to pay for watchers and campaign literature was $22,686 last night. Of that more than $12,000 has come in since last Thursday night. From Oct. 20 until last night Mr. Jerome received personally $5,248.

Yesterday afternoon a man, who said he was a compositor, and had just drawn his pay, walked into the Gilsey House headquarters and handed over $5 to Mr. Henneberry. A workman, whose roll of bills was pitifully small, peeled off two $1 bills and insisted on giving them to the cause.

"I can't give more in money," he said. "But I will have some time to spare between now and election. I wish you could use me in some way—and don't offer me any pay."

Mr. Jerome's letter bag continued yesterday to yield striking communications. A William's Bridge grocer wrote for sample ballots, saying that he and his assistants wanted to use them for the purpose of instructing neighbors how to vote the Jerome ticket. A Harlem man wrote:

"I have succeeded in inducing eleven of my friends to vote for you regardless of party affiliations. They are pledged, and we will vote together. In the meantime I'm too busy working for you to get a glimpse even of my girl."

"I am an old soldier," another letter began, "and my income will not permit me to contribue to your campaign fund, but I do the next best thing and pledge you my vote. For the first time in forty-two years I bolt the Republican ticket to vote for an honest man."

A woman's letter was addressed "Honest William Travers Jerome," and read:

"It is only a $5 bill, but two honest votes—those of my husband and my eldest son—go with it. And the promise of one more vote is practically assured. My other son, 19 years of age, will be ready to cast his first vote for you as Governor of this State or as President of this glorious land. My name? 'Tis of no consequence."

Dr. Samuel Liebling of 319 East Tenth Street offered the use of his office every night if the Jerome Campaign Committee would send a man there to instruct the people in the vicinity how to vote split tickets.

JEROME WORKERS WANTED.

Every Man Who Can Give an Hour Asked to Pitch in.

The Jerome Campaign Club, from its headquarters in the Union Square Hotel, issued an appeal yesterday, asking for workers to aid in re-electing the District Attorney. The appeal is aa follows:

To Jerome Men:

The Jerome Campaign Club is trying to help elect Jerome by fighting for him and working for him. There is no enrollment, but if you are willing to help try, speaking, or campaigning, or watching at polls, or in any other way, apply at the headquarters of the club at any hour, personally or by letter, and the club will show you where and how you can work. We need every man who will give an hour of his time, now or on election day, and we can use him where his work will tell.

WHY DIDN'T YOU GET IT? OSBORNE ASKS JEROME

Says If He Didn't He Must Be a Fool.

TALKS OF "AL." ADAMS CASE

Declares Capt. Goddard, Now Dead, Said He Had to Force Jerome to Prosecute.

James W. Osborne, Tammany candidate for District Attorney, spoke last night in the rooms of the Mohawk Democratic Club of the Thirty-fourth Assembly District, at 211 East 124th Street, at a banner raising. The banner was raised directly in front of Majestic Hall, in which a Jerome meeting was held. The same red fire and fireworks did duty for both.

"I can only come to one conclusion," said Mr. Osborne after arraigning the administration of Mr. Jerome, "when he asks Charles F. Murphy 'Where did you get it?' and it is this: If Jerome didn't get it himself he must be a fool.

"I, however, am an honest man. I know it, because Jerome says so. I am the only one since 1894 who ever sent a man to prison for grafting. That was Devery's wardman. You will notice that Devery has gone over to Jerome.

"When I come out of office four years hence I will be 51 years old. I've got a good reputation in New York County now, and you can bet your bottom dollar that I will have it then. Jerome says he was not nominated because he was too honest. Yet it seems strange to me that a man who is so against the bosses now should have been willing to have accepted it four years ago. If I am elected I will treat a Director of the New York Central the same as I would treat a walking delegate.

"I will tell you something about the Al Adams case. Al Adams was convicted through the prosecution by special counsel outside of the District Attorney's office, and if you don't believe me, look up the books and see. I'm trying to get an affidavit for what I'm now going to say, because I am going to quote a dead man.

"Capt. Goddard, now dead, got the evidence against Adams, but he told a friend of mine before he died that Jerome wanted to dismiss the case, and only on the threat of Capt. Goddard that he would take the case to the Governor did Jerome push the case."

Among the other speakers were Senator Thomas F. Grady, ex-Senator Guy, Commissioner Nichols, J. Hayes, John S. Cresby, and Magistrate Wahle.

When Mr. Osborne was seen later in the evening regarding his arraignment of Mr. Jerome, he said:

"I did not mean to charge Mr. Jerome with personal corruption. What I did mean to say was that if a Democratic District Attorney had started great criminal prosecutions against the great corporations and business enterprises and then stopped for no reason he would render himself liable to be suspected of wrongdoing. I think therefore that Mr. Jerome should be judged by the same rule. But remember, I don't charge him with personal corruption."

Nearly 3,000 gathered at a meeting got up in the name of the Order of Acorns at Webster Hall last night to listen to Mayor McClellan and Mr. Osborne. Joseph Johnson, Great Oak, presided.

There were seventy-two policemen and a lot of detectives in the hall. Somebody had said that there might be trouble, but there was none.

The Mayor was received outside Webster Hall with red fire and cheers while the band on the steps played "Tammany." As he walked through the hall the crowd stood up and cheered him. Mr. Osborne, who arrived half an hour ahead of the Mayor, received a warm welcome, mingled with shouts of "Good old Jim." In his speech he said:

"Four years ago the Acorns were with Jerome, and now they are with me. At that meeting he held up my picture and said that I was an honest man and that was why the Democrats did not elect me.

"No one knows better than Jerome that it was a moral and physical impossibility for me to be a puppet. If any attempt was made to put a collar on me I would break everything in my neighborhood, and no one knows that better than Jerome. William Devery is out for Jerome. I was always against Devery, for I have always been against red light. I did more than any one else to break up the red light. I am getting almost as conceited as Jerome. I put Bissert on trial and struck the first blow at Deveryism; then came Diamond. He, too, is out for Jerome, and I understand is willing to bet $500 on Jerome.

"If I am elected I will treat Republicans, Democrats, and Independents on an equal footing. I will treat a Director of the New York Central Railroad the same way as I would a walking delegate. [Cheers.]

"In three days I will show that I am not a puppet, and that he is one himself. It is impossible for Jerome to change his course toward criminals of wealth, power, and influence. I will prove that he not only never has convicted, but that he never will convict a criminal who has wealth and power at his back."

The Mayor spoke of the mortgage tax as an injustice to the city, referred to the Staten Island ferry purchase as a notable achievement, and to the municipal electric light plant. His speech was warmly applauded.

Herrick to Speak for McClellan.

Ex-Judge D Cady Herrick, Democratic candidate for Governor last year, will appear on the stump for Mayor McClellan on Saturday night. The Citizens' Independent Democracy, of which Francis Burton Harrison is the head, will hold the mass meeting in Carnegie Hall. The other speakers will be Mayor McClellan, Controller Edward M. Grout, and James W. Osborne.

HEARST SAYS TAMMANY IS CRYING FOR HELP

An Alleged Letter to Hotel Men Asking Them for $500 Each.

HE'S VERY CONFIDENT NOW

But Warns the People That Money Will Be Used to Prevent a Fair Count.

William Randolph Hearst, the candidate for Mayor on the Municipal Ownership ticket, at a meeting held in Bohemian Hall in East Seventy-third Street last night, read a letter that he said was being sent out by the Tammany Hall Campaign Committee to hotel men all over the city. This is the letter:

"Dear Sir: I think it to your interest and the interest of most hotel men that George B. McClellan be re-elected Mayor. As this is no walkover and Tammany is spending a great deal of money, please send us your check for $500 to help defray election expenses. I am inclosing envelope for reply."

"I want to call your attention to the statement that this is no walk-over," said Mr. Hearst in commenting on the letter, "and that Tammany is spending a great deal of money. One of Mr. Murphy's commissioners, in speaking to a friend who had come over to us, said that it was impossible to defeat Murphy, for he had already raised $1,500,000 and could get more if he wanted it.

"There is going to be a great deal of money spent to thwart the will of the people, but there is one phase of this situation that you need not be alarmed about. This movement against the bosses is a movement by men of principle and men of principle cannot be bought.

"The Murphy machine has an abundance of dishonesty, an abundance of effrontery, an abundance of money, but a scarcity of voters in this election, and it cannot buy the honest men that are opposed to it.

"There is only one phase of the situation that we must consider, and that is the use of large amounts of money to prevent an honest count. Therefore I beg you to be vigilant on election day, and I ask you not to give the Murphy machine any opportunities to throw out your ballots.

"If you vote simply a straight ticket you will accomplish two things. You will elect an administration which will be able to work harmoniously throughout in your interest and you will cast a ballot which cannot be thrown out on any technical objections.

"No one of us on the ticket has any silly vanity about running ahead of his ticket. We want to aee the whole ticket win."

Mr. Hearst backed up his allegation that Tammany intended to spend a barrel of money to defeat him by reading quotations from articles in "Mr. Bennett's conservative paper, The New York Herald, and Mr. Pulitzer's important paper, The New York World."

Mr. Hearst, in his invasion of the Bohemian belt on the upper east side, met with a reception as boisteroua and demonstrative as any that he has had in the campaign. The hall was packed to the doors, and the crowd cheered for five minutes as the candidate made his appearance. J. G. Phelps Stokes was speaking when the band stationed in the street outside the hall, where an overflow meeting was in progress, struck up "Hail to the Chief." This waa the signal that Mr. Hearst had arrived.

"Three cheers for Mr. Hearst!" shouted aome one.

The crowd stood up and waved hats and cbeered. Joseph R. Buchanan, Chairman of the meeting, presented Mr. Hearst.

"Fire away for a five-to-one shot," shouted a man in the first row as Mr. Hearst advanced to the edge of the platform to begin his speech. Mr. Hearst smiled, and the audience cheered again.

There was a notable change in the attitude of Mr. Hearst and the other candidates on the Municipal Ownership ticket who spoke last night. Last week they expressed hope that they would be elected. Last night they expressed as much confidence as though their election had been an accomplished fact.

"Twelve days ago there was only one candidate, one ticket in the field, and everybody was congratulating Mr. McClellan on his triumphant re-election," Mr. Hearst said. "The bosses of both parties were unanimoua for him, the gas trust and the traction trust and the life insurance combinations and other corporationa of a aimilar character were unanimous for him, and the people had not yet been heard from.

"On the day after our nominations had been made the Murphy machine published a statement estimating our strength at 25,000 votes. On the Monday following they had raised their estimate to 80,000 votes. Since then they have made estimates of 150,000 and 180,000, and a different feeling seems to pervade the political atmosphere.

"To-night Mr. Murphy issues a statement personally—a thing he does not do except on extraordinary occasions—in which he says that our ticket has not any more chance of being elected than he has, and he isn't running.

"Mr. Murphy is mistaken when he thinks that he is not running. He is running, and Pat McCarren is running, and Belmont and Ryan are running, and McCall and McCurdy are running, and every privileged corporation that plunders the people is an issue in this campaign."

Mr. Hearst tben read the letter to tbe hotel men.

"He can't buy our votes," shouted a man, and another added, "No more."

Clarence J. Shearn, candidate for District Attorney; ex-Senator John Ford, and J. G. Phelps Stokes and Calvin Tomkins, Chairman of the Municipal Art Commission, also apoke. Mr. Shearn attacked District Attorney Jerome.

"My moat noisy opponent on the public platform," said Mr. Shearn, "is asking Charles F. Murphy where he got it. If, like Mr. Jerome, I had been four years a District Attorney, I'd be able to tell people in this campaign where Murphy got some of it."

"That's hitting him some," cried a man in the gallery.

Hearst Appeal for Money.

The Finance Committee of the Municipal Ownership League issued this appeal for campaign contributions yesterday:

The Municipal League Campaign Committee requires a moderate campaign fund and issues this appeal for contributions—no matter how small—to the citizens of New York City. We have no base of financial supply from which to draw such as the two machines opposing us command. The interest which we seek to safeguard is that of the people—not that of special privileges.

We need money for printing, postage, and for the rent of halls for meetings—not for music, fireworks, or display. We rely on the silent, sober thought of the people of the city. Help us so that we may appeal to that thought and preserve the city for its people.

2,000 PETITION NAMES FORGED, RUSH CHARGES

Investigation of Republican Certificates in the 29th.

SOME ONE SIGNED FOR DEPEW

Name of Postmaster Willcox Also Put Down Without His Knowledge—To Ask for Warrants.

As the result of charges filed with the Board of Elections yesterday Thomas E. Rush, the Democratic leader of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, has prepared affidavits preliminary to making application for warrants for several officials who signed three certificates of indorsement of Republican candidates in the Twenty-ninth. This application will be made to District Attorney Jerome. Charges are made that the certificates, purporting to be signed by leading citizens, among them Senator Depew, Postmaster Willcox, Homer Folks, W. Bayard Cutting, Elisha Dyer, and others, were not signed by them, but that their names were forged.

The Rush affidavits now in the hands of the Citizens' Union and the Democratic officials of the district, charge George Ayres, Henry Melrose, George A. Hyman, Notaries Public, and Louis Levine and Joseph G. Klein, Commissioners of Deeds, with fraudulently attesting to the presence of the citizens whose names are alleged to have been forged.

The certificates indorsed Edgar J. Lauer, Frederick De Witt Wells, and Clarence R. Freedman, Republican candidates for Municipal Court Justice, Assemblyman, and Alderman in the Twenty-ninth. These men were indorsed by the Hearst Democracy, and the petitions are supposed to have been signed at the request of Louis Wolfert, the Hearst leader of the district. The municipal court petition contained 1,025 names, and the Assembly and Aldermanic petitions 650 names each.

According to the affidavits in Mr. Rush's possession, every name on the petitions has been investigated, and only four were found to be genuine. The rest of the names, it is alleged, were signed by two brothers, at the instigation of one of the leading Republicans of the district. More than 2,000 of the 2,300 names are said to be those of enrolled Republicans.

The protest against the Hearst-Republican certificates was signed by Moses Herman, candidate for Municipal Court Justice; Montgomery Hare, the Aldermanic candidate, and William Mason Smith, the candidate for the Assembly. All are on the Democratic and Citizens' Union ticketa, the two organizations having fused in the Twenty-ninth.

Messrs. Herman, Hare, and Smith appeared before the Board of Elections yesterday with the affidavits of thirty-two Election District Captains who had investigated the names and had interviewed 230 men who said that they did not sign the certificates for Alderman, 275 who said they did not sign the Assembly certificate, and 350 who said they did not sign the judicial certificate.

Among other names attached to the certificates were those of Joseph Fox, President of the Columbian Bank; Stewart G. Nelson, cashier of the Seaboard National Bank; Louis Marshall of the law firm of Guggenheimer, Untermyer & Marshall; Major Poole of the Ivins headquarters; ex-Assistant Corporation Counsel Arthur F. Crosby; Myer Jarmulowsky, and A. Newbold Morris, Vice President of the Plaza Bank.

The Citizens' Union and Democratic leaders say that 25 of the alleged signers do not live in the district, and that in 167 instances the men are not known at the addresses given, while in 39 cases the supposed signers died before the time they are said to have signed the petition.

Isaac M. Kapper, who, with ex-Assistant Corporation Counsel Luke D. Stapleton, has charge of the Brooklyn Democratic organization's fight to have the names of Supreme Court Justice Burr, Bird S. Coler, and the other Municipal Ownership candidates stricken from the official ballot, said last night that he would prepare papers for presentation to a Justice of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn to-day. An application will be made for a writ of certiorari.

Late yesterday afternoon, Justice Maddox, listened to argument on a writ sued out by John Surey, a taxpayer, who sought to have all the names of the Municipal Ownership candidates, except that of Justice Burr, stricken from the ticket. It was argued that as he had been nominated by petition some time before the Carnegie Hall convention, he had the right to use the Municipal Ownership emblem.

Although Justice Maddox adjourned the hearing until this morning he intimated that he would not grant the motion.

NAMED FOR DOOLING'S PLACE.

Both Parties Nominate for Senate in the Sixteenth.

Special primaries and nominating conventions were held by both parties yesterday in the Sixteenth Senate District of Manhattan to name candidates for the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Peter J. Dooling, who resigned to become the Tammany nominee for County Clerk. John M. Quinn was nominated by the Democrats and James W. Allen by the Republicans. The district is heavily Democratic.

Mr. Quinn, the Democratic nominee, is a lawyer living at 319 West Thirty-third Street, and is the chief clerk in the Water Department. Mr. Allen, the Republican candidate, is a lawyer of 308 West Twentieth Street.

Republican Women in Line.

First of the Republican women's meetings in the present campaign will be held at the Hotel Astor Thursday afternoon, under the guidance of the West Side Women's Republican Club. College Hall has been engaged for the occasion, and there will be an orchestra in the place of the usual brass band. Mrs. H. Secor Tonjes, President of the club, will preside and William M. Ivins, the candidate for Mayor, will speak.

PALISADE

Ten Minutes and Ten Cents from New York

JUST ACROSS THE HUDSON, Via 130th St. FERRY

¶ Do not think that you must invest your funds in gold mines, railroad stocks or life insurance. These speculations are often unprofitable.

¶ The man who buys LAND WITHIN ONE MILE OF NEW YORK CITY AT PRESENT PRICES cannot lose. Buy where others buy. Demand is what fixes values. Palisade houses are being bought faster than we can finish them.

¶ John Jacob Astor's foresight in banking on the growth of New York was illustrated when he bought a Harlem block for $2,000, now worth $1,000,000.

¶ The New York Journal of September 30th, advising editorially the purchase of land in and around New York City, says:

"Many men during the next few years, AND DURING THE NEXT YEAR ESPECIALLY, will lay the foundation of independence through real estate investments wisely made."

¶ Referring to the era of tunnel and bridge building, it says:

"If you have some money and can pay a little more each year GO INTO REAL ESTATE. THIS IS THE TIME. This is the very beginning of the new and extraordinary transportation movement. In a short time, what the wise men know now, the whole public will know—it will be too late then for bargains."

The bigger your purchase of Palisade lots the greater your profit.

HOW I WILL SAVE $25,922.59 FOR A POLICYHOLDER Who Sent for Me Yesterday

He read my announcement in The Times of yesterday, and over the telephone asked me to call on him.

This is the result:

His policy—$50,000.

The premium—$2,565.50 a year for 20 years.

He had been insured for three years.

I advised that he take a paid-up policy for $7,500 — the amount allowed under his policy

Then to take out a 15-year policy under my plan for $42,500—making a total of $50,000 — at an annual premium of $1,608.20.

RECAPITULATION.

Yearly cost of old policy	$2,565.50
Yearly cost under my plan only	$1,608.20
YEARLY DIFFERENCE	$957.30
Multiplied by years	15
	478650
	95730
Saving in 15 years	$14,359.50
Interest on $957.30 each year for 15 years at 4½% compounded	$6,432.09
16th and 17th payments on old policy, which are saved	5,131.00
Representing a clear cash saving to the policyholder	25,922.59

This clear cash saving of $25,922.59 is exclusive of the dividends he will receive every year under my plan, and which under the old policy were lost entirely in case of death before maturity.

These are the facts. They ought to appeal to your intelligent self-interest. No matter what the amount—a proportionate saving can be shown on policies in force 1 to 6 years.

The figures I have deduced are an absolute certainty.

I represent no company, simply advise you where you can get the most for your money.

An interview costs you nothing—write or 'phone me before making next payment on your policy.

Imported spangle robes, $5.

THESE robes were a revelation to the crowds that came yesterday. Not one of the smart dressers present expected to see the quality, style and workmanship we presented. It required only a glance to convince them that they are the robes Fashion is demanding this season. Do you not want to profit by their experience and select a robe today while the selection is yet desirable? We say more emphatically than ever. Main Floor.

Don't judge the value of these robes by what we say they are worth. You'll find them better, but we'd rather you'd be surprised than disappointed, and so instead of over-estimating we have underestimated.

Take the spangle robes at $5 for instance—we don't believe you'll see the equal of many of them elsewhere for less than $12. They're but a small part of the collection, though. In fact, nearly every smart style is represented.

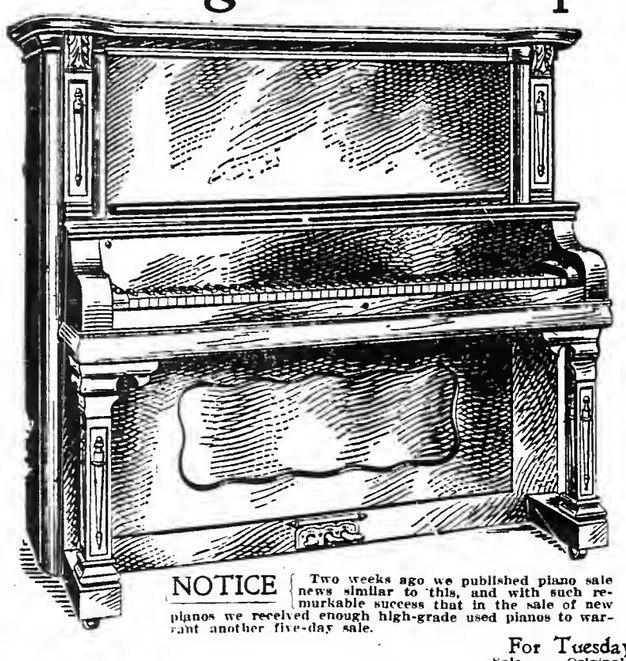
New York never has known such high grade used pianos at such low prices.



ANOTHER of those famous five-day sales of ours begins to-day. For weeks we've had request after request for a great sale, but we preferred to put it off till this month, until now we have accumulated

One hundred and fifty-nine high class instruments for this event, to be sold at $10 down

The season now demands this opportunity for those who have just returned from their Summer homes or from abroad, and for everybody who wants to enliven the Winter season with music.

We never offered such good pianos at these prices. Nearly one hundred are almost as good as new, and in so far as the tone is concerned they couldn't be better.

A WHITE ELEPHANT ON YOUR HANDS—NEVER.

Some people will advise you not to buy a used piano, claiming you will find it a difficult task to dispose of it, should you desire to do so. That may be good advice under some circumstances, but not under the conditions that govern the Simpson Crawford Co. sales. Fourth Floor.

Magnificent and complete showing of the new silks.

SELECTIONS are now full and overflowing with the most beautiful weaves we have ever shown from the American industries. Our record in the past speaks for this exhibition. The new colorings and weaves are shown in bewildering diversity, from the dainty pastels to the high colored effect in such demand and so scarce.

Particular attention is called to our Evening Silk Department, which is now at its best. The most desirable weaves are displayed including the double width silk Radium, Gros de Brilliant, Taffeta Messaline, Satin Messaline, Crepe Meteor, Moire Renaissance Cameleon and Moire Brilliant.

Also a complete showing of silks and satin for Bridal and Bridesmaids' Gowns.

In the black silk section are showing numerous new weaves—also some new effects for deepest mourning, and a complete line of Taffetas, Messaline, Peau de Cygne, Peau de Soie, Crepe de Chine, Meteor Moire, etc.—several new ideas in cloaking silks—single and double width.

The Velvet Department is the most complete and largest in the city. Splendid showing of single and double width Chiffon Velours, Paon Velvets, Panne Velvets, Velour de Nords, Chiffon Velveteen, Corduroy, etc., also full line of plain silk Dress Velvet in colors and black. Main Floor.

What's the style in dress goods?

OUR dress goods section is the center of attraction among the smart dressers of New York. It is in the rotunda, where each fabric may be inspected and seen to the best advantage in clear daylight. Once you select a material you are sure to be satisfied with it after it is made up. Main Floor.

We mention no prices to-day. New Yorkers are thoroughly familiar with the saving that awaits them here and so we devote this space to a style talk on six of the more popular weaves.

There is no coloring with which we cannot supply you. You will not be informed that this or that shade is "almost" what you want. We have the exact shade you desire, no matter how difficult it is to secure it elsewhere. Don't miss this exceptional exhibition to-day.

A few style hints on the new fabrics.

BROADCLOTH—the foremost fabric for Fall—a very large assortment and a complete line of Fall colorings for street and evening.

FRENCH BATISTES in plain and shadow check effects—very much sought for—all new Fall colorings for street and evening wear.

HENRIETTAS—one of this season's foremost fabrics in a variety of new Fall colorings.

GRAY WORSTED SUITINGS—one of this season's scarcest fabrics—a complete line.

DRAP-DE-ETES are very popular and are greatly in demand—a complete line of all new Fall colorings.

SILK AND WOOL FRENCH EOLIENNES—very desirable for evening and street wear.

WHITE POLAR BEAR CLOAKING—in a variety of new designs. The now wanted fabric for ladies' opera cloaks and children's coats.

FRENCH POPLINS are becoming very popular. We are showing a complete color line.

NAME ONE ACHIEVEMENT, SAYS IVINS TO MAYOR

Declares Present Administration Has Originated Nothing.

GIVES CREDIT TO SETH LOW

Republican Candidate Says Graft Exists in Tombs and Penitentiary—Denies a Tammany Charge.

William M. Ivins, Republican candidate for Mayor, addressed an open letter last night to Mayor McClellan. The letter was given out at Mr. Ivins's headquarters in the Hotel Breslin. It is as follows:

"The Hon. George B. McClellan:

"Sir: On Oct. 15 I addressed to you jointly with Mr. Hearst a letter in which I outlined the course I intended to pursue if elected. I invited a similar public expression from you and indicated my willingness to meet you, or either of you, in joint debate upon the municipal issues. You have not seen fit to answer this letter, or render possible the graphic comparisons which would follow the presentation of our views from a single platform.

"In an interview published in The New York Herald yesterday, however, you specifically affirm that you and your administration are on trial before the people, and you call attention to certain public improvements for which you claim credit. For the sake of further public enlightenment I urge you to answer frankly the following questions:

"1. You say in your interview that you 'know of no city where municipal ownership has made such strides as this city during the last two years,' and you call the Staten Island Ferry as your witness to prove it. Is it true, or not, that the Staten Island Ferry was municipalized by your predecessor, an anti-Tammany Mayor? And is it true, or not, that, in spite of the fact that this ferry was municipalized by your predecessor, it has taken you and your administration nearly two years to get a single boat running?

The City's Lighting Plant.

"2. In the same interview you seek to create the impression that your administration should be given credit for the electric lighting plant which you say is about to be opened and the larger plant now under way. Is it true, or not, that the public outcry which has forced your administration upon this work was awakened by your predecessor, who exposed the iniquity of existing contracts with the lighting monopoly? And is it true, or not, that you, nevertheless, did nothing until the public scandal of the notorious Oakley contracts compelled you to act?

"3. Is it true, or not, that your Commissioner of Gas and Water Supply, Mr. Oakley, was discovered to have signed a renewal of those very contracts, in brazen contempt of the public rights? And is it true, or not, that you still retain in the city's service the very man Oakley whose act you were forced to repudiate as soon as it was discovered by the public?

"4. In your speech at Tammany Hall some nights ago you said that on taking your seat as Mayor you found the city on the verge of water famine, and boasted that now a non-partisan commission is engaged in procuring an adequate water supply. You took your seat as Mayor nearly two years ago. You found lying on your desk before you a report of an expert commission on additional water supply for New York, appointed by your predecessor. Did you not pigeonhole that report and permit this same man Oakley to get up devices of his own for spending $150,000,000 of the city's money to provide a water supply? After Oakley had made his report, were you not obliged to throw it aside because it was absurd and inadequate, if nothing worse?

Appealed to the Legislature.

"Did not all this occupy the first year of your administration? Did you not then, through distrust of your own subordinates, though the charter gave you ample power to face this question and attempt to solve it courageously, apply to a Republican Legislature to create an additional department to do this very work? And did you not, because of your realization of the futility of expecting under Tammany such a piece of constructive work to be performed in the best interests of the city, ask that the Republican Legislature should make it impossible for Tammany to be concerned in it? And hasn't the new department thus created by a Republican Legislature just made a report substantially renewing the very recommendations made by the commission appointed by your predecessor?

"Is not the credit due you for removing the danger of a water famine confined to pigeonholing the plans of your predecessor, throwing down the plans of your own subordinate Oakley, compelling the Legislature to devise a law that would enable a competent commission to undertake the work, and seeing this competent competent commission adopt the plans of your predecessor? And again I ask, How does it happen that Mr. Oakley is still the head of the department which should protect the rights of the public?

"5. You have again and again pointed with pride to the large number of schools which have been built during your administration. Will you not, for the benefit of the public, name the schools built in your administration out of any funds other than those appropriated by your predecessor?

Hopes Mayor Will Credit Mr. Low.

"6. Now that your attention has been called to it by these questions, may I not assume that you will cheerfully accord to your predecessor the credit for the municipalized Staten Island Ferry, the electric lighting plant, the progress toward an adequate water supply, and the new schools, and that you will no longer claim them as your achievements, as you have in your Herald interview, in your Tammany Hall speech, and elsewhere?

"7. And now, in the interest of public enlightenment, will you not specify two or three items of public improvement which you really have initiated? Or, if that is too many, will you not name one such item? Yours respectfully,

"WILLIAM M. IVINS."

Mr. Ivins was angry yesterday when he saw a piece of campaign literature issued from Tammany Hall, in which he was charged with having participated in "honest graft" when he was City Chamberlain through his alleged interest in the Self-Dumping Boat Company. He immediately dictated the following denial:

"This screed from Tammany Hall is a falsehood pure and simple. I was never an official of the Barney Dumping Boat Company. I never owned any stock in the company. I never had the slightest interest in the company. In fact, I have never known anything about the company, other than what I have read in the newspapers. The charge and statement are as absurd as it would be to accuse me of being President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Equitable Life Assurance Society."

Mr. Ivins yesterday declared that "honest graft" was divided into greater and lesser graft. Greater graft, he said, consisted of the good things in the way of contracts which the bosses got for their influence.

"Lesser graft," said Mr. Ivins, "bears about the same relation to the greater graft that picking pockets or blackmailing bears to wars of annexation.

Says Heelers Got the Fund.

"When Crain was Tenement House Commissioner there was an unexpected balance of between $40,000 and $50,000, so 100 ward heelers of Tammany were appointed Special Inspectors. The fund became a Christmas present for them.

"In the Tombs there is graft by which some one reaps an income by favoring prisoners. Our New York Penitentiary, under Commissioner Lantry, is a nightmare of inefficiency and corruption. On each suit the city doles out to prisoners, the recipient is swindled out of $13 of value and the State Treasury is mulcted to the same extent."

Mr. Ivins said that hundreds of civil service employes had become members of sham volunteer fire companies, and by so doing had become exempt from removal except upon charges and trial.

"The matter was taken up by the Controller," continued Mr. Ivins, "and he was so much interested that he and one of the Aldermen went to the Mayor about it. The Mayor merely said: 'What petty graft!'"

HUGHES LIKES IVINS'S FIGHT.

He Congratulates the Mayoralty Candidate on His Campaign.

William M. Ivins, the Republican Mayoralty candidate, yesterday received a letter from Charles E. Hughes, congratulating him upon the character of the fight he is making for election.

Mr. Ivins did not give out the text of Mr. Hughes's letter, but it is understood that Mr. Hughes expressed his best wishes for Mr. Ivins's success.

WE'LL WIN, SAYS MURPHY.

Tammany Leader Says McClellan Will Carry All Five Boroughs.

Charles F. Murphy declared at Tammany Hall yesterday that Mayor McClellan would carry every one of the five boroughs of Greater New York on election day.

The Tammany leader's attention was called to the various "straw votes" recorded around town, showing the progress made by the Hearst movement. He was asked if he cared to comment on any of them or on the predictions of the Hearst enthusiasts that their candidate would be elected Mayor.

"Hearst has as much chance of being elected as I have," replied Mr. Murphy, with emphasis.

"Do you mean of your being elected personally?" was asked.

"Yes, personally," said the Tammany leader. "The situation is most encouraging. I have received very favorable reports from Brooklyn. Senator McCarren informs me that Mayor McClellan will carry the borough and that the Democratic county and borough tickets will be elected as well. The same information has come to me from other reliable sources, and I am convinced we shall carry all five boroughs.

"In Manhattan Tammany is making a careful poll, and in the Bronx as well. It will be some days before it is completed, but the reports already in hand are satisfactory."

Notwithstanding the confidence expressed by Mr. Murphy, every Tammany district leader in town is working overtime in his district, polling the voters and trying to get down to the exact status of the Hearst strength. The leaders say that this is the only thing about the campaign that is causing them any uneasiness. The leaders profess to have discovered that the Hearst movement has gained great headway, although they believe that it has reached its strongest point and will wane from now on.

According to the reports carried to Tammany Hall, the Hearst forces have been recruited from both Democratic and Republican ranks. The reports show also that many Hearst voters have declared their intention of voting to smash both political machines, and not because they believe especially in Mr. Hearst.

VETERANS CHEER McCLELLAN.

Men Who Served with His Father Receive the Mayor.

Cheering the name of Gen. George B. McClellan, under whom many of them had served in the civil war, 500 old soldiers crowded last night into the meeting rooms of the National Veterans' League at 148 East Forty-second Street and heard the son of their old commander appeal for their support in the Mayoralty campaign. Hearty applause greeted the Mayor when he entered.

"I am inexpressibly glad of your welcome," he said, "for it gives me courage in the fight which I am making. I cannot tell you what it means to have the friendship and support of the old 'boys in blue' who in the years gone by so loyally supported my father on the field of battle.

"This campaign differs from other campaigns in that it rises above political lines. That is why I ask of you a vote of confidence. If you men of '61 believe that New York has been governed decently during my administration; that it has been fairly prosperous, clean, and honest, then I call on you to support me in my fight. If you believe I have not done my duty, then refuse me your votes."

MAYOR ON CITY OWNERSHIP.

Says the City Cannot Build Subways Because of Debt Limit.

Both Mayor McClellan and Herman A. Metz, candidate for Controller, spoke yesterday at the noonday meeting of the Commercial League, at 597 Broadway. The Mayor spoke for ten minutes only. Speaking of municipal ownership of public utilities, he said:

"No municipality may, under the Constitution, borrow more than 10 per cent. of the assessed value of its taxable property, and this leaves the city a margin of only $40,000,000 at this time. With that all the needs of the Government must be met. If we cannot have the aid of private enterprise and private capital, and are permitted to use only the municipal capital, it is a legal, physical, and financial impossibility to undertake the great rapid transit constructions which are so necessary for the comfort and convenience of the people."

The Mayor added that in the two years of his administration corporate stock was issued to the amount of $120,500,000 for public improvements, which, he said, was $10,500,000 more than was issued in any other two years of an administration.

For McClellan in Many Languages.

Beginning to-day the polyglot bureaus will be resumed at Mayor McClellan's headquarters, operating as they did in his first campaign two years ago. John Freschl will be in charge of the Italian bureau, ex-Sheriff William F. Grell of the German bureau, and M. Warley Platzek of the Jewish bureau. An innovation will be the establishment of a Latin-American bureau for Cubans and Americans of Spanish birth. George L. Brun will be in charge.

IVINS PROMISES WAR ON GRAFT IF ELECTED

Tells Brooklyn Republicans He Will Imitate President.

RIDGWAY'S NAME IS HISSED

Candidate Says He Expects to Reveal the Real Reason for Delay on the New Bridges.

An audience of fully 3,500 persons greeted William M. Ivins, the Republican candidate for Mayor, last night when he opened his campaign in Brooklyn at the Clermont Avenue Rink. Mr. Ivins spoke without manuscript. Both he and ex-Lieut. Gov. Woodruff, who preceded him, appeared to have some difficulty in warming up the audience. The demonstration for Mr. Ivins when he was introduced was hearty, but none of his points awakened great enthusiasm.

He was most liberally applauded when he spoke of the delay on the new bridges, and promised later on in the campaign to assign the real reason for it, and when he declared that if he were elected Mayor the franchises of the city would be disposed of for the purpose of building more school houses, and not for "palaces and bulldogs at Good Ground."

The meeting was called to order by Ex-Lieut. Gov. Woodruff. Mr. Woodruff told about the trouble the Republicans had in finding a candidate. When he referred to Charles E. Hughes, the first nominee of the party for Mayor, there was an outburst of applause. In William M. Ivins, he said, the party had as great an inquisitor and as determined a foe of graft as Mr. Hughes.

Mr. Woodruff had to compete with the fireworks on the outside, a considerable handicap, as hundreds of giant crackers were exploded while he was speaking.

Thinks Chances Brighter.

"The chances of success now for the Republican ticket," said Mr. Woodruff, "are better than two weeks ago we had any reason to hope for."

Mr. Woodruff introduced as Chairman of the meeting Frank Harvey Field, designating him as the leader of the Citizens' Union in Kings County.

"We are being told every day," said Mr. Field, "that Republicans ought not to vote for the Republican candidate and thereby save the city from something or other. I am here to urge that every Republican should vote for the Republican candidate.

"Tammany administration means the government of Murphy and McCarren. And behind Murphy and McCarren we see two colossal figures, Ryan and Belmont, who are exploiting the city through Tammany Hall. They will exploit it for four years more if you elect Tammany.

"Peace has been declared between Murphy and McCarren for business reasons," said Mr. Field. "What does the McCarren ticket in this county mean?"

"Gas," was the quick retort from one of the audience.

The mention of the name of James W. Ridgway, the Democratic candidate for Borough President, called forth hisses from all over the hall. Mr. Field predicted that the McCarren ticket would be defeated in Kings and "the unspeakable Cassidy" beaten in Queens.

William M. Ivins came in while a quartet was singing. There were cheers for him, but they were calmed down in order to let the quartet finish. Then Mr. Ivins was introduced. The demonstration for him lasted several minutes.

At the beginning of Mr. Ivins's remarks a photographer took a flashlight. The report startled some women, and there were slight exclamations of alarm.

"That is precisely the kind of light I intend to shed on Tammany Hall," said Mr. Ivins, the audience applauding.

Great enthusiasm was provoked by Mr. Ivins's declaration that if he should be elected Mayor Brooklyn should have the same opportunities for development as Manhattan.

"I understand," said Mr. Ivins, "that the Tammany candidate for Mayor contends that he has done all that was possible in respect to the bridges which are to give Brooklyn a closer connection with Manhattan. So far as the Manhattan Bridge is concerned, from the moment I came into office all progress was stopped in the matter of construction, and instead of building bridges we have had a controversy between engineers about technicalities, about eye-bolts and bars, and things of that kind. Now what is true of the Manhattan Bridge is equally true of the Williamsburg Bridge. Mayor McClellan may tell you that he did not know about these things and cannot help the situation.

"In this respect he reminds me very much of a man who bought a horse and found a few days afterward that the horse was blind in one eye. So he went to the man who sold him the horse and said to him: 'Heavens, that horse you sold me is blind in one eye. Why didn't you tell me about it?' 'Well,' said the man who sold the horse, 'I'm awfully sorry, but I couldn't tell you because the man who sold him to me didn't tell me, and I thought it was a secret.'

The Real Reasons for Delay.

"So apparently the Mayor thinks he has nothing to tell you about the delay on the bridges because it is a secret. There are reasons for those delays that are deeper than any technical ones, and I hope before the campaign is over to put my finger on them for the purpose of precise and perfect identification." [Applause.]

It was because $800,000,000 worth of franchise wealth is to be disposed of during the next four years by the administration in power in New York City, Mr. Ivins said, that Tammany Hall was so eager to win the coming election. Mr. Ivins said that if he were elected he would do everything in his power to give the city cheap gas and, with the help of the Attorney General, would proceed to acquire for the city all lapsed gas franchises.

"Some of my enemies in Tammany Hall," said Mr. Ivins, "have intimated that my plans in connection with the gas franchises was confiscation. Here are some gentlemen in blue. When they are called to arrest a burglar the first thing they do is to take the stolen property out of his clothes, and doing that has never been regarded as confiscation. But if that be confiscation, it is precisely the sort of confiscation that I am going to be guilty of." [Great applause.]

Mr. Ivins evoked hearty applause by referring to President Roosevelt as the most powerful battler in the world against graft.

"And what Theodore Roosevelt has done in his great sphere as President of the United States to put down graft, I expect to do if elected Mayor of New York, following his star within my sphere." [Cheers.]

James L. Wells, Republican candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, followed Mr. Ivins.

"Republicans of Brooklyn," said Mr. Wells, the thing for you to do in this campaign is to stand pat."

"Do you mean Pat McCarren?" inquired a gallery auditor.

"No, of course not," said Mr. Wells, "stand him on his head."

Major Ebstein, the Republican candidate for President of the Borough of Brooklyn, also spoke.

HEARST TICKET STANDS.

Municipal League Candidates Will Have Place on Official Ballot.

Under a decision made by the Board of Elections yesterday, William R. Hearst, J. G. Pheips Stokes, and John Ford will remain on the official ballot under the name of "The Municipal League" and the emblem of the pair of scales. The protests against the nomination of Bird S. Coler for Borough President of Brooklyn have been heard, but not decided.

A large number of other decisions were rendered by the board yesterday, and in almost every instance where the league was a party its case was upheld. The league kept its candidates on the ticket where protests were made against it, and candidates were turned down where the league protsted their nominations. More than two-score decisions are still to be handed down by the board. Many of the cases grew out of the indorsement by the league of Republican Assemnly and Aldermanic candidates.

HEARST BANNER STOLEN.

Adorned the Bronx Headquarters, and Bore O'Gorman's Name, Too.

Spurred on by Coroner O'Gorman, Municipal Ownership candidate for Borough President in the Bronx, detectives are hunting for the thieves that broke into the Municipal Ownership League's Bronx headquarters at 2,550 Third Avenue sometime Sunday morning and carried off the Hearst and O'Gorman banner that had been flung to the breeze from the third floor of the building.

The banner was 50 feet by 10, and the letters were eight feet high. To get at the banner the thieves had to make their way to the top of the building, where they cut the upper ropes that held the banner in place. Then, descending to the second floor, they forced open the door leading into the headquarters and cut the ropes that held the lower ends of the banner.

HEARD IN THE CAMPAIGN.

A Jerome well-wisher, carried away on the flood-tide of his emotion, thus ended a letter he sent in yesterday:

"I have already given my time, my energy, and my life for you, and I am continuing to do so."

Dr. Girdner tells of an interview he had with James Hebron, the cab manager for Delmonico's.

"I asked Hebron," said Dr. Girdner, "whom his men favored for Mayor. He said he had ascertained that they were all for Hearst. I asked him if that was the way he wanted them to he, and he said:

"'I don't mix in politics and I don't care who they are for, but I'm glad they are all one way this year. It will save me a lot of money.'

"'How is that?' I asked.

"'Well,' said Jim, 'you see when they are divided in their opinions they waste a lot of time arguing, but this year, being all one way, they can't get up an argument.'"

Among novelties this year, "Bim the Buttonman" has got up a campaign boutonnière. It is an ivy leaf with a candidate's name printed on it. A sample was first taken to the Hearst headquarters in the Hoffman House.

"Ivy leaf?" said Mr. Hearst reflectively, when his managers told him of it. "Seems to me Mr. Ivins ought to have that. Send him to the Ivins headquarters.

Candidate Ivins, when he saw the little token with his name printed on it in gold, remembered that ivy is famous for its clinging qualities and its tenacity, and decided that it was good enough for him, and made it his emblem.

He was a sober-minded person, taking breakfast in his usual seat at a quiet hotel near Madison Square. His usual waiter was there, and the sober-minded person engaged the waiter in conversation, seeking the "trend of thought" of the municipal campaign.

"I'm for Hearst," declared the waiter with emphasis. Then the sober-minded person took fifteen minutes of valuable time trying to convert the waiter from his benighted ways. It was no use, and he gave up with a sigh.

"Where do you vote?" he asked at last.

"Oh, Sir," said the waiter, "I don't vote yet. I'm an Englishman, and haven't been naturalized."

Deputy Police Commissioner McAvoy was going out of the McClellan Bartholdi Hotel Headquarters yesterday afternoon as some friends were going in. One of the friends was a Republican.

"Been up to make a campaign contribution?;" said one of the friends to the Deputy Police Commissioner.

"Was it certified?" inquired the Republican.

"Sir," replied the Commissioner, with dignity, "you forget I'm in the Police Department, where money comes easy, and we all have it by the barrel."

A big bunch of envelopes, each containing an invitation to attend the ceremonies for the opening of the Staten Island Ferry as a municipal charge, was left at the Mayor's office yesterday afternoon. One of the envelopes was intended for the Mayor. The inscription read:

"Hon. John B. McClellan, Mayor."

FOOD.

A HIT.

What She Gained by Trying Again.

A failure at first makes us esteem final success.

A family in Minn. that now enjoys Postum would never have known how good it is if the mother had been discouraged by the failure of her first attempt to prepare it. Her son tells the story:

"We had never used Postum food coffee till last Spring (a year ago) when father brought home a package one evening just to try it. We had heard from our neighbors, and in fact every one who used it, how well they liked it, and that besides taking the place of coffee as a beverage it furnished a most nutritious and healthful article of food. So we were going to give it a trial.

"Well, the next morning mother brewed it about 5 minutes, just as she had been in the habit of doing with the other coffee, preparing it, I fear, without paying special attention to the directions printed on the package. It looked weak and didn't have a very promising color, but nevertheless father raised his cup with an air of expectancy. It certainly did give him a great surprise, but I'm afraid it wasn't a very pleasant one, for he put down his cup with a look of disgust, and said, Mother, are you sure this isn't your dish water?

"Mother wasn't discouraged, though, and next morning gave it another trial, letting it stand on the stove till boiling began, and then letting it boil for fifteen or twenty minutes, and this time we were all so pleased with it that we have used it ever since, and, though we have a quantity of the old coffee in the house, I fear it will all be spoiled before we can get it used up.

"Father was a confirmed dyspeptic, and a cup of coffee is to him like poison. So he never drinks it any more, but drinks Postum regularly. He isn't troubled with dyspepsia any more, and is actually growing fat, and I'm sure Postum is the cause of it. All the children are allowed to drink it, and they are perfect pictures of health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SYRIANS RIOT IN STREET, AND MANY ARE HURT

Reserves of Three Precincts End Knife-Pistol Battle.

THE STRIFE BEGAN IN COURT

Magistrate Wahle Invited Najeh Maloof to Go Home with Him—Mrs. Wahle Not Enthusiastic.

Wild-eyed Syrians battled fiercely for a quarter of an hour in the lower west side last night. Frenzied yells rent the air. The dim light from barroom and café windows showed the glint of steel in 200 swarthy hands. Reserves from three police precincts were rushed to the battle ground, but there was plenty of time for a fight before they got there. Many Syrians with stab wounds turned up at the Church Street Police Station, many more are nursing their wounds in private and awaiting the chance for a return thrust.

When the police appeared the fighters melted away as if into the air. A moment before full of men brandishing daggers and revolvers, the streets assumed the quiet serenity of a Philadelphia alley. For hours the bluecoats moved up and down Washington Street, and the long nightsticks twirled menacingly, but the trouble was not renewed. Only five men were locked up for stabbing—the others who might have been arrested disappeared.

The disputes and quarrels which led up to the climax last night might make a long story. A difference in religious views is at the beginning of it. The three principal figures in the story are Syrian Bishop Hawaweeny, Editor Najeeb Diab of The Mirror of the West, and Najeeb Maloof, a merchant of 17 Broadway. The Bishop and the editor are on the same side. Maloof is their opponent. The Bishop's followers declare Maloof is a secret spy and is a very dangerous man.

Even if he talked as fast as a Syrian one could not tell the details of the long series of squabbles in four hours. Anyway, yesterday's developments began with the arraignment before Magistrate Wable in the Tombs Court of Najeeb Maloof, charged with assaulting Najeeb Diab. Every Syrian who could crowd in was there to hear the case argued. Hundreds of others swarmed through the corridors of the court and showed their teeth at policemen.

Magistrate Wahle formerly was counsel for Syrians. He knows all about their quarrels and the hopelessness of trying to settle them in court. So he made a speech:

"These quarrels among the Syrians," he said, "have come to be a public scandal. The first man who gets to the police station makes a complaint regardless of any justice. I declare this case adjourned for ten days. You must get together and patch this thing up. If you don't I'll send a good many of you to jail."

Then Maloof leaped forward and said he was afraid for his life, and that the Bishop had put a price of $5,000 on his head.

"You come to my house," said the Magistrate. "I'll let you have the best room I've got."

That about ended the court episode. The Syrians went back to their homes in Washington Street. At 6:25 o'clock Hafez Abdunulmack, who wroks in the office of Editor Diab, was walking through Liberty Street, escorted by Detective Oscar J. Finn of the Amity Street Station, Brooklyn. Finn was protecting Abdunulmack on the way to the Syrian's Brooklyn home. When they got nearly to the corner of Church Street, Moussa Abalan ran across the street and grabbed Abdunulmack's arm.

"This man is carrying weapons," Abalan shrieked at Patrolman Moran, not knowing Finn was an officer. I charge it! I charge him! Make him arrest!"

Moran arrested Abdunulmack. The yells of the two Syrians had brought an immense crowd to the street. They followed the prisoner to the Church Street Station. Abalan said the accused was carrying a whip. Sergt. Daly discharged the prisoner in disgust.

Then the fight began. When the men appeared on the street it was a signal for nearly every Syrian between Church Street and the river to get out his dirk or revolver and yell. None of them missed the opportunity. Before he knew it Sergt. Daly found a howling, fighting mob almost outside the police station door. The few policemen on hand were helpless in the riot. If one of them grabbed the collar of a Syrian he was swept aside and the knifing went on.

Toni Saba, a grocer of 87 Washington Street, was the first one arrested. He was charged by Moussa Abalan with stabbing him in the neck and trying to shoot him. If the pistol hadn't missed fire Abalan probably would be dead now. Dr. Hale came from Hudson Street Hospital and patched up Abalan. Saba was locked up.

Michael Shieb of 45½ Washington Street was next arrested for flourishing two revolvers. Nicola Dibs was arrested on a charge of stabbing George Boutriss and John Boutriss, both of Brooklyn. George Sheberi was another prisoner—they were all taken in on the same charge.

The babel of voices almost drove Sergeant Daly frantic. Syrians, men and women, crowded into the station. Lawyers appeared in twos and threes, interpreters were summoned, and it was the busiest night the Church Street Station has seen for a long time. The reserves patrolled the streets until midnight.

Bishop Hawaweeny was appointed by the Czar to be head of the Orthodox Syrian-Greek Church in this country. No sooner had he reached here than a strong opposition sprung up. It has kept up ever since. The Bishop is now under bail charged with assaulting an editor in Brooklyn. Each backed by some twenty followers, they had a free-for-all fight in Bergen Street a month ago. The last time the Bishop appeared in court he had to be escorted home by the police.

James W. Osborne, candidate for District Attorney, is counsel for the Bishop. Charles Le Barbier represents the opponents. They say that the Bishop has incited his followers to exterminate them. The Bishop says he needs police protection, and without it is likely to be assaulted any time.

When a reporter called up Magistrate Wahle's house on the telephone last night Mrs. Wahle answered.

"Did Magistrate Wahle bring Najeh Maloof home with him?" the reporter asked, mentioning the invitation in court.

"No, he didn't," answered Mrs. Wahle, "and before he brings people like that here I want him to make arrangements with me."

The reserves of the Amity Street and Butler Street Police Stations in Brooklyn were kept ready for instant action, on the report that the rioters would invade that borough, but there was no trouble of any kind.

Murderer Walks Out of Asylum.

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 23.—George B. Warner, convicted of the murder of Pulaski Leeds, Master Mechanic of the Louisville and Nashville Road, escaped last night from the State Hospital for the Insane. Warner removed the locks from the door of his room and got out through the basement.

New German Ambassador to Russia.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—The retirement of Count von Alvensleben, the German Ambassador at St. Petersburg, and the appointment of M. von Schoen, lately Minister of Germany at Copenhagen, were announced to-day.

MADRID WELCOMES LOUBET.

Great Reception to French President—Church Holds Aloof.

MADRID, Oct. 23.—President Loubet of France arrived here at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon and was accorded a magnificent reception. King Alfonso met him at the railroad station, artillery salutes were fired, and enormous crowds gave him an ovation.

M. Loubet was conducted to the palace, and later visited the royal family. To-night he was entertained at a gala dinner at the palace. The city is entirely given up to festivities in honor of the distinguished visitor.

ROME, Oct. 23.—The Vatican authorities to-day decided to instruct Mgr. Rinaldini, the Papal Nuncio at Madrid, not to participate in any of the official ceremonies incident to the visit of President Loubet.

This decision is looked upon as still further emphasizing the bitterness felt by the Holy See over what it considers the persecution of the Church in France.

American from Minnesota Gives Himself Up in London.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Peter Auguste Ecklund was remanded at Bow Street Police Court to-day on the charge of embezzlement in Minnesota.

Ecklund, who surrendered himself to the authorities at Scotland Yard, said that while he was Secretary and Treasurer of the Clay County Land Company of Moorhead, Minn., he embezzled $10,000 to $11,000, absconded July 22, and went to Glasgow.

No communication regarding Ecklund has been received at the American Embassy from the State Department.

PRINCE LOUIS OMITS REVIEW.

Delay Due to Weather Changes—Squadron's Plans at Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 23.—Target practice of the second British cruiser squadron has been delayed so by heavy seas that the review of the naval troops here has been abandoned. The ships are taking on coal.

On Wednesday Rear Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg will leave this city for St. John, N. B., and on Sunday night will sail with the squadron for New York.

Kaiser to Hear Prof. Peabody.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—By request of Emperor William, the first lecture to be delivered by Prof. Francis Greenwood Peabody of Harvard at the University of Berlin, (under the Emperor's plan for an exchange of lectures by American and German professors,) has been postponed to Oct. 30, as his Majesty wishes to be present. Prof. Peabody's subject will be "Academic Reciprocity."

Germany's Foreign Trade.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—A statement of the foreign trade of Germany for the past nine months, issued to-day, shows imports valued at $1,275,500,000, an increase of $52,000,000, and exports valued at $1,028,500,000, an increase of $63,250,000.

Brigands Rout Cossacks, Kill Seven.

BAKU, Caucasia, Oct. 23.—A band of brigands to-day attacked a detachment of Cossacks near the Alyat Railway station. Seven Cossacks were killed and one was wounded. The remainder of the Cossacks escaped.

BANK'S SECURITIES GONE?

Report That $600,000 in Notes to Enterprise National Disappeared.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 23.—The Press to-day printed a story to the effect that Bank Examiner Cunningham had been unable to find securities or notes for $800,000 of the funds of the Enterprise National Bank. It is alleged that Cashier Clark was a poor bookkeeper, and failed to have notes renewed when due. Speculators who are offering to buy up depositors' accounts at 50 cents on the dollar have had little success so far, as the Directors have promised payment in full.

It was announced to-day that Walter Lyon, attorney for Arthur Kennedy, Francis J. Torrance, and the Pennsylvania Development Company, had been appointed to defend Bank Examiner Cunningham and attorney for the State to defend the State's interests in legal actions. As this made Lyon counsel for all parties alleged to be trying to hide the real state of affairs, the report aroused indignation. Mr. Lyon and Examiner Cunningham refused to make statements about the appointment.

William B. Rodgers has been selected to aid Thomas P. Trimble, attorney for the bank Directors. Rodgers is a brother-in-law of John I. Shaw. When Homer L. Castle, the Prohibition nominee for Governor, called attention to the Enterprise Bank he alleged that a note indorsed by Senator Penrose to John I. Shaw had been paid by Vice President Bradbury of the Enterprise Bank to the Citizens' Bank of Turtle Creek. The National Cable and Wire Company, of which Cashier Clark was President, capitalized at $500,000, was placed in receiver's hands to-day.

BARREL MURDER AVENGED?

Police Think Italian Killed at Wilkesbarre Was "The Ox."

Detective Sergeant Petrosino learned late last night that the Italian murdered in Wilkesbarre, Penn., on Saturday night was probably Tomasso Petto, known as "The Ox," who figured in the "barrel mystery" in 1903. Petrosino was in the Italian quarter on a case when he heard from a fairly good source that the murdered man in Pennsylvania and "The Ox" were the same.

When Benetto Midranni, the barrel murder victim, was killed and his body placed in a barrel, Petto was in this city. He was arrested, along with many Italians who were suspected of having had something to do with the murder, and when searched there were found on him several pawntickets that had belonged to the dead man. He and the other Italians, however, were set free.

Midranni had a brother-in-law, Giuseppe de Prinno, who declared that he would avenge his brother-in-law's death when his own four years in Sing Sing were up, but at that time gave no intimation to the police that he knew the murderer.

Two weeks ago De Prinno completed his sentence at Sing Sing. Whither he went nobody seems to know.

BRONX CAMPAIGN OPENS.

Here's a Straight Ticket, Republicans Say—Vote for It.

The Republican campaign in the Bronx opened last night with a straight ticket for the first time in years. Emphasis was laid upon this fact by every speaker at the big mass meeting held in Muller's Bronx Casino, Third Avenue and 174th Street, which was presided over by former Supreme Court Justice Ernest Hall. The appeal in every speech delivered was: "At last we have a straight ticket. We must elect it." The speakers were Judge Hall, Walker M. Chandler, Hal Bell, candidate for President of the Bronx; C. F. Dana, and Alfred F. Schwannecke, candidate for Coroner.

DEVERY SPEAKS OF HEARST.

Sees New York's Finish If He's Elected—His Own Regularity.

Ex-Chief William S. Devery was in Long Island City yesterday, and there he said that William Randolph Hearst was a "fakir and a stiff," and if by chance Mr. Hearst should be elected Mayor he saw "the finish of New York City." He added:

"The reason I am with Tammany is because I believe that all Democrats should be regular, even if you get a tough deal once in a while like I got at Saratoga, but then that was some time ago, and you know I do not hold much against a man very long."

RUSSIA PARALYZED BY RAILROAD STRIKE

Several Lines Tied Up and Movement Spreads to Factories.

EMPIRE'S INDUSTRY MENACED

Moscow Completely Isolated and Food Prices Advance—Men's Demands Purely Political.

ST. PETERSBURG, Tuesday, Oct. 24.—The railroad strike situation has now entered on a highly serious phase. The movement is spreading rapidly to all the railroads of the empire, and apparently cannot be stopped, while in many cities it is communicating itself to the mill and factory employes. The general strike in all branches of labor which the Socialists planned for the end of this year is seemingly bursting forth of its own volition.

Minister of Finance Kokovsoff yesterday received a telegram from the Governing Committee of the Moscow Bourse which says that a continuation of the strike for a week longer would force every factory in the Moscow region to shut down owing to lack of coal, whether or not the factory hands took part in the strike.

The same condition of paralysis threatens all the trade and industry of Russia unless the strike is speedily settled. The inhabitants of Moscow are already feeling the effects of the strike in the increased prices of food, and they are even confronted by famine.

As the demands of the men are purely political, it seems impossible to satisfy them by economic concessions.

The situation is apparently at a deadlock, from which egress can only be had by the surrender of one side or, perhaps, the proclamtion of martial law on the railroads.

A flood of dispatches yesterday from Simbirsk, Sartoff, Vyazma, Poltava, Nizhni Novgorod, Kharkoff, Smolensk, Kieff, Elizabethgrad, Kazan, and other railroad centres all over Russia, announced the complete tying up of all transportation.

The last link that bound Moscow, the commercial centre of the empire, with the outer world was broken yesterday afternoon when the men on the Nicholai Road, connecting Moscow with St. Petersburg, went on strike. The engineers shut off steam in their engines, and Prince Hilkoff, the Minister of Railroads, had great difficulty in obtaining a crew for the special train which brought him to St. Petersburg at midnight.

St. Petersburg has now only one line to the frontier, and the employes of this line held a meeting late last night to decide whether or not they should participate in the strike movement.

Brig. Gen. Thomas H. Barry and Capt. Sydney A. Cloman of the United States Army, who have been with the Russian Army in Manchuria, left late at night for Vienna on what was perhaps the last train out of St. Petersburg. Railroad trains are now running only in the border regions of the empire.

Pathetic scenes are reported from Moscow, where thousands of the poorer inhabitants of the adjoining provinces have been waiting for four days for trains to take them home. They are camping out near the railroad stations and in the streets, and many of them are without money and the necessities of life.

MOSCOW, Oct. 23.—Trains on the Windau Railroad have ceased running, and Moscow is now completely isolated from the rest of the empire. There is only enough meat in the city to supply the demand for a week. All commercial correspondence has to be conducted by telegraph.

Prince Hilkoff, in receiving the members of a deputation sent by the strikers, talked to them familiarly. He said that while in England and the United States he worked sixteen hours daily in order to increase his salary, and pointed out the superiority of the production of foreign workmen in quantity and quality at the same wages received by Russian workmen.

The deputation entered a protest against any man being compelled to work sixteen hours a day, because such long hours precluded the opportunity for educational improvement.

Prince Hilkoff in reply said that even with sixteen hours a day it was possible to devote at least one hour to reading and to other forms of improvement.

HIS WIFE AN AMERICAN.

M. Bakhmetieff to be Russian Minister to Japan.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 23.—Regular diplomatic relations between Russia and Japan are expected to be renewed in six weeks. The Russian Minister to Japan has already been selected in the person of M. Bakhmetieff, the former Russian Diplomatic Agent in Bulgaria, who probably will immediately proceed to his post after an audience of the Emperor on Wednesday.

M. Bakhmetieff is regarded as being of the best type of a Russian diplomat. He served with distinction at various posts, and while Secretary of the Legation at Washington married an American. During his service at Sofia, Bulgaria, M. Bakhmetieff rendered effective aid to Minister Leishman and Spencer Eddy in the case of Miss Ellen M. Stone by direction of the authorities here.

M. Bakhmetieff, the new Russian Minister to Japan, married Miss Mary Beale of Washington, who while at Sofia did everything possible to assist in the search for the abductors of Miss Stone, and who also was of great assistance to the suffering Macedonian refugees.

It was stated at the time that scores of poor people must have perished but for Mme. Bakhmetieff, who dispatched $5,000 and a sister of charity to relieve the needs of the outcasts.

WITTE MADE PREMIER; JEWISH WIFE AT COURT

Husband Heads Cabinet with Finance Portfolio, It Is Said.

CZAR NOW WITH REFORMERS

Reception of Mme. Witte by the Empress Causes a Tremendous Sensation in Palace Circles.

ST. PETERSBURG, Tuesday, Oct. 24.—It was persistently reported in the clubs and in Government circles late last night that the Emperor yesterday had appointed Count Witte Premier, with the portfolio of Minister of Finance.

All the papers this morning give prominence to the report.

Since his return from the United States Count Witte has boldly ranged himself on the side of the Liberals, and has not only advocated complete liberty of speech, of the press, and of assembly, as a necessary corollary of the coming Douma, but has urged an extension of the powers of the Douma along the lines demanded by the reformers, as well as a broader franchise, so as to admit of fuller representation from the ranks of labor and the cultured classes.

The Emperor, to whom the Count personally outlined his views, displayed much sympathy with them and, it is learned, favored a number of Ministers suggested by the Count, including Gen. Trepoff, Assistant Minister of the Interior, who now ranks as one of the most broad-minded of the Czar's counselors and who is understood to be working harmoniously with Count Witte.

The newly formulated statute governing the right of assembly was generally recognized even before its promulgation as not being broad enough, and the Solsky Reform Commission is now at work on a more liberal draft.

Countess Witte was received by the Empress yesterday, and this is considered a singular evidence of the Emperor's determination to confide his fortunes to the hands of Count Witte. No other interpretation is placed upon it in court circles, where the reception of the Countess created a tremendous sensation. The Countess is a Jewess of ordinary birth, and had never before been received at Court.

When M. Witte was appointed Minister in the nineties the Emperor was reported to have said to him: "Remember you are not married." The fixing of his wife's social status, which has been one of Count Witte's ambitions, must rank as one of the triumphs of his life.

The decrease of the influence of the Grand Dukes made it easier for the Emperor to turn to Count Witte. The resignation of Grand Duke Vladimir, the Emperor's uncle, as Commander-in-Chief of the military district of St. Petersburg, however, has not yet been accepted. In tendering his resignation the Grand Duke wrote to the Emperor substantially as follows:

"I have served your grandfather, your father, and yourself; but now that your Majesty has disgraced my son I no longer have the heart to serve you."

The Emperor is said to favor even depriving Grand Duke Cyril of the title of Grand Duke, saying that he should be known simply as "Monsieur Romanoff."

TO GIVE IN TO REFORMERS.

Russian Government Decides to Grant the Liberties Demanded.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 23.—From a high source I learn that the Government has resolved to grant the four liberties demanded by the reformers, subject to restrictions. It is hoped this concession will rally the Moderates.

M. Goremykin is drafting a measure endowing the peasants with State lands. This will be placed on the table when the Douma meets. It is thereby hoped to conciliate the peasant vote.

Such, briefly, is the Government's plan of campaign. It apparently excludes voluntarily granting a Constitution before the meeting of the Douma.

Supporters of the bureaucracy hope that the concessions granted by the Government will at last check the constitutional movement without extending the suffrage or indorsing the legislative character of the Douma, but all indications are the other way.

FATAL TAX RIOTS IN CHILE.

Many Persons Killed and Wounded at Santiago.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 23.—A meeting yesterday called to petition the Government to abolish the import tax on Argentine cattle degenerated into a most serious riot owing to the absence of the troops, who are now engaged in manoeuvres two days' march from the capital.

The police, who were unable to maintain order, charged the crowd and killed ten persons and wounded hundreds. The rioters destroyed street cars and smashed electric lights. The Fire Department was called out to restore order.

The rioting was continued to-day and many persons were killed or wounded. The rioters attacked the gas works, but were repulsed.

The department has been declared in a state of siege.

A PLAY TOO GREAT FOR ITS ACTORS

Maeterlinck's "Monna Vanna" Beyond the Powers of Its Cast.

MME. KALICH IS INADEQUATE

An Ambitious Effort That Falls to be Impressive, Except for the Work's Intrinsic Value.

Guido Colonna.....Henry Kolker
Marco Colonna.....Frederick Perry
Prinzivalle.....Henry Jewett
Trivulzio.....Leonard Shepherd
Borso.....Joseph O'Meara
Torello.....Morgan Wallace
Vedio.....Frank Lea Short
Giovanna (Monna Vanna).....Mme. Kalich

If there have been any doubts as to the moving quality of Maurice Maeterlinck's "Monna Vanna" they should have been set at rest last night, for its performance at the Manhattan Theatre revealed the fact, beyond dispute, that it is a play of extraordinary acting quality, calculated to interest and excite even those audiences to whom its tremendous human problem and philosophical gropings can mean but little.

Its underlying theme is of such enormous significance that the minor flaws may well be overlooked. Certainly as a play to be performed in the theatre its flaws do not lessen its potency, if, indeed, they do not actually add to it. "Monna Vanna" is far more lucid than most of its author's previous plays. Each of its principal characters involves, to be sure, something of symbolism, but here the symbolism is not veiled in a strange mystic philosophy which defies intelligent comprehension. Giovanna, Marco, Prinzivalle, and Guido—each is a clearly defined figure, moving, thinking, acting as a living, breathing human being. It has none of the deceptive, impenetrable fogginess of Pelleas and Melisande.

Viewing the play solely from the standpoint of our times, its chief defect is readily enough apparent. Maeterlinck labors zealously to justify Prinzivalle's action in summoning Monna Vanna, but he does not wholly succeed in convincing us that the action is in accord with the warrior's tender regard for her and the subsequent bridling of his passion. At the same time it is well to remember in this connection the conditions and atmosphere in which the scenes are laid. The movement of passion in Italy at this time of such a story may well involve an exhibition of vehemence differing radically from anything that would prevail in our more orderly and restrained day.

The play's worth stands forth all the more prominently because its presentation, though evidently undertaken in a spirit of laudable ambition, falls far short of the actual demands. There is much in this production to command respect, little to excite enthusiasm. Of artistic inspiration it discloses practically nothing. Its three elaborate scenes, built and painted to suggest solid grandeur, achieve that purpose, and numerous supernumeraries add a hint of the bustle and hurry, the alarums and the vicissitudes of war. But for all its richness of color and its crowds of people there is little of that subtle atmospheric suggestion which alone serves to differentiate times and places and nationalities in the theatre.

To realize how far short of the requirements the performance falls in this respect it is only necessary to remember the scene in which Vanna and Prinzivalle stand at the door of the tent watching the convoy passing off by torchlight into the night. Those who are familiar with the Maeterlinck play need hardly be reminded that this incident cannot be adequately visualized on the stage. To attempt to realize it indicates an absence of artistic perception. If one deals with these matters first it is because they represent to an extent what was an unknown quality in last night's performance.

To any one who has studied Mme. Kalich's previous performances in this city it was reasonably certain at the outset that she could not realize the tremendous requirements of the titular rôle. She is an actress of some crude emotional power who has as yet learned almost nothing of the value of repose, and to whom the deeper significance of the purpose of playing seems as yet to be an unopened book. There are occasional flashes of peculiar brilliancy in her work, which serve for the most part, however, to reveal the general paucity of her resources. Her playing throughout is of most uneven quality, and her transitions from one phase or emotion to another may be best described as choppy. She lacks, in other words, every suggestion of artistic fluidity, and one is invariably impulsed with the fact that what she does is the result always of momentary impulse rather than of well-reasoned motive. Her best moments are in the first and last acts. In the former she conveys with some degree of success the mental distress which harrows Giovanna at knowledge of the terrific sacrifice she is about to make in going from Pisa to the tent of the enemy to save the city.

The scene in the tent, however, especially that portion of it which follows Prinzivalle's revelation of his love and his act of self-denial, is played in a spirit of childishness which no possible interpretation of the text could make plausible. Giovanna stands for innocence, but it is not the innocence of juvenility. There should be a statuesque grandeur about the figure throughout. As Mme. Kalich plays it there is no such quality apparent even in the moments of her greatest heights. The purpose of Vanna is not the portrayal of woman's conflicting loves and femininity in distress, but an obvious symbol of heroic self-sacrifice.

It would be an extremely difficult matter to cast this play satisfactorily, for each of its four chief rôles demands a degree of virtuosity which is lacking in all but the greatest of dramatic artists. We imagine that an ideal cast for it might include Tomaso Salvino as Guido, Mounet-Sully as Marco Colonna, and Mme. Dusé as Giovanna. And it hardly seems possible that actors of any less powerful attainments could even approximate its necessities. This being the case, to go into details as to the individual shortcomings of the several persons who sought to enact its rôles last night would be futile. They did little more than wear the costumes and speak the lines, and in several instances they spoke the lines with so much mouthing and so little suggestion of their vaster meaning that they only succeeded in conveying into this powerful Maeterlinck play a quality of mysticism which for once the author himself has avoided.

The only possible manner in which Guido can be truly rendered is in a steady ascent of frenzy from the moment he learns of the bargain into which Vanna is forced until the climax of his unbelief in Vanna's truth. It is a part to which no actor who does not possess the faculty of readily adopting a nationality as completely as if it were his own can do the least justice. A semblance of the fire and passion of the Italian temperament is an absolute necessity, and it was lacking in each case last night.

GOODWIN IN "WOLFVILLE."

Play Adopted from Alfred Henry Lewis's Book Is Produced.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—Nat C. Goodwin added a new characterization to his répertoire when he appeared at the Broad Street Theatre to-night for the first time in "Wolfville," a play from Alfred Henry Lewis's book of that name, the dramatization being by Clyde Fitch and Willis Steel.

Mr. Goodwin has not been seen in rough-and-ready clothes since the days of "Mizzoura," and in the part of Cherokee Hall, a typical gambler of the Southwestern plains, he seems to have found a vehicle for his character work and comedy. Mr. Goodwin has drawn a character study of the Westerner with a rough but honest nature.

OLGA NETHERSOLE'S PLAY.

"The Labyrinth," Presenting a Divorce Problem, Produced in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Miss Olga Nethersole, before a large and fashionable Washington audience, to-night gave her interpretation of Paul Hervieu's argument for the sentimental solution of divorce problems in an English version of "La Dédale" under the title "The Labyrinth."

Miss Nethersole's rôle is that of Marianne de Pogis, twice married, once divorced. In a moment of weakness brought about through the illness of her child, Marianne returns to her first husband. Then, overcome with remorse, she declares that for the future she will live only for her child. In a highly dramatic scene in the last act, when Marianne says farewell, these two men come face to face. Miss Nethersole's company includes Hamilton Revelle, as Max De Pogis; Hubert Carter, in the part of the second husband; Miss Dorothy Grimston, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, who made her first appearance in America to-night; William Farren, Jr., Charles Quartermaine, Harry Dodd, Louise Mollie, and Cicely Richards.

MANTELL AS RICHARD III.

Actor Wins Applause in the Character of Shakespeare's Consistent Villain.

That most thorough-going of all the determined and consistent villains of the English-speaking stage, Richard III., appeared in this city last evening once again in the person of Robert B. Mantell, who began at the Garden Theatre a series of revivals of classic plays, the venture receiving its managerial impetus from the strenuous hands of William A. Brady.

Mr. Mantell is not a stranger to this city. He appeared here no longer ago than last season, but he has many admirers who insist that opportunity to reveal his real quality to metropolitan observers of things theatric has hitherto passed him by. This complaint will avail no longer, for much Mantell is promised in plays ranging from Richelieu to King Lear.

Though one may be pardoned for expressing a reasonably qualified dissent from the managerial statement that Mr. Mantell is "conceded to be the greatest living tragedian," the actor has certain gifts that justify him in undertaking divers parts identified in our memories with the greatest of our time. He has a deep, expressive voice, a good presence, a plastic masque, and a conscientious spirit. All these qualities served last night sufficiently well to interest and hold the large audience that assembled to see and hear him.

Richard's diabolic humor, his incredible cruelty, his devotion to the powers of evil—all these were well within Mr. Mantell's ability to indicate, but the underlying keynote of the character—the foundation on which his sinister soul upreared itself—was a certain demoniacal energy, a fever of the will, an invincible, never sleeping devotion to evil, and of these scarcely more than a suggestion crossed the footlights.

There are certain passages in this "portrait of a devil" that are so amazingly incredible, so false, in fact, to common sense and human experience, that it takes nothing less than genius to lift them above the ridiculous. Such an audacious scene is, of course, the wooing of Lady Anne by the bier of her royal husband. There have been actors who could make ons almost accept this scene—almost, but not quite. But Mr. Mantell is not one of them.

A picturesqus and imposing villain he always was, and there were strong moments in the course of his performance, notably in the tent scene, that precedes the battle of Bosworth Field. Hearty plaudits welcomed both the star and Mrs. W. G. Jones, who appeared as the Duchess of York, and Mr. Mantell made a modest speech after the third act.

The indefatigable Mr. Brady did not carry out his threat to assume a coat of mail and a martial aspect and try conclusions with the supernumeraries in the clash of arms that wrought the ruin of Richard. Had it only been fought in a twenty-foot ring! But, alack! those good old days are gone. Nor was the battle itself so fearsome a spectacle as we had been led to anticipate. However, it did for Richard as of yore, which fulfills all reasonable demands.

WASHINGTON THEATRE OPENS

Society Gives Belasco and Miss Bates a Warm Welcome.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Independent theatrical managers, led by David Belasco, the Shuberts, and Harrison Grey Fiske, had a brilliant inauguration of their new Washington home to-night, when the Belasco Theatre, which stands on the site of the old Blaine house, was opened with Miss Blanche Bates in the title rôle of the latest Belasco play, "The Girl of the Golden West."

The audience was representative of Washington society and included most of the members of the Cabinet and the Diplomatic Corps, with their wives.

Both Mr. Belasco and Miss Bates were heartily received.

"The Lion and the Mouse" Produced.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—"The Lion and the Mouse," a drama by Charles Klein dealing with love and politics, was produced at the Park Theatre to-night by a company headed by Edmund Breese and Grace Elliston. The play was well received.

"The Bishop's Carriage" Staged.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—"The Bishop's Carriage" had its first performance at Powers Theatre to-night. The author, Channing Pollock, was present. The second act received six curtain calls. Mabel Taliaferro is Nance Oldfield and Arthur Byron Mr. Latimer.

DID TRIPLE SOMERSAULT.

Acrobat Achieved His Ambition, but Came Near Losing His Life.

Dan O'Brien, the Hippodrome athlete, who leaps over elephants and camels with astonishing ease, yesterday executed a triple somesault and in so doing achieved the ambition of his life.

O'Brien claims the record double somersault distance of thirty-two feet, but had been deterred from attempting a third turn by the fate of others who had tried. Early yesterday morning, however, he made up his mind that he would make the trial. Every one connected with the Hippodrome assembled to see the result.

The straw bed on which the acrobat alights was placed twenty-five feet from the springboard. On the signal being given O'Brien dashed up the runway and bounded fifteen feet in the air with terrific impetus. Twice he revolved and then when he appeared about to fall he gathered all his strength and made the third turn landing exhausted on the pad. When asked how it felt he said:

"I lost all brain sense after the second turn and expected that I was done for. I'm content with the double hereafter."

HE PUNCHED POCO BENNETT.

Rafael Torrulla, Harvard Student, Arrested—Fought to Get Train.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—Rafael Torrulla, a Portuguese student at Harvard, whose home is the Hotel Imperial, New York, will be called in court to-morrow to answer a charge of assault preferred by "Poco" Bennett, known the country over as the "Ole Clo" man and money lender at Harvard.

Bennett alleged that Torrulla owed him $3,000, and was about to leave the State. He went to the South Station this morning with a constable to detain the student. Torrulla was bound for New York, and, vexed at delay, hit out right and left, landing heavily on Poco's jaw. Several police Inspectors on duty at the station went to Bennett's rescue. The student. It is understood, is engaged to marry a Boston woman.

It was a wild Western scene in the barroom at Maverick—the Overland Limited standing just beyond the door ready to pull out—that lifted "The Squaw Man" at Wallack's last night out of initial dullness into what looked to a man in a first-night stall very much like success. The dullness was in the first act—which has an English setting—and it was a dullness so dense that a first night full house had but one really good excuse for applause—that at the entrance of the familiar figure of William Faversham. He was wearing one of the little red coats which the British officer (in all plays) wears for evening.

The first act served merely to exhibit these coats and show why Capt. James Wynnegate, (Mr. Faversham,) cousin of the Earl of Kerhill, assumed for the honor of the house and for the Countess's sake the responsibility for certain peculations of his lordship, and became an exile to America. The second act begins the real play—and the real play, though conventional to a degree and full of all those appeals to time-worn sentiment at which G. B Shaw jeers, undoubtedly pleased the company.

The first glimpse of the stage set as a Western barroom, with the brawny mixer behind the counter, and the fellows in chaps, spurs, Colts, and wide hats seated about waked people up. As far as could be observed, they kept awake—even Jerome K. Jerome, the humorist, who was in a stage box.

It was an admirable bar to look at, with an admirable bar-keep, (Frederick Watson,) The things that were done were lively, picturesque things—things with contrasts—things to induce both laughter and that swelling of the heart which follows brave deeds or noble sentiments—in spite of Mr. Shaw. The actors rendered them with spirit, too.

Edwin Milton Royle, the author, has, in short, provided Mr. Faversham with a fine series of noble attitudes, all of which Mr. Faversham fills as if he were made for them. In the beginning Capt. Wynnegate is brave, self-sacrificing, and unlucky. Women love him, particularly Diana, Countess of Kerhill, (Selene Johnson.)

In his exile there is an Indian maiden (Mabel Morrison) who loves him, too, and to her he remains faithful, even when the title and the Countess come after him into the desert.

Miss Johnson has opportunity for excellent work just at the end of the third act. The Indian maid's part is pantomime, and Miss Morrison looks very tragic in it. There's an Indian chief, her father—his part pantomime and grunts—admirably portrayed by Theodore Roberts.

The part, outside of Mr. Faversham's own, which gets the most attention is that of Big Bill, foreman of the exile's ranch. George Fawcett is Big Bill, and fills the bill. Facially, in particular, he is most attractive. Cecil Ward as the farcical Englishman is effective in the scenes where he serves to "draw," as it were, the Westerniess of the West.

A man in the lobby was heard to remark that after "Man and Superman" this was the best play of the season.

IRVING'S TITLE UNSOUGHT.

Coleridge, Answering Shaw, Says Actor Once Declined Knighthood.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The assertion made by George Bernard Shaw in a recent article by the Neue Freie Presse of Vienna that Sir Henry Irving importuned the Court to confer knighthood upon him has provoked an interesting denial from the Hon. Stephen Coleridge, artist and author, son of the late Lord Chief Justice Coleridge. As a friend for thirty years of the dead actor, he has written a long letter to the Neue Freie Presse.

Mr. Coleridge says that he asked his father to propose the matter to Premier Gladstone in 1883. Mr. Gladstone said that before making the suggestion to Queen Victoria it was essential to know if Mr. Irving would accept the honor. Mr. Coleridge quotes from his diary the result of an interview with the actor on the subject from which it appears that Irving, while grateful for the proposed honor, declined it on the ground that, as his strength as a manager and his power as an actor lay more in the sufrages of the plain folk of the pit than on the patronage of great people, he knew instinctively that large numbers of those same plain folk would be offended at their simple Henry Irving accepting decorations of a titular kind." When, however, in 1895, Queen Victoria, on the advice of Lord Rosebery, offered knighthood to Irving, the actor was confronted by the great delicacy of risking an offense to the Queen by a refusal.

"But," says Coleridge, "the fact that to the end of his life he appeared on the play bills as plain Henry Irving shows that his opinions remained unchanged."

Mr. Coleridge concludes by expressing the opinion that the "romantically inclined millionairesses who placed large sums of money at Irving's disposal "are the creations of Mr. Shaw's "fecund imagination."

Shuberts Open Detroit House.

DETROIT, Oct. 23.—The Lafayette Theatre, recently leased by the Shuberts, was opened to-night as an independent playhouse. One of David Belasco's companies, with Odette Tyler, Edna Wallace Hopper, Howard D. MacLean, Orrin Johnson, and John E. Kellerd, presented Mr. Belasco's play, "The Heart of Maryland."

AT THE THEATRES YESTERDAY

Jamee T. Powers in his new comedy ekit, "Dreaming," won much applause at the Colonial, where he was the head-liner of the bill. Others were Nella Bergen, Fred Niblo, Josephine Cohan and her company in "Friday, the 13th," the Ferreros, and the Welch-Montrose troupe.

At Hurtig & Seamon's Roy Knabenshue was the chief entertainer. He gave an interesting lecture on aerial navigation. Among the names on the programme were those of Alda Walker, Max Waldron, Gracie Emmett and company, Henry and Alice Taylor, and John D. Gilbert.

Keith's programme was headed by the Agoust family. Will Creesy and Blanche Dayne were others who remained. Lew Sully, Snyder and Buckley, the Le Pagee, Holman Brothers, and Henly and Steele completed the bill.

Henry Lee appeared last evening at the Eden Musée. He gave impersonations of Mayor McClellan, Charles F. Murphy, and District Attorney Jerome. The Hungarian Orchestra gave its usual concerts.

Emmett Corrigan in "The Card Party" was the top-line act at the Alhambra. The extra feature was "Two Hundred Wives," in which John Hyam and Lelia McIntyre appeared. The remainder of the entertainers included Mlle. Soga, Burke and La Rue, the Kloess sisters, Clarice Vance, George Wilson, and Toto.

Lillian Russell continued her engagement at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre yesterday afternoon. Joseph Hart and Carrie De Mar, Kitty Traney's circus, Marcel's art etudies, Three Yoscarys, Walter Kelly, and Larkin and Patterson were other features.

Clark's "Runaway Girls" company began an engagement of one week yesterday at the Circle. A vaudeville bill was an additional attraction.

Mme. Laurens and her lions were still features at Huber's Museum. Olga, the snake charmer, and Capt. Witte, the giant, were others in the Curio Hall.

The automobile act, "Motoring," was the top-liner at Proctor's Fifty-eighth Street Theatre. Rice and Cohen, Thomas Q. Seabrooke, Emma Carus, Guyer and O'Neil, James Morton, Hacker and Lester, and Mlle. Celeste completed the programme.

Eva Tanguay began a week's engagement at the American last evening in "The Salmon Girl."

The attraction at the Metropolis was "The Rocky Road to Dublin," with Barney Gilmore as the star.

At the Thalia, "For His Brother's Sake" was presented. The melodrama seemed to please the audience.

At Hammerstein's Victoria the chief novelty was The Little Black Man, a dwarf weighing 20 pounds, 34 inches tall, and 30 years old. Others who entertained were Rice and Prevost, Fred Karno's London Pantomime Company, Empire City Quartet, and Sidney Grant.

The new scenic melodrama, "The Way of the Transgressor," was portrayed to the satisfaction of the patrons of the New Star last evening.

Hal Reid's play, "The Street Singer," began a brief engagement at the Third Avenue last night.

The offering at the Grand Opera was Charles Grapewin in his new comedy, "It's Up to You, John Henry." There were many laughable situations in the piece.

Hurtig & Seamon's production, "In New York Town," was seen at the West End. The engagement is for one week.

"The Cures of Drink" moved over to the Fourteenth Street Theatre last evening. The play was well received.

"The Prodigal Son," recently seen at the New Amsterdam, began a week's engagement at the Harlem Opera House last night. The cast was practically the same as when seen at the Forty-second Street Theatre.

"The Two Orphans" was revived by the stock company at the Yorkville. The leading roles were played by Mabel Montgomery and Eugene Moore.

At Proctor's 125th Street Theatre "The Climbers" was revived. Jessie Bonstelle appeared in Amelia Bingham's old role.

An elaborate revival of "The School for Scandal" was made by the Proctor All-Star Stock company yesterday. Amelia Bingham appeared as Lady Teazle to advantage, while Charles Richman played Charles Surface, the role he played last season with Ada Rehan. The supporting company was adequate.

The attractions that remain in the city are: "A Yankee Circus on Mars" and "The Romance of a Hindoo Princess," at the Hippodrome; "Prunellinflurt," at the Irving Place; McIntyre and Heath, in "The Ham Tree," at the New York; Edna May, in "The Catch of the Season," at Daly's; Luln Glaser, in "Miss Dolly Dollars," at the New Amsterdam; "The Rogers Brothers in Ireland" at the Liberty; De Wolf Hopper, in "Happyland," at the Lyric; "It Happened in Nordland" and the burlesque of "The Music Master," at Lew Fields'; Joseph Cawthorne, in "Fritz in Tammany Hall," at the Herald Square; "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," at the Broadway; Joseph Wheelock, Jr., in "Just Out of College," at the Lyceum; John Drew, in "De Lancey," at the Empire; James K. Hackett and Mary Mannering, in "The Walls of Jericho," at the Savoy; David Warfield, in "The Music Master," at the Bijou; "The Virginian," at the Academy; Maxine Elliott, in "Her Great Match," at the Criterion; Margaret Anglin, in "Zira," at the Princess; "The Prince Chap," at Joe Weber's; Henry Dixie, in "The Man on the Box," at the Madison Square; Robert Loraine, in "Man and Superman," at the Hudson; E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, in "The Taming of the Shrew," at the Knickerbocker and Mrs. Carter, in "Du Barry," at the Belasco.

TOO PROUD TO ASK AID.

The Story of an Aged Bronx Woman Who Dies in Want.

In the death of a white-haired woman from want in a little room at 558 East 139th Street last night there was revealed the story of a life of devotion and pride. The woman was Miss Matilde Van Dolsen, 72 years old, a granddaughter of an officer on the staff of Gen. George Washington and a daughter of an officer who was twice wounded and twice taken prisoner in the War of 1812. Although she and her sister, Miss Frances W. Van Dolsen, 70 years old, with whom she lived, could have obtained help from many sources, they were too proud to ask it.

When their father, who was a Custom House employe, died, twenty-five years ago, he left them a little money. The sisters, neither of whom had ever married, liver frugally and managed to get along for a few years. But the money gave out at last and they got employment at something—what it was nobody in the neighborhood ever learned—and worked steadily until they became too old to work.

Many persons in the neighborhood of 139th Street knew the sisters, who always welcomed them in their two little rooms on the top floor, until poverty overtook them. Then they would receive no one.

They often spoke of their father, William H. Van Dolsen, a soldier in the war of 1812, and their grandfather, Henry Van Dolsen, Washington's staff officer. On the walls of their rooms were hung relics of the Revolutionary War and the war of 1812. Their grandfather's old flintlock musket, his revolver, and long sabre are hanging on the walls to-day. Their father's old-fashioned rifle, revolver, parts of the old-time uniforms, and powder flasks are there also.

A few months ago Miss Matilda was stricken with paralysis, and when a physician was sent to the house he advised that she be removed to a hospital.

"Can I have my sister Francis with me?" she asked.

"No," replied the doctor, and she refused to go.

NO PLAN TO DIG CANAL MADE BY COMMISSION

Mr. Taft Says Data on Contract Question Are Still Incomplete.

ANGRY OVER ANNOUNCEMENT

Army Officers Will Report on the Advisability of Fortifying the Canal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—How far confusion of counsels has hindered work on the Panama Canal was revealed to-day when Secretary of War Taft admitted that no determination had been reached on the important question whether the digging shall be done by contract or not.

A local newspaper to-day published what purported to be an authoritative statement to the effect that the Government was going to enter into contracts with corporations or individuals for the construction of any portion or all of the canal.

When Secretary Taft saw the report he was angry, and departed from his custom so far as to dictate this statement:

"The question whether the canal will be built by contract it is not of course possible now to determine. Mr. Wallace, the former chief engineer of the canal, expressed a tentative opinion that probably much of the work, except the Culebra cut, could be let by contract. It is impossible, however, to make plans for this until the data are obtained, which are now being secured.

"I have not discussed the matter with Mr. Shonts, or with Mr. Stevens, the chief engineer, because the question has not yet come up for settlement. I give you only the impression I received from conversations with Mr. Wallace on the ground. There is nothing in the policy thus far pursued which would prevent the letting of any part of the work by contract if found to be profitable to the Government."

Thus after three years the important question of construction has not come up for settlement. On June 28, 1902, the Spooner act was passed and cartoons representing Uncle Sam with a spade over his shoulder rushing to the Isthmus were the order of the day. On Feb. 26, 1904, the ratifications of the treaty were exchanged and there was another chorus of jubilation. On April 28, 1904, an act providing for the government of the canal zone and investing the President with autocratic power for the purpose of rushing the work was approved.

The Shonts commission, which followed the Walker commission, has done great work toward the protection of health on the Isthmus. But for all that the building of the canal is a problem with the solution of which the Administration is only just beginning to grapple.

Secretary Taft, on his visit to the Isthmus, will take up the important question of fortification of the canal. He said this afternoon that Gen. Story and Majors Black and Goethals will go with him to consider this question. Gen. Story is a member of the Fortifications Board of the army, which has been carrying out the work of the Endicott board of 1886. The others are in the engineer corps.

There are plenty of officers in the army who scout the possibility of fortifying the canal.

"How is it going to be done?" asked one of them this afternoon. It is easy enough to put up a lot of big guns at either end that will prevent an enemy from landing there to commence an attack But no enemy would ever attempt such a thing. He would land on the beach fifteen or twenty miles away and march around all the fortifications that could be erected. Fortifications at the ends would protect the terminals, but alone they could never save the canal from a determined attack."

Secretary Taft admitted that there was something in this view of the matter.

"After the officers have been over the ground," he said, "if they report that it is useless or impossible to erect fortifications, why that will be their report. And if they say that it is possible and advisable to construct forts, well and good. Then it will be for Congress to say what shall be done."

CLERK SHOT A BANK ROBBER.

Country Store Shooting Victim Identified as "Connecticut Billy."

Special to The New York Times.

OGDENSBURG, Oct. 23.—A photograph of the burglar killed by a clerk in the act of robbing the Jennison & Gallup Company store at Sheldon a few nights ago has been identified by Chief Inspector Watts of Boston as that of "Connecticut Billy," one of a gang of Post Office burglars.

Chief Watts's identification corroborates that of J. F. McCarty, a yeggman serving a long-term for robbing the Windham Company Savings Bank at Newfane, who was a partner of the dead burglar in various jobs. "Billy" took part in a bank burglary at Warrenton, Va., and later was apprehended for a job in Ohio. After a term in Columbus Prison he traveled with a gang of professionals through West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Ohio.

NOT TO BLOCK CUBA'S TREATY.

Washington Has Pointed Out Disadvantages of British Convention.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—It is reiterated on the highest authority that, although convinced that the proposed Anglo-Cuban treaty is distinctly injurious to Cuba's interests, the Washington Government has never indirectly or directly questioned Cuba's full right to negotiate such a treaty with Great Britain or with any other foreign nation.

When asked by Cuba for an expression of opinion regarding the proposed treaty, the Washington Government pointed out that it would preclude this country from giving Cuba any further commercial concessions.

"JERRY" SIMPSON DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Was Known in Congress as the Sockless Statesman.

HAD A REMARKABLE CAREER

Rode Into Office on Populist Wave After Opponent Had Treated Him as a Joke.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 23.—Jerry Simpson, known when he was in Congress as "the sockless statesman," died at 6:05 o'clock this morning from aneurism of the aorta. He was conscious until five minutes before death. His wife and son were at his bedside.

His condition became hopeless ten days ago, and since then the patient was kept alive principally by sheer force of will. He had been in ill-health for nearly a year. Six months ago he consulted a specialist in Chicago, who pronounced his case hopeless.

Burial will take place at Wichita. The Masonic Order will have charge of the funeral.

Born in the Province of New Brunswick 63 years ago and baptized with the plain name of Jerry, ex-Congressman Simpson earned his famous sobriquet of "sockless" in his first political campaign by holding out his insufficiently clad foot to show the voters how poor the lot of the hard-worked farmer was, while loafing politicians were walking about in silk stockings. But before becoming a farmer-reformer he had been a sailor for twenty-three years, with a brief three-month period of soldiering thrown in.

When he was a boy of 6 his parents moved into Oneida County, N. Y. At that time Jerry's ambition was to become a pirate. But instead he had to work harder than most children—so hard that to him the usual happy memories of childhood were unknown. At 14 he left home to try if by working for himself he might not get a little more out of it. He made his way to the great lakes. In the Summer he sailed the lakes. In the Winter, when navigation was closed, he earned his bread in lumber camps.

The civil war found him willing to fight and he enlisted in the Twelfth Illinois. But hardly had he reached the front when illness seized him, and inside of three months he was sent back home. He returned to the lakes. He was graduated from before the mast. He rose from mate to Captain. He became a commander of sailing and steam craft, with quite a reputation inside his own narrow sphere. And, as the years went by, he saved a little money.

One day he decided he had had enough of the sea. And with his money he bought a farm in Kansas, settling first in one county and then moving to another. The political upheaval of 1890 found him rather more prosperous than the average Kansas farmer, but even then he was very far removed from wealth, although to this day neither his friends nor his foes have been able to decide whether his sockless condition was a result of necessity or of personal idiosyncrasy or a political stratagem. When the Farmers' Alliance lodges suddenly decreed that whosoever sought an office should go officeless and started to scatter Supreme Court and Congressional and legislative nominations among farmers, one of those struck by the political lightning was Jerry Simpson, who was intrusted with the task of beating Col. James R. Hallowell of Wichita, one of the most popular and able Republicans in the State, for Congress.

Col. Hallowell thought it a great joke. So did the Republican politicians. And, to make it still better, Simpson, it was found, took the nomination in earnest. He went from farm to farm; he spoke to the voters in their own homely language; he spoke of their nearest interests. When at last his opponents began to think him dangerous they tried to finish him by telling as a proof of his illiteracy how he was wont to spell the name of his home town "Maldson Loge" instead of Medicine Lodge. Simpson replied that he was a poor-witted man who did not know how to spell a name in more ways than one. And the laugh was on the other side.

On election day the farmers to a man voted for "Sockless" Jerry, with the result that Hallowell was defeated by such a majority as the State had never heard of before. And this so added to the popularity of Simpson that he was generally talked of as a candidate for the Senatorship which the Populist Legislature had to dispose of. Judge Pfeffer got it, however, and when at the end of his first term Simpson was renominated, defeat was his lot. But two years later he tried again, was placed on the ticket both by Democrats and Populists, and defeated the Republican candidate by nearly 3,000 majority.

Of late years Simpson had made his home in New Mexico.

CLERGYMEN FOR WEAVER.

Methodists and Baptists Appeal for Reform—Health Head Resigns.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—The Methodist and the Baptist clergymen of this city at their weekly meetings to-day adopted resolutions in support of Mayor Weaver "in his fight for the people." The Methodist body suggested the desirability of addresses from the pulpit making clear "the vital moral principles upon which the issue is to be decided."

Dr. Edward Martin, Director of the Department of Public Health and Charities to-day sent his resignation to Mayor Weaver. The salary of the office is $10,000 a year. Dr. Martin said:

"I resigned for personal reasons. My private practice and the encroachment of my university work were demanding more of my time than I could give while remaining at the head of the department."

Dr. Martin, who was appointed by Mayor Weaver on June 1, 1903, reorganized the Municipal Hospital and the Philadelphia Hospital, and increased the number of medical Inspectors from thirteen to fifty in order that the public schools might have proper attention.

I HAVE been asked many times, by many people, just what is the most important step in the making of a cigarette; just what quality it is, that makes one better than another. This question is difficult to answer. There are many steps—some perhaps of more vital importance than others, but all essential to the production of fine quality. The unequaled richness of flavor and aroma that distinguishes is due mainly to two things:

First, careful selection of the rarest, richest Turkish leaf procurable; and second, to the perfect maturity of that leaf.

It takes an expert to do both of these things. In the Murad I have utilized sixteen years' experience, as government tobacco expert of Turkey, to do both of these things just right. The eager acceptance of the Murad by the connoisseurs of America proves that I have succeeded.

PACKERS ATTACK PROCESS.

Compelled to Give Evidence Against Themselves, Says Plea in Bar.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Declaring that testimony the packers were compelled to produce before the Secretary of Commerce and Labor was used by United States District Attorney Morrison in obtaining an indictment against the packers, and alleging that inasmuch as the same issues as mentioned in the indictment were raised and disposed of in an injunction writ issued by Federal Judge Grosscup, the packers who are under Federal indictment here charged with conspiracy again attacked to-day the "Beef Trust" process.

A special plea in bar and an additional special plea in bar were filed by counsel for the packers. The nature of the plea was a surprise to the Government officers.

MODEL COLONY IN STOCKADE.

Coke Company In Chicago Suburb Plans to Keep Men at Home.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—In an effort to make a model colony of workingmen, whose members will not be constantly changing employment, a coke company at South Deering opened a new community to-day. A stockade surrounds the plant. Three hundred Hungarian and Austrian employes, with their families, making a population of 1,600, will live and labor within the walls.

Places of entertainment, including a dance hall, have been provided. Curfew will ring at 9 o'clock. The dance hall was opened with a ball.

SPENCER ON ROOSEVELT.

Says the President's Views on Rate Regulation Have Changed.

WASHINGTON, Oc. 23.—Samuel Spencer, President of the Southern Railway, made a brief stop in Washington to-night on his way South. In expressing his views on President Roosevelt's recent speech at Raleigh, N. C., on railroad legislation Mr. Spencer said:

"The President's speech indicates that he is not disposed now to insist that the power over rates which he favors should be exercised by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, but by 'an administrative body.' Again in the Raleigh speech the President advocates that the administrative body shall have power after complaint and hearing to fix only a 'maximum rate,' not an absolute rate, unalterable thereafter by the carrier, as provided for in the Esch-Townsend bill.

"The difference between these two positions is vital. To fix absolute rates unalterable by the carrier in many cases is to determine definitely and arbitrarily by governmental tribunal the relative advantages of competing cities or regions. To prescribe maximum rates only leaves the carrier free to make reductions, and may, and generally will, result in adjustments which will bring down whole tiers of rates, leaving the relation of rates as they were and entailing enormous losses to the railways."

CANNOT FIND STOLEN $10,000.

Home of Cunliffe's Father-in-Law Searched by Detectives.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 23.—David L. Thornhill, Superintendent of a private detective agency of New York, several detectives, and Hartford police officers went to East Hartford to-day and made a search of the home of J. F. Boardman, the father-in-law of Edward George Cunliffe.

They found nothing. It is supposed they were trying to discover the whereabouts of the missing $10,000 stolen from the Adams Express office in Pittsburg.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 23.—In a sermon directed against police methods the Rev. Louis F. Berry said last evening:

"The police authorities had no more right to inflict torture upon Cunliffe, the Adams Express thief, in an effort to extort a confession from him than they would have to torture McCall, McCurdy, James Hazen Hyde, or Chauncey M. Depew for the purpose of compelling them to disclose what had become of certain money about which people are curious."

Trainwreckers' Attempt Foiled.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Oct. 23.—An attempt to wreck the Southern Express on the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad was prevented yesterday by a trackwalker's discovery of large pieces of iron on the tracks near Dauphin. The express was due in less than an hour. Detectives have been assigned to hunt for the trainwreckers.

UNCLE SAM TO BOOM TOWNS.

Lots to Highest Bidder on Opening Two Sites in Idaho Desert.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Two towns, for which the United States Government will act as sponsor, will be created next month in Southern Idaho on sites which are absolute waste. Names already have been chosen—Heyburn for the first and Rupert for the second. The two towns will be seven miles apart.

Heyburn is to be opened on Nov. 14, and Rupert one week later. The Government will sell town lots to the highest bidder. It is expected that the great irrigating canals which the Government is constructing at a cost of $3,000,000 will make the sites very productive. The towns are on the recently constructed branch of the Oregon Short Line Railroad.

WANT THE UNITARIANS IN.

Congregational Clergymen of Boston Protest Against Exclusion.

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—At a meeting of the Congregational ministers of Boston to-day resolutions were unanimously adopted expressing regret at the action of the Executive Committee of the Inter-Church Conference on Federation in excluding the representatives of the Unitarian Church.

The resolutions further express hope "for the sake of the broader interests of our common Christianity and the conservatism of a spirit in keeping with our larger sense of Christian brotherhood," that when the conference itself shall meet provision shall be made for the presence and co-operation of Unitarian delegates.

Why Syrup of Figs is the best family laxative

The Gambler

From the "Cleveland Leader."

GLORY BE, she has done it again!

Who?

Katherine Cecil Thurston, author of that fascinating story, The Masquerader.

In Heaven's name, what has she done?

She has written THE novel of the year again.

What is it called?

The Gambler.

And why do you grow thus hysterical over it?

Because of its pull on the sympathies. When a woman in a book comes out of its pages and grips you like one in real life; when you get all a-tremble for fear she may do this thing and groan and moan because she does do that; when, in a word, she seems so real that your interest is personal and you worry over her, then there is every reason to exult.

—Cleveland Leader.

"Bound to be the literary sensation of the hour."—N. Y. Sun.

"It deserves a wider and more enthusiastic circle of readers than The Masquerader. The reader is led from situation to situation with an unflagging eagerness to know 'what next?'"

MY OFFER: I will, upon request, send one hundred Shivers' Panatela Cigars on approval to a reader of The Times, express prepaid. He may smoke ten of the cigars and return the remaining ninety at my expense if he is not pleased—and no charge. If he keeps the cigars, he agrees to remit the price, $5.00, within ten days.

Shivers' Panatela
Exact Size and Shape.

An offer so liberal that I could not make it month after month if the first ten cigars were not practically certain to sell the box and the box to result in further orders.

I sell only direct to the smoker and at the wholesale price. By cutting out all merchandising expense I am enabled to offer the individual dealing with me direct a cigar at $5.00 per hundred which, sold through the regular retail channels, would cost at the very least ten cents.

The Shivers' Panatela has a filler of pure, fragrant Havana of high grade and a Sumatra wrapper which is a Sumatra. It is hand made by the most skillful workmen and under the best possible factory conditions.

My factory is not a little affair in the rear of a small cigar store in the tenement house district, but is a large five-story building in the business centre of Philadelphia, and I occupy all of it. It is always open to my customers and friends, where they can see their cigars made if they so desire.

I am willing to risk one-tenth of my cigars and expressage both ways for the mere chance of making you a customer.

I must have either supreme faith in my cigars or in the credulity of human nature. That my faith in my cigars is justified is proved by the fact that I have some ten thousand men who are re-order customers, and that the number of cigars going to new customers is a comparatively insignificant part of my whole business.

In ordering kindly write on your business letter head or enclose your business card or give references; also state whether you prefer a mild, medium or strong cigar.

THE CITY VOTE.

This is the busy season for the harmless drudges who are accustomed in every campaign to apportion the city vote among the party candidates by the simple process of subjecting the registration figures to an operation in percentage. The result is not a very safe guide, but with the exception of the inner consciousness the vote of past years is the only guide we have to the vote that is to come. Anyway, it furnishes a good basis for free conjecture.

The total registration in the city this year is 647,089. The proportion of registered voters who will not go to the polls will probably not fall below 5 per cent. nor exceed 7 per cent. of the total. If we call it 6 per cent., the total vote cast will be in round numbers 609,000. In years when there are three candidates for Mayor—the Tammany candidate, the Republican candidate, and an independent candidate—the regular Democratic organization has in the past usually polled something over 40 per cent. of the vote. In 1897, which was the last year in which there were three tickets in the field, there was a total vote of 526,656, of which VAN WYCK received 233,997, or 44.4 per cent. If the Democratic ticket receives that percentage of the total vote this year, 270,396 ballots will be cast for MCCLELLAN.

In 1897 Gen. TRACY, the Republican candidate running against VAN WYCK, Democratic, and LOW, Citizens' Union, received 19 per cent. of the vote. In the four Mayoralty years preceding consolidation in which there were three tickets in the field, the Republican vote cast in what is now Manhattan Borough and the Bronx was somewhat larger. GIBBS in 1884 had 20 per cent.; ROOSEVELT in 1886, 26 per cent.; ERHARDT in 1888 had 28 per cent., and EINSTEIN in 1892 had 38 per cent. The average of these five years is 26 per cent. If Mr. IVINS gets 26 per cent. of the vote cast this year he will have 158,340 votes.

According to this reckoning the total vote for MCCLELLAN and for IVINS would be 428,736. Subtracting this from the total estimated vote of 609,000, there remain 180,264 votes for HEARST and the other Socialist candidates. This would mean probably from 150,000 to 160,000 votes for HEARST.

Percentage is an unobservant mathematical function that looks neither to the right nor to the left, but only upon the figures with which it is concerned. The percentage computation we have made doubtless yields results that will prove to be somewhat unlike the figures published on the morning after election. There are various reasons for not being too trustful when it is a question of percentage of past votes. For instance, in the year 1902 BENJAMIN B. ODELL, running for Governor, received 204,499 votes in the City of New York. He was unpopular, he had offended multitudes of influential Republicans in New York City, and there was little concealment of an intention to make him suffer for his tactless ways and arbitrary machine doings. Gov. HIGGINS's vote last year being a mere incident in the Roosevelt landslide, is, of course, worthless for purposes of comparison. But if the Republicans support their candidate Mr. IVINS with decent loyalty he would have a right to expect a total somewhat nearer 200,000 than the percentage result of 158,340.

Then, too, Mr. MCCLELLAN two years ago received a vote of 314,382 out of a total of 592,864. Running against a strong candidate, Mr. Low, the actual Mayor at the time, Mr. MCCLELLAN polled 53 per cent. of the vote. He was then untried in executive office. He was not known to the great bulk of the voters. He is now well known to all the voters, his record is before them, and he has been proved and not found wanting in an executive post. Indeed, he has so far won the confidence of the people that great numbers of Republicans have for months past been proclaiming their intention to vote for him. Reason and probability, therefore, amending the machine work of percentage, would doubtless materially increase the number of votes allotted to MCCLELLAN over the figure of 270,000 above given.

A decent opinion of the electorate compels us to believe that both Mr. MCCLELLAN and Mr. IVINS will receive a larger vote than that indicated by figures based on former elections. Mr. MCCLELLAN in particular ought to have more than 50 per cent. of the vote. Not only on the merits of his administration impartially judged, but on actual expressions of opinion and intention, we are warranted in concluding that his vote will rise much above the normal Tammany figure. It is of course incredible that Mr. HEARST should receive anything like the vote which his vociferous friends are claiming for him. Everybody hears of the polls taken here and there, of the "straw" vote, and of the great stir his canvass is making. Ante-election polls and straw votes are worthless, and the stir, whatever it may be, that Mr. HEARST's canvass is making is one that must necessarily prove to be not altogether favorable to himself. If the sane voters of New York felt that there was the slightest danger of his receiving a large vote they would, of course, and without distinction of party, take effective measures to protect the good name of the city by casting their votes for Mayor MCCLELLAN, the one candidate in the field who has an experienced, united, and perfectly loyal organization supporting him. The theory that Mr. HEARST is to receive a large vote can have no other basis than a fixed belief that an immense number of the voters are fools and poor blind dupes.

MR. TAFT'S PLAIN SPEECH.

Why should the speech of Secretary TAFT in Ohio so flutter the dovecotes of the Republicans? Here is an exceptionally able and experienced citizen of Ohio, holding a place of great responsibility under the National Administration, which he has won by known fitness and not by favor, who goes back to his State for an hour to give his views as to the issues in the pending election. He tells his fellow-citizens that he thinks it would be a good thing to elect the Republican State ticket, because a Democratic victory would greatly encourage the opposition in National affairs, but as the State ticket is supported rather conspicuously by Boss COX of Cincinnati, and Mr. TAFT does not like to be judged by that sort of company, even if he does keep it for this occasion, he declares that, if he were to be at home on election day, he would vote against COX's local ticket in Hamilton County. That is sensible and it is honest. COX represents and embodies the "boss" principle in Ohio as ODELL does in New York, and as MURPHY does, on the other side, in this city. It is a mischievous and dangerous principle and tends to corrupt the public morals as well as to undermine political independence, to say nothing of the great cost it imposes on taxpayers, especially those who can least afford it. Undoubtedly our system gives peculiar opportunity to the "boss." In a way he is a necessity, for large bodies of men cannot act together without organization, and organization demands leadership. But political leadership is carried on unfortunately with loose accountability, and the only way in which abuses can be checked is by able and honest men, in whom the public has confidence, fearlessly and definitely exposing and denouncing the authors of the abuses.

Just now a lot of this is being done, and in high quarters. Mr. ROOSEVELT is engaged in it in a general way. Secretary ROOT engaged in it very specifically when he was called in to investigate the ring in Philadelphia. Gov. FOLK of Missouri took a hand in the same fight in that city. Mr. Secretary BONAPARTE, ably and gallantly seconded by his political opponent Senator RAYNER, is doing it in Maryland. In each party in various States real leaders, leaders of real standing in National affairs, are cutting the ties between themselves and the local "bosses," and calling the voters to follow their consciences and their judgment. Cynics will say that it is a "spasm of virtue," and will lead to nothing. But it will amount to a good deal. The force of public sentiment in a democracy almost inevitably moves more or less spasmodically. In the usual course of affairs people are absorbed with private matters; it is only on occasions and at irregular intervals that their attention is aroused to public evils, and then, if the evils are made plain enough, they are reduced, regulated, or abolished. Just at present public attention is aroused pretty thoroughly. Mr. TAFT is helping arouse it in Ohio. If it should lead to the defeat of his party in the State, so much the worse for the leaders who brought about the conditions. As for him, he is but doing his plain duty.

THE ANGLO-CUBAN TREATY.

The provisions of the treaty between Great Britain and the Republic of Cuba now under consideration in the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the Cuban Senate, have been pretty carefully studied in Washington, and if the treaty is finally ratified it will be safe to conclude that our Government has not thought it worth while to make very strenuous objection to its terms.

American commercial interests and influential mercantile interests in Cuba have pointed out that the treaty would work to our disadvantage. It practically gives Great Britain the benefits of the most favored nation clause. As a matter of law and international practice Cuba, being a new nation brought into being under our guardianship, had a pretty wide latitude in making treaties with us without extending their benefits in full to other nations. Complaint is made that the pending treaty with Great Britain gives to British ships all the advantages as to port charges, harbor dues, and the right of war vessels to refit and take on provisions that would be enjoyed by our own ships. Articles IV. and V. of the treaty guarantee perfect equality of treatment as to all harbor, tonnage, and port duties and port privileges, it being provided that any privilege granted to a third Power is to be at once and unconditionally extended to Great Britain. The warships of Great Britain under this treaty, in case of stress of weather or accident, would have the right to refit and take on provisions and munitions of war in Cuban ports. Except in case of war with us Great Britain would be able to use Cuba substantially as a naval base.

All these objections may in reality prove to be of such little moment that the Administration would not think it worth while to urge upon the Government of Cuba an amendment of the treaty or its rejection. Under the terms of the Platt amendment, which were incorporated as a part of the Cuban Constitution, it is provided that "the Government of Cuba shall never enter into any treaty or other compact with any foreign Power or Powers which will impair or tend to impair the independence of Cuba, nor in any way authorize or permit any foreign Power or Powers to obtain by colonization or for naval or military purposes, or otherwise, lodgment or control over any ports of said island." By the terms of this appendix to the Cuban Constitution "Cuba consents that the United States may exercise the right to intervene for the preservation of Cuban independence."

Cuban independence is not in question, we presume. If it were, our Government would be in a position to insist upon the rejection of the treaty as being in violation of Cuban organic law. Even if the commercial and port privileges extended to Great Britain were felt by our Government to be in conflict with our own treaty rights, it is to be presumed that the Palma Administration would lend a very attentive ear to a remonstrance against the ratification of the Anglo-Cuban treaty.

"JERRY" SIMPSON.

The announcements of the illness and death of "JERRY" SIMPSON have been the only reminders to the general public that he had so recently been still alive. It is a dozen years since he can be said to have been in public life. In fact, after he had served his term in Congress, and been superseded by PEFFER and other more acceptable spokesmen of the prevalent emotions of Kansas, he had sought New Mexico as a more congenial field for his talents and energies than the State which he had in part represented at Washington. His last public appearance, a speech after the war with Spain, at a meeting of veterans, in which he "gloried in the spunk of the Tagalogs," was too much for his audience and definitively closed his career.

The political value of SIMPSON was only symptomatic. But he had a symptomatic value. What the geographies used to call "The Great American Desert" is subject to periodical drought and failure of harvests. The agriculturists thereof, after a series of fat years, having failed to make provision for the lean year, find themselves owing money which they are unable or unwilling to repay. Then begins a clamor for some kind of cheap money, which will suffice to pay debts. That has been the history of the various agitations about the currency from WEAVER to BRYAN, from 1868 to 1896. Sometimes, indeed, they have proceeded not from a failure but from a glut of crops. There is never any lack of voices to give vent to this endemic discontent, and the loudest voice commonly secures the spokesmanship. After the wave of delusion passes, the prophet of the delusion finds himself without honor, even in his own country. The farmers, in their renewed prosperity, require not the cheapest but the dearest dollar, and look upon him as a bore. SIMPSON's personal eccentricities, such as going without stockings upon the ground that the state of his "distressful country" did not enable him to afford them, may not have done him any good but certainly did him no harm. But, having attained the goal of his ambition, a seat in Congress, he at once found his level, which was that of a nonentity.

The race of demagogues is not likely to die out. The only way in which it can be prevented from asserting itself by opening a Cave of Adullam, in times of agricultural depression in the Northwest, is to "take the currency out of politics" by withdrawing the control of it from Congress. Until that is done, we shall periodically have to face agitations for the debasement of the currency, whether by calling a half a dollar's worth of silver a dollar, or by increasing the volume of "flat" dollars until a paper dollar is no dollar at all. But experience warrants the expectation that these agitations will have no more important result than to get a few more or less of the agitators into Congress, where they are not likely to do any permanent mischief.

It appears that many of Mr. JEROME's opponents, and especially those who are seeking election to his office, regard the District Attorney as "rude." Mr. OSBORNE has said as much, and his opinion is duly indorsed and thereby made authoritative by Mr. MURPHY. It must be confessed that Mr. JEROME does not go about in this campaign with

> All the observance of civility
> Like one well studied in a sad ostent
> To please his grandam,

but his manner suits very well the purpose he has in mind, and the purpose is an extremely good one. He is telling a good many truths which the public ought to know in a manner to be understanded of the people. They find him candid, essentially fair, certainly courageous, and these qualities are not ill-adapted to the office to which they would do well to elect him.

As the President proceeds through the States "lately in rebellion" pious signs of his real presence spring up. Mobile's people plant his breast with the magnolia, flower of the South and the symbol of peace, done in pure gold and inscribed "Blessed is the Peacemaker." Mr. ALLEN CAPERTON BRAXTON, evangel of Virginia's politics, compares his tour to the journey of PAUL on the way to Damascus, and exclaims that the President has seen a great white light; now Southern Democrats may support him in his triune demand for railroad regulation, tariff reform, and "white rule in America." Even Col. HENRY WATTERSON sacchariffies his embittered tongue to hail a Messiah to the South after its wandering forty years in the wilderness of sectionalism.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Even "Italy" Did Not Speak Out.

"Italy," whose curiously and diversely interesting letter, printed yesterday, we earnestly recommend to the study of dialect writers as illustrating the wide difference between the real thing and—other things, also illustrated, we fear, the National or racial peculiarity which makes it so hard for our police to deal with the criminal fraction of the Italian immigrants. His denial that there is any foundation for the "Black Hand" and "Mafia" explanations of the recent assassinations, kidnappings, and explosions in the Italian "colony" might from its source have carried some conviction if it had not been accompanied by an alternative explanation so obviously inadequate as that implied by the statement that the whole trouble could be cured if certain Italian restaurants on the east side were closed at midnight. These places may be bad places and the resort of bad men; they may violate the law in all the ways that "Italy" charged, and the police may have what might be called in this latitude "the usual reason" for blindness to the violations, but it is perfectly obvious that they are results, not causes, and that their frequenters would not be changed in the slightest degree if these particular places were reformed or abolished. And "Italy's" contention that if there were any "Black Hand" there would long since have ceased to be any Detective PETROSINO, while impressive at first sight and thought, will not long endure examination. The methods of these criminals are carefully adjusted to the peculiarities of victims who are in America but not of it. They seem fully to appreciate that they are immune from punishment only so long as they refrain from meddling with those who, whether of Italian birth or not, are of America as well as in it and are both able and willing to trust and to utilize the protective and the punitive possibilities of our laws. Just how much of organization there is among the Italian blackmailers is not worth deciding, since it is immaterial, and the correct name of what organization there is can safely be left to imagination and fancy. The known facts are sufficiently serious, and the most serious of them is the fact that a rather large group in New York's population clings obstinately to the delusion that a few squalid bandits are stronger than the forces of civilization, and that even when they kill they must not be molested or "betrayed."

Capt. Dooley's Ukase Explained.

Commissioner MCADOO's lecture to the police of the "Tenderloin" Precinct was a careful presentation of many important facts as to the relation of the police to people abroad at night, and whether the view of that relation was exactly the one formulated by Capt. DOOLEY in his now gently famous order to his subordinates is hardly a vital question, since it will be necessary to assume that the Captain said only what he should have said, and that the misinterpretation of his instructions was the result of a misunderstanding. The Commissioner himself permitted us to choose between two theories as to the exact nature of the misunderstanding. He seemed to hope that it was merely a failure to remember precisely what the Captain really wanted his men to do, but he more than intimated that it might have been due to a desire on the part of some of the men to bring an unpopular commander into discredit by a combined distortion and exaggeration of his purpose. At any rate, the Commissioner explicitly admitted and declared that "all persons, women as well as men, have the right to be on the public streets and avenues at any time of the day or night on their lawful business or pleasures," and he warned the policemen that while they were charged with knowledge as to the identity of lawbreakers on their beats, they would make at their peril arrests which they were not prepared to justify by proof of lawbreaking. Of course there is nothing at all new or startling in this statement of the rights and duties involved in policing the city streets. It did, however, bring out rather more clearly than usual the extreme difficulty of the task with which the ordinary policeman is constantly confronted—and brought a new realization of the truth that men possessing the wisdom and discretion required to make perfect policemen are not easy to get or often got.

A Poor Kite, Not an Airship.

After spending a lot of money and taking an enormous amount of trouble to build an "airship" with some remote resemblance to a bird, the persistent LUDLOW has at last succeeded in proving that—a kite can be made big enough to raise a man into the air and to give him precarious carriage through a distance carefully limited by an endless chapter of accidents! The result is hardly satisfactory, since the thing has been obvious ever since the kite in its simplest form was invented, has never been doubted since by anybody, and has frequently been demonstrated by men who were too sensible to waste their time in fussing with the absolutely hopeless bird form in making their big kites. Contrivances of the Ludlow type excite even more impatience, in those having some definite idea of the real problems involved in aerial navigation, than do those of the Dumont and Knabenshue type. For from the latter, despite the terrible disadvantage of the balloon, something can be learned about equilibration in air currents, while from the former, though it is an aeroplane of a sort, there is nothing to be learned, because the cord connecting it with the ground creates a set of conditions entirely unlike those in which the coming airship worthy of the name will have to contend, and with which its Captains will have to familiarize themselves.

JEROME.

A National Figure in the Fight of the People Against Graft.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What is the new issue of the new Jerome? Is it not far and away beyond the local issue of this important campaign? East and West and North and South two forces have been growing, the moral intelligence of the people and the intrenched criminal power of political grafters. The mists of popular apathy are rising, and these two forces stand face to face. It is natural, it is auspicious, that the banner of righteousness should be raised, first by Folk, now, for the more decisive battle, by Jerome, able and fearless official prosecutors of crime, and fit representatives of a public conscience, aroused to punish and destroy the grafters of city, State, and Nation.

The issue is freedom, self-government, a return to first principles and human rights. If the moral intelligence of the American people is to govern, the days of the political grafter are numbered. It will be so. Not because we feel it or say it now, but because at last we see the way; a leader has spoken, the door to freedom is open, the rescue is assured. The disease has been diagnosed and the remedy prescribed.

From this day I, for one, recognize no unpurified political party, and in city and State and, if need be, in Nation I shall work only and vote most gladly for the non-partisan candidate, for the man who renounces political ties, denounces political grafters, and presents a strong personal platform of sense and decency. I shall vote the split ticket habitually. I propose the "People's Legislature of 1907," to be elected next year by a campaign of education throughout the State and to consist of first-class men, elected on split ticket and on a platform that shall plainly denounce and openly label each and every known grafter of either party. In hoc signo vinces. By that sign also shall ye know them.

Jerome stands before the people to-day with the unprecedented testimonial of rejection by both machine conventions. Having kept his oath of office, he is willing to accept it again from the people, who this time in fact, as so often in mere theory, can alone confer it. RENTOUL.

New York, Oct. 23, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It must be considered a blessing for the city that a man like Jerome had the courage to take the field against the machine, and if the people will now do their duty Jerome will be elected and he will even be in a stronger and more independent position than before.

While I opposed the regular Democratic ticket four years ago, when I had the honor to represent the Citizens' Union as Chairman of the Twenty-fourth Assembly District, I candidly admit that this uprising of the people compelled Tammany to nominate candidates of a much superior calibre. Mr. McClellan has certainly proved to be the right man in the right place, and should receive an overwhelming vote. OSCAR O. FRIEDLAENDER.

New York, Oct. 21, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With Mr. McClellan out of the way and Murphy's man "Paddy" McGowan as Mayor and Osborne as District Attorney we may reasonably expect such a carnival of crime and graft as to make the administration of one Robert A. Van Wyck look pure, spotless, and angelic.

Are the people aware of the real issues involved, and are they equal to the grave emergency confronting them? If they are, there will be such an overwhelming vote for Mr. Jerome as will cause the "grafter" to sit up and think for some time to come. G. B. D.

New York, Oct. 22, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The course of THE TIMES in regard to District Attorney Jerome should command the attention and receive the support of every citizen. We should all join the fight against the boss-ridden system, and by our votes wreck the machine so it will not be fit for future service.

Mr. Ivins, the Republican candidate, in some respects resembles Mr. Jerome, as shown by the independence which characterizes his utterances. With his inside knowledge he should make a most acceptable Mayor, and I certainly trust these two sterling and strenuous nominees will meet with success. C. J. S.

New York, Oct. 23, 1905.

ALL EYES ON JEROME.

His Single-Handed Fight Wins the Applause of the Country.

From The New Orleans Picayune.

It is profoundly regretted by the most earnest friends of reform in New York City that District Attorney Jerome has received no party nomination to succeed himself in his present office. His name will be, however, on every ballot put in the hands of a voter in New York County on election day, and if he is defeated the loss of his services to the municipality must be ascribed to party discipline, not to the intelligence and public spirit of the responsible electorate.

From The Springfield Republican.

Mr. Jerome's duel with Boss Murphy came quickly to the expected end. It turned out, as the public supposed, that the episode of "Jerome seeking the Tammany nomination" should more properly be called "the Tammany nomination seeking Jerome." The general reputation a man has also helps Mr. Jerome in such a matter. If he should deny Murphy's statements without offering a particle of proof the public would accept his word. For the District Attorney is famous for telling the truth.

From The Chicago Record-Herald.

District Attorney Jerome of New York says to the voters down there: "You know what kind of a District Attorney I have been. If that is the kind of District Attorney you want, vote for me. If not, support the other man." There is a platform that might well be adopted as a model by every officeholder who asks for a second term.

From The Boston Herald.

About all the decent New York newspapers agree that about every decent man in New York will vote for Jerome. We therefore anxiously await the forthcoming census of the decent people of the metropolis, as compiled from the election returns.

From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Jerome K. Jerome must find it hard sledding in New York just now. It is William T. Jerome who is drawing the big crowds for the Jerome family.

From The Montreal Gazette.

If Mr. Jerome is elected it will be a tribute to his work as District Attorney that will be an incentive to other good men to devote themselves to the service of the people.

From The Chicago Daily News.

Those machine politicians who thought this campaign was going to be a pink tea forgot that Mr. Jerome would take part.

From The Washington Star.

Mr. Jerome is doing his best to trample down those old impressions about the man who undertakes to be his own lawyer.

From The Washington Post.

It is apparently unfortunate for Mr. Jerome that none but New Yorkers can vote for or against him.

From The Philadelphia Record.

New York has its moral issue. It is Jerome.

TWO McCURDYS.

The McCurdy of May and the McCurdy of October Strikingly Contrasted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If you will examine the pen portrait of Mr. McCurdy in the May World's Work, (Pages 6,212-13,) you will see that a mistake is being made. Mr. Hughes's McCurdy and the May McCurdy are not the same person. The May McCurdy knows all about the Mutual—is the Mutual, indeed. If you would use your influence to get Mr. Hughes to send for the May one it would be good, for the May one is wonderful and knows everything, whereas the October one isn't and doesn't. HUCKLEBERRY.

Oct. 20, 1905.

From The World's Work, May, 1905.

On the death of Mr. Winston, in 1885, Mr. McCurdy became President. From the very beginning he showed a benevolent tyranny in the administration of the affairs of his office; to-day there is no change in the conduct of the company's business in any field, there is no alteration in the terms of its contracts, there is no little detail of business which does not pass before Mr. McCurdy before it is put into operation. He is not only the head of the company, but is the head of every department in it. It is said, jocularly, that Mr. McCurdy has no second in command—the next in authority is the seventh or eighth. President McCurdy owns such large estates in the vicinity of Morristown, N. J., that he is called in envy "the Duke of Morristown."

As to Life Insurance Examiners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While the financial extravagances of the "Big Three" life insurance companies are being exposed to the public I should like to call your attention to one form of retrenchment which is extravagance in itself. I refer to the fees paid to the medical examiners of the New York and Mutual Life Insurance Companies in the City of New York.

There are two classes of examiners. First, those who receive the salary of $50 a month, in return for which they must make all the examinations required up to fifty; after that they receive a fee of $1 for each examination. The other examiners, in less thickly settled spots, receive a fee of from $1 to $2 an examination. For this fee they are often obliged to travel several miles to the home of the applicant, at any time selected by this agent, and frequently have to repeat the trip several times without extra fee.

The result of these fees, which are smaller than in any other large company, is that the companies are unable to get the best men for examiners, and such men as they do get feel that they are not paid what their work is worth. With such a feeling it is not hard for them to be careless in their work. This condition should be looked into for the sake of the insured, as on the shoulders of the examiner rests largely the determination whether the applicant shall be accepted or rejected.

Actors in Westminster Abbey.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You publish an editorial to-day based on the idea that only one actor, Garrick, has been interred in Westminster Abbey prior to Irving. Mrs. Siddons, Kemble, and Barton Booth have also been placed there.

I know you will be pleased to correct what seems to be a general impression on this subject. GEORGE H. TRADER.

Brooklyn, Oct. 21, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The first English actor that was honored by a conspicuous memorial in Westminster Abbey was Barton Booth, who died in 1733, and who was an ancestor of Edwin Booth. In this connection is it not time that America also thus honor their distinguished tragedian, Edwin Booth, by a public memorial? I. R. G.

Twelve-Cent Cabs for London.

At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the London Cab Owners' Federation it was decided to fix the taxameter to their cabs and to introduce sixpenny fares as quickly as possible. They believe this action will make two great changes in the London cab trade. First, it will increase enormously the number of passengers, as a great many people who would never spend a shilling on a cab will now spend a good many sixpences. Second, they believe it will give employment to a far larger number of cab drivers than are engaged at present.

In addition to the taxameter horsed cabs a number of taxameter motor cabs are promised by a company which is now being formed among London cab owners. It is to be called the London Automobile Cab Company, Limited, and it will have a capital of £100,000 in shares of £1 each. Ten thousand of these shares are to be retained for distribution among the drivers. The remaining 90,000 shares will be offered to the public.

The object of the company is "to establish a reliable system of motor cabs with taxameters in London, which shall ply for hire at the prevailing rates as fixed by act of Parliament for ordinary public carriages."

$100 for Jerome.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Although I have no vote in New York, I feel impelled to make a contribution toward the expense of Mr. Jerome's campaign for District Attorney.

Wishing with all my heart that he may be re-elected, thus defeating the machinations of the bosses of both parties.

Five Tammany Voters, After Listening to Tammany's "Foolish Arguments."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My father, my three brothers, and I are Democrats and have always voted a straight Tammany Hall ticket. We are residents of the Twenty-third Assembly District, and this year we propose to vote the ticket headed by William R. Hearst. ILLEGAL REGISTRATION.

An Election Inspector Resents Imputations Against His Fellows.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an Election Inspector in Charles F. Murphy's district, I beg space in which to resent the imputations cast upon the election officers by one of the candidates for the Mayoralty. At every election in Greater New York there is more or less illegal registration, but it will never be stamped out by fake offers of thousand-dollar rewards. Where is the thousand—how, when, and where is it to be paid? Posting offers at campaign headquarters, where no one will see them, is one thing; making good with a definite, concrete proposition is another.

This Caliban of the Mayoralty contest has a campaign manager who is a resident of the "gashouse," where he has hosts of friends, whose chief regret is that they are not afforded an opportunity to show this esteem in some other manner than by voting for his impossible chief. If there is so much illegal registration in this district, it should be no difficult matter for this campaign manager to ascertain the facts.

Further, every intelligent voter will estimate at its true value the preposterous statement that this candidate's representatives were unable to get access to the registration lists, a public copy of which hangs in every polling place, and which no landlord would dare to allow out of his possession.

The Origin of Thon.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of to-day relative to the origin of the composite pronoun "Thon," a correspondent says, "its inventor is an Englewood gentleman, Charles Crozat Converse, LL. D." Now, Sir, thirty years ago, in the writer's boyhood, this "portmanteau word" was in common use in the commercial capital of Ireland, namely, Belfast; being then used, and I have every reason to believe is still used, as a "contraction of that one"—a correlative word being "thonder," used for "there," or "that yonder." Perhaps, like the writer, Dr. Converse spent his boyhood in that Ulster headquarters of composite speech, which is a composite of English, Irish, and Scotch; and this word, with the invention of which he is credited, may be but an unconscious reproduction of his boyhood's phonetics—the writer occasionally being surprised and amused at finding himself using some long-discontinued and forgotten idiom of "Linenopolis." LANGUAGE.

Jersey City, Oct. 19, 1905.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A neutral pronoun was proposed some years ago, unfortunately I have forgotten by whom, though I believe he was an English man of letters, which deserves consideration. It was derived from the masculine and feminine pronouns and was declined thus: Hesh, hisn, himn. This suggestion has merit, since the terms are short, their meaning is unmistakable, and they come readily off the tongue.

New York, Oct. 20, 1905. HIMN.

Dr. Johnson Taken to Task.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial this morning on Sir Henry Irving's funeral you quote with approval Dr. Johnson's statement that the death of Garrick "eclipsed the gayety of nations."

How could such a statement as that be anything but the most senseless and superextravagant Johnsonese hyperbole? Did Garrick ever act, or was he ever known or discussed outside of England? Did he ever even privately visit any other country than England? What other nation than England justifies a plural here?

I don't blame an Englishman for believing England to be bigger than all the world besides. But Dr. Johnson thought Fleet Street the finest thing in the universe.

He Doesn't Believe in the Age Limit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am very much pleased to see that you have joined hands with other sensible advocates and press associates in advocating the anti-age limit league.

I am a man over sixty-five, and my employers, the New York Life Insurance Company, believe me to be forty, while my social acquaintances do not believe me to be over thirty-five.

Atheism and Tombstones.

From The London Standard.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—A curious and, for many districts of Germany, characteristic struggle has arisen between a certain family living in Gera and the authorities of that town. It began fifteen years ago, when a member of the family died, and it was decided to engrave on his tombstone the words: "We shall never see you again, yet will always remember you." This was construed by the police and the ecclesiastical authorities as an open denial of the doctrins of the immortality of the soul and resurrection of the body, and they gave orders to have the words "never" and "yet" plastered over with cement. For fifteen years the family attempted to have the cement removed, and, failing, took the law into their own hands, again exposing the offending words. Again the Town Council has plastered over the words, and as this operation cost 1 mark 75 pfennigs, (about 1s. 6d.,) they sent in their bill for the amount. As the family declined to pay, they were sued, and thus the matter rests for the present.

HANDICAPPED.

The self-made man is all the rage—
He's mighty glad he's living;
Dame Fortune showers on his head
All things quite worth the giving.
The chaps that climb life's dizzy heights
With steps that never stumble
All boast that their beginnings were Extremely less than humble.

We know that this is so because
They've told us how they did it—
Of all the men that won success
Not one of them has hid it,
But drat advice for climbing up
From nothing to high station!
Just tell us how to get along
Despite an education.

THE HAKEL OF HARAR SIGHTSEEING IN AN AUTO

Do They Keep Husbands at the Little Church?

FEARS FOR SKYSCRAPERS

Rides in Subway and Prays on the Park Row Building—His Patent Leathers Hurt Him.

El Hadji Abdullahi Aly Sadik Pasha, Hakel of Harar, Abyssinia, and personal friend of King Menelek, awoke in his rooms at the Hotel Breslin soon after 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Broadway was rattling and booming heneath the windows. The Mohammedan chief of Abyssinia suddenly remembered that he was not dreaming and that he had come to America to study the ways of commerce and to promote further trade and good feeling between King Menelek's merchants and "King" Theodore's.

As he got out of bed the first thing the Pasha noticed was a pair of patent leather shoes on the floor. The Hakel of Harar sighed. Alexander Tarpinian, the interpreter, came in.

"Must I again wear these shoes?" asked the Pasha.

"Indeed, Most Excellent Hakel. It is the custom of the country."

"Kismet!" said El Hadji, and forthwith began to get his broad feet into the shoes. The Pasha was not used to shoes; at least, not patent leather shoes. He labored much over the buttons, but said nothing until he had the shoes on. Then he reached out a hand for his Koran. He spent two hours at his devotions. A Jerome band went past the hotel.

"That is the way they enthrone small Kings in this country," said the interpreter.

"Then there are many Kings?"

"Ay, many," said the interpreter.

"But are they not all subservient to King Theodore?"

"Indeed, they are. He is a powerful King."

"May his end be happier than that of King Theodore of Abyssinia," said the Pasha returning to the Koran.

After a while the interpreter silently left the room, for the Hakel of Harar and Mohammedan Chief of Abyssinia was now at a part of his devotions where conversation was forbidden.

A Hasty Change of Costume.

It was 10:30 when El Hadji came out of his room ready to begin his day and his breakfast. He was gorgeous in a frock coat, a white waistcoat, carefully creased trousers, with a red fez surmounting his shining black face. The interpreter was shocked; so was Mr. Creighton, an American who has business interests in Abyssinia.

It was pointed out to the Most Excellent Pasha that it would be disloyal to Menelek to cast off the raiment of Abyssinia. But had they not said he must wear the shoes? Well, they would allow him the shoes. El Hadji retired to his rooms again, looking as if he wished they had objected to the shoes, too.

Half an hour later he was in the dining room of the Breslin, looking like the first tints of the rising sun in a garb of white muslin, heliotrope silk, flowing "chookoo," and over all a glorious sunset—a turban done in green, gold, blue, and red. The patent leather shoes looked odd against this outfit.

After breakfast the Pasha, accompanied by Alexander Tarpinian, Hugh H. Creighton, and John Maddigan, who is an American and a business man in Abyssinia, got into an automobile to tour the town. The auto turned east in Twenty-ninth Street.

"This—?" began El Hadji.

"Is an automobile," said the interpreter.

"And he—?" indicating the driver with a tilt of his pointed black beard.

"Is the chauffeur."

"Strange," said the Pasha after a pause. "Is not the word 'chauffeur' French for something in the robber class?"

"I hardly know how the word is applied here," said the interpreter, hastily changing the conversation.

"On our left, Most Excellent Pasha, is 'The Little Church Around the Corner,'" said Mr. Tarpinian.

"But it is not on the corner," protested El Hadji.

"So called because it is convenient for girls who wish to be married quickly."

"Strange. Do they keep husbands there?"

Mr. Tarpinian despaired of making Dr. Houghton's famous church clear to the Pasha. Another trouble loomed ahead. It was the Martha Washington Hotel.

"You say that men are not allowed in that hotel. Why?" demanded the Hakel of Harar in his direct way.

"It is a hotel for women," the interpreter said.

"Strange," murmured the Pasha. "This is a very strange country."

Strange People, These.

The automobile turned up Fifth Avenue, shot over to Broadway, then east on Forty-second Street. El Hadji looked at Bryant Park.

"What has happened to the trees?" he asked. "The leaves are falling off."

"It is now Autumn, Most Excellent Pasha. It will be Winter for five months; then the leaves will return."

"Do the people live here while the trees are without leaves and fruit?"

"Yes, but they go away in Summer."

"Stop. I do not understand. You say in this country the people go away when the leaves come to the trees and come back to live when they are blighted and dead?"

"That is true."

"Strange. It is a very strange country. Why do you stop the—the carriage?"

"We wish you to see the Subway, which is a railway under the ground."

"But you told me there was a railway up in the air."

"There are both."

"Then there are three cities, one up in the air, one on the ground, and one under the ground. Is it not so?"

"That is so."

"Strange—very strange." At the entrance to the city under the ground El Hadji paused. "I should have preferred," he said dubiously, "to have seen all of the city on the ground first."

He traveled in an express downtown. In Wall Street he created some excitement among the messenger boys, as he was escorted to the office of William H. Ellis, the Pasha's personal manager. El Hadji and Mr. Ellis discussed business matters. It was then proposed that the Pasha should go through the Stock Exchange and the Treasury, but the crowd outside had become so great that he had to be taken out another way.

First Trip in an Elevator.

The party went to the Park Row Building, where the Pasha had his first experience with an express elevator.

"It is like some great bird that, as a child, one reads about in stories. It comes and takes you in its beak and carries you away with a rush of air and a who-o-o-o!"

From the top of the Park Row Building the Pasha viewed the city. He did not turn a hair, but was very silent. Then he said, calmly:

"Do such buildings ever fall?"

"Oh, no," was the chorus.

"Strange. But it cannot be so. Time is the Master—and Allah."

At that El Hadji Abdullahi Aly Sadik Pasha dropped on his knees, and facing the east threw out his arms above his lowered head. The party then went hack to the hotel.

At the Breslin El Hadji ate a hasty dinner and retired to his room. Seven reporters' cards were laid before him by Mr. Creighton. The Pasha was in the act of removing the patent leather shoes.

"I will see them," he said.

As Mr. Creighton was going out to summon the reporters the Pasha said suddenly:

"No, no," he said. "I forgot. The Muezzin has called thrice."

And he dropped on his knees before the open Koran. The reporters in the hall waited one hour—two hours—three, then departed. El Hadji was then only entering that part of his devotions where no one must speak.

DOCTORS' CENTURY MEETING.

Medical Society Denounces the Newspapers That Aid Quacks.

The Medical Society of the County of New York held its hundredth annual meeting at the New York Academy of Medicine last evening. The real celebration of the century anniversary will take place in April next, and is to be on an elaborate scale. Before that time the State and county medical societies will have been amalgamated, including about 7,000 physicians.

Champe S. Andrews, counsel to the society, reported on the cases of fraudulent practitioners that had been prosecuted in the last year. He referred to the assistance being given to "quacks and charlatans" by some newspapers that print their advertisements. A resolution was passed denouncing the papers or other publications for printing these advertisements. These officers were elected:

President—Floyd M. Crandall; First Vice President—Walter Lester Carr; Second Vice President—William H. Park; Secretary—John Van Doren Young; Assistant Secretary—J. Milton Mabbott; Treasurer—Charles H. Richardson; Censors—Henry S. Stearns, C. G. Coakley, James E. Newcomb, H. Seymour Houghton, and Egbert Le Fevre.

TALK OF CALLING MURPHY.

Also a Report That Hughes May Summon McCarren.

Testimony of Mutual Life officials on various subjects that were opened up by President McCurdy of that company while on the stand last week will take up the time of the insurance investigating committee to-day and to-morrow, and it is probable that James H. Hyde, formerly Vice President of the Equitable Life, will not be called until the committee meets again after the election adjournment. The sessions this week, according to the present programme, will be the last held before Election Day for several of the up-State members of the committee from the Assembly have contests on their hands that will demand their attention.

A story was current yesterday that Leader Murphy of Tammany and Senator McCarren would be called before the committee at an early date to be asked what they know of the Brooklyn Wharf and Warehouse Company. This was the company that consolidated the warehouse concerns, and in which the Mutual Life became interested. Subsequently the Mutual was obliged to see the company through a reorganization. The report had it that in connection with the reorganization an effort was made to sell the properties to the city, Charles F. Murphy then being Secretary of the Dock Board under J. Sargent Cram. Senator McCarren was supposed to know about the deal on general principles.

James McKeen, associate counsel of the legislative committee, was counsel for some of the bondholders of the Brooklyn Wharf and Warehouse Company when it was reorganized. He said yesterday that the talk of selling the properties to the city grew out of the desire of Bird S. Coler, then Controller under the Van Wyck administration, to have the city acquire wharfage properties in Brooklyn as it had done in Manhattan. Mr. McKeen said that he never heard the name of either Mr. Murphy or Senator McCarren mentioned in connection with this.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Symes Lehr went over to Philadelphia last week, and are being entertained there. The William B. Cadwaladers will give a small dance for them this evening. Mr. and Mrs. Lehr are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Drexel Biddle at Radnor. To-morrow evening Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McKean will give a dinner of sixteen covers for them.

PRINCE OF ADVERTISERS, SAYS PAGE OF SHAW

Doesn't Believe George Bernard Will Shatter the World's Morality.

"MAN AND SUPERMAN" ROTTEN

The Author Surprised That an American Audience Could Enjoy It—Warns Shaw of Chicago.

George Bernard Shaw's "Comstockery" interview from London in THE NEW YORK TIMES some days ago aroused criticism yesterday from Thomas Nelson Page, the author. Mr. Page is at the Holland House. He said:

"It is to laugh. Of course, Mr. Shaw has become a sort of fad in the United States in the last year or so, and in connection with this I want to term him 'the Prince of Advertisers.' Moreover, he is an exceptionally clever man, and withal a humorist. I fancy that no one has had more fun out of all this serious discussion of his plays than he has had. He has shown his cleverness in adopting as his prey the follies of fashionable society, for that society is the most ridiculous thing in the world, and a fair mark for anybody who chooses to shoot at it.

"I have seen two or three of Mr. Shaw's plays on the stage, and they have this advantage—their dialogue is generally clever. But the last one I saw—'Man and Superman'—struck me as being, to adopt a vulgarism, as rotten as anything could well be. One line in it—'Morality to its father, the Devil'—seemed a sort of keynote to the whole.

"I don't believe that ten years ago such a play could have been acted in this country, and it struck me as singular that lines in that play could have been laughed at and enjoyed so tremendously by an American audience.

"Years ago I had a casual acquaintance with Mr. Shaw, who appeared to me to be more or less amusing. I recall at the house of the Pennells in London one night he was exceptionally amusing. He told me that he had never been to America, but that he thought he would like to come over some time especially to visit the tombs of 'the martyrs,' as he called them, in Chicago, to wit: The graves of the men who caused wholesale murder at the Haymarket there by exploding dynamite bombs in the crowd. He thought it murder on the part of the Chicago authorities to hang these Anarchists. He denounced the hangings in bitter terms.

"I told him if he came to the United States he would be treated hospitably, but to accept a piece of advice, and that was that it would not be well for him to talk in that strain when he went to Chicago, for he would surely get hanged himself. Of course, this was semi-jocular, hut I think his opinions expressed then were, and still are, very characteristic of Mr. Shaw.

"But the fact is, from Mr. Shaw's writings I cannot for the life of me, after reading them, feel that there is the least sincerity in them. I see from the foreign dispatches that he is now attacking Sir Henry Irving's reputation. I fancy, however, that that reputation is too firmly established for him to be able to injure it.

"Mr. Shaw says we are enveloped in a spirit of 'Comstockery.' As to that, I confess to an old-fashioned respect for cleanliness in literature as in life. Unfortunately, many apostles of the clean life, in advocating their principles, make themselves ridiculous and give opportunity to their enemies to assail their cause. But decent living has survived many an enemy and many a crack-brained friend.

"I do not believe that Mr. Shaw or any one else can seriously injure the world's standard of morality, which is founded on domestic virtues. The trouble about most discussions of this kind is that they are usually hased upon a consideration of small classes. Mr. Shaw cannot hope to lead us to believe that the British are more liberal minded or better than the American people. It is largely a matter of class. Macaulay said that while the Court of Charles II. was the most corrupt and depraved in the world, the country life in England during the contemporary period was the purest.

"No matter how much the 'smart sets,' or would-be 'smart sets,' in this country or England may figure in the divorce courts, I believe that the hest people in both countries tr to pattern their lives upon principles of strict morality."

ADELAIDE ALEXANDER ILL.

Leading Woman with Ben Greet Operated On for Appendicitis.

Miss Adelaide Alexander, who played leading rôles with Ben Greet's Shakespearean company on the pastoral tour last season, is recovering from an operation for appendicitis. It was performed at her home, in West Fifty-fourth Street, on Oct. 11, hy Dr. R. T. Morris, assisted hy Dr. John E. Stillman. The operation was a success in every way.

Miss Alexander's principal rôles were Rosalind in "As You Like It," Viola in "Twelfth Night," and Helena in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." She suffered from her ailment several times in her engagement, but nevertheless appeared at all performances where she was billed. As soon as the tour was finished she arranged for the operation.

She expects to be able to go out with Mr. Greet's company when it hegins its new tour, having been engaged again for leading rôles.

PENNSYLVANIA CLUB A HOTEL.

Daly's Long Branch Resort Will Reopen in New Guise.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Oct. 28.—Mrs. Philip Daly intends to run the Pennsylvania Club as a Summer hotel next season. She plans to add thirty additional guest chambers to the clubhouse, which will then have fifty or more rooms.

It is also her intention to open a restaurant in connection with the new hotel at West End. The recent sale of the Elkwood Park has made the new hotel venture possible at the Pennsylvania Club.

DAVID BISPHAM TO BE A LIGHT OPERA STAR

Will Produce a Version of "The Vicar of Wakefield" Next Year.

MUSIC BY LIZA LEHMANN

Laurence Housman Has Written the Book—London to See It in the Spring.

That David Bispham is to star in a light opera hased on Goldsmith's "The Vicar of Wakefield," by Laurence Housman, the English poet, and Liza Lehmann, the composer, was made known yesterday.

Mme. Lehmann and Mr. Housman worked on the opera for more than a year. Mr. Bispham received the manuscript last week and has approved it. He plans to make the production in London at the beginning of the season next Spring and bring it to New York the following Winter.

The production will be of great interest in literary and musical circles. Sir Henry Irving put on a version of "The Vicar of Wakefield," and the late Sir Arthur Sullivan had intended to set it to music. He had made several sketches for the music and these are among his papers.

Mme. Lehmann's best-known work is "In a Persian Garden," huilt around the "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam." This was sung all over the country several seasons ago, having heen introduced by Mr. Bispham. Her settings for Tennyson's "In Memoriam" and "The Daisy Chain" suite were heard here afterward.

Mr. Housman has been before the public since 1893. Some of his recent works are "An Englishwoman's Love Letters," "A Modern Antaeus," "Bethlehem, a Nativity Play," "The Were Wolf," and "The Sensitive Plant."

"The composition of the opera for my use came ahout in a curious way," said Mr. Bispham yesterday. "I had desired to carry my work into a different field and had had 'The Vicar of Wakefield' in mind for about two years. I did not know then that Sullivan had had the same idea.

"Summer before last I wrote to Sir Henry Irving, who had played a stage version of this work under the title of 'Olivia' and asked if I could make arrangements to use it as the hasis for the hook of an opera. He wrote very kindly, regretting that he could not ohlige me, as he contemplated a revival of 'Olivia.'

"Soon afterward, while talking with Liza Lehmann, whose 'In a Persian Garden' I introduced in America, I mentioned the incident, and she informed me that she had recently had the same experience, having asked permission to use 'Olivia.' In a few minutes we had agreed to have a new stage version made, that Mme. Lehmann should compose the music, and I should have the opera. At first we wished Egerton Castle to write the book, hut afterward Laurence Housman undertook the work.

"It is a light opera, what the French would call opera comique, something that might be classed with 'Mignon.' It has dialogue and carries the pathos and the quiet, genial humor of Goldsmith's work. We did not care to descend to the level of some light musical works. I have determined that when I enter upon the theatrical life I shall hold to as high a standard of art as I have maintained on the concert and grand opera stages.

"I will have the rôle of the Vicar, which has been drawn with all the pathetic, dignified, yet quaintly, humorous qualities of the original. Mr. Housman has taken some poetic license with the hook, in making the hero a man good at heart, although a rake, and in having the marriage take place on the stage. But only changes necessary for dramatic form have heen made."

OUR SINGERS SUIT NOW.

Mrs. Rider-Kelsey and Witherspoon Engaged for Festival.

Mrs. Corinne Rider-Kelsey and Herhert Witherspoon were engaged yesterday hy the Cincinnati Festival management to sing leading soprano and basso parts in next Spring's festival. Thus two important places at this musical event will he filled by Americans. Time was when the Festival management did not helieve in having American singers and thought it hest to import artists from abroad. Theodore Thomas helleved that home talent was not equal to oratorio as he would have it, and his idea ruled for many years.

Mrs. Rider-Kelsey, who is ahout 25 years old, has had a remarkahle rise in the concert field. She had not appeared on the concert stage prior to a year ago. She had studied in Chicago and came on to New York to study.

She did not realize her opportunities until she was persuaded to try for a choir place last year. She got one in the First Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn and attracted such attention that she was asked to see a musical manager. At her first trial she was told she would not do, but she afterward asked for another hearing, and the result was that she had a chance to go on the concert stage last December.

She attracted the attention of some of the leading conductors and had a chance to sing at the Schiller Festival and the Bach Festival. She has since sung in oratorio at many important performances. At the Cincinnati festival she will find an opportunity to prove her ability in a place where some of the most famous artists of the day have heen heard.

Herbert Witherspoon, who made successful appearances in England last season, will spend this season in the United States and Canada, and will go back to London in the Spring.

Assembly Nominee Is Dying.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 23.—Jacob Geroe, one of the Republican nominees for General Assembly for Passaic County, is dying in St. Joseph's Hospital. He was operated on last Wednesday for appendicitis, and appeared to rally, but on Saturday began to sink. A suhstitute can be placed on the ticket in case Geroe dies before midnight Wednesday.

Killed Woman and Himself.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Mary Frances Scheitlin, aged 35, the wife of Rudolph B. Scheitlin, an electrician at the navy yard, and William A. Botomy, aged 38, were found dead late this afternoon by the husband in the front room of the Scheitlin home. A revolver with which the man is supposed to have shot the woman and then himself was on the floor.

P. LORILLARD RONALDS DEAD.

Operation for Kidney Trouble Carried Off the Noted Whip.

Peter Lorillard Ronalds, 79 years old, the most noted whip in this country and the father of American coaching, died early Sunday morning following an operation for kidney trouble that had been performed on Friday by Dr. Bull and Dr. Gilday. On Wednesday he went to his city home, 113 East Thirty-fifth Street, from his country place, Castle Ronald, at Newtown, Conn., and complained of illness.

The physicians held a consultation and decided that an operation was necessary. Death came a little more than twenty-four hours after it was performed. The suddenness of Mr. Ronalds's illness may be understood from the fact that only a month ago be completed a thousand-mile journey with a four-in-hand.

Peter Lorillard Ronalds was horn in Bond Street in this city on Sept. 19, 1826. The old family home was in what was then the society quarter of New York. His father, William Ronalds, was of Scotch descent, and his mother, who was Miss Dorothy Lorillard, was a daughter of Peter Lorillard. His uncle, the second Peter Lorillard, for whom he was named, built the old mansion that still stands in Bronx Park.

Mr. Ronalds inherited large wealth, but lived unostentatiously and devoted himself to outdoor sports. He once owned race horses, but gave them up, as he found coaching more fascinating. The turnouts he drove in the streets were the talk of the town, and some of the old residents remember the four grays that he used to guide down Broadway as a tandem. His fame as a whip spread throughout Europe and America, and to him is due in large measure the popularity of coaching in this country.

His estate at Newtown, Conn., contains a magnificent mansion surrounded by a park of forty-five acres. In the basement is a tank ten feet deep, and until a year ago Mr. Ronalds arose at 6 o'clock every morning, plunged into the cold water, and took a vigorous swim.

Mr. Ronalds was married in 1859 to Miss Mary Francis Carter of Boston. They separated in 1867, and in 1900 Mr. Ronalds began divorce proceedings on the ground of desertion. The suit was afterward withdrawn. Mrs. Ronalds has lived in London for many years. The funeral will take place from the city home at 10 o'clock this morning.

"COP WITH THE BOOK," DEAD.

James Campbell, Deuel's Probation Officer, Stricken on His Vacation.

Justice Deuel of Special Sessions received word yesterday that his probation officer, James Campbell, was dead in Montreal.

"Jimmy" Campbell was one of the best known and liked policemen in the Criminal Courts Building. He left the city Oct. 16 for a two weeks' vacation, apparently in the best of health. He was stricken with brain fever Saturday in Montreal and died there yesterday morning.

Campbell was 42 years old, lived at 208 East Seventy-fourth Street, and had been on the police force fifteen years. He served under Inspector McClusky in the Detective Bureau and as a precinct detective under Capt. O'Reilly in the East Fifty-first Street Station. He was an expert telegrapher and was in the Telegraph Bureau at Police Headquarters for many years.

Campbell was known as "the cop with the book." He was very well educated, an omnivorous reader, and always carried a hook which he read in his spare moments.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

John A. Quintard.

John A. Quintard, who was once prominent in politics in Brooklyn, died yesterday at his home, 431 Greene Avenue, that borough. He was born sixty-five years ago in Greenwich, Conn., and was for some years in the wholesale grocery and tea business in Manhattan. He studied law at Columbia and was admitted to the bar in Brooklyn. In 1883 Mr. Quintard was elected Alderman at Large in Brooklyn on the Democratic ticket. Two years later he was elected Supervisor at Large, serving two terms. He was for several years counsel to the Charities Commissioners. Mr. Quintard was a member of the Franklin Literary Society, the Royal Arcanum, Knights of St. John and Malta, and the American Legion of Honor. His wife, two daughters, and a son survive him.

F. Oscar Bode.

F. Oscar Bode, one of the most prominent business men of Orange, N. J., died there on Sunday after a long illness. He was born in Orange in 1857, and when he went into business hecame identified with the firm of Adolph Bode & Sons, dealers in painters' supplies. He was President of the Master Builders and the Master Painters' Association of the Oranges, and was also prominent in the First German Presbyterian Church. He leaves a widow, a son, and a daughter, Mrs. Blaschke, of Jeffersonville, N. Y.

Obituary Notes.

CAROLINE PINTO HUBBELL, who died at her home in Bridgeport, Conn., on Sunday, was one of the original Daughters of the Revolution. She was born in New Haven on July 30, 1817, the daughter of William Pinto, who was a private in the militia and participated in the defense of New Haven in 1777 with other Yale students. His daughter was a member of the Mary Silliman Chapter of Connecticut. She leaves two children—George F. Hadley and Harvey Hubbell, both of Bridgeport. Her funeral will be held to-morrow at her late home in Bridgeport.

Mrs. Mackay's Father Very Ill.

ROSLYN, L. I., Oct. 23.—William A. Duer, fifty years of age, father of Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, lies dangerously ill at Harbor Hill. Dr. Delafield and several other New York physicians are in constant attendance, hut they have little hope that he will recover. Members of the family are constantly at the bedside of the dying man.

EX-CHIEF CONLIN DEAD.

He Was in Command of the Police Force from 1895 to 1897.

Peter Conlin, who was Chief of New York Police from 1895 to 1897, is dead. The news that he had died suddenly in Walpole, Mass., at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frederick Irwin, was received by Lieut. Col. Kipp at Police Headquarters yesterday.

Conlin's career was eventful. He was born in this city in April, 1841, was graduated from Grammar School No. 4, marched with the young recruits down Broadway when Lincoln called them to fight, fought valiantly in the Irish Brigade, and came out a Captain. When, as he afterward explained, he joined the police force, not from choice but from necessity, he forged his way to the front from patrolman to Superintendent.

Conlin was a half brother of William Florence, the actor, and had some experience in the business end of the stage. He tried to be a lawyer, but gave this up and went with Purdy's Chatham Theatre. Afterward he was with Fox & Lingard. Then he joined his brother "Billy," who was playing in "Lalla Rookh."

In 1861 the company was playing in Philadelphia, when it was announced that Fort Sumter had been fired on. Conlin came back to New York and joined Company G of the Twelfth Regiment. He left that regiment, however, and joined the Irish Brigade, going in as a Lieutenant and coming out as a Captain.

Conlin joined the police force on July 2[illegible], 1869, becoming a Roundsman on Dec. 6, 1872, and a Sergeant on July 19, 1876. On Dec. 6, 1895, he was made Chief of Police. He succeeded former Chief Steers, who had succeeded Byrnes. Conlin was succeeded by John McCullagh. Conlin was retired on Aug. 25, 1897, on a pension of $3,000.

His wife died about a year ago, and since that time he has been an invalid. He left New York after his wife's death and went to live with Mrs. Irwin, his oldest daughter, at Centre Moriches. Lately because of failing health he had moved to Walpole. He leaves three daughters.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A disturbance that has been in the vicinity of Arizona for several days past moved during Monday to New Mexico and to Colorado with somewhat increased development, and has caused rains in the extreme Southwest. Another disturbance over the north portion of the country caused rains in the lower lake and north upper lake region, and is to-night over Central Ontario, with a rapid eastward movement.

Temperatures have generally risen in the Northwest and North, but vary little from the seasonal average in all districts.

The Southwest disturbances will move northeastward, causing rain, and during Tuesday night and Wednesday the rain area will extend over practically the entire eastern half of the country.

Winds along the New England Coast will be west, becoming north Wednesday; on the Middle Atlantic Coast light to fresh west, shifting to north and northeast by Wednesday; on the South Atlantic Coast light and variable, becoming east; on the East Gulf Coast light to fresh south; on the West Gulf Coast fresh and mostly south; on the lower lakes fresh west, shifting to north and northeast Tuesday night; on the upper lakes fresh northwest, shifting to northeast, probably increasing.

Steamers departing Tuesday for European ports will have fresh west winds, with generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York, fair Tuesday; Wednesday increasing cloudiness and warmer, rain in the afternoon or night, fresh west to north winds.

New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, and Delaware, fair Tuesday; Wednesday increasing cloudiness and warmer, rain in the afternoon or night, light to fresh west to north winds.

New England, fair Tuesday; Wednesday increasing cloudiness, fresh west to north winds.

Western New York and Western Pennsylvania, fair Tuesday; Wednesday rain, fresh west to north winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1904.	1905.		1904.	1905.
3 A. M.	47	42	4 P. M.	51	53
6 A. M.	46	42	6 P. M.	50	52
9 A. M.	45	45	9 P. M.	47	50
12 M.	51	50	12 P. M.	45	50

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 48; for the corresponding date last year it was 48; average on the corresponding date for the last twenty-five years, 53.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 42; at 8 P. M. it was 51. Maximum temperature, 54 degrees at 3 P. M.; minimum, 41 degrees at 5 A. M. Humidity, 85 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 68 per cent. at 8 P. M.

SIX NEW BATTLESHIPS EQUAL ANYTHING AFLOAT

Navy's Fighting Strength Soon to be Greatly Increased.

CONNECTICUT GAINS IN RACE

She Probably Will Be Commissioned Before the Louisiana—Cruiser Charleston Ready This Week.

The naval progress statement just issued by the Navy Department shows that within a short time the United States Navy is to add to its fighting strength six great battleships, any one of them the equal in all respects of any battleship afloat. The vessels are the Virginia, the Louisiana, the Connecticut, the Rhode Island, the Georgia, and the New Jersey. The Virginia is about ready for her trial, and orders already have been issued to have her sister ship, the Rhode Island, drydocked at Boston next week, in preparation for her trial by the standardized screw test, over the Rockland course.

It appears that the Connecticut, nearing completion at the New York Navy Yard, will be ready for commission before the Louisiana, which is being constructed at Newport News.

Of the other vessels the Virginia is the nearest to being completed, followed in order by the Rhode Island, the New Jersey, and the Georgia. The statement issued by the Navy Department shows not only the percentage of completion of the vessels named, but of seven other first-class battleships, six armored, three protected, and three scout cruisers, as well. The contracts for the construction of the Michigan and South Carolina have not yet been let, as the Bureau of Construction hopes to persuade the next Congress to increase their tonnage to 18,000.

The Navy Department's table follows:

	Sept. 1.	Oct. 1.
Virginia, Newport News Co.	92.89	94.24
Nebraska, Moran Bros. Co.	79.58	81.00
Georgia, Bath Iron Works	86.44	87.44
New Jersey, Fore River Co.	89.3	90.1
Rhode Island, Fore River Co.	93.0	93.7
Connecticut, navy yard, N. Y.	86.15	89.39
Louisiana, Newport News Co.	86.40	87.73
Vermont, Fore River Co.	61.4	63.8
Kansas, N. Y. Shipbuilding Co.	60.1	62.7
Minnesota, Newport News Co.	71.18	73.86
Mississippi, Wm. Cramp & Sons	38.71	40.87
Idaho, Wm. Cramp & Sons	33.66	36.22
New Hampshire, N. Y. Ship'g Co.	18.2	20.4
ARMORED CRUISERS.
California, Union Iron Works	81.8	82.9
South Dakota, Union Iron Works	80.6	81.9
Tennessee, Wm. Cramp & Sons	84.32	88.08
Washington, N. Y. Shipb'g Co.	83.9	85.8
North Carolina, Newport News Co.	14.96	19.20
Montana, Newport News Co.	12.04	16.81
PROTECTED CRUISERS.
St. Louis, Neafie & Levy Co.	75.7	79.69
Milwaukee, Union Iron Works	80.6	82.00
Charleston, Newport News Co.	99.7	99.8
SCOUT CRUISERS.
Chester, Bath Iron Works	..	6.11
Birmingham, Fore River Co.	4.7	9.3
Salem, Fore River Co.	4.3	8.2

Of the protected cruisers the Charleston will be commissioned this week. She will be under command of Capt. Herbert Winslow, and probably will be one of the ships designated to welcome Rear Admiral Prince Louis of Battenberg.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Imitation Precious Stones Held Dutiable at 35 Per Cent.—Other Decisions.

In a decision by T. S. Sharretts, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday overruled a claim filed by Overton & Co. of New York regarding the rate of duty applicable to imitation precious stones. The articles were in the form of beads, and were assessed by Collector Stranahan at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem. The importers seemed to think that the beads were entitled to entry at only 20 per cent. The board, however, holds that the Collector's classification must stand.

Other importers' protests overruled were those of W. C. Horn, Brother & Co., A. Strauss & Co., Veit, Son & Co., Lamb, Finlay & Co., J. H. Rossbach & Brothers, and George H. Leonard & Co., New York; George Borgfeldt & Co. Boston; James G. Darlington & Co., Philadelphia; Charles H. Wyman & Co., St. Louis, and J. B. Camors & Co., New Orleans.

The board sustained claims filed by A. Bader & Co., Morris Goldberg and others, William Trevor, A. & H. Veith, Leon Rheims & Co., H. Herrmann, the H. B. Claflin Company, and A. Strauss & Co., New York; O. G. Hempstead & Son, Philadelphia; M. C. Lyon, Port Townsend, Wash.; Mendel Brothers and others, Chicago, and the Selby Smelting & Lead Company, San Francisco.

Claims partially sustained were filed by A. De Ronde & Co., Kwong Tai Chong, Marcelino Criado, Carl Vogt's Sons, Marcelino Perez & Co., Veit, Sons & Co., A. Lorsch & Co., the Abe Stein Company and others, and A. D. Matthews & Sons and others, New York; the American Express Company, Boston, and Charles H. Wyman & Co., St. Louis.

BABIES BEAT POLITICS AT MOTHERS' MEETING

Democratic Women Had a Subject Even If the Men Didn't Come.

MANY SIDE REMARKS MADE

Reform, Teeth, Tickets, Twins, Clubs, and Bubbles All in One Beautiful Jumble.

The Women's Democratic Club of the City of New York held a reception last night in the Hoffman House ballroom. The club was founded on the principles of Thomas Jefferson and holds the Declaration of Independence as the lodestone of morality, a stone with but one flaw, the assertion that all men are free and equal, and failing to make allusion to women.

It had been planned that several well-known Democrats, loyal to the Mayor and his party, should appear to tell why the Mayor was the proper person to succeed himself in City Hall. The men must have been scared away or were too busy with political affairs to get into their dress suits.

At a late hour Mrs. John S. Crosby, President of the Women's Democratic Club, held in her hand a special delivery letter which might have been an explanation of one of the men as to why he had failed to keep his engagement. Mrs. Anna Bolte, the Corresponding Secretary of the organization, had other letters, but there were so many things happening that there was no time to open them.

While the preliminary exercises in the way of handshaking and asking one of the other how the husband might be, how he might vote, and incidentally how the babies were, three ladies introduced themselves to the receiving line as Mrs. H. G. Hollenberg and Mrs. James R. Miller of Little Rock, Ark. With them were Dr. and Mrs. M. Souville of Jacksonville, Fla. They expressed themselves as delighted to meet the Jeffersonian women. They, too, believed in municipal ownership, and grasped the opportunity of expressing their pleasure at being with a company devoted to the interests of W. R. Hearst.

With the sweetest smiles they were led to the rear of the room, where the praises of George B. McClellan were sung into their ears by a group of well-dressed women. Their reception was so cordial that they could not leave. Mrs. Leroy S. Smith of the D. A. R. told the group of reporters in the rear of the room that her husband, who had never voted a Democratic ticket before, although she and her family of the John Quincy Adams stock had always been Democrats, would vote for McClellan and Jerome.

"They won't let us go into the booth with the man to see that he does as he promises," said a young woman who is sooner or later to have a husband because she is charming. "This secrecy of the ballot is really too much. The idea of husbands having secrets! It is a dreadful thing, as I know, when I kiss my brother before he goes to vote, and has promised to vote as I tell him, to see him rejoice because those for whom he voted were not elected."

"Your brother?" queried a spinster, and then Gus Edwards sang "Tammany." Calling for the chorus in company, he did not get a full response. The women were at a loss for the words.

One young woman remarked that it was the only tune her baby had ever heard, as it was the only one her husband could sing her young Democrat to sleep with when he woke up at night. She sang with great vigor, saving the chief singer from embarrassment.

A youngster of about five years, attracted by the music, entered the room with his hands in his pockets. Several of the elderly ladies started to shoo him out, flapping their skirts. Mrs. Mary Hastings, Vice President of The Woman's Democratic Club, picked him up in approved motherly fashion. She hugged the youngster, returning him to his nurse, who came running after him. Mrs. Hastings is celebrated for her Rooseveltian ideas about motherhood. She has said in the Convention of Mothers' Clubs that no woman should be entitled to vote there unless she could prove that she was the mother of one or more children.

Mrs. Phillis Leveredge spoke on the topic "The Club Woman vs. Domesticity." After denying that belonging to a club would make a woman unfit for domestic duty she said in part, being now and then interrupted by conversation:

"If the development of the intellect makes a woman unfit for her home duties, then the culture and education of women are serious mistakes, and it would be better to go back to the days of barbarism."

"Does your baby insist on putting his feet into his mouth?" a young woman asked of another.

"Hush," came the hiss of a spinster.

"Women's clubs are no more a menace to the home than those of men," continued the speaker, when some irreverent young matron, not noticing the pause of the speaker, asked:

"Does your baby blow bubbles like a dear little idiot?"

The spinsters and wives without children coughed down such irrelevant talk.

"We have extremes in both sexes, and the man who spends too much time in his club is as bad as the woman who does the same thing. What sort of milk is it?"

The rest of the speaker's remarks could not be heard by the reporters in the rear of the room.

Mss Lucy A. Yendes, Secretary of the club, was the next speaker. Her remarks, with the side remarks, are given in part as follows:

"The woman is the true leader in home politics. Reform should come from within and be extended to without. ["How many teeth did you say?"] The glorious ticket is that of McClellan. ["Must be a blue-eyed baby."] God only knows what would become of the United States if it were not for the woman who rules the Nation and rocks the cradle." ["Twins! You don't say!"]

There was an interruption. Certain husbands, arrived ready to take their wives home. That gave a better chance to those who wanted to make addresses. There was no more bother by the young matrons with their nonsense about babies, but the men speakers had not come at a late hour.

TO HARNESS SWEDISH RIVERS.

Great Electric Plants Are Planned by New Company.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—According to Consul Bergh of Gothenburg, all the streams of Sweden with a fall of water sufficient to generate electricity are soon to be harnessed for industrial purposes. The Consul says companies are being organized with the foregoing object in view.

"The company Sydsverska Elektriska Aktiebolaget is on the point of being incorporated and registered," he says. "The business of the company will be to buy real estate and waterfalls and erect plants for the production, distribution, and use of electric power, and allied branches of business. The seat of the Board of Directors will be the City of Halmstad. The minimum capital stock will be $938,000 and the maximum $2,680,000.

"A plan to utilize the water power of the River Lagan has been worked out. The plan is that the company shall, to begin with, purchase the unused waterfalls in the River Lagan, and build seven power stations there. Smaller operation plan includes ten larger places to which electric power is to be transmitted. According to this smaller plan, which is to be carried out first, the transmissions, with branch lines, will be 186 miles long and capable of distributing 13,000 horse power. When complete plans have been carried out the last-named figures will be doubled.

"For carrying out the small plan, the cost is calculated to be $2,760,400, but the larger system will cost about $1,072,000 more. The specifications for the sum first mentioned are as follows: For waterworks buildings, $911,200; for machinery, $402,000; for transmission cables and wires, $482,400, and for regulating the access and supply of water, $268,000.

"It is intended to make the price of the electric power so low that the same can compete with the cheapest motive power obtained in any other manner, and as soon as certain contracts with the communities named have been signed the work can begin. It is considered that the negotiations and the work on the different power plants will take two years before any power can be distributed."

ZIENAP WON BY A NOSE FROM BROOKDALE NYMPH

Fillies Fought Out the Finish for the Lynbrook Handicap.

FOUR POST CHOICES BEATEN

Broadcloth and Ivanhoe Were the Successful Favorites at the Jamaica Course.

In a finish so close that spectators disputed the judges' decision for the remainder of the afternoon, the Western filly Zienap won the Lynbrook Handicap at the Jamaica race course yesterday by the barest of noses from the crack filly of the Harry P. Whitney stable, Brookdale Nymph. The angle of vision of course was responsible for the dispute, as it depended on which side of the line the witness stood to determine his opinion of the result, Zienap seeming to win from one side and Brookdale Nymph looking to be first from the other side, but aside from any question of the justice of the judges' placing, the decision provoked more argument and protest than any that has been rendered at the meeting.

It added to the sensationalism of the finish that both of the contenders at the end came from far back in the field on the stretch, after the race seemed to be safely won by the favorite, Security, on the far turn, Security then bolting to the outside and dropping out of the contest. Neither Zienap nor Brookdale Nymph appeared to have even an outside chance to win when they turned out of the back stretch, but Security's bolt eliminated him, and Zienap, coming out of the crowd, closed steadily on the last turn on Hermitage, then in front, and as they entered the straight for the run home Zienap showed first, but already under pressure.

The field was well in the short stretch when Brookdale Nymph made her bid, and closed with a splendid burst of speed, from sixth place. The finish was between the two fillies, Zienap, with 100 pounds and ridden by the apprentice Sewell, and Brookdale Nymph, with twenty-two pounds more, and Shaw up. If there was any advantage in the riding, it was on Sewell's side, but Brookdale Nymph, a high-class two-year-old, made a gallant effort, running on her courage, and got up to Zienap in just the stride that carried her past the winning post, with Zienap, according to the decision, first by a matter of an inch or so. James Reddick, which also closed from the rear, was third, a length behind the fillies, with Kinley Dale and Hermitage, heads apart, following.

Security, which broke best of the field of nine horses, after starting a warm favorite, and showed a startling burst of speed in the run through the back stretch, where he drew out four lengths in the lead of the crowd, was passed by every horse in the race after he bolted, and finished last still trying to go to the outside fence.

One other race of the afternoon produced a close finish, this being the six furlongs handicap for three-year-olds, in which eight horses started, with Alwin the topweight and Ivan the Terrible the favorite. Diamond, one of the fastest of the two-year-olds of last season, but a horse that this season has been a failure because of his temper and nervousness, was one of the starters, and was backed down to the place of second choice, and then when he joined his horses at the post threw his stable into a panic by his bad behavior. He absolutely refused to stand at the barrier, and when every effort to get him in line with the others had failed, the starter let the horses go with Diamond several lengt[illegible] back of the others. It was a rare stroke of luck for Diamond that this happened, for Diamond broke from behind, and with a running start, actually had the best of it, and showed in front almost the instant that they passed the timing flag. Once in the lead, Diamond rattled on at a terrific pace, and the only question as to his winning was as to whether he would live out the six furlongs. He did live it out, and though tiring and stopping fast at the end, lasted just long enough to win by a head, hard ridden, from Platoon, which after breaking first, ran second all the distance, Ivan the Terrible never being able to improve on third place, in which he finished.

Sterling and Broadcloth won their respective races in similar style, both jumping to the front at the lifting of the barrier and racing out in the lead all the way, to win easily. Ivanhoe closed from the rear and handily took the purse for maidens.

Miss Crawford, the longest chance winner of the day, took the track in the mile and a furlong handicap, last on the card, in the run to the stand, and held it to the end, winning rather cleverly from Jocund, while Ormonde's Right, the favorite, trailed last and out of the race all the way under his rider's notion of a waiting race.

All the winners were well backed, but only two of them were post favorites, these being Broadcloth at odds on, and Ivanhoe, at 5 to 2. Summary:

RACES FOR GREAT NECK.

Elaborate Programme of 'Chases and Flat Events Mapped Out for Nov. 4.

Six sweepstakes with plate added is the programme arranged for the annual meet of the Great Neck Racing Association to be held at Great Neck, L. I., on the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 4. The steeplechases will be over a fair hunting country, finishing on the field of the Great Neck Polo Club, while the races on the flat will be decided on the turf. According to the conditions horses must be ridden by members of a recognized hunt or polo club, except in the race for the Deepdale Cup, presented by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.

The sport will begin with a race for the Port Washington Cup, presented by W. B. Leeds. This will be open to all galloways, to carry 150 pounds, over a course of about three-eighths of a mile. A steeplechase for half-breeds, to carry 165 pounds, for the Smithtown Hunt Club Cup, presented by the Smithtown Hunt Club, will follow. The distance will be about three miles. The Deepdale Cup event is next on the programme, and then comes a steeplechase for hunters, to carry 165 pounds, for the Great Neck Cup, presented by J. E. Martin.

There will be an open race for maidens, to carry 165 pounds, for the Sands Point Cup, presented by A. Edgecombe Rendle, and the last event of the day will be a steeplechase for ponies 14.3 hands and under, to carry 150 pounds. The course will be about one mile and three-quarters, and the prize to the winner will be the Gracefield Cup, presented by the Messrs. Grace.

Pacer's Driver Hurt, Then Suspended.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Oct. 23.—Joe Tramby, winner of the 2:30 pacing event, was the only successful favorite at the Woonsocket track to-day. In the fourth heat of the 2:19 pacing a collision occurred between Owassia, Floss, and Nancy S. Henry Titer of Somerville, driver of Owassia, and Rowan, driver of Nancy S., were thrown to the ground. One of Titer's shoulders was dislocated. The judges blamed him for the collision and suspended him for the balance of the season. Owassia was declared distanced by the judges, while the other horses were placed and started. The race was won by Miss Austin. Summary:

2:18 Trotting, Purse $300.—Mary Scott won third, fourth, and fifth heats and race. Time—2:23½; 2:22½; 2:19. Little Rena, second, won first heat. Time—2:20¼. Red Bird, third, won second heat. Time—2:20½. Baby Girl, Tom Leary, and Irene's Flower also started. The latter was drawn in the fourth heat; Tom Leary was also drawn in third heat.

2:19 Pacing, Purse $300, (concluded.)—Miss Austin won second, fourth, and fifth heats and race. Time—2:18¼; 2:19; 2:18¾. Floss, second, won third heat. Time—2:18½. Henry C., third. Owassia won first heat. Time—2:15¼. George M., Samana, Banner Boy, and Nancy S. also started. Owassia was distanced in fourth heat.

Free-for-All Pacing, Purse $400.—Bod Poeey won three straight heats and race. Time—2:16; 2:18; 2:15. Ben Como, second; Joe Pointer, third. Count D'Oreay also started, but was distanced in second heat.

2:30 Pacing, Purse $300.—Joe Tramby won second, third, and fourth heats and race. Time—2:26¾; 2:28; 2:31¼. Admore, second, won first heat. Time—2:28¼. Bourbon Deleny, third. Frances also started.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

Broadcloth, bought recently from the stable of S. S. Brown by J. A. Drake, and entered to sell for $500 in the second race at Jamaica yesterday, which he won, was bid up to $2,500 in the interest of H. T. Griffin, whose colt Massa was second. Broadcloth was retained by his stable for $2,505, the bidding up making second place worth twice as much as the value of the purse.

S. C. Hildreth, who bought the fast colt Security at the dispersal of the E. E. Smathers stable, is at his wits' end to find a way to utilize the speed that Security has proved he possesses. The half brother to Ort Wells and Dick Welles, has been tried in every conceivable manner, but since he won the $20,000 Great Trial Stakes has found ways to lose in all his races. Mr. Smathers was a visitor to the track to see the colt run when it looked as if he must win, but Security bolted and cost Mr. Smathers another bet in addition to the sum Security had already cost him.

Harry Payne Whitney made his first visit of the Fall to the Jamaica track yesterday, to see Brookdale Nymph run in the race for the Lynbrook Handicap. Brookdale Nymph just failed to concede twenty-two pounds to Zienap, however, the race being the first that Zienap has won since she came on from the West with an impressive record of wins at Louisville and Latonia.

Wetertank, by Wetercress-Duchess of Kendel, owned by Sydney Paget and entered to sell for $1,000 in the first race at Jamaica yesterday, was claimed out of the race after he ran third to Sterling, and went to F. J. Le Maire, owner of Fred B., for $1,700.

Entries in excess of the number that the width of the track at Jamaica will permit to start at the several distances were received in three of the races set for to-day, horses being excluded from the second, third, and sixth races.

The horse Snow King, entered in the third race in the name of T. J. Craighead, was not permitted to start yesterday, and his entry was ordered rejected until the Stewards are satisfied concerning the ownership of the animal. Snow King yesterday was represented as trained by M. C. Kelly, but when questioned by the Stewards Trainer Kelly said he had not trained the horse and knew nothing about him, his name having been used to accommodate the reputed owner, who[illegible] not a licensed trainer.

Starter Jake Holtma[illegible] who has been employed constantly in the West for several years, was a visitor at the Jamaica track yesterday, the condition of turf affairs in the West this season having made the opportunity for him to see a little of the racing in New York as a spectator.

Jockey Perrine, who was injured while riding the colt Hector at Jamaica last week, yesterday left the hospital and appeared at the race course. He will be able to ride again in a short time.

Miller, with two winning mounts, and the apprentices Wiley and Sewell with one winner each, left only two races for the older riders at Jamaica yesterday, though about all the best-known jockeys rode in the course of the afternoon. Knapp and Martin took what was left, with one winner each.

BIG ELEVENS PREPARE FOR SATURDAY'S GAMES

Coaches Worried by Close Scores in Recent Contests.

COLUMBIA STILL HOPEFUL

Expects to Tally on Tigers—Yale Looks for Trouble at West Point—Changes in Teams.

That the games of last week startled the coaches in charge of the big teams out of their fancied security was demonstrated yesterday in several quarters. There will be shake-ups all along the line as a result, and the personnel of the leading elevens will undergo quite a change as a consequence. Yale's failure to make the expected showing against State College and the hard game now looked for at West Point next Saturday, has led to the calling back to New Haven of a host of new coaches. There were a half dozen additions to the corps yesterday and more are expected.

The work of Bigelow at right tackle and of Flanders at centre was the main cause of criticism of the Blue, while one end of the line still bothers those in charge of the eleven. It is hard to find a man to replace either of the first two named among the light material available for the line, and the coaches must content themselves with grilling the present players. Cates showed the better form at end, and will likely be the choice, although lighter than Yale men would wish. Tad Jones continues to lead at quarter back. The defense of the Blue is below par, and will receive the main attention from this on.

At West Point in preparation for Yale there will be light work all week in an effort to get the players into condition. The hard game with Harvard left the cadets pretty sore, and, though they need work, their tenderness does not admit of it. The Army coaches are hopeful of defeating Yale, but a sober view of the situation would tend to the belief that the New Haven men will be primed sufficiently to take care of themselves and probably to win by two touchdowns or more.

At Cambridge there is complaint from every one over the failure of the right side of the line. The ends are not blamed for the runs around them as much as the tackles, and the whole line is criticised for its lethargy. An effort will be made to improve its speed. Some fear is expressed over the coming Brown game Saturday, but it seems unreasonable in view of Brown's showing in Philadelphia, where the Providence team was markedly outplayed and made its showing on Pennsylvania's errors rather than on merit of its own.

At Princeton there is a disposition to rest on laurels won. The showing against Lafayette is regarded as satisfactory in spite of the failure of the defense in the second half. This is blamed on condition more than anything else. Simone's return to the team is hailed with delight, as it means further running strength. There seems to be a disposition to accept Dillon as a better quarter than Tenney, which, considering the excellence of the Philadelphian, augurs unusual ability on the part of the youngster. The Columbia game is held rather cheaply in Nassau's eyes.

Strangely enough, the Columbia coaches appear to regard the Amherst game as an encouragement. Wherein the feeling is justified is hard to understand. There seems no reason for the expressed belief in the Blue and White's certain ability to score. It is based principally on Schultz, but it is not at all certain that the hero of the Amherst match will get the opportunity to kick a goal, and by no means sure that he or any other man could certainly accomplish it if given the chance.

Columbia needs more fire and dash. Both defense and offense are lacking on this account. The physical strength is there, but it is poorly applied. There is no concert in either defense or offense. If the man arises who can weld the team together in both departments of play a different story might be told. The possibility of Carter's return has been hailed with satisfaction.

Poor Penn seems to have her work cut out. The week will be devoted to correcting the fumbling that marred Saturday's game. There is no complaint of the defense, and it is believed the attack will develop in due course. But against the Indians they have a fearfully hard task. George Woodruff has his team in excellent physical condition and apparently playing well together. The issue of the game of all the matches to be played Saturday is most in doubt.

Few of the Columbia regulars reported for signal practice yesterday. None of the men was injured, but it was thought advisable to rest.

There seemed to be a disposition to regard Saturday's showing with satisfaction and to look forward to the battle with Princeton hopefully. The students appear to think if the Blue and White gets within forty yards of the Tiger goal Schultz would be liable to duplicate his performance in the Amherst game and score a goal from the field.

There was talk of Carter's return to the team. He was declared ineligible at the start of the season on account of conditions. These he has removed, save one in trigonometry, and the special permission of Dean Sever to take this examination is sought. If successful his presence will do much for the eleven, as he is a sure kicker and needed badly. Collins may get a chance on Saturday at quarter instead of Donovan.

After the hard game with Lafayette the Tigers appeared sluggish in their practice yesterday. The coaches had to stir them up in several instances. The men appeared to be wearied, and the return of Jim Robinson to look after their condition is eagerly awaited. He is expected back early next week.

The team had a short scrimmage of fifteen minutes and appeared in their regular line-up, except that Fryer took Brasher's place at end. Brasher was ordered to rest. Simons appeared again at right half and made a brilliant 30-yard dash around the wing. Daub and Bard lack his speed and ability to ward off tacklers. E. Dillon was again at quarter, and seemed to get plays off quicker than Tenney. He lacks the latter's brilliancy in handling and running back punts, however.

Yale will work to improve her defense before Saturday's game with West Point. The match is expected to be a severe one. The whole team was out yesterday, except Vesder. Shevlin, who was hurt in the State game, was at right end as usual. The veterans were given a hard half hour's scrimmaging.

There was a rush of coaches to Yale Field. Among them were George Chadwick, the 1904 Captain; Capt. Rafferty, 1901 end; Goss, the 1902 tackle, and Glass, the 1903 guard. Vance McCormick and Brink Thorne are expected to-day.

The West Point team took no practice yesterday. The team as a whole is in rather good condition. Erwin, Christy, Torney, and Hill were out, but Garry and Weeks are still in the hospital. The work done consisted solely in tackling the dummy and signal practice.

It is quite likely that there will be no practice game this week except to-morrow. No chance will be taken of crippling the men before the game with Yale, so they will have to be saved this week.

With most of the players resting on the side lines as the result of their work against West Point last Saturday, Harvard's 'Varsity eleven played rather loose football yesterday. In spite of frequent fumbling, however, three touch-downs were scored against the scrubs, showing Harvard's offense is far from weak this year. One of the features of the day was the work of Carl Brill, the big tackle. Brill's defensive work was excellent, and he proved a veritable battering ram in the charges. Brill is in fine condition this year and will prove a big obstacle to Yale's success when she meets Harvard on Nov. 25. Another feature of the practice was the playing of Davie, sub-tackle last year at guard on the 'Varsity. Davie is a tall, muscular fellow, without an ounce of superfluous weight on his frame. He will receive a good trying out. Pruyn, who played against Yale last year, was taken, together with Davie and two other ends, Bartelle and Whitman, to the 'Varsity training table last night. Pruyn may play against Brown on Saturday, for O'Brien, the freshman end, has broken his nose and will probably be unable to play for some time. Dan Knowles, All-America tackle in 1903, signalized his appearance as full back by making a bad fumble. The fumble came on the "Seconds'" two-yard line, and Blair, picking it up, ran the length of the field for a touch-down.

The Carlisle Indians came out of Saturday's game again with none on the injured list. All are now in prime physical condition. The practice lasted yesterday for two and a half hours, although only twenty minutes was given over to scrimmages. Long preliminary work was done at kicking, signals, and catching punts.

Little-Old-Man is showing up well as a guard and may have a look-in at the Pennsylvania game. Gardner, the third team full back, is improving and may get a chance. Exendine was tried again in Dubois's place at full and the latter went to right tackle. Four teams were out, each under the supervision of a coach.

The Pennsylvania eleven showed real snap and dash in practice yesterday. Not a man was any the worse for the struggle with Brown, all appearing in fine physical shape, and excellent spirits. The coaches attributed the fumbling to eagerness more than to lack of preparation or ability, and are entirely satisfied with the work of the team. Gaston, Greene, and Draper were especially commended. Handling the pigskin was practiced before the signal work. Then after some punting and catching, a short, snappy scrimmage closed the day's work.

PARADE FOR ATHLETICS.

McGraw's Men Join in Honoring American League Champion Team.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 22.—A public celebration in honor of the Philadelphia American League Club, which this year for the second time in four years won the championship of the League, was held to-night. A street parade, extraordinary in character and elaborate in display, formed a demonstration unique in the city's baseball history.

The special guests, besides the officials and players of the American League Club, were the Philadelphia National League Club, the New York National League Club, champions of the world; the officials of these organizations, President Ban Johnson of the American League, and officials of the various minor leagues; semi-professional and amateur baseball clubs from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware, numbering hundreds were in line. Six newspapers, under whose auspices the parade was held, were represented by floats. There were also many additional floats. Several thousand High School and Manual Training School boys, and many organizations of firemen also marched, while hundreds of members belonging to the New Year's Club enlivened the procession with their unique costumes.

There were six divisions to the parade, with fifty Marshals and aides, mounted, a dozen on bicycles, and 100 afoot. The entire line of march was ablaze with red fire and fireworks and tens of thousands of people watched the procession.

DALY'S DIPLOMA WITHHELD.

Yale's ex-Oarsman Had Hoped to Enter the Law School.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 23.—It is now finally settled that "Con" Daly, Yale's ex-oarsman, cannot enter any department of the university this year. What is more, his diploma has not been given to him for the academic department and the chances are that he will not receive it.

Daly's request for his diploma was refused last June, after he had been accused of cribbing in his examinations in his studies at Gales Ferry, where he took his examination with the Yale oarsmen.

It was given out by the academic Faculty at the close of its meeting last Thursday that no action was taken on the case of Daly. He was known to be in town on business in connection with the securing of his diploma and his entering the law school.

Daly has been notified of the fact that the law school officials do not wish him to enter, and he has left for his home in Worcester, Mass., but his plans for the future are not fixed. It would have established a precedent if the law school had accepted Daly after he had been removed from another department.

Echoes from the Diamond.

President Johnson of the American League is a firm believer, as he has always been, in a shorter season for major league championships. He contends that the weather is usually cold and otherwise unsuitable for playing in October, and even if it is not the exertions the men are compelled to undergo in an attempt to finish the schedule leaves them in poor form for the world's series which immediately follows. If the consent of the National League can be obtained Mr. Johnson is confident that the schedule for the major leagues next season will be limited to 140 games, which will shorten the championship play about two weeks.

Wagner of the Pittsburgs led the base stealers of the National League in 1904, but this year the honors are equally divided between Maloney of the Chicagos and Devlin of the New Yorks, each having fifty-nine to his credit. Wagner comes next with fifty-seven.

The barnstorming trip to San Francisco of two teams, one representing the American League and the other the National, which President "Tip" O'Neill of the Western League and "Joe" Cantillon of Milwaukee tried to arrange, has been abandoned, owing to the insufficiency of players. Mathewson, it is said, was to have gone, but he sent word that President Brush objected. "Willie" Keeler also refused to take the trip.

Lumley this year, as he did last year, led the Brooklyns in batting, with an average of .293, an improvement of 14 points over his mark of 1904, but the most notable improvement was that of Sheckard, who, from a percentage of .239 last year, finished the recent campaign with a record of .293, an increase of 53 points.

Three Philadelphians, Capt. "Kid" Gleason, Courtney, and Magee, and Slagle of Chicago were the only players who participated in the full complement of games—155—scheduled by the National League during the season of 1905.

"Mike" Donlin was the leading run-getter of the National League this year, with 124 to his credit, with Thomas of Philadelphia second.

The veteran "Bill" Clarke did not help the New York Nationals much with the bat during the past season, his average in twenty-seven games being only .180. In other ways, however, he was decidedly useful.

Manager-Captain Chance of the Chicago Nationals finished in the same position among the batters of the year that he did in 1904—fifth. His average this year, however, was .316, an increase of 6 points.

AERO CLUB INVITES FOREIGN BALLOONISTS

Santos Dumont May Tell Americans of His Success.

MANY NEW MEMBERS JOIN

National Organization Will Be Ready to Support Worthy Methods of Aerial Navigation.

Nearly one hundred members have already been secured for the Aero Club of America, which was started barely a week ago at the Automobile Club of America. It is the intention of the officers to call a general meeting when 100 charter members have been obtained and map out definite plans of action. Articles of incorporation have been filed with the Secretary of State at Albany. Jefferson Seligman, one of the Governors of the Automobile Club, joined the airship ranks last night at the opening of the Fall and Winter talks at the Automobile Club.

To arouse interest in the practical features of airship development as well as to launch the new club as the National organization of its kind in this country, invitations have been extended to some of the leading Frenchmen who have taken a prominent part in the science of aerial navigation to visit this city in November. They will be guests of the club at its first dinner, when some plans that the officials of the club have in view will be announced. It is hoped that Santos Dumont will be one of the speakers. Cortlandt Field Bishop has been instructed on behalf of the club to extend invitations to a number of representative foreigners, and it is hoped that Santos Dumont will be among the guests. Mr. Bishop is now in Paris, where he acted as the club's delegate at the recent conference of air balloon enthusiasts.

It is the intention of the newly formed club to secure the rooms now occupied by the Automobile Club, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street. The latter club's lease expires May 1, and by that time it is hoped that the new organization in West Fifty-fourth Street will be sufficiently advanced toward completion for occupancy.

"We have several plans under way, and as soon as the formal organization is effected we intend to get to work and show the world what America can do in the science of sailing in the air," said President Homer W. Hedge last night. "We will very likely have a balloon of our own next Spring. The club, however, will be perfectly independent in all of its actions, and will not be committed to the exploitation of any one method of a[illegible]ial navigation to the detriment of other systems apparently as good."

John J. O'Rourke and Charles J. Glidden are among the officers of the new club.

AUTO ROADS GOOD IN JAVA.

People Do All the Work, Says C. J. Glidden—Fiji Natives Eager to Ride.

Charles J. Glidden, who will sail for Europe to-day on the steamer Kronprinz Wilhelm to resume his touring around the world in an automobile, related some of his experiences in former trips to the members of the Automobile Club of America, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, last night. His talk was illustrated with over 200 views of automobiling and native scenes in Java, the Fiji Islands, Hawaii, New Zealand, and Australia, most of which Mr. Glidden took himself.

Mr. Glidden surprised his hearers by calling Java a veritable paradise for the automobilist. They soon learned why it was so, because, as everything is carried by the natives, the roads are not only good, but absolutely free from glass, nails, rubbish, and sharp stones. This statement was received with a burst of applause.

"It is peculiar," said Mr. Glidden, "to travel through Java, an island with 35,000,000 inhabitants and increasing at the rate of 1,000 a day, and find the roads far out in the country literally crowded with people. There are few beasts of burden, and all freight traffic is performed by human beings. It was necessary to keep the horn tooting constantly."

Mr. Glidden told of his reception by the Sultan in the palace. The Sultan lives in grand state in the midst of an enclosure four miles in circuit, within which live his household and servants to the number of 10,000 persons. The Sultan refused to take a ride in the automobile until 9 o'clock at night on account of the sun. When he did go he was preceded by a body guard of gaily dressed soldiers and several hundred brought up the rear. He stipulated that the pace should be four miles an hour. The young ruler of the Fiji Islands presented a marked contrast to this. The first thing he did when he got in the automobile was to ask, in very good English:

"Does it go sixty miles an hour?"

"He is a well-educated man, and has studied in English schools," added Mr. Glidden. "The Fiji natives, notwithstanding the fact that my car was the first motor vehicle ever seen there, were crazy to ride, and they literally besieged me, offering a shilling for a ride."

Mr. Glidden found many poor roads in Australia, but he saw thousands of sheep. Not far from Sydney he passed through one of the largest ranches in the world, comprising one and a half million of acres and which raises one million sheep. He told of his methods of sending gasoline and other supplies ahead and of the methods that must be adopted in securing permits to drive through different countries and cities.

Mr. Glidden's forthcoming tour will begin at Bombay, India, about Dec. 1, and he will return to America early in July. He expects to travel over 6,000 miles in his automobile before his return.

HARVARD'S TENNIS CHAMPION.

N. W. Niles, a Freshman, Won the Final Round in Straight Sets.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 23.—N. W. Niles, a freshman, forced his way to a high rank among tennis players to-day by defeating F. J. Sulloway, a second-year student in the Harvard Law School, in the final match for the university tennis championship. Out of twenty-two games played Niles allowed his opponent only four, defeating him in three straight sets, 6—1, 6—3, and 6—0. As the match progressed his playing seemed to improve, until at the end he showed a form which predicts great things for him later on.

Niles, who promises some day to be a National figure in tennis circles, won his first prominence two years ago, when he won the Harvard scholastic tennis championship on Jarvis Field. At that time he was a student in the Boston Latin School. Jim MacDonald, right end on the 'Varsity football eleven this year, was his rival in the final match. The next year at Newport, Niles won the National interscholastic championship, to which title he successfully defended his right last Spring.

DAN PATCH A RINGER?

Canadian Believes World's Champion Is His Stolen Trotter Arrin.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ontario, Oct. 23.—John Thompson of Port Arthur, Ontario, on Saturday came 850 miles to see Dan Patch perform here. He has waited on the police authorities, and to-day interviewed Premier Whitney, Attorney General of the Province, in an effort to get a warrant which would permit him to examine Dan Patch for certain distinguishing marks which he contends will prove Dan Patch is the trotting horse Arrin, which was stolen from him under sensational circumstances nine years ago.

Thompson has an American Trotting Association register certificate of Arrin, which states that he is a brown horse. In the Fall of 1896 he placed the trotter in care of W. B. Ketcham and one MacDonald for training at Bradford, thirty miles from Toronto. On New Year's Eve the stables were burned. It was said that Arrin was destroyed, but afterward other articles announced to have been burned were discovered to have been sold. Thompson says he never saw Ketcham again.

Thompson saw Dan Patch pace on Saturday. "If it meant eternity to me," he said, "I could swear Patch is Arrin." The Crown Attorney could not issue a search warrant, because of the risk involved in seizing such a valuable horse. To secure a replevin order he would have to put up $360,000, double the alleged value of the horse. He was told that he must take civil action, and Thompson will do so.

VANDERBILT HORSES FIRST.

Tiger Lily and Fancy Win Blue Ribbons at Chicago Show.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Two New York horses got blue ribbons at the first session of the Horse Show to-day. Tiger Lily, the hackney stallion belonging to Reginald Vanderbilt, carried off the prize in the stallion class, and Fancy in the runabout class. It was the first meeting of the big Eastern stables at the show, and as one of the conditions of the contest was that the stallions entered should be kept for service, a victory meant much in the way of prestige to whichever establishment could secure it. The showing of the horses occupied much time, the judges appreciating the importance of their task.

The "railbird" critics were divided about equally as to the merits of Tiger Lily and McKinley, it being evident from the start that the hackney representatives outclassed the rest of the horses in the ring. Finally Tiger Lily received first place, with McKinley, the Jordan horse from Boston, second, and Truman's Bonnie Gabriel third. The Vanderbilt adherents at the stable entrance shouted for joy as their horse thundered through the gate.

At the evening session Mr. Vanderbilt drove Fancy in the runabout class for the Rector Trophy ($200 plate) and won it after a sharp contest with Guy Fortune. In the Auditorium Prize contest he also drove Dr. Selwick, but had to be content with second place, the blue ribbon going to Jordan's Hildreth.

Automobile Notes of Interest.

Secretary S. M. Butler of the Automobile Club of America said last night that all the space for the forthcoming automobile show to be held under the auspices of the club in the new Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory had been taken. The show will be held from Jan. 13 to 20, the same time that the Madison Square Garden exhibit will be in progress.

Efforts are being made to hold two days' racing at Atlantic City on Nov. 14 and 15. A number of owners of fast cars have been invited to compete, and it is hoped that some of the records made on Ormond beach last season will be broken.

The committee in charge of the racing plans at Ormond next January is busily engaged in arranging the programme. All of the usual short and long distance speed events will be held and several new features will be added.

A meeting of owners and others interested in motorboats will be held to-morrow nigh[t] at the Manhattan Hotel for the purpose of organizing a new motorboat club. It is the purpose of the new undertaking to make it a national organization through which entries may be made for big foreign events, and to which all entries of foreign boats for American races must come. Plans for an active racing season next year are also being arranged.

With the arrival of cool weather comes a demand for automobiles of the closed type, and the Limousine is certain to predominate this Winter.

There will be two great automobile tournaments in the South this year, the first on the sandy beach at Ormond, the other at Havana, between which will be a motor boat tournament at Palm Beach, and possibly a 180-mile race over the new road now in the course of construction between Palm Beach and Miami.

A greater number of high-power cars than were ever gathered together before are expected for the speed trials over Florida's beach, and most of them will go to Cuba for the road race in February.

Some interesting data were secured by a motorist who used tires of different sizes with a view of noting the difference in speed. He used a two-cylinder car and claims a great gain and comfort with tires of larger size. When he first started with his car it was equipped with two-inch solid tires, and the average speed he was able to attain varied from twelve to fourteen miles per hour. Increasing the size of his solids to two and a half inches he got up to eighteen miles. With four-inch pneumatics he was able to strike a gait of twenty miles, and increasing these by an inch on the back wheels gave him twenty-four miles an hour.

One of the most enthusiastic motorists in the country is Mrs. George L. Carnegie, whose Winter home in the South boasts of half a dozen cars. The latest addition to the stable was a Pope-Waverley electric truck, fitted with removable stakes and a canopy top and arranged so that seats can be placed along the side, turning it into a bus.

SENATOR GREEN TO BE TRIED.

Federal Supreme Court Decides He Must Go to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Supreme Court of the United States to-day decided that State Senator George E. Green of New York must come to Washington for trial on the charge of conspiring with George W. Beavers and others to defraud the Government in the purchase of supplies for the Post Office Department.

The decision of the Circuit Court for the Northern District of New York ordering Green taken into custody by the United States Marshal was confirmed. The proceedings so far have related entirely to the question of extradition and the merits of the case have not been considered.

There was no written opinion by the Supreme Court, the Chief Justice saying simply that the final orders of the court below were affirmed on the authority of the court's decision in the Beavers, Benson and Green cases.

Green is at present under bond. The order for the Marshal to take him in custody contemplates his removal to the District of Columbia for trial.

CHINESE BOYCOTT SERIOUS.

R. P. Schwerin Says People Are Determined to Gain Redress.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 23.—According to R. P. Schwerin, Vice President and General Manager of the Pacific Mail Company, who returned from the Orient to-day on the liner Siberia, the Chinese boycott of American goods is more serious than ever.

"The Chinese are determined, and the feeling is deep," he said. "They are looking for some action by the next Congress, and unless something is done they propose to do something themselves. They consider that their people are not treated with as much consideration as those from other countries.

"In my opinion the situation is serious. The Chinese want the whole question thrashed out, coolie class and all. The treatment of Chinese on this side of the Pacific has aroused their Government. As for trade, we are falling off and other nations are making great headway."

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Higher; Call Money Rates, 4½@4 Per Cent.

Market's Extreme Gains Reduced by Profit Taking at Close—Cotton Advances.

After a first hour in which profit taking was in sufficient volume to check the rising tendency displayed at the opening of yesterday's stock market, the course of prices was steadily upward until the final hour, when another wave of profit taking set in. The advances ran from a point or more in the standard issues to gains of 3 and more points in special stocks. The selling near the close either canceled entirely or reduced to trifling fractions the advances in the first group, while in the special issues the day's gains were sharply cut into. Thus in New York Central, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Paul, and Pennsylvania earlier gains were largely lost at the end of the day. New York Air Brake, the subject of much of the day's gossip, and one of the "leaders" in the movement, retained 6 points of its 8-point advance. In the stocks made prominent at various times there were some odd issues, thus there were some 13,000 shares of American Grass Twine traded in at an advance of 2¼ points, while from their long obscurity the Quicksilver shares were brought forth and dealt in to the extent of 1,800 shares at advancing quotations. There was not wanting evidence that under the cover of this apparent breadth and activity realizing sales were in progress, these coming, naturally, in previous market leaders, including Brooklyn Rapid Transit, which declined 1⅝ points. The volume of trading was heavy, making up a million-share day, the first since Sept. 6. Perhaps the most noteworthy feature of the market was the fact that in spite of the recent advance in prices there was no evidence that outside selling of actual stocks helped to make up this largs total of sales. It represented in the main the dealings of those closely concerned in recent markets.

There was a dearth of news of direct financial importance, although again there were rumors in abundance. St. Petersburg dispatches reported practical agreement among the financial interests gathered at that capital over the amount and terms of the new Russian loan, but noted also a disposition on the part of the French bankers present to secure a pledge of some sort which should prevent the unloading on them of the participations of other subscribers. The Missouri Pacific reported decreases of $282,000 in gross and $215,000 in net earnings for August, while the Chicago and Northwestern returned an increase of $379,000 in gross receipts. In the money position the developments were further case in both call and time money, a further gain by the banks from the Sub-Treasury, the amount now standing at $794,000, and a slight advance in sterling exchange. Discount rates were firmer at Berlin and easier at Paris. Cotton futures moved up nearly $1 a bale during the day, spot prices gaining half as much.

CITY RAILWAY REALTY SALE.

Denied That the Proceeds Had to be Deposited with the Trustee.

There was a report in Wall Street yesterday that the New York City Railway Company had sold $1,000,000 worth of mortgaged real estate to put the money in improvements, but had been forced to deposit the money in the trust company acting as trustee under the mortgage. This was authoritatively denied.

It is true, it was said, that the company has sold "useless" real estate, but the funds realized from the sales have always been used to redeem bonds. The policy in this regard will remain unchanged.

From time to time the New York City Railway Company has concentrated its power plants and other properties, making certain real estate practically valueless to it as a railroad company. The real estate is all secured under the general mortgage. The foundation of yesterday's story was a dispute between two trust companies as to which should get the deposit pending the use of the money for the redemption of bonds.

CHICAGO SUBWAY OPENING.

The Road Will Be Ready to Carry Mail on Nov. 1.

Albert G. Wheeler, Jr., a Director of the Chicago Subway Company and son of its President, said yesterday that the road would be ready for the transportation of United States mails on Nov. 1. Coal will be carried in the Subway on the same day, and in the following two months other classes of freight will be carried. By New Year's Day the road will be in full operation.

After a steady fall of 42 points Chicago Subway braced up a day or two ago, and yesterday closed around 47, a gain of 7 points over the bottom price reached last week. Mr. Wheeler attributes the fall of the stock to a concerted bear "raid," and says that the fact that the stock had been refused as collateral by banks had nothing to do with the movement.

"Men who wanted to get some of the Chicago Subway stock at low prices drove it down and now they are 'getting in' on it," said Mr. Wheeler.

MUCH GOLD IN TREASURY.

More Than Any Other Government Ever Had, Says Treasurer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—That the United States had more gold in its Treasury on Oct. 19 than ever was held by any Government is the statement made by United States Treasurer Ellis H. Roberts in his annual report. The amount was $748,425,983.

"The continued increase in our monetary stock and circulation," says Mr. Roberts, "is one that engages the thoughtful attention of financiers, and also excites a just pride among our people as an evidence of the remarkable growth in the resources of the country.

"The total stock of money June 30, 1905, was $2,883,109,864, of which $295,227,211 was held in the Treasury as assets of the Government, and $2,578,882,653 was in circulation, making a per capita of $31.08. The growth in the general stock of money during the year was $79,605,729, and the increase of the amount in circulation $68,739,793.

"Of the amount in circulation, gold and gold certificates represent 43.9 per cent., silver and silver certificates 24.4 per cent., United States notes and Treasury notes 13.2 per cent., and National bank notes 18.5 per cent."

On account of the rough usage of small bills he suggests that Congress permit them to be sent free of charge to the Treasury for redemption by registered mail.

DOESN'T ATTRACT AMERICANS.

Bankers Not Pleased with Terms of New Russian Loan.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 23.—J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., and George W. Perkins were presented to Foreign Secretary Lamsdorff by Chargé d'Affaires Eddy this afternoon.

It can be definitely stated that no industrial concessions will be granted in connection with the big Russian loan which is being negotiated. Each of the foreign banking groups will be on absolutely the same footing. The Americans do not seem to be particularly pleased with the terms offered by the Russian Government. The extent of their participation is still problematical.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call on Stock Exchange collateral loaned at 4@4½ per cent., with the last loan at 4 per cent. Most of the day's business was done at 4½ per cent.

Time money rates, 4¾@5 per cent. for sixty days to four months, and 4½@4¾ per cent. for six months.

Mercantile paper rates, 5@5½ per cent. for sixty to ninety days' indorsed bills receivable and choice four to six months' single names, and 6 per cent. for others.

Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $160,506,242; balancse, $8,746,881. The Sub-Treasury debit balance was $508,314.

Foreign exchange was firm. Nominal rates were $4.83½ for sixty days and $4.87½ for demand. Rates for actual business were as follows: Sixty days, $4.8310; demand, $4.8675; cables, $4.8735; commercial bills, $4.82½@$4.83¼.

Commercial bills were quoted: Francs, 5.20 and 5.17; reichsmarks, 94 7-16 and 95⅛@95 3-32, guilders, 39⅞ and 40 1-16.

Exchange on New York at domestic centres: Boston—Par. Chicago—5c premium. New Orleans—Commercial, 50c discount; bank, $1 premium. Savannah—Buying, 50c discount; selling, 75c premium. Charleston—Buying, par; selling, 1-10 premium. San Francisco—Sight, 2c; telegraphic, 5c. Cincinnati—15c discount. St. Louis—10c discount @ par.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Money was wanted in the market to-day, and the rates hardened, owing to the payment of $12,500,000 new Treasury bills and the retention of the $5,000,000 in Egypt shipped for the account of the Indian Secretary, as cabled on Saturday. Discounta were firm.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was cheerful and moderately activs, though the approaching settlement restricted operations. Consols were steady. Home rails were firm, especially the Scotch lines.

Americans opened firm at rather above parity, helped by the New York bank statement and the monetary outlook, were fairly active, and hardened on New York buying. The demand for Americans moderated later, and they closed firm, some of them slightly below the best quotations of the day.

Foreigners ruled good. Japanese hardened. Rio Tintos were strong.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1905 were quoted at 101⅞.

Bar silver steady at 28 13-16d per ounce. Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 27.95; Lisbon, 5.50.

Money, 3½@4 per cent.

Discount rates: Short and three months' bills, 4 per cent.

The amount of bullion taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day was £105,000.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A brief survey of the tabulated figures will show that the net price changes in yesterday's market were extremely irregular, that the advances were most pronounced in stocks having no hold upon general interest, that the better class of active securities, e. g., Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, and the United States Steel shares, closed either unchanged or at fractional net gains, and that at least one stock upon which an aggressive speculative interest converged last week—namely, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, closed at a sharp decline, but for all that the market, during the greater part of the session, presented an appearance of extraordinary general strength, and was a credit to the bull crowd. It was, for one thing, a million-share day. Steel common, which had been somewhat of a laggard in the industrial quarter of the market, touched the highest eighth of the year. Union Pacific, a stock in which there has been notable opposition to bullish operations, was put above 135 for the first time on this movement. Southern Pacific advanced to within ¼ per cent. of its highest price for the year, touching 72½. It was a market, moreover, on which you could sell stocks with considerable freedom, and that was a point in its favor from the point of view of either a bull or a bear.

It is readily conceded that those who have had the faith to follow the bull leadership have made all the money. The aggressive leadership on the bull side has recently been too professional to inspire general confidence, but it has succeeded up to this point, and the bears have had no leadership at all. There has been very little money on the bear side, even for Stock Exchange traders having all the facilities for turning stocks quickly.

The momentum which the market gathered on Friday and Saturday of last week carried the general list to a slightly higher level in the first half hour of trading yesterday, and on this bulge in prices there was some very heavy selling. It represented not only the profit taking of those who had carried stocks over the week's end expecting to get a higher opening yesterday morning on which to sell, but also a good deal of original liquidation from scattered sources. Union Pacific was heavily sold on its initial advance to 134⅞, and there was so much more stock in sight to be sold at 135 that the bull crowd hesitated to go any further. Other prominent stocks were supplied with almost equal freedom, and it looked for a while as if the buying power would be exhausted. After the first half hour prices reacted to about the level of Saturday's closing, Union Pacific falling back to 134⅜. At this point the activity in the general list left off, and for an hour or more the trading was confined very largely to industrial specialties, such as Allis-Chalmers, American Locomotive, American Car and Foundry, Pressed Steel Car, Railway Steel Spring, and Republic Iron and Steel.

This diversion of trading in the second hour to a group of low-priced industrial issues misled a great many tape observers. About midday the activity swung again into the better stocks. The bull crowd resolutely attacked the block of Union Pacific at 135 which it had refused to touch in the first hour. St. Paul and Steel preferred, which had not shared proportionately in the market's earlier strength, moved up sharply. The buying in Steel common became more aggressive. This second demonstration was in some respects more striking than that of the first hour, and influenced a fresh spasm of short covering. A strong opening had been expected. Only some accident unfavorable to the bull side of the market could have prevented it after the headway gained on Friday and Saturday, prices closing Saturday at practically the highest of the week. There had been an accumulation of buying orders over Sunday, and, although it was not as large as could have been wished for, it was enough to give the bull crowd a market on which to take profits freely. After all the outside bids have been filled up on a strong Monday morning opening, a reaction in prices is to be expected. The market yesterday developed fresh strength after midday. The highest prices were then made.

The market held its advances right up to "delivery hour"—2:15 o'clock—and then sold off rather abruptly. Union Pacific, which had sold as high as 135¼, touched 134⅜ in the last ten minutes of trading.

There was just such a campaign as this in the equipment stocks in 1902, and it was supported by precisely the same reasoning. Then, as now, there was an immense railroad tonnage in sight, the railroad companies were placing orders for cars and locomotives on a large scale, and there was actually a serious congestion of freight before the situation was relieved. Relief came partly through a decline in tonnage.

A large short interest has been eliminated from the market in the last few days. To that extent its technical position has been weakened. If there is not enough fresh buying to offset the loss of the short interest, the bear element's involuntary support will doubtless be missed.

There was some further increase of commission house business yesterday, but the general outside response to the advance was not up to expectations. It is believed that the public will trade, if at all, in low-priced stocks, but brokers insist that its preference is for low-priced railroad issues. The bull crowd could make more headway in the cheap railroad stocks, they think, than in cheap industrial shares, toward which the average commission house client holds a distrustful attitude. The low-priced railroad stocks, it will be observed, are not so prominent. Erie common, for example, in which there is a wide public interest, was heavy yesterday. The bull crowd in Mexican Central, another low-priced railroad stock, which might be made popular, has not made much headway as yet above 25. Rock Island also was heavy yesterday. In fact, about the only low-priced railroad issue in which it would be possible to make a broad and continuous market that showed pronounced strength yesterday was Southern Railway common.

The heavinesa of the Rock Island issues is not understood. Disappointing reports of earnings have not hitherto detracted seriously from the speculative attractions of Rock Island common. That stock is traded in not for its value, which is obscure, but for its fluctuations. These of late have been rather disappointing. The members of the Moore crowd are all absent from the Street. They will return next week.

Traders capable of following any speculative current, however irrational or whimsical it may seem, are now looking around for the cheapest stocks they can find and buying them because intereat is tending in their favor. One such trader yesterday bought 5,000 shares of American Grasa Twine, which advanced partly on his buying and partly on buying of miscellaneous origin from 7⅝ to 10. Another similar incident of the day's trading was a movement in Quicksilver common, which advanced 1 per cent., selling at 1⅞. Quicksilver, which has no known value except that it is still listed on the Stock Exchange, is the cheapest security in the whole market. The next cheapest stock is Standard Rope and Twine common, which advanced one-quarter of 1 per cent. yesterday, selling at 1⅞. These stocks had not been active before for a long time. No stock is entirely worthless that has still a speculative franchise on the Stock Exchange. That is worth something. A broker of many years' experience once said: "When a stock sells below 1 per cent., if it is still listed, you can buy it with the certainty that sooner or later you will get a movement in it. Every once in a while people are taken with a fancy for cheap stocks, and then yours will have its turn. It has to advance only 1 per cent. to double your money." Franklin's proverb never to buy anything because it is cheap obviously does not apply to speculation.

Among the active speculative issues Amalgamated Copper is a laggard. It was "tipped" for an advance yesterday afternoon. That was one of the few tips that went wrong. The surprising manner in which tips are made good from day to day is characteristic of the kind of market this is.

The bull crowd in American Locomotive has modestly estimated the book value of the stock at 70. It sold yesterday at 69¾. It cannot go above 70 without being exposed to the criticism that it sells above the book value placed upon it by its own friends.

GLOBE EXPRESS TANGLE.

Announced and Denied That It Will Get Rio Grande Franchise.

At the annual meeting of the Globe Express Company, held recently at Denver, George J. Gould, E. T. Jeffery, C. H. Schlacks, Jesse White, J. W. Gilluly, J. F. Vaile, and J. B. Andrews were elected Directors for the present year.

The passenger department of the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad sends out this information in regard to the Globe Express Company:

"It is announced that the Globe Express Company has signed contracts with the new Western Pacific whereby it will have the exclusive franchise to operate over that road. The same company will succeed the Wells Fargo Company on the Rio Grande Western as soon as the latter's franchise expires."

Notwithstanding this announcement, E. T. Jeffery, President of the Denver and Rio Grande, made the positive statement yesterday that there was no truth in it, and that the matters referred to had never been considered.

If the Globe Express Company is to replace the Wells Fargo Express Company on the Rio Grande Western the step will mark a further widening of the breach between the Gould and the Harriman interests. E. H. Harriman is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Wells Fargo Company.

Since the announcement of George J. Gould's intention to build the Western Pacific Railroad Mr. Gould has retired as a Director from several Harriman properties, and Mr. Harriman from several Gould companies.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—New York exchange was 5c premium; time and call loans, 4@5 per cent.

For the first time since the Field-Mitchell-Valentine syndicate took control of the Chicago City Railway stock for Morgan-Union Traction interest, the stock of City Railway to-day sold at 204. This is four points above the price at which the syndicate took control. North Chicago sold in small amount at 85, the price it brought two weeks ago.

Aside from this feature in the strength of City Railway, Subway shares were the point of principal interest in the local trading. At the opening there was enough selling to break the stock to 45½, compared with the high of 47 on Saturday. Later there was support enough to rally the price to around 47. Later it rose to 47¾ and closed at 47¼.

Title and Trust continued strong at 106. Canal and Dock touched 69. Boxboard preferred was fairly active at steady prices. Tool sold at 49. Metropolitan Elevated went to 28. Brick went off a point.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—The striking feature in the local market to-day was the demand for Lehigh Valley, under which the price advanced from 74⅞ to 77½. The buying was by the most prominent of the local houses, but was believed to be for the New York account. There was no news to account for the advance that could be learned, but the Street has made up its mind that an increase in the dividend was in sight—to the insiders at least.

There was heavy buying of United States Steel, Reading, and, to a lesser extent, Rock Island and Southern Railway. Cambria Steel and Keystone Telephone each had a little boom, trading in both stocks being active. Catawissa first preferred was up 1, Broad Top preferred 1⅝, and several other inactive issues advanced fractionally.

New Haven Iron and Steel was down ⅛. The market as a whole was broader and more active than it has been for some time past. Total sales, 67,612 shares. The list:

ALL RECORDS BROKEN IN FREIGHT CAR ORDERS

More Placed in Forty-one Weeks Than in Any Full Year Before.

SHIPPERS ASK FOR SERVICE

Steel and Grain Suffer for Lack of Transportation Facilities—Pennsylvania's Big Car Order.

Orders for freight cars placed by the railroads so far this year have exceeded the orders for the full year 1902, which heretofore has been the record year for orders for freight cars. From all over the country come complaints that the railroads are short of cars and cannot supply them as quickly as shippers demand. This condition explains the vast amount of orders being placed by railroads for freight cars and for locomotives as well. The Railway Age, in a compilation covering a series of years, shows that the freight cars ordered this year number 196,672 compared with 195,248 cars in 1902.

Last week the Pennsylvania Railroad placed the largest order ever given by a railroad for equipment calling for 21,500 cars. Numerous smaller orders have been given by railroads in all sections of the country. The equipment orders for the present year compared with previous figures are given by the Railway Age as follows:

	Freight Cars.	Pass. Cars.	L'c'motives.
Forty-one weeks, 1905..	196,672	2,297	4,131
1904	136,561	2,213	2,538
1903	108,936	2,310	3,283
1902	195,248	3,459	4,665
1901	193,439	2,879	4,340

The very great activity in all industries and the size of this season's crops have tested the railroads to the utmost. Dispatches from the West yesterday quoted railroad officials as saying that the present situation surpassed any previous experience. In one of these President E. P. Ripley of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé says: "There is nothing in the country so scarce as is transportation. Railroads have more cars than ever in their history, and the total tonnage is almost beyond belief."

Pittsburg advices indicate that the steel industry is about to feel seriously the lack of transportation that has already hampered to some extent the delivery of other materials, including grain. With the present volume of output the steel companies find that the railroads cannot handle the iron and steel turned over to them for shipment to consumers.

According to some railroad officials the question of rate cutting is not likely to be serious this Winter, owing to the great volume of business offering to all lines. One official describes the condition thus:

"The scramble for cars is simply unprecedented, and shippers everywhere are offering premiums to the railroads that they may get their products to market. Such a state of affairs has never before been experienced, at least not to my knowledge. There is enough freight in the country to maintain such a condition for months, and there is no danger of rate-cutting this Winter."

Referring to the record-breaking order of the Pennsylvania Railroad and to the effect upon equipment manufacturing companies of the present rush to secure cars and locomotives The Railway Age says:

"The orders placed by the Pennsylvania this week for 21,500 cars, in addition to the 16,160 ordered in August, made a new record in contracts placed by a single company, and practically pre-empts all steel car building facilities during the entire year of 1906. It is stated that all car manufacturers are crowded with orders and that the American Car and Foundry Company alone has unfilled contracts aggregating over 60,000 cars, while no company can promise delivery before the middle of next year unless the order is for a few wooden cars. The greater number of cars ordered during the current year are yet to be built and will keep the car manufacturers busy until well into the second half of next year."

RIO GRANDE DROPS HARRIMAN.

His Retirement as Director Follows George J. Gould's Example.

SALT LAKE, Oct. 23.—The annual meeting of the Rio Grande Western Railroad Company to-day was attended by Vice President Schlacks, Chief Counsel Valle, and Treasurer Colton, holding proxies for nearly all outstanding stock.

The Board of Directors was re-elected with the exception of E. H. Harriman, who was dropped in favor of A. H. Calif of New York. Harriman's retirement from the Gould properties is in accordance with the example set by George J. Gould in retiring several months ago from the Directorate of the Union Pacific and other Harriman lines.

The local market opened irregular, without marked change from Saturday. Copper Range was the feature at the opening, gaining a point, while other copper shares made fractional gains, and the local issues also worked higher. Old Dominion reached a new high level on the declaration of its initial dividend of 50c.

There was considerable profit taking in the copper shares, traders shifting their operations to the local issues, which developed more activity and strength. The tone was, however, good, and with few exceptions prices were maintained throughout the day, closing irregular. Complete list of transactions follows:

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23.—The trading to-day was mostly in speculative issues. Prices were steady, and a firm tone pervaded the market. Seaboard new second preferred gained ½ on liberal trading, and the new common gained ⅜. Brewing incomes rose ⅝ and held the advance. Western Maryland was less active than recently, and gained ⅜. Houston Oil preferred gained ½, at 85½. Alabama Coal and Iron preferred declined ⅜. In the bond list, Cotton Duck 5s sold off ½. Seaboard ten-year 5s gained ¼. Atlantic Coast Line new 4s certificates rose 1 point. Consolidated Cotton Duck sold off 1⅜, to 11½; Cotton Duck preferred, in sympathy with the common, declined 1¼.

Western Maryland also receded ¼, to 16. The close was fairly active and steady. Shares, 5,549; bonds, $77,200.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT.—The wheat market was somewhat irregular, but on the whole fairly steady, closing unchanged to ⅜c net higher. Opening steady, the market dropped off under sales by professionals, who believed that the leading bull in Chicago was putting wheat on the market. Denials of this, together with support from that quarter, caused a strong covering movement on which prices sold up to the highest price of the bull campaign, being ½ cent above the previous close. This in turn was succeeded by a second reaction in the afternoon and a rather easy close. An influence connected with the early steadiness of the market was firmness abroad, as reflected in ⅜d advance at Liverpool, 1@1¼ marks rise at Berlin, and a 10-point advance at Budapest, in face of heavy world's shipments, reported by Broomhall to be 12,016,000 bushels, compared with 10,672,000 bushels a week ago. Russian shipments were liberal again, but were expected to decrease in the near future, as every effort has been made to get out the wheat before ice or political disturbances should make free shipments impossible. No visible supply statement was issued owing to trouble at the Northwest Canadian points, similar to that of last week. Excluding Fort William, Port Arthur, and the lakes, the figures showed an increase of 1,881,000 bushels. The Northwest was a buyer of wheat at times and commission houses were rather free sellers. Heavy receipts at the Northwest brought the total interior movement up to 1,614,000 bushels, compared with 1,363,000 bushels a year ago. There was no export business reported. No. 2 red at the close was quoted 92c, elevator, and 93¼c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 96c, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 94½c, free on board, afloat.

CORN—Fluctuations in the corn market were comparatively narrow all day at the West, but locally there was more activity, with prices at the close ¼@⅜c net higher. The cables were ¼@1d above the previous close, and world's shipments, according to Broomhall, were about the same as the previous week. Commission houses were scattered buyers at the West. As interior receipts were about the same as last year, and weather conditions remained favorable, neither of these factors had much to do with the day's developments. On export account ten loads were reported. No. 2 corn closing here 61c, elevator, and 61½c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 62c, and No. 2 yellow, 02c, free on board, afloat.

COTTON.—The cotton market was active and excited, and at one time showed a net gain of about 30 points on an expanding demand for outside account and covering of shorts arising from reports of more or less general frosts over the Northern belt and of firmer interior holders. There was heavy realizing at the advance, but prices were well supported, and the close was only 7@8 points off from the top, at a net advance of 20@23 points. Sales were estimated at 500,000 bales. The market opened strong at an advance of 13@21 points on higher cables and the frost news. From private and official reports so far received it appears that actual freezing temperature occurred at comparatively few points, but the general impression appeared to be that the weather was cold enough to check development to an extent that would prevent the maturity of young growth, and that the development of late cotton had been practically cut short. This naturally increased the popularity of small crop estimates and seemed to be leading to a more general investment demand than has been noticed for some time past. There was selling on the advance on the theory that prices were approaching the level at which interior holders have previously been active sellers, and that consequently increased spot offerings would be followed by increasing receipts and possibly by pressure of actual in the local market, owing to the large supplies here available for delivery on contract. After only a slight early reaction, however, the market firmed up on continued bull support, and in the early afternoon January sold at 10.47, or about 82 points up from the low level of last Tuesday. Toward the close realizing was again a feature, but prices were well maintained, considering the rapidity of the recent advance, and the close was steady in tone.

Contract prices ranged as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Saturday's Close.
October	10.13	10.08	10.09@10.11	9.87
November	10.06	10.05	10.14@10.16	9.92

February	10.53	10.48	10.46@10.48	10.26
March	10.65	10.48	10.57@10.58	10.34
April	..	..	10.62@10.63	10.39
May	10.75	10.58	10.67@10.69	10.44
July	10.78	10.76	..@ ..	..

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 23.—Spot cotton, moderate demand; sales, 8,000 bales; speculation and export, 500 bales; American, 7,000 bales; receipts, 8,000 bales, all American; middling upland, 5.62d. Futures opened irregular, 1@4 points higher. Closed steady, at a net advance of 7@8 points. October and October-November, 5.52; November-December, 5.53; December-January, 5.57; January-February, 5.60; February-March, 5.62; March-April, 5.65; April-May, 5.66; May-June, 5.67; June-July, 5.68; July-August, 5.69. Manchester—Yarns dull; cloths quiet.

COFFEE.—The market was comparatively quiet, sales for the day being reported of about 30,000 bags. Prices, however, showed weakness, as they have done recently when December longs seemed to be trying to sell outright rather than switch, and after opening at a decline of 5@10 points, the market worked off to a loss of 10@20 points. Europe was a moderate seller, and there was some liquidation, but toward the close a moderate demand from trade interests caused a slight improvement and the market was finally steady at a net decline of 5@15 points. European cables were rather disappointing, particularly as to Havre, which was ¼ franc lower. Hamburg was net unchanged, and the Brazilian news did not seem to present any special feature. The rate of Brazilian exchange was 1-16d higher and the primary markets were firm, with Rio 50 reis higher, but receipts continue a shade over last year's, with the two ports getting 59,000 bags, against 58,000 bags last year. Sao Paulo receipts, as reported by the late cable, ran a little smaller, 46,000 bags, against 50,900 bags last year, and warehouse deliveries for the past week showed a considerable improvement, 139-800 bags, against 101,211 for the corresponding week last year. The December long interests still appear to be the "bugaboo" of the local market, and are said to be largely responsible for the absence of general demand which otherwise might be attracted by the bullish points made by leading trade interests. Considerable diversity of opinion appears to exist as to the amount of the December long interests still outstanding, which is estimated all the way from 750,000 to 2,500,000 bags. The market for spot coffee was steady and quiet, with quotations on the basis of 8½c for Rio No. 7.

METALS.—The London tin market was about 10s higher, with spot closing at £149 and futures at £148. Locally the market continued quiet, but prices were more firmly held and the market closed with spot quoted at 32.50@32.75c. Copper was also higher abroad, closing at £72 12s 6d for spot and £70 17s 6d for futures in the London market. Locally no change is apparent. Immediate demand is said to be light, but some large dealers report the market in a firm position. Lake is quoted at 16.37½@16.75c; electrolytic at 16.25@16.62½c and casting at 16@16.37½c. Lead was a shade lower at £14 15s in London. Locally the market continues firm and quotations are more or less nominal. It is said that supplies for forward shipment are still available to large consumers at the old rate of 4.85c, but generally speaking orders for future delivery are subject to quotations at date of shipment. The spot market is quoted at 5.15@5.40c. Iron was higher abroad. Standard foundry closed at 52s 4d, and Cleveland warrants at 54s 1½d. Locally iron was firm. No. 1 foundry Northern is quoted at $18.25@$18.50. Spelter was firm abroad at £28 15s, and firm and unchanged locally at 6.15@6.25c.

The market for regular pig iron certificates on the Produce Exchange was about steady on near and easy on late positions. Foundry grades were generally firm. No trading was done in either grade. Regulars are quoted as follows: October and November, $15.90@$16.25; December, $16@$16.25; January, $16 bid; February, $16@$16.50, and March, $16 bid.

CASH QUOTATIONS.—Southern No. 2 soft, $16.75; steel rails, $28; Lake copper ingots, $16.50; tin, 32.62½c; exchange lead, 5.25c, nominal; spelter 6.20c; wheat, No. 2 red, 93¼c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 61½c; oats, 26 to 32 lb, 33½@34c; flour, Minneapolis Patents, $5; cotton, middling, $10.50; coffee, No. 7 Rio, 8½c; sugar, granulated, $4.70; beef, family, $11.75; beef, hams, $21.75; pork, mess, $16.12½; hogs, dressed, 160 lb, 7¾c.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

WILLIAM P. BRISACHE.—William P. Brisache, upholsterer and cabinet maker, of 2,462 Broadway, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $1,575 and no actual assets.

LA ROCHELLE RESTAURANT COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of La Rochelle Restaurant Company, at Columbus Avenue and Seventy-fifth Street, filed by Edward R. Finch, receiver, show liabilities of $27,226, to 120 creditors, and nominal assets of $40,963, consisting of fixtures, furnishings, and utensils, $25,000; supplies on hand, $500; accounts, $463; lease, $15,000. The largest creditors are A. Buchsbaum, $4,087, secured, and Park & Tilford, $2,288, secured; $1,375 is due to employes for wages.

A. WEINSTEIN.—Judge Stover of the Supreme Court has appointed Abraham Weinstein receiver of the partnership property of the jewelry business carried on under the style of A. Weinstein, at 102 and 104 Fulton Street, in a suit brought by Abraham Weinstein against Simon Loewenberg, his partner, for a dissolution of the partnership, which was formed on Aug. 12. Mr. Weinstein put in $500 capital against Mr. Loewenberg's experience, and also advanced $352 more to meet expenses. The business is closed. The firm has no liabilities except what is due to Mr. Weinstein.

FELMAN & GOLDMAN.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against Max Felman and Benjamin Goldman, composing the firm of Felman & Goldman, manufacturers of children's clothing at 27 Walker Street, by the following creditors: W. Stoney & Son, $252; B. Shavinsky, Son & Co., $367; Levy Goldstein, $347; E. B. Moore & Co., $145, and Abraham Garbilk, $273. It was alleged that they are insolvent, have made payments to prefer, and transferred merchandise and accounts. The firm was formed on July 1, 1904, and succeeded Cooper & Goldman, who began in December, 1903.

CHARLES I. LIGHTSTONE.—Charles I. Lightstone, wholesale dealer in woollens, formerly at 115 Greene Street, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Aug. 25, 1904, has applied for his discharge from bankruptcy, and the matter will come up in the United States District Court on Nov. 6. Mr. Lightstone, in his examination on the bankruptcy case, said that he lost $22,500 in playing the races, bookmaking, and gambling shortly before his failure. In August last Peter B. Olney, Referee in Bankruptcy, ordered Mr. Lightstone to pay over $17,500 to Edward S. Thomas, Trustee in Bankruptcy. Irving L. Ernst, attorney for Mr. Thomas, said yesterday that a motion to confirm the report of Referee Olney would be argued in a few days in the United States District Court.

FREDERICK E. BLOCH.—Frederick E. Bloch, residing at 1,276 Lexington Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy individually and as a partner in the Universal Art Publishing Company, with liabilities of $38,186 and no available assets. He had a life insurance policy of $10,000, but pledged it in 1899 for a loan of $2,000. The principal creditors are Edward Bloch of Cincinnati, $15,000, and Harry E. Bloch of this city, $5,000. Mr. Bloch filed another petition in bankruptcy on June 12, 1903, and his petition for a discharge was withdrawn in court on July 26, 1905. A creditors' petition in bankruptcy was filed against him and Samuel Vanderwheelen, his partner, in the Universal Art Publishing Company on Aug. 23, 1900, but it was dismissed.

R. B. LEWIS & CO.—Rutherford B. Lewis and Gerhardt W. I. Landau, who composed the firm of R. B. Lewis & Co., tailors, at 147 West Twenty-third Street, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities $6,122, contracted in the last three months, and nominal assets of $4,068, consisting of stock $3,058, fixtures $1,000, insurance rebate $9, and cash in bank $1. The largest creditors are: Margaret Landau, $3,100; Henry C. Biddle & Co., Philadelphia, $1,212, and E. R. Hawkins & Co., Philadelphia, $1,203. Mr. Landau has individual debts of $1,125. Mr. Landau was formerly in the tailoring business at 260 West 125th Street. Some years ago he was in the silk-throwing business in Paterson, N. J., and had a quartz mill at Middlesex, Mass., which was washed away by the bursting of a dam in 1901. Judge Holt of the United States Court appointed Thomas Proctor receiver of the assets.

MORRIS LEMLER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Morris Lemler, shoe dealer at 2,195 Eighth Avenue, by Peter Pinkiert, a creditor for $1,500 for money loaned on Aug. 20. It was alleged that Mr. Lemler is insolvent, on Oct. 4 made payments of $500 to certain creditors to prefer them, and on Oct. 21 transferred a large part of his property to Henry Klinger and others. He has been in business ten years. In May, 1899, he made an assignment, with liabilities of $6,000, and compromised with his creditors at 40 cents on the dollar. Judge Holt of the United States District Court appointed Marcus Mandelbaum receiver of the assets. It was said that on Saturday morning Mr. Lemler had a stock worth $6,500, which was removed that day, and Henry Klinger, an auctioneer, said he had purchased it for $4,250 cash. The stock was advertised to be sold at auction yesterday at 802 Second Avenue. Judge Holt granted a restraining order against Henry Klinger and J. Dobiin, enjoining them from proceeding with the sale.

G. L. SCHUYLER & CO.—Judge Stover of the Supreme Court yesterday appointed Emanuel Blumenstiel of Blumenstiel & Blumenstiel receiver of the assets of G. L. Schuyler & Co., Incorporated, lumber dealers at Ninety-eighth Street and East River, on the application of Walter G. Schuyler, James E. Schuyler, and three other Directors, fixing his bond at $30,000. It was said that notes of the company have gone to protest, suits for $4,000 are pending, and the company has not sufficient funds to meet them. The buildings are on leased land, and the lease expires Nov. 1. The liabilities are $49,505, and nominal assets $65,885, the principal items of which are: Lumber, $21,754; accounts, $19,476; mill and plant, $12,246; buildings and fixtures, $5,573; horses and trucks, $4,367, and cash, $1,097. Among the creditors are: Stetson, Cutler & Redman, $6,209; Holcomb & Caskey, $5,283; S. L. Eastman Flooring Company, $2,860; Cooney, Eckstein & Co., $2,800; Booth & Lewis Lumber Company, $2,400; Dixon & Dewey, $2,338, and the New York Edison Company, $1,843. Walter G. Schuyler was President and James E. Schuyler Secretary, and the capital stock was $200,000.

GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY

What Has Made Men Rich

Trace down the pages of the biographical history of the wealthy men of our country and you will find at least 75 per cent. of them who began life as a poor boy, but industry, economy, and energy have made their names household ones in the business and professional world. You will say that luck makes men wealthy. It is not so; though there are cases—a small percentage—where a windfall dropped into the lap of some man by his predecessor or his relationship or in the game of chance. But where there is one thus fortunate there are ten others who started on life's highway with strong arm and a clear mind, without friends, without money, and without influence, to battle against the whole world and mold for themselves by energy and endurance a fortune honorably made.

My dear wage-earner, if you desire the proof and convincing evidence of the headline of this advertisement, how men became wealthy, go out and ask the first successful man you know what made him rich—how did he start on nothing and become wealthy. He will repeat what we have said: GRASPING THE OPPORTUNITY.

The poor man, or the young man to-day without means, has greater chances and finer opportunities of getting rich than the boy or man twenty years ago.

Dame Fortune Knocks To-day at Your Door and Shouts, "Invest Now in the Suburbs! Grasp the Opportunity!"

Land Has Increased in Price Since 1900 in Westchester 500 Per Cent. Land Has Increased in Kings Since 1900 300 Per Cent. Land Has Increased in Queens Since 1900 500 Per Cent. Let Us Picture Now for You the Next Five Years and the Locality Where You Can Get Rich If You Will Grasp This Opportunity.

The great activity for investment and for homes will in the next five yeare be just outside of Greater New York on Long Island—just where the wage-earner can reach ineide of 30 minutee for a 5 or 10 cent fare; where the line of travel by steam or electricity will be frequent day and night.

The Star of Prosperity Is Now Rising in the East, Coming Over the Fertile Fields of Long Island, and To-day It Reveals a Tale of Prophecy and Makes Known the Future Outside of Greater New York.

TO-DAY.

60 Trains a Day. One Every 20 Minutes. 10 Minutes from Jamaica. 30 Minutes from New York. 5 and 10 Cent Fare.
Finest Roads. Cheapest Land. Best Railroad Service Outside of Greater New York. Population 5,000.

1910.

120 Trains a Day. Everything Electricity. 6 Minutes to Jamaica. 20 Minutes to Herald Square. Only 5 Cent Fare.
Beautiful Parks. Beautiful Homes. Largest Municipality on Long Island. With a Population of 30,000. Great Industrial Centre.

Lots and plots of land at Mineola will increase in value 500 per cent. in 5 years. Why not? Star of New York destiny says so. Lots at the Bronx have increased from $500 to $5,000 in the past 2 years.

MINEOLA.

It lies just three miles outside of Greater New York—just twelve minutes' ride from Jamaica by steam cars, where three lines of the Long Island Railroad centre—all trains from the North Line, from Oyster Bay and Roslyn, all traine from the east on the Main Line, from Greenport west; all trains from the south, Hempstead and Garden City; and, in addition to all, the connection with New York by the Queens County electric car line. No such railroad facilities or transportation anywhere outside of Jamaica. WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH SERVICE? WHERE CAN YOU GET SUCH AN ACCESSIBLE PLACE FOR A HOME?

WE HAVE BOUGHT $150,000 WORTH OF THE MOST CENTRALLY LOCATED LAND IN MINEOLA.

We have bought it close to schools, churches, stores, and within a few blocks of the depot, where every choice residence lot we have ought to be business property in ten years. And the announcement of this sale will pass through this city into the homes of hundreds of thousands of investors and homeseekers to-day. AND WE BELIEVE EVERY LOT WE HAVE WILL BE SOLD IN TEN DAYS. Such things have happened to us before. Therefore, we want you to be there at the Grasp the opportunity. It means a great profit to you. It means a home near your work.

When you read this, sit down and write for maps and tickets. A postal card costs but a cent.
Our Titles are guaranteed by the Title Guarantee Company of New York. Our Titles are always perfect.

We have provided for 10,000 people during the six days at Mineola. Lunch will be served under our spacious tent, and accommodations with horses and carriages to see all our properties there. There is not a lot but what is a high, dry, level piece. Prices only govern lots by the accessibility to depot and cars. Excellent building sites on three broad macadamized roadways.

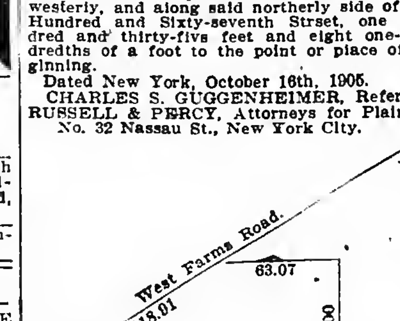
REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, plaintiff, against ABRAHAM GREENBERG and others, defendants.
In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the 13th day of October, 1905, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesrooms, now located at Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 8th day of November, 1905, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by James L. Wells, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:
All that certain plot, piece, or parcel of land, part of the "Charlotte L. Fox estate," so called, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of The Bronx of the City of New York, in the County and State of New York, which on a certain map entitled "Map of property of Charlotte L. Fox, deceased, situated in the Twenty-third Ward, Borough of The Bronx, N. Y. City," dated May first, A. D. 1899, made by John G. Van Horne, civil engineer and city surveyor, and filed in the office of the Register of the County of New York, by the number Three hundred and six, on the ninth day of May, A. D. 1900, is shown as being contained in Block Number 2,754, and is distinguished by the color brown and designated by the number Four, and bounded and described as follows:
Beginning at the point or corner formed by the intersection of the southeasterly side of West Farms Road, with the northerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street; running thence northeasterly and along said southeasterly side of West Farms Road, one hundred and eighteen feet and ninety one-hundredths of a foot; thence easterly, and parallel with the said northerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street, sixty-three feet and seven one-hundredths of a foot; thence southerly, and parallel with Bryant Street, one hundred feet to said northerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street; and thence westerly, and along said northerly side of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh Street, one hundred and thirty-five feet and eight one-hundredths of a foot to the point or place of beginning.
Dated New York, October 16th, 1905.
CHARLES S. GUGGENHEIMER, Referee.
RUSSELL & PERCY, Attorneys for Plaintiff, No. 32 Nassau St., New York City.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is twenty thousand seven hundred and thirty-six and 11-100 ($20,736.11) dollars, with interest thereon from the 18th day of October, 1905, together with costs and allowances amounting to three hundred thirty-one and 23-100 ($331.23) dollars, with interest from October 13th, 1905, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of taxes, assessments, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is sixty-nine and 83-100 ($69.83) dollars and interest.
Dated New York, October 10th, 1905.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN PURSUANCE OF THE REQUIREMENTS of Section 59 of the Railroad Law, the Inter-State Tunnel Railway Company of New York publishes a copy of its articles of association, filed and recorded in the office of the Secretary of State of New York, September 20, 1905, and in the office of the County Clerk of New York County, September 21, 1905, to wit:
INTER-STATE TUNNEL RAILWAY COMPANY OF NEW YORK.
We, the undersigned, all being persons of full age and citizens of the United States, and at least nine of us being residents of the State of New York, desiring to become a corporation under and by virtue of the provisions of the Railroad Law, for the purpose of building, maintaining, and operating a railroad, do hereby certify and state as follows:
1. The name of the corporation is Inter-State Tunnel Railway Company of New York.
2. The number of years it is to continue is one thousand years.
3. The corporation is incorporated for the purpose of constructing and operating a tunnel railroad or railroads in the City of New York, to be connected with any railroad or railroads within the State of New York, or any adjoining State, and thereby forming a continuous line for the carriage of passengers and property between a point or points within and a point or points without the said city. The kind of railroad to be built and operated shall be an underground tunnel railroad of standard gauge, with approach to surface at or near the eastern terminus, and also at points between termini, and with surface and other occupancy of land thereat, for necessary and convenient buildings, stations, fixtures, machinery, and access to the surface, and with all other necessary facilities and appurtenances; and said railroad is to be occupied by electricity or other suitable power.
4. The length of the railroad to be built, maintained, and operated, between its termini, as nearly as can be ascertained, is approximately two miles. The western terminus thereof will be under the waters of the Hudson River on the boundary line between the State of New York and the State of New Jersey, at a point or points of connection with the railroad of a corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, to wit, the Inter-State Tunnel Railway Company of New Jersey, where the said Inter-State boundary line would be intersected by a line drawn from a point on the Hudson River pier head line in Jersey City, New Jersey, (which point is 430 feet south of the south line, prolonged, of Pavonia Avenue, in said Jersey City, measured at right angles to said Pavonia Avenue,) to a point on the Hudson River pier head line in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, (which point is where such last-named pier head line would be intersected by the centre line of Chambers Street, prolonged, in said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.) The eastern terminus of the said railroad will be at terminals in Chambers Street, in said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, between Church Street and a point distant 100 feet easterly from the easterly side of Park Row, in said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York. From its western terminus, the corporation will build, maintain, and operate a tunnel or tunnels with such number of tracks as may be necessary or convenient, under the waters of the Hudson River and under the said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, to the eastern terminus of said railroad in said Borough of Manhattan, City of New York; emerging, however, to the surface at the eastern terminus thereof and between termini, to make necessary and convenient openings for stations and other access to the surface.
5. The name of the county in which the railroad is to be located is the County of New York.
6. The amount of capital stock of the corporation is Seven million five hundred thousand dollars.
7. The number of shares into which the capital stock is to be divided is Seventy-five thousand shares of the par value of One hundred dollars each.
8. All of the capital stock is to be of the same class and consist of common stock.
9. The names and post office addresses of the directors of the corporation, who shall manage its affairs for the first year, are as follows: John B. McDonald, 34 Nassau St., Manhattan, N. Y.; John D. Crimmins, 40 E. 68th St., Manhattan, N. Y.; Herbert H. Vreeland, 621 B'way, Manhattan, N. Y.; Henry D. Macdona, 31 Nassau St., Manhattan, N. Y.; Robert A. C. Smith, 100 B'way, Manhattan, N. Y.; Mark T. Cox, 110 Harrison St., E. Orange, N. J.; Thomas N. McCarter, 763 Broad St., Newark, N. J.; Charles A. Sterling, 763 Broad St., Newark, N. J.; Albert B. Carlton, 763 Broad St., Newark, N. J.
10. The place where its principal office is to be located is the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York.
11. The name and post office address of each subscriber to this certificate, and the number of shares of stock he agrees to take in such corporation, are as follows:

Name.	Post Office Address.	Number of Shares.
John B. McDonald	34 Nassau St., Manhattan, N. Y.	100

SURROGATE NOTICES.

SCHWARZE, PAULINE.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent.—To Edward De Witt, an executor named in the will of the testatrix hereinafter named, and Frank Schwarze, Victor Schwarze, Theresa S. Dickert, Elizabeth Bickmann, Minnie Sears, Frederick Schwarze, Matilda Ruff, Augustus Schwarze, John Schwarze, Pauline Hebermann, Children or descendants of said Victor Schwarze, if any, (provided the said Victor Schwarze died before said testatrix hereinafter named) who are or may be next of kin of said decedent, which said person or persons, if any there be, are unknown and their names, places of residence, and Post Office addresses are unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and who are cited as a class, the next of kin of PAULINE SCHWARZE, late of the County of New York, deceased, send greeting:
Whereas, Theresa S. Dickert of the City of New York has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, bearing date the fifth day of September, 1903, relating to personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Pauline Schwarze, late of the County of New York, deceased; therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 29th day of November, one thousand nine hundred and five, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.
And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or, if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or, in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.
In testimony whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Abner C. Thomas, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 4th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and five.
[Seal.]
JAMES A. DONNELLY, Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

TRUCK OWNERS DEFY THE DRIVERS TO STRIKE

They Express Their Antagonism to the Closed Shop.

MEN WILL DECIDE TO-NIGHT

The Employers Open a Bureau for Strike-Breakers — The Drivers' Union Numbers 4,500 Now.

The New York Team Owners' Association, formerly the New York Truck Owners' Association, met yesterday at the Astor House and practically flung the gage of battle to the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. Whether or not the teamsters will take it up will depend on the action of the brotherhood, which will have a special meeting to-night at Groll's Hall, 147 East Fifty-third Street.

At this meeting it will be decided whether a general strike of the 4,500 members of the Truck Drivers' Union, which would paralyze the trucking business in the entire wholesale dry goods district, will be ordered.

The meeting of the Team Owners' Association was called to take action on the strike of the teamsters last week in the stables of Thomas Orr, 322 West Twenty-first Street, a member of the association. The Executive Committee met later and the following statement was issued on behalf of the association:

The New York Team Owners' Association held a special meeting Monday at the Astor House, at which a large majority of its members were present. The strike now prevailing against Thomas Orr and conditions generally were considered. No definite action was taken, because the situation does not call for it. The new drivers employed by Mr. Orr are doing his work satisfactorily.

Inasmuch as the issue between the New York Team Owners' Association and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters is that of the closed shop, it is now being seriously considered by a number of business associations, whose members are large shippers. The action so far taken by these associations gives the Team Owners' Association their unqualified support and sympathy in the position it has taken.

Secretary Henry C. Hunter of the association supplemented this with a statement to the effect that the members of the association were and would remain unalterably opposed to the closed shop. He said a general sympathetic strike would be bad for both sides.

"The employers are in much better shape to fight a strike than they were when they signed the last open-shop agreement," he said. "As to the men, I am of the opinion that they could not order a general strike with a good chance of success."

The last agreement expired on April 30 of this year, and was made when a general strike had been actually decided on, which was averted through the efforts of the Conciliation Committee of the Civic Federation. The wages, hours of labor, and other details were little different from those now demanded of Thomas Orr, and which will be demanded from other individual employers, and though it was an open-shop agreement, it was made with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. The agreement submitted to Thomas Orr demands the closed shop, otherwise there would be no trouble.

Last week First Vice President Gould of the International Brotherhood took the stand that demands would be made on individual employers this year and that there would be no general strike. The action of the employers yesterday, however, has changed the situation. The truck drivers were pointing to the success of the Mail Drivers' Union in their last strike.

As a last resort to avert a general strike a conference took place late yesterday between Valentine Hoffman, President, and John F. Cleary, business agent, of Truck Drivers' Local No. 708, and Thomas Orr. Mr. Orr was willing to concede the wage demand, but the conferees locked horns on the open shop demand and a settlement was impossible. Hoffman said later that the decision as to what action will be taken will be made public this evening. If a general strike is declared, it is expected it will go into effect to-morrow.

To be prepared for trouble the Team Owners' Association has opened an employment agency at 288 Pearl Street.

HAMMER RAID IN DEY STREET.

Police Get No Poolroom Evidence, but Find a Red-Hot Stove.

For the last three weeks Capt. McNally of the Church Street Police Station has had an eye upon a cigar store in Dey Street, which, he had reason to believe, had concealed a poolroom in the rear. Walking past the place yesterday morning Capt. McNally observed to one of his roundsmen:

"That place looks horsy to me. Soon as I get the evidence on it I'm going to raid it."

A plain clothes man was assigned to watch the place and saw a number of men go in, but they didn't come out. Then came Capt. McNally with a dozen men armed with axes, crowbars, files, saws, and hammers. They burst open a wooden door at the left of the cigar store entrance only to find a metal door behind. After ten minutes of hard work they battered this down. Then they came to another door with heavy iron bars.

The raiders hacked and hewed at this door for fifteen minutes, and were about to give up in despair when some one on the inside slipped the bolt and allowed them to enter. In the room were about 100 men, most of them calmly smoking cigars. The police hunted for evidence, but found none. They did find a red hot stove below the room which, the police say, had been used to destroy evidence while they were breaking in. The man supposed to have conducted the place, but who declined to give his name, was arrested on a John Doe warrant and locked up.

N. Y. UNIVERSITY OFFICERS.

Henry Van Schaick President of the Board—Enrollment Increases.

At the annual meeting of the Corporation of the New York University, in Washington Square, yesterday, Henry Van Schaick was elected President of the board, succeeding William A. Wheelock, who died recently. Mr. Van Schaick's father, Myndert Van Schaick, was one of the founders of the university. Henry Van Schaick was graduated from the university in 1843 with Mr. Wheelock. He is a retired lawyer. Dr. Alexander, the Vice President, and the other officers were re-elected.

The total enrollment to date for the present year was reported to be 2,404. On Dec. 1 last year the total was 2,380, and from present indications, the total by Dec. 1 this year will be more than 300 in excess of that figure.

SCHOOLBOY A PICKPOCKET.

Nicholas Thomas Held for Trial on Charge of Teaching Theft.

Nicholas Thomas, who, the police say, has taught boys to pick pockets, was held yesterday by Magistrate Whitman in Essex Market Court in $1,000 bail for trial. It is charged that Thomas corrupted nine-year-old Benjamin Zirren of 914 Fifth Street by teaching him to steal. Thomas, it was alleged in court yesterday, took Zirren from his desk in a public school, and teaching him to rob sent him to Boston to thieve. Young Zirren was arrested in Boston. He accused Thomas, and appeared against him in court yesterday.

TEXTILE MILLS REJECT DEMANDS OF EMPLOYES

Situation at Fall River Most Critical Since the Strike.

UNIONS MAY MEET TO-MORROW

Further Negotiations Possible—New Schedule in Effect, But Only One Strike Results.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 23.—The textile situation here was more critical to-night than it has been at any time since the close of the great strike last January.

The Manufacturers' Association, representing all the print cloth mills in the city, with the exception of those controlled by M. C. D. Borden of New York, held a meeting this afternoon and voted to refuse the request of the Textile Council for a direct restoration of the wage schedule which prevailed previous to the 12½ per cent. reduction of July 25, 1904. The action of the association will be considered at a special meeting of the Textile Council to-morrow night, when it is probable the entire matter will be referred to special meetings on Wednesday evening of all the unions represented in the council.

The plan of the Manufacturers' Association provided for a direct increase of 5 per cent. and a profit-sharing arrangement, the profits due the employes to be figured monthly on the market price of cloth, which, however, must show at least a margin over the cost of cotton of 75 cents per cut. The present condition of the market would net the employes about 8 per cent., which would make a total increase in wages of about 13 per cent.

President James Tansey of the Textile Council, when informed to-night of the manufacturers' decision, said he regretted very much the action of the mill owners, but would not enter into a discussion of the situation.

It is considered probable that before final action is taken by the unions further negotiations will be held between the two sides, and should a strike be determined upon it is thought that the operatives will not leave the mills until the close of the week.

The new schedule went into effect to-day and no strike occurred, except at the Barnard Mills, where the ring spinners remained away. The ring spinning room was shut down.

At the six mills of the Fall River Iron Works, owned by Mr. Borden, the wage scale of 1904 was restored in full.

MAIL TUBES SEIZED.

Receivers of Tubular Dispatch Company Stop Service.

The pneumatic tubes conveying the letter mail between New York, Brooklyn, the General Post Office, and Produce Exchange and the Grand Central Station were put out of business yesterday when they were seized by receivers for the Tubular Dispatch Company for non-payment of $645,000 interest due on bonds. The seizure did not materially affect the mail service of the city, for the Post Office was prepared and had an extra force of wagons out to do the work as soon as the use of the tubes was denied.

The Tubular Company owns the tubes, while the New York Mail and Transportation Company owns the pumping apparatus supplying the motive power. When the receivers desired to seize both the tubes and power plants the Mail and Transportation Company refused to turn the power plants over to them. The Mail and Transportation Company received an annual rental of $115,000 from the Government. The Tubular Company wanted it to pay the interest on the bonds, but the Mail and Transportation Company refused.

Postmaster Willcox said he believed the action in stopping the tube service was illegal. Some arrangements may be made in the next forty-eight hours to resume the service. In the meantime the mail collections and deliveries will continue on schedule time.

MAGISTRATE FINES A FRIEND.

I Thought They'd Get You Some Time, He Said to the Auto Speeder.

Magistrate Barlow, in the Harlem Court, fined a friend $5 yesterday for exceeding the speed limit in an automobile in Central Park. The prisoner was Henry Barbey, an architect, of 52 Pine Street, whom the Magistrate has known for a long time. The Magistrate's eyes twinkled when he saw his friend arraigned.

"So you're here at last," said the Magistrate. "I thought the police would get you some time."

"I'll fine you $5," concluded the Magistrate, with an air of mock sternness.

Mr. Barbey paid the clerk and then joined the Magistrate on the bench.

Copy of The Corsair Brings $80.

A complete copy of the extremely rare New York publication The Corsair, to which William M. Thackeray contributed, was among the many interesting items sold at auction by the Merwin-Clayton Company, 20 East Twentieth Street, yesterday. It is a small folio, unbound, comprising all the numbers, from 1 to 52, issued in 1839-40, and brought $80. A number of other rare volumes and first editions brought fair prices.

Father Dived for Son's Body.

Frank Riley, Jr., the seven-year-old son of Policeman Frank Riley, was drowned yesterday in a pond at the rear of the Vanderbilt mansion at New Dorp, S. I. He was sailing a toy boat and ventured beyond his depth. Some of the other children ran screaming to the boy's home. Policeman Riley ran to the pond and dived repeatedly. At last he brought his son's body to shore.

Gives Land to Sisters of Mercy.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Oct. 23.—Forty acres of valuable land on the slope of the Watchung Mountains, just north of this city, have been presented to the Sisters of Mercy of the Trenton Diocese by David J. Kinney, President of the New York Vacuum Cleaning Company. A $300,000 convent school will be erected on the land in the Spring. The gift is in memory of Mr. Kinney's mother. The Sisters of Mercy now have their home at Bordentown, N. J.

CITY'S FERRY FLEET READY.

Ceremonies Arranged for Starting Staten Island Boats To-morrow.

Invitations were issued yesterday by the Aldermanic Committee for the opening of the Staten Island municipal ferry service to-morrow. The fleet of five ferryboats, with which it is expected to maintain a fifteen-minute schedule between St. George and Whitehall Street, is ready.

At 11 o'clock to-morrow the flagship of the fleet, the Manhattan, will leave the foot of Whitehall Street for St. George on the first trip. Mayor McClellan, Dock Commissioner Featherson, and other officials and guests will be on board. The other four boats, the Brooklyn, Bronx, Queens, and the Richmond, will escort the Manhattan to Staten Island, where Borough President Cromwell will meet the party. At the conclusion of the speeches the Manhattan will return to Whitehall Street and begin the regular passenger service. The other boats will follow on schedule time.

WOULDN'T GO WITHOUT DICK.

Frank Fought Him Hard, but When Bail Arrived It Was Different.

When Frank Dumphy of 438 West Thirty-second Street and Richard Comiskey of 591 Ninth Avenue were arrested early last night in a saloon at the corner of Sixth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street they were pummeling one another's faces. Two doormen were hardly able to keep them apart as they were led down to their cells in the Tenderloin Station.

Dumphy sent for and secured a bondsman in Thomas Corcoran of 538 West Twenty-eighth Street. Before Dumphy would sign the bond he declared stontly to Corcoran:

"I won't go out unless you bail out Dick, too."

"I thought you were just fighting Dick like you were trying to kill one another."

"Oh, I was; but it's all right now. We talked it over by yelling at each other in the pinch hole. You must bail out Dick."

Dick and Frank went out almost embracing.

MOVE FOR A BRONX COUNTY.

Club Formed to Agitate Separation from New York County.

Several business men of the Bronx have incorporated the Bronx County Club to start an agitation to get the Legislature to make the Bronx a separate county. At present New York County includes the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx.

Andrew Cole is the President of the club, Dr. Eugene Monahan Vice President, Thomas Mahar Treasurer, and J. M. Stewart Secretary. Mr. Mahar is a son of the President of the Union Railway Company, and the elder Mr. Mahar is one of the leading members of the club. Nicholas J. Ryan, a builder, is another of the leading spirits. The club has headquarters at 1,248 Boston Road.

The members of the club say the Bronx has 400,000 population, 65,000 voters, and that it is naturally separated from the rest of New York County.

12,000 Inspect the Amerika.

Twelve thousand persons visited and looked through the magnificent trans-Atlantic liner Amerika, the new 41,000-ton steamship of the Hamburg-American Line, yesterday, at her pier here. Perhaps never before have so many boarded any steamship in a single day. Many contributed to the Seamen's Orphans' Fund.

THE FIRST TOBACCO SHOW.

My Lady Nicotine in Many Forms at the Grand Central Palace.

My Lady Nicotine, in many garbs, is enshrined at the Grand Central Palace, where the Independent Tobacco Industrial Exposition, the first tobacco show ever held in New York, began last night. Her career is followed by demonstration from the cradle of the earth to the crematory of cigar, pipe, or cigarette.

The success of the exposition, which, as its name indicates, is the offspring of the independent tobacco interests, was demonstrated when the doors were thrown open. Every foot of floor space was occupied by exhibitors, and an eager crowd was waiting admission. The promoters said that enough space had been taken to more than cover the expenses of the exposition, and declared that before the week is over the allied interests which are working independently of the trust, will present a solid phalanx—grower, buyer, manufaoturer, wholesaler, and retailer.

"We are only sory," said Chairman Sidney J. Freeman, "that we did not secure Madison Square Garden for our first attempt. We will be there next year, sure."

The exhibition hall is elaborately decorated and the booths are attractive. Not a lover of the weed, no matter what form his affection takes, has been forgotten. There are shown tobacco plants, cured leaves, manufactured tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, pipes, pipe racks, pouches, match boxes, and the thousand and one smokers' sundries. Even the man who prefers his tobacco in plug form has not been forgotten.

During the week there will be conventions of the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association of the United States and of the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of New York, at which will be organized a National Allied Tobacco Industrial Trades' Association.

RAYNER CHALLENGES GORMAN

Wants Debate on Franchise Amendment—A Laugh His Reply.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 23.—Senator Rayner to-day sent to Senator Gorman his formal challenge to a debate on the suffrage amendment, which he bitterly attacked recently in a letter to Maryland Democrats. Gorman laughs at the challenge and is apparently trying to belittle Rayner's action. Rayner offered to pay all expenses of the meeting, and said:

"There is nothing inappropriate about the suggestion, as in a number of States—notably in Illinois, Virginia, Mississippi, and Arkansas—debates of this character have taken place between their Senators upon public issues of the day.

"I have no desire for any spectacular performance or polemical display. This is a cold proposition we are dealing with, and we can take it up and dissect and analyze it before an intelligent audience."

Van Beuren Mansion Porter Killed.

Edward Cummings, a porter in the employ of the Van Beurens, in the famous Van Benren mansion, 21 West Fourteenth Street, fell from the roof of the house through the skylight yesterday morning, receiving injuries from which he died in the afternoon at the New York Hospital. The Van Beuren mansion, in the heart of the busy Fourteenth Street shopping district, is one of the best-known landmarks in lower New York.

HAD DEPOSITS IN 50 BANKS.

Col. Glazier Left $134,550 of Which $116,970 Was in Cash.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 23.—Col. Willard Glazier, author, lecturer, and explorer, who died in this city on April 26, left an estate of $134,550, of which $116,970 was distributed in savings banks in fifty cities in fifteen States and the District of Columbia. The report of the appraiser under the collateral inheritance law was filed to-day.

But two New York City banks contained deposits. The sums ran from $300 in a St. Paul (Minn.) Bank to $4,594 in a Pittsburg bank. Fourteen thousand dollars was invested in stocks, and $4,580 in real estate. The entire estate is shared by the widow and two daughters.

In garments of noticeable cut, like paddock coats, we are especially careful to avoid exaggeration.

As a result our customers may wear the most decided styles, like paddock coats, without fear of looking the "paper sport."

PRESIDENT SAW PISTOL, CAUSED MAN'S ARREST

Drunken Spectator at Birmingham Dropped It from a Pocket.

VISIT PAID TO TUSKEGEE

Mr. Roosevelt Discussed the Negro Question — Said the South Must Solve Its Own Difficulties.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 24.—President Roosevelt concluded a strenuous day in Alabama by a two hours' visit to Birmingham, where his reception, in keeping with those given him at Montgomery and Tuskegee, was hearty and soul-stirring.

His day began at 7 o'clock, when the special train left Montgomery for Tuskegee. Visits to the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute and to the Methodist Female College this morning were crowded into a little less than two hours, and the noon hour had just arrived when Mr. Roosevelt returned to Montgomery. Here he spoke to a great throng under the shadow of the Confederacy's first Capitol, and was on his way again sharply at 2 o'clock. A few minutes before 5 the President was the guest of Birmingham, and until his train left, at 7:30 for Memphis, he was cheered at every turn.

The day was unmarked by any special incident save at Birmingham. Here, at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Twentieth Street, an intoxicated man in his excitement dropped a pistol from his pocket on the pavement. The President saw the incident and called the attention of officers to the man, who was immediately arrested.

Welcomed to Tuskegee.

Tuskegee had been beautifully decorated in the President's honor. A number of arches, the foundations of which were made of bales of cotton, had been erected and covered with bunting. The platform from which the President spoke to the people of the city was made from $30,000 worth of cotton in original bales.

The President was met at his train by a Reception Committee, among whom were Mayor O. S. Lewis and Dr. John Massey, President of the Alabama Conference Female College. Escorted by a company of State militia, he was driven to the college, which represented a typical Southern scene. Cotton had been transplanted in long rows, and two old Southern negroes, with cotton pickers' sacks on their shoulders, were engaged in picking the staple from the plants. Several baskets of cotton were scattered about the field. The President was greeted at the college grounds by the students and public school children. He spoke as follows:

"Mr. Mayor, Friends, and Fellow-Americans: It is indeed a peculiar pleasure to be here this morning and be greeted as you have greeted me. Mr. Mayor, I feel that those gathered here to greet me symbolize what we most like to think of as a typical American and our National life.

"When you brought me here, Mr. Mayor, I was met on the platform by the pastors of the Methodist and Baptist churches in the shade of an institution of higher learning, in the presence of these students and children of the public schools. At the same time I see the industries of the Nation typified both by cotton being picked as I came up and also by the fact that I am speaking on the most valuable platform I have ever spoken on, and finally I have as a guard of honor members of the National Guard, who, as I look at them, I feel are my own comrades, for they are just the type I had in my own regiment in the Spanish war.

Nation's Vital Elements.

"These elements, as I say, typify what we hope and believe are the elements representing what is most vital in American life; the deep religious feeling of our people, the understanding of our people that material prosperity amounts to nothing if behind it and under it there is not the spiritual sense, the sense of moral obligation, the fealty to an ideal, the realization that in addition to that you must have as the foundation of National prosperity, industry, energy, and thrift and the fruits of that industry, energy, and thrift, devotion to arts and practices, of peace, devotion to civic duty, and yet the readiness of the man who does his duty in civil life to do it in a military life if ever the needs arise, and finally the recognition of the fact that, though a great many crops are important, the most important crop is the crop of children.

"The one thing this Nation cannot afford to neglect is the education of the Nation of the future. You, Mr. Mayor, I, all of us here, will pass away and the Nation of the future will rise higher and higher or not, just as the boys and girls of the present are or are not trained to do their duty as men and women. So I take a particular pleasure in being here and greeting the children of the public schools and those past childhood studying in this college itself.

"The one all-essential thing in America, the thing that underlies everything else, is to have the average American a good man or a good woman, and if there is any one thing that I respect more than a good man, it is a good woman. I think she is just a trifle more useful, and she has a harder time in life, and she is a little more entitled to our respect than even the best man. And there is not a man here who is worth his salt who does not agree with me.

"Of course it is a mere truism to say that that ultimate factor in determining the welfare of the Nation is the life of home; that is, the way in which the ordinary man or ordinary woman performs his or her ordinary duties of the most sacred and intimate kind. If the man is a good father, a good husband;

HARRIMAN'S RACE STOPPED.

President Roosevelt Said to Have Intervened, Fearing for His Daughter.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Oct. 24.—Railroad men in Omaha believe that President Roosevelt has telegraphed E. H. Harriman asking that the great speed at which he proposed to cross the continent be reduced because he feared for the safety of Miss Alice Roosevelt, who is aboard the Harriman special.

The train is making comfortable time, but is not running as fast as it could by any means. The train is making fifty miles an hour east of Cheyenne, but could as easily make eighty an hour. The track is down grade and one of the finest in the country.

There was a report here to-night that Miss Roosevelt would name the Union Pacific's new gasoline motor to-morrow morning. The motor, which is a new device for suburban service, was brought to the Omaha Depot to-night. The road's officers say they do not know anthing about the plan.

CHEYENNE, Wyoming, Oct. 24.—E. H. Harriman, President of the Union Pacific Railroad, dashed across Wyoming to-day in record-breaking time, but not at as fast a clip as he had scheduled. His special train of three private cars with their fifteen or twenty occupants attained a speed of sixty-five and even seventy-five or eighty miles an hour in bursts, but for short distances only.

The time of the Overland Flyer from Ogden to Cheyenne is fifteen hours and thirty minutes. Mr. Harriman beat this by about five hours. Not a mishap has occurred on the trip.

The run of 134 miles from Green River to Rawlins, Wyoming, made in 192 minutes, was very slow for that piece of track.

Mr. Harriman apparently will fail to break transcontinental records, even though he smashed the record between San Francisco and Ogden. Elaborate preparations were made for the passage of the Harriman train across Wyoming. All switches were spiked hours before the train was due, and other precautions were taken to insure safe passage. A pilot locomotive ran over the track thirty minutes ahead of the special. Rawlins, Wyoming, 310 miles from Ogden, was reached at 6:05 o'clock to-night, the distance being covered in 393 minutes.

At Rawlins, where locomotives were changed, Harriman stopped ten minutes to talk with General Manager Mohler of the Union Pacific regarding extensions in Wyoming.

GIRL SUICIDE AT HOTEL.

Mary Jeannette Caley Left a Note Saying She Was Tired.

Mrs. Mary Jeannette Caley, a handsome young woman, who registered as from Cleveland, at the Aberdeen Hotel, 17 West Thirty-second Street, Monday last, shot herself in the temple yesterday afternoon and died instantly.

The exact cause of the act has not been ascertained. She was apparently in good circumstances. She occupied Suite No. 72 on the seventh floor of the hotel, rooms she had rented several times before. On a table in her room was found a linked gold purse studded with diamonds and rubies. In it was $133.

Much jewelry was found in Mrs. Caley's apartment, including a number of rings, a huge heart-shaped pin set with diamonds, a large pin set with diamonds, and two bar pins studded also with diamonds. On a table was an envelope addressed: "For Lillian, care of Mrs. G. Allen. Give to Jack; don't mention names."

Inside the envelope was a letter which read: "Tired, tired. Forgive me, darling sister. Love me. May."

Mrs. Allen lives in the suite of rooms adjoining those of Mrs. Caley. She had met her casually, and it was she who discovered the body. There was also a letter addressed to Mrs. Caley from a man who used the stationery of the New York Athletic Club, and signed himself "Jack." The letter was evidently two or three months old. It was a love letter. The writer said that his yacht was then anchored at the foot of Thirty-fourth Street, East River, and that he would soon be on his way to Halifax. He said he didn't think he could be back before Sept. 5. He was sorry he would have to be away so long.

Mrs. Allen said that Mrs. Caley introduced a young man to her one day in the elevator, calling him "Mister Jack."

The "Lillian" referred to in the papers of the suicide is believed to be Miss Lillian Castle of Tarrytown. Mrs. Allen said Mrs. Caley introduced her one day to a young girl who was called "Lillian, my half sister," by Mrs. Caley.

It apeared that Mrs. Caley was just getting ready to go back to Cleveland when she decided to commit suicide. She had bought a lot of furs; her effects were packed; she had a ticket for Cleveland.

MORE SPELLBINDERS.

Republican Committee Finds Its Band of 500 Not Enough.

At the speakers' bureau of the Republican County Committee it was reported yesterday that the demand for speakers had been so great as to necessitate the sending out of seventy-five additional orators who know foreign tongues and twenty-five more colored spellbinders. The County Committee now has more than 500 speakers haranguing the electors of Manhattan and the Bronx nightly.

There is also talk of a big Republican meeting to be held next week in Durland's Riding Academy, under the auspices of the Republican Club, and with speakers of National reputation.

The County Committee has already distributed 100,000 Ivins campaign buttons. Yesterday it got its Ivins banner out across Twenty-third Street.

BIG TENEMENT SHAKEN BY DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

Grand Street Shop Wrecked and Many Windows Shattered.

BLACK HAND, DOCTOR SAYS

Believes the Explosive Was Meant for Him, as He Has Been Getting Threatening Letters.

The seven-story tenement on the southwest corner of Grand and Mott Streets was shaken from roof to cellar at 11:45 o'clock last night by an explosion of dynamite which some person had planted on the steps of the butcher shop on the Mott Street side of the house.

The explosion threw the hundreds of tenants in the building and the houses adjoining into a panic. Men, women, and children appeared on the fire escapes screaming that there was a fire and begging for help. Others fled into the streets half clad, and there was a hubbub that lasted an hour.

The butcher's shop is owned by Giuseppe Lerido and the restaurant next to him is kept by Mrs. Maria Torretto. It was on Giuseppe's step that the explosive was placed, and his place bore the brunt of the explosion. The two doors were smashed back into the shop against the icebox and several quarters of beef were peppered with the myriads of glass splinters which flew in every direction.

Giuseppe declared he had not an enemy in all the world. Mrs. Torretto said that she could not understand why anybody should want to damage her business.

One flight up live Mrs. Josephine Sabbatino and her sister-in-law, just two days home from the hospital. The latter was blown out of bed and severely cut by the flying glass. Every window in their flat was blown to pieces by the explosion. Few windows within a hundred feet were not damaged.

The police, after much questioning, found Dr. Vincenzo Sellaro, who has an office and apartments one flight up at 203 Grand Street. He said that the dynamite was probably meant for him. His office, however, is on the Grand Street side of the house.

He said that six months ago or more he had received several letters, perhaps seven all told. The first demanded $5,000 and then the sums ranged down to $100. He ignored all the letters. Finally one came telling him that he must not think he was forgotten, that the Black Hand never forgot, and some day "when you feel most secure, you will feel the mighty vengeance of the Black Hand." He paid no attention to this letter and thought so little of the incident that he had quite forgotten it.

Just before the explosion Benjamin Press of 157 Suffolk Street and three friends were walking down Mott Street. Press says two men ran by them. One of them in his hurry bumped against him. Press, believing the man might be a footpad or pickpocket, hurled him aside, and the man nearly fell into the gutter. Regaining his feet, he continued on a run down Mott Street. A moment later the four men heard the explosion, and ran to the house.

Policeman McCabe was in Mulberry Street just after the explosion, when an Italian ran to him and said that a man, then going into a café, had just fired a revolver in Mott Street. McCabe took the suspect to the Mulberry Street Station, where he said he was Angelo Anderro of 87 Hester Street. He denied having fired a revolver, and turned his pockets inside out to show that he had no weapon. He was held on suspicion.

PIRATE DRUGGED HIM.

Arrested Shipmate Tells Strange Story of Sloop Dorado.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Oct. 24.—The arrest of Otto Steifel in Providence to-day proved of great importance in clearing up the mystery about the sloop Dorado and the plunder found on the two pirate boats held here. Steifel confessed to the Providence police that he had been with H. A. Jackson since Sept. 6, and was part owner of the sloop. He was identified by Deputy Sheriff Harvey as the man aboard the catboat Bessie, stolen from Charles I. Burlingame of Providence.

Steifel protests that he never helped Jackson steal anything, and never stole anything himself. He said:

"I have believed, on a number of occasions, that Jackson drugged me or administered chloroform, and that while I slept off its effects he went plundering yachts near which he would tie up in the Sound or in Narragansett Bay. I know that I would wake up at 10 or 11 o'clock the next morning with an aching head that wasn't due to drinking anything, and the sloop would be miles away from where we had anchored when I turned in the night before."

Steifel informed the police that Jackson had come aboard one night at Greenwich, Conn., with a suit case, and, after that, had exhibited a valuable gold watch. He told of stopping at other places, but denied that he had visited Stamford, Conn.

MUST READ NEWSPAPERS.

Duty of History Class Students at Northwestern University.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Hereafter Northwestern University students in the American history class of Prof. J. A. James must come to the recitation rooms prepared to answer questions on the news of the day.

In the course of his lecture to-day Prof. James referred to an article which appeared in a morning paper yesterday. Upon questioning one of the members of the class he found that the student was not prepared to discuss current news, and an examination of the class showed that only two of the members had read a morning paper.

"This will never do," said the professor. "Hereafter I shall expect you to have an accurate knowledge of current events as chronicled each day in the newspapers, and I shall consider it fully as important as the daily lessons assigned from the textbooks."

Gave Engineer a Suicide Signal.

UTICA, Oct. 24.—As a Mohawk and Malone passenger train was approaching a crossing south of Remsen to-day the engineer saw, a train length away, a man who drew his hand across his throat in pantomime, and dropped, laying his head on the rail. It was impossible to stop the train, and the man was killed. The suicide had been put off another train a short time before.

COMSTOCK AT IT AGAIN.

Warns Arnold Daly Against Playing "Mrs. Warren's Profession."

Copies of this interesting correspondence between Anthony Comstock of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, who has strong views as to the value of the works of George Bernard Shaw, and Arnold Daly, the actor, who is about to produce a new play by Mr. Shaw, entitled "Mrs Warren's Profession," came to THE NEW YORK TIMES last night. Here they are:

Society for the Suppression of Vice,
New York, Oct. 20, 1905.

Mr. Arnold Daly:

Dear Sir: I am informed that it is your intention to put upon the stage one of Bernard Shaw's filthy products, entitled "Mrs. Warren's Profession." I also understand that this play has been suppressed in London.

In order that you may not plead ignorance as to the laws and in the interpretation of the laws of this State, I ge to call your attention to the following decision made by the Appellate Division in the case of People vs. Dorris. [Here Mr. Comstock quotes the decision.]

There are many other decisions besides this, but the language is so explicit in this case, and as it is the utterance of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of this State, in this district, it seems to me sufficient. Yours very truly. ANTHONY COMSTOCK, Secretary.

New York, Oct. 21, 1905.

Mr. Anthony Comstock, Secretary Society for Suppression of Vice, 142 Nassau St., New York City:

Dear Sir: You call "Mrs. Warren's Profession" a "filthy" play. I cannot believe that you have read it; but, if so, your use of adjective is decorative, but not descriptive.

It is a strong sermon and a great moral lesson, and I cordially invite you to come to the Garrick Theatre on Wednesday or Thursday of next week, when I will be pleased to have you see a rehearsal of it. Yours truly, (Signed) ARNOLD DALY.

RECORD RUN ON P. R. R.

Special from Pittsburg to Chicago Made 468 Miles in 459 Minutes.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Records for fast time were broken on the Pennsylvania Railroad to-day by a special made up as a duplicate of the limited. On board were General Manager G. L. Peck, General Superintendent A. M. Schoyer, Third Vice President Atterbury, and division officials and guests.

The special left Pittsburg at 7:30 o'clock this morning, and reached Chicago at 3:00 o'clock this afternoon. The distance, 468 miles, was run in 459 minutes.

The train encountered delays at Nevada because of track repairs, but despite that exceeded the best hopes of the men on board. The stretch from Pittsburg to Fort Wayne, 321 miles, was covered in five hours and twelve minutes. From Crestline to Lima, 72 miles, the run was made in 56 minutes; from Lima to Fort Wayne, 59 miles, in 44 minutes, and from Crestline to Fort Wayne, 131 miles, in an even 100 minutes, clipping thirteen minutes from all previous records.

Engineer Charles Somers accomplished this, while Engineer Holmes carried the train into Chicago, Conductor G. A. Hinney being in charge throughout the test. The run from Fort Wayne to Chicago, 148 miles, was made in 140 minutes.

It is believed that the object of the test run is to obtain a Government mail contract and to prove the safety of high-speed trains.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—An executive officer of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company said to-night that the fast time experimental run on the lines west of Pittsburg had no bearing on a proposed reduction in the schedule time of its eighteen-hour special.

STOP ELMIRA VOTE BUYING.

Parties Unite in Agreement for Brockway and Reform.

Special to The New York Times.

ELMIRA, Oct. 24.—Congressman J. Sloat Fassett, Chairman of the Republican City Committee, and William H. Lovell, Chairman of the Democratic Committee, attached their signatures to-day to an agreement that there shall be no expenditure of money for vote buying.

After thirty years of vote buying by both parties and following upon the fusion movement which brought about the nomination for Mayor of Z. Reed Brockway, Superintendent of the State Reformatory, the situation is regarded here as the millennium of politics.

On the proposition that the city business should be carried out irrespective of party and without the purchasing or influencing of votes, the two big parties have come to an agreement. With the nomination of Brockway as a non-partisan candidate, the Republican Party agreed to indorse Harry L. Bogart, the present incumbent, for the office of Recorder.

The only expenditure which the parties will allow by their agreement is a reward of $100 for evidence leading to conviction in every case of violation of the vote-buying provisions of the election law and the hire of carriages on election day.

The fusion movement has been brought about by the united efforts of the press and the recently organized Chamber of Commerce. It is said that those who usually contribute to the vote-buying fund will now make their offerings to the Chamber of Commerce, which has raised $175,000 for booming the city.

Brockway is the former Superintendent of the Elmira Reformatory, against whom an agitation on account of charges of cruelty was kept up for years. Local sentiment repeatedly has been expressed in various ways seeking vindication for him.

BANK CASHIER SHOT.

Exchanged Fusillade with Bandits Robbing Ridgeville Bank.

RIDGEVILLE, Ind., Oct. 24.—Driving into this place in two buggies last night seven bandits who had planned to rob the Ridgeville State Bank met the town watchman. It took them about two minutes to bind and gag him. Then they drove on to the bank and blew the safe open with nitro-glycerine.

The explosion broke every window in the building and aroused among others Cashier Branson, who lives near by. Branson, standing at the entrance of an alley opposite the bank, opened fire on five of the robbers who were keeping guard outside. They retaliated and the cashier received a bullet in the foot. Before assistance came to him the whole party jumped into their buggies and made good their escape.

When the wounded cashier was helped into the bank he found that they had taken $6,000 with them.

M'CLELLAN TO STAY FOUR YEARS, HE SAYS

Audience Cheers What It Takes to be a Pledge.

OSBORNE'S SPEECH IS MILDER

Candidate Quotes Law Reports in Attacking Jerome's Record—He Wears a Chastened Air.

George B. McClellan addressed his old constituents of the Twelfth Congress District in the Murray Hill Lyceum last night, and one of his utterances was taken by his audience as a pledge that he will serve out his term as Mayor if elected. James W. Osborne, who is running for District Attorney, also spoke.

It was a densely packed meeting, and the most demonstrative yet addressed by the Mayor in this campaign. When he said in reply to an interruption that he would not permit the audience to help to elect him Governor next year the applause was deafening.

John S. Crosby, Mr. Osborne, and Patrick F. McGowan had concluded their addresses when, shortly after 9 o'clock, the Mayor came on the platform. For four minutes flags were waved and the audience stamped and shouted its approval, taking up the cry of "Four, four, four years more." Finally the Mayor waved his hand for attention.

"It does seem good," he said, "to get back in the old Twelfth Congressional District where I came from. This old district sent me to Washington the first time with a plurality of 1,300, and the last time it gave me a plurality of more than 15,000. It stood by me two years ago, and polled a record-breaking vote.

"I have come to you, my old constituents, to plead my cause at this time and to ask you to live up to your traditions. I want to ask you to work from now until the close of the polls on election night to send to Albany a solid Democratic Assembly delegation to vote for the repeal of the mortgage tax law.

Every Year of the Four.

"I not only want a solid delegation this year in Albany, but if I am elected I shall come back to you next year, and the year after, and the year after that, and every year of my four-year term as Mayor and ask you for your support in this. I want your help—"

"We'll elect you Governor next year!" yelled a man in the audience.

"No, gentlemen, you will not!" replied the Mayor with emphasis. "And now I want to tell you why I want to be re-elected. The city is confronted with more problems demanding a Democratic administration than ever before. The city administration can accomplish much, but it can accomplish even more with a Democratic Legislature, and I want the help of every Democratic Assemblyman it is possible to send to Albany."

The Mayor declared that the payment of the mortgage tax fell on every man, woman, and child of the city who paid rent, and he said it affected the person who lived in a hired hall bedroom as much as the man who hired the largest Fifth Avenue store or hotel. The Mayor then took up the subject of public control of franchises.

"I believe the franchise wealth of the city belongs to the people," he said. "I believe the Government has no right to interfere with private enterprise so long as private enterprise does its duty by the public. But the moment the private enterprise fails in its duty, then I believe the Government has no other course than to take control and operate for the benefit of the people.

Making Promises Easy Now.

"It is easy to make promises, to promise everything under the sun, and a little beyond the sun, but when the means at the command of the city are limited, where the borrowing capacity is fixed by the Constitution, then it is an entirely different matter to fulfill promises rashly made in the heat of campaign. There is to-day little more than $40,000,000 the city can borrow for improvements outside of those to which the city already has been committed.

"Now see how that works out," he said. "We have only $40,000,000 with which to undertake new public improvements. The people are clamoring for new rapid transit facilities which are their right, and yet if the city is to itself build and operate without the aid of private capital then the people must give up all thought of increasing the rapid transit facilities of New York."

In conclusion the Mayor appealed for the support of his old constituents if they believed he and his administration had tried to give the people an honest, efficient, economical, and clean government.

"As I have tried to give the people of New York a 'square deal,'" he declared, "so I ask them to give me a 'square deal.'"

Mr. Osborne Was Calmer.

It was a chastened James W. Osborne who addressed the meeting just before the Mayor's appearance. Mr. Osborne showed unmistakable signs of having been "talked to" by the campaign managers after his speechmaking of the night before. He appeared with a pile of law books from which to quote authorities on further charges against his independent opponent, Mr. Jerome.

"Give it to Jerome, Jim!" and "Rake him fore and aft!" were two of the greetings from the audience when he rose.

He began by declaring that the Democratic Party was united in this campaign, and that it never had been defeated in New York except when split asunder.

"It has been said by a friend of mine [cries of "Jerome"] that I was nominated by a single individual. Well, I believe that, but I don't think I owe the nomination to the same man he means. Four years ago Jerome [hisses] went around the county saying 'Jim Osborne is an honest man, an independent man, an efficient man, and that's why Tammany did not dare to nominate him for District Attorney against me.'

"Well, I think Tammany heard that talk and believed it when Jerome indorsed his note by retaining me in his office after he was elected, and that I owe my nomination to Jerome himself. When I retired from his office Jerome also declared Tammany never would nominate

TWO YELLOW FEVER DEATHS.

First in a Week at New Orleans—Victims Children.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—For the first time in seven days a death from yellow fever was recorded this morning, and later in the day a second one was reported. Both victims were white girls, one aged 14 and the other aged 16 years. One of the new cases is that of a son of Dr. Maxim Landry, who himself had the fever two months ago. Dr. Landry was medical expert for the Marine Hospital Service.

One case was brought into the city from Waggaman.

The fever report to 6 P. M. was as follows: New cases, 4; total to date, 3,369; deaths, 2; total to date, 347; new disease centres, 1; cases under treatment, 59; cases discharged, 2,873.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 24.—J. Pierpont Morgan has promised $30,000 to the Wadsworth Athenaeum, of which he is a Trustee. It contains the public library and valuable art collections, and has previously received large gifts from Mr. Morgan.

The present one will go toward the purchase of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, which adjoins the Athenaeum property.

B. FRANK CLYDE KILLED.

Clyde Line General Agent Run Over by Train at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—B. Frank Clyde, General Agent for the Clyde Steamship Company, in which he was a large stockholder, well-known clubman, and breeder of race horses, was killed by a Pensylvania Railroad train to-day at the Fifty-second Street Station. He had a stock farm and Summer home at Bryn Mawr, and started for this farm—Gough Acres—last evening after dining with his sister at 1,906 Walnut Street, where other guests were his wife and his nephew, Clyde Milne. His brother, William P. Clyde, President of the steamship line, is expected to arrive in New York from Europe to-morrow.

Mr. Clyde, who was 53 years old, had prepared to start with his wife for an extended stay at Virginia Hot Springs. He married four months ago Mrs. Bloomfield McIlvaine, a social favorite here. He was a member of the Four-in-Hand Club, the Radnor Hunt, Country, Merion Cricket, University, and Rittenhouse Clubs, and the Union League. He was a Director of the Central National Bank and the Delaware Insurance Company.

MOODY AFTER WRECKERS.

Attorney General Takes Up Case of the Enterprise Bank at Pittsburg.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 24.—News came from Washington to-day that Attorney General Moody had taken up the case of the Enterprise National Bank. District Attorney Dunkle is returning here from Warren, and it is expected that he will take charge of the case to-morrow. It is said that prosecutions will be started at once against those who have been responsible for wrecking the bank.

This evening Coroner Armstrong of Allegheny County announced that he would not hold an inquest on Cashier Clark's body, as it was a plain case of suicide. In reference to the report that he had a written confession by Clark, he said he had never taken a scrap of paper from the home.

The will of Clark was filed this afternoon, and proved to be but a modest affair of a few pages, neatly written. It was drawn in 1897, making his wife his executrix and endowing her with all his estate.

W. H. Andrews, (known better as "Bull,") the Territorial Delegate from New Mexico, to-day lifted a note for $5,000 in another Pittsburg bank.

RACING CAR ABLAZE.

Passengers in a Panic—Firemen Leap to the Rescue.

A southbound Amsterdam Avenue car got beyond the motorman's control in Fulton Street, near Greenwich, late yesterday afternoon, and flames began to spout from the controller box. The motorman dropped his controller and the car sped up the steep grade at a furious pace.

In the car there were a score of passengers, who soon became frightened. Several of the women screamed as the car raced on. The motorman meanwhile swung frantically at his brake, but it would not work. The flames prevented him from shutting off the power.

As the car approached Church Street several men jumped off. They were thrown heavily, but none was hurt.

In Church Street, near Fulton, is the house of Truck Company No. 10. The racket brought the men to the doors. Foreman McKernan seized an axe, and with three other men, Hungerson, Coleman, and Walsh, jumped upon the car. By pulling together on the brakes they brought the car to a stop at last.

The women left the car as rapidly as they could. Then the firemen chopped the controller box to pieces and extinguished the flames, which had been communicated to the wood flooring.

GRAIN REBATE INDICTMENTS.

Nine Counts Each Against Three Men Returned at Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 24.—An indictment containing nine counts, as the outcome of the recent grain rate investigation by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, was returned by the Federal Grand Jury this afternoon against Sebastian Zorn & Co., T. G. Williams, and James A. Bushfield. Rebates on grain shipments favoring certain shippers and districts and discriminating against others are alleged. The defendants were admitted to $2,000 bail in each case.

INQUIRY REPORTS AT $1 OR $2 A LINE

Mutual Has Paid Out $11,000 on "Specials" Already.

NOT USED IN NEWSPAPERS HERE

Head of the Mutual's Literary Bureau Talks About Favorable Impressions and Blackmailers.

The expected disclosure of the methods which have been used to secure the publication throughout the country of accounts of the insurance investigation favorable to the companies came at yesterday's session of the Armstrong committee. From the testimony of Charles J. Smith, who manages the literary bureau of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, it appeared that since the investigation began the Mutual has spent $11,753 to secure the publication as news of six dispatches of an average length of 250 words in various newspapers in the country. The list of papers as it was read by Counsel Charles E. Hughes of the committee included The St. Paul Pioneer-Press, The Boston Herald, The Toledo Blade, The Buffalo Courier, The Florida Times-Union, The Atlanta Constitution, and The Wilmington News.

This branch of the Mutual's activities has been handled, according to Mr. Smith, through Allan Forman, proprietor of a paper called The Journalist. Mr. Smith testified that the Mutual has paid $1 a line, flat rate, to Mr. Forman on all dispatches sent out, and that Mr. Forman has made his own rates with the newspapers. The total sum spent thus far will be materially in excess of the amount named above, as the bills for the last batch of dispatches have not yet come in.

Mr. Smith was a very interesting witness. He said his duties included an endeavor to counteract the injury that is being done life insurance and policy holders, the reception of newspaper men who go to the Mutual Life for news, and the discovery "of all the blackmailers." This latter, he said, was "an awful job." As regards the ordinary newspaper reporter who called on him for information Mr. Smith said that it was his duty "to inform and deal with him pleasantly and quietly and remove him toward the elevator." Walter S. Sullivan, who handles the Mutual Life's newspaper and magazine advertising in the United States and Canada, with the exception of that in the New York papers, testified yesterday that the Mutual had been in the habit of buying space for reading notices in out-of-town papers for some time, and that the New York representatives of many papers were in the habit of offering rate cards, stipulating the amount that would be charged for insertions of this kind.

President Hegeman on Loans.

John R. Hegeman, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, was the witness yesterday, and testified about the loans which the Metropolitan made to him in various amounts and for extended terms at 1½ per cent. interest. He also told of a series of loans at 2 per cent. to Silas B. Dutcher, a member of the Executive Committee of the Metropolitan Life, and of a loan at 1½ per cent. to President John A. McCall of the New York Life. All these loans, as well as the other collateral loans made by the company, Mr. Hegeman said, were habitually sold on Dec. 31 to Vermilye & Co. and repurchased again on Jan. 1 following. This, he explained, was for the purpose of keeping "a horde" of Wall Street borrowers from making application to the company for collateral loans—a business which, according to Mr. Hegeman, the Metropolitan Life did not desire to go into.

Mr. Hughes got after some of the Mutual's advertising charges, in addition to those referred to above, at yesterday's hearing, and developed that, whereas in 1904, the amount reported to the State Insurance Department as advertising expenses aggregated $329,792, the amount actually expended by Mr. Sullivan was approximately $84,000 for advertising in magazines and newspapers in the United States and Canada, and that expended by Mr. Smith for advertising in sixty-odd insurance papers was $28,000 to $30,000. Neither Mr. Sullivan nor Mr. Smith could explain the discrepancy more than to say that some of the advertising expenditures were handled by A. C. Fields, the head of the Mutual's Department of Supplies, who is not here just now. They had no idea what payment Mr. Fields may have authorized in the advertising line.

Interest on Assets.

Emory McClintock, the actuary of the Mutual Life, was a witness yesterday, and besides declaring his opposition to the laws requiring the maintenance of a reserve by insurance companies, he declared that the decrease in dividends of late years was due to the inability of the company to earn as high a rate of interest on its present accumulation of assets as it was able to earn in earlier days when its aggregate assets were smaller. Mr. McClintock thought that the time might come when this reduction in earnings would fall even below the 4 per cent. required under the present reserve laws. In 1904, he said, the Mutual earned 4.1 per cent. as against 4.3 in 1903, 5 per cent. ten years ago, and 6½ per cent. twenty years ago.

Charles P. McClelland, United States General Appraiser at this port, who while he was a member of the State Senate at Albany and on the Insurance Committee lived in the Mutual's Albany house that was run by the venerable Fields, appeared at the inquiry, ready to go upon the stand. He explained to reporters that his children had grown up with the children of Mr. Fields in Dobbs Ferry, and that it was the most natural thing in the world that he should go to live with Fields when he went to Albany.

"I spoke to him about paying for my board," said Mr. McClelland, "but he just laughed at me, and, anyway, all I had was a little room, with a single bed, a chair, and a washstand in it, and five or six meals a week, all of which I could have obtained for $7 or $8 a week at any boarding house at Albany. Mr. Fields in private life I have always considered an ideal citizen, and I never suspected that his house in Albany was maintained at the expense of the Mutual Life, although, of couse, I presume I might have found out if I had inquired about it very anxiously."

Charles J. Smith when called to the stand at the opening of the afternoon session said that hs had been in the employ of the Mutual Life for eighteen years at $8,000 a year, and was convinced that his salary "ought to have been more for some time." He said that he was interested with Allan Forman in sending out telegraphic news through a concern called the Telegraphic News Bureau, but had no pecuniary interest in that institution. Referring to his declaration that it was his duty to counteract the injury that was being done to life insurance companies and their policy holders, Mr. Hughes asked the witness what he had done toward this end.

"Well, let's take the testimony of Mr. Cromwell," said Mr. Smith. "Here is a dispatch sent which reads:

Millions kept in one bank. Mutual Life has huge sum of money in institution whose stock it owns. Tremendous excitement over the amount of money put in subsidiary companies.

"But in the testimony which I read from THE NEW YORK TIMES, Mr. Cromwell stated on that occasion that the Mutual in fourteen years had made $16,000,000 for its policy holders by those operations and investments. Nothing like that is stated in the dispatches, so the next day I sent out this dispatch."

Mr. Smith handed to Counsel Hughes a clipping from The Wilmington News under a line, "Special to The Morning News," which, he said, was inserted through Mr. Forman, and paid for by the Mutual on the sverage rate of $1 a line. He added that this particular dispatch had gone to perhaps a hundred papers the country over at an aggregate cost of between $5,000 and $6,000, and that he thought it was an excellent method of counteracting the injury done the policy holders in the investigation. Mr. Hughes thereupon read the clipping, as follows:

Special to The Morning News. New York, Sept. 14.—Mr. Frederick Cromwell, the Treasurer of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, in the course of his testimony before the State Committee of Investigation yesterday, announced that the profits derived by the policy holders of the Mutual Life and obtained through transactions managed by the subsidiary trust companies, amounted, up to date, to sixteen millions of dollars. The entire profit realized from all sources from the organization of the company to date, now held for the benefit of policy holders, exceeds ninety-four millions of dollars

"There," said the witness, when the reading had finished, "don't you think that was a good thing?"

Another Special Dispatch.

Mr. Hughes did not reply, but asked whether it was Mr. Smith's purpose to give a full account of Mr. Cromwell's testimony on the subjects in question or only to take up such matters as he thought necessary to counteract the injurious impression.

"It was my intention," replied the witness, "to send out those portions that The Associated Press neglected to send out." Mr. Smith said that he had sent out dispatches five or six times in the investigation to from twenty-five to a hundred papers, "according to the merit of the dispatch." He said that he generally left the selection of the papers to Mr. Forman, but that they were "the very best papers we can get, for this has to be very carefully done."

"What do you mean by that?" said Mr. Hughes.

"Because," the witness replied, "we do not wish to send anything to a newspaper which we think it ought not and could not worthily publish."

Mr. Hughes then read upon the record the following "special dispatch" from The St. Paul Pioneer Press of Oct. 18:

Calls It An Inquisition.
President McCurdy of the Mutual Life Makes Protest.
New York, Special, Oct. 18.

The examination of Richard A. McCurdy, President of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, was resumed yesterday, and proved of great interest. He called attention to the fact that the investigation had drifted into an inquisition, vague in its character and dealing with no issue. Witnesses were called without notices being given of what information was required, and the inquisitor at once began to impeach their testimony; instead of information being sought on which to base remedial legislation, witnesses were put upon the rack, as the newspapers had it. Mr. Hughes admitted it was an inquisition. Mr. McCurdy said that nearly all complaints made could be successfully controverted or explained if witnesses were given a chance. His testimony showed that the company had made a great eaving in the agency department and in matters of legal expenses both; he said legislation needed watching, and that the officer who neglected this duty would be culpable. His testimony yesterday made a distinctly favorable impression.

Q.—Did you consult with any officer of the Mutual Life Insurance Company before sending that out? A.—I don't think I did.

Q.—Did you show it to Mr. McCurdy? A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Did you show it to anyone else? A.—I didn't show that dispatch to anybody.

Q.—How much was paid for the insertion of that in The St. Paul Pioneer Press? A.—I don't know.

Q.—How much to the Telegraphic News Bureau? A.—I don't know that; the bill is not in yet.

Q.—That same dispatch was sent to the Boston Herald, was it not? A.—I suppose so.

Q.—Did you see it there? A.—Yes.

Q.—And to the Toledo Blade, was it not? A.—I presume so, if it is in it.

Q.—To the Buffalo Courier; you see it there? A.—Wherever you find it, it is in it.

Q.—To the Florida Times-Union? [No answer.]

Q.—To the Atlanta Constitution? [No answer.]

Q.—And in each case the insertion was paid for? A.—Yes, Sir; or will be.

Q.—And the insertion was paid for at a dollar a line? A.—I believe so.

Mr. Hughes, Chairman Armstrong of the committee, and the witness then entered into an extended discussion as to the guise under which such dispatches were sent out to the newspapers. The witness was persisting that they were intended to be published "as reading matter," which, he said, he defined as "matter that people are likely to read."

"Without knowing they are reading an advertisement?" asked Mr. Hughes.

"I don't know," the witness said; "that is according to the intelligence of the reader."

"Well, what was it so far as your intelligence was concerned?"

"I understand that it was matter that I would like to read."

Q.—That is, matter that is gotten into regular news columns of newspapers as if that matter had been acquired in an impartial way by those who furnish news to that paper? A.—I say that the matter I furnished is the truth, and I sent it out without any feeling that the newspaper would be doing an injustice to its readers by publishing it. I should not expect to send out to bureaus advertisements of Pears' soap or anything of that sort, but I sent out matter which anybody, including our policy holders, ought to be pleased to read. I think now, in the case of the statement that the company has made $16,000,000 for its policy holders—I say that it is a good thing for them to know. It is important for us at this time to let our policy-holders know what the company has accomplished for them.

"And it is important also for them to know that Mr. McCurdy's testimony made a distinctly favorable impression."

Stopped and Laughed.

"It made a favorable impression on me," was the witness's rejoinder, and the examination halted for a couple of minutes while the committee, counsel, and audience laughed.

Mr. Hughes wanted to know if the witness paid the company's money for the statement that "Mr. McCurdy's testimony made a distinctly favorable impression." Smith said that it was only a couple of lines any way, and he thought it worth the money to have this published.

Then Mr. Hughes traced three payments charged to "telegraphic news bureau," one on Oct. 25, 1905, of $3,945; one on Oct. 11 of $1,558, and one on Oct. 4 of $6,250. These three, the witness said, covered a part of the expense of getting six dispatches in various newspapers, and he expected that other bills would come in later. He did not know how much the additional expense would be, neither could he explain why the entry of the first amount named should be as of Oct. 25, when that date had not been reached.

"Why don't you communicate to The Press," demanded Mr. Hughes, "matters that you think attention should be called to, and publish them if they will insert the news?"

"Because," said the witness, "I know they want $2 a line to put it in."

"Have you offered this material to the New York papers?"

"No use," was the laconic reply.

Q.—Have you tried it? A.—Well, there is no necessity for us to offer it. They have the opportunity to get it and they do not do it.

Q.—Have you offered them any items which you thought should be inserted to give a full and adequate account of the investigation? A.—I think we have at times.

Q.—Have they demanded pay for such insertions? A.—Some of them—at times.

Q.—I am talking about this investigation. I want to know what you mean by "times"? A.—I do not remember for this time.

Q.—Has any so far as you know? A.—No, not at this time.

Q.—When you say "this time," what do you mean—other than during the time this investigation has been in session? A.—Yes, Sir.

Mr. Smith's Duties.

Smith said he had never bought any editorials in out-of-town papers, and so far as he knew the Mutual had never done so. Mr. Hughes then asked the witness for a statement of his official duties. Mr. Smith said he had guessed that he would be asked something of that kind, and so had put it all down. He was willing to read it, and did. It was:

Get information on any subject. Furnish matter for agents, 1 mean pertaining to business, &c. Answer all questions of newspaper people. Anybody from a newspaper that comes to the Mutual Life office they sent to me, and it is my duty to inform and deal with him pleasantly and quietly, and remove him toward the elevator. [Laughter.] Form a library. Conduct a paper in the interests of the company.

Attending to the advertising in the insurance newspapers, that is, the division of advertising, as between myself and Mr. Sullivan. Do whatever the executive directs. Index all information pertaining to insurance in the United States and foreign countries. I index it and cross-index it, so that any department asking for information gets it. Don't you think that is worth $8,000 a year?

It developed that the paper to which the witness had reference was called The Statement, and that it was devoted to information serviceable to Mutual Life agents. He then said that he had been connected with The Insurance Record for twenty-seven years, and was at the present time its proprietor.

"It seems to be your general duty," observed Chairman Armstrong of the committee, "to attend to all alarms and ascertain the causes thereof."

"Yes," remarked the witness, "and to find all the blackmailers; it is an awful job, too."

Mr. Hughes then took up the examination again, asking whether the advertising in insurance papers was of much importance, and the witness replied that there were sixty-three such papers, in all of which the Mutual had something.

"You see the business is very well represented," he added. And he said that the Mutual not only advertised in The Insurance Record, but bought from time to time copies of the paper for distribution—possibly 300 at a time.

"Isn't it a fact that about two or three years ago the Mutual Life bought a great many thousands of your paper?" demanded Mr. Hughes.

The witness didn't remember, but when counsel showed him a reocipt with the figures $9,000 on it, he said that there might have been some slip, or even a couple of pages reprinted from his paper for distribution by the Mutual, but all these details were in the hands of his editor, Mr. Summers.

Allan Forman's Paper.

"What is Allan Forman's paper?" asked Mr. Hughes.

"He has The Journalist," the witness replied, while a snicker ran around the room.

Q.—Does the Mutual Life advertise in that paper? A.—Yes. [Laughter.]

Smith said that in the insurance papers paid notices were run "as semi-reading matter," as distinguished from regular display advertising.

"And in the newspapers you have referred to," said Mr. Hughes, finally, "the stuff goes in the regular news columns, without any suggestion of advertising?"

"That makes it better," said Mr. Smith.

Mr. Hughes then read upon the record the following copies of dispatches, which, the witness said, were sent out to papers and paid for at the average rate of $1 a line:

New York, Sept. 16.—The legislative committee that is investigating the management of the life insurance companies adjourned until Wednesday. The testimony is exciting great interest. While there is much that invites criticism, a great deal that is good and comforting to policy holders has been developed. In the testimony of the Treasurer of the Mutual Life Insurance Company before the legislative investigating committee the fact was developed that the company has not only made sixteen millions of dollars for the policy holders in its investment in trust company stock, but that not a cent has ever been lost and no default in interest upon the bonds held by the company. The Mutual Life has preferred absolute security to taking chances of business loss on a lower grade of bonds. The investments in trust companies have realized 4.30 per cent. on the total amount involved.

The Witness—Is not that all right enough? [Laughter.]

Mr. Hughes read some more special dispatches. They contained such phrases as these: "The record of the Mutual Life showed that its participation in such syndicates was amply justified"; "The statement of large commissions paid to the managers of the Mutual Life agencies in the foreign department does not surprise."

From time to time Smith interrupted the reading to ask, "Is not that the fact?" or, "Isn't that correct?" The audience roared with laughter. When Mr. Hughes had done Mr. Smith said that back in 1866 he started in on The New York Sun, leaving there some years later to be managing editor of The New York Star, which he started. He then went to The Express as city editor, and subsequently bought a paper known as The Sunday Times, which he ran for two or three years before he started the insurance paper, with which he has been connected for twenty-seven years. He said that he had been sending out dispatches through The Telegraphic News Bureau only since the present investigation has been on, but then remembered that he had been awake that space had been purchased similarly in newspapers for some time previous.

Fields Helped, Sullivan Says.

Walter S. Sullivan, advertising manager of the Mutual Life for the United States and Canada, was called to the stand next. He said that he handled all of the newspaper advertising outside of New York City, and the magazine advertising for the country. Some of the advertising, notably that in New York papers, he said, went through Mr. Fields of the supply department.

Mr. Hughes asked about an item of $8,114 for "telegraphic readers," and Mr. Sullivan explained that this referred to reading notices about the Mutual's affairs inserted from time to time in various papers, which accepted such matter as a part of their advertising without specifying in their columns that it differed from general news.

Assistant Treasurer James Timpson was called to the stand to tell more about the Washington Traction and Electric Company deal, in which the Mutual and some of its officers were interested. He said that he did not know whether the United States Mortgage and Trust Company lent $12,000,000 on the underwriting of the original bond issue of this company, pending the public offer. Mr. Hughes then brought out the fact that Mr. Timpson, President McCurdy, and other officials of the Mutual Life took stock in the Washington Traction at 15, in the original formation of the company, and subsequently sold out. President McCurdy, who had 100 shares, got 30 for his stock after it had appeared that the public was not going to subscribe to more than one-half of the $2,000,000 of bonds that were offered.

"Did he sell to George W. Young?" Mr. Hughes inquired.

"I presume so," said the witness.

"Isn't it a fact," persisted Mr. Hughes, "that after the public issue failed Mr. McCurdy expressed dissatisfaction and insisted that his stock should be taken off his hands at a profit?"

"I don't remember," said the witness.

"There was an additional purchase of $1,000,000 of the bonds by the Mutual later, was there not?"

"Yes."

Mr. Timpson said he did not know just how and why this came about, but he referred to the fact that the company made a profit of $500,000 on the entire transaction. It developed that when the question of the additional purchase was up for discussion, the Finance Committee referred it to President McCurdy and Treasurer Cromwell, with power. This was some time after Mr. McCurdy had sold out his stock at a profit of 15 points.

Washington Traction.

Mr. Hughes then drew from Mr. Timpson the admission that $98,000 of new preferred stock and $115,000 of new common stock was divided up between the members of the Reorganization Committee when the Washington Traction and Electric Company was reorganized, a few years after its original formation. Mr. Timpson said he got his share of these securities, in consideration of his serving as a member of the voting trust in the reorganized company, and that he had sold them. He didn't remember how much he got for them, but he knew his profit was not so much as $30,000.

Actuary McClintock of the Mutual was on the stand the entire morning session. He declared, among other things, his disagreement with President McCall's statement that incompetence, recklessness, and extravagance were the causes of the failures of many little life insurance companies which went up in the decade from 1865 to 1875. He believed that certain unfavorable conditions of business were primarily responsible. He added that he opposed the present reserve laws and was of the opinion that complete publicity and supervision would accomplish the same good results, as affording to every prospective policy holder information whether the companies were maintaining adequate reserve. Mr. McClintock added that, as a matter of fact, companies evade the law as it stands at present by issuing a double policy that is really two policies.

In the case of a ten-year endowment, he said, this evasion would be accomplished by issuing a straight life insurance policy of one year, and a nine-year endowment policy for the balance of the term, thus affording the reserve requirements of the first year's premium. This evasion he justified, and said that he thought the law should be amended so that the legal reserve should begin with the second year premium and not with the first.

As to the decrease of dividends, Chairman Armstrong asked Mr. McKean this:

"What will happen when your capacity to earn money gets down below 4 per cent.?"

"I suppose," the witness replied, "that there will be a loss and consequently no dividends, because it is necessary to keep up the reserve to secure payment of all obligations, the insurance of life being the primary object of life insurance companies."

Mr. McClintock has been on record in insurance circles for some time as opposing the unlimited increase of insurance company assets beyond a point of profitable investment.

President Hegeman's Testimony.

President John R. Hegeman of the Metropolitan Life, has just returned from the West. When he went upon the stand yesterday he described the two branches of the business of his company—ordinary life and industrial life insurance—and said that as it was a stock company the surplus of $14,000,000 belonged to the stock holders.

Mr. Hegeman admitted without hesitation that it had been the practice of his company on the last day of the calendar year to sell its collateral loans to Vermilye & Co. and to repurchase them under an agreement on the first day of the next year.

"Our sole purpose," he said, "was to discourage the horde of applications by Wall Street houses for collateral loans that would be made if it were known that we were in that business."

Loans to Silas B. Dutcher of the Metropolitan Life's Finance Committee at 2 per cent., aggregating $126,500, were noted in the year 1902; $86,500 of this amount was outstanding at the close of 1903, was again sold and renewed early in 1904. Mr. Hegeman explained that Mr. Dutcher had been an extremely valuable man to the Metropolitan Life, and that the low rate of interest charged him was in consideration of his services. Mr. Hegeman got loans of $50,000 and $22,000 in 1903 at 1½ per cent.

"Why didn't you give him as good a rate as you had yourself?" Mr. Hughes demanded.

This puzzled President Hegsman, and after thinking for a few minutes, he said that he guessed he couldn't answer that question.

Mr. Hegeman said that the Metropolitan Life made a loan to President McCall of the New York Life at 1½ per cent. because Mr. McCall had been his closest "insurance friend" outside of the offices of his own company for many years, and that the rate was in appreciation of his services in an advisory capacity to the Metropolitan Life.

The hearing adjourned to 10 o'clock this morning.

BABCOCK REGRETS,

Not That the Mutual Gave $2,500, But That It Wasn't More.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 24.—Congressman Joseph W. Babcock, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, said to-day that the testimony in the insurance inquiry in New York that he had received $2,500 of the Mutual Life's money to be used for political purposes was correct.

"The attorney for the company who was on the stand told the story straight," he said. "The only regret I have is that the amount was not larger. It should have been. Of course I got the money he referred to, but you understand it was for the Congressional Committee, of which I am only one member. There was nothing to be ashamed of in the transaction. It was perfectly above board in every way.

"We asked these companies to contribute, as we did other corporations. We showed to them that it was for the benefit of their own prosperity that they assist in keeping the Republican Party in power.

"It was, so to speak, a premium they paid out which was to insure continued prosperity. We told them that they always knew when the Democrats got into power that their business suffered. It was surely to their own interests to contribute."

WHY WAIT? IVINS ASKS.

If McClellan Knows He Has Unfit Subordinates Why Has He Kept 'Em?

William M. Ivins had a few things to say yesterday about the appeals for nonpartisan support which are being made for Mayor McClellan, and also about the Mayor's statement that if elected he will not guarantee to keep in office all of the persons who are now holding important pieces under his administration. Mr. Ivins said the non-partisan appeals for the Mayor did not go very well with the Mayor's own declaration in his speech of acceptance, when he said "I am a partisan; none more so."

"The charter of the City of New York gives to the Mayor absolute power of removal. Why does Mayor McClellan find it necessary to wait until the end of his administration to remove officials, if he thinks he has any under him who are not fit to be retained? He is just as much Mayor now as he will be after Jan. 1 if he be re-elected, and his responsibilities to the people are just the same.

"For instance, it has been a matter of surprise to outside observers that Mayor McClellan has had the temerity to retain his man Oakley in office after the scandal of the public lighting contract, and after Oakley's absurd handling of the water problem. It is possible that the Mayor intended in his speech to intimate to the public that if he retains Oakley to the end of the present administration he will amply have compensated that officer for any sacrifice he may have made in subjecting himself to the brunt of public criticism in regard to these lighting contracts.

"Or does the Mayor mean that if he is re-elected he will feel that he has a free hand once more and may provide us with another Pallas for the Park Department, or another Crain for the Tenement House Department? In both of these departments of his administration he has recently 'pandered a little' to the better element of the community. Does he mean by his statement to send word to the henchmen of Mr. Murphy that after the election he will feel free again to put less scrupulous persons on guard?

"An appointing officer can properly have but one standard of judgment. That is the fitness of the appointee for public service. Good morals and the Constitution of the State require this of him. The provisions of the State Constitution referring to merit and fitness do not apply to persons in the classified service alone. In the exempt class high public officers are intrusted with the duty of determining duty and fitness.

"If Mayor McClellan hasn't done this in his present administration, and if he is not intending to do it in his second term, if he has one, he is not doing his duty under the Constitution or under the moral. He cannot evade the issue until Jan. 1. If he is conscious that his underlings are unfit, then why not remove them now? If he does not think them unfit, what excuse can he have on Jan. 1 for turning them out?"

Notice from the Equitable Trustees.

Grover Cleveland, Morgan J. O'Brien, and George Westinghouse, the Equitable Life Assurance Society Trustees, sent out circular letters to all the policy holders of the society yesterday, asking for suggestions as to the selection of seven of the thirteen Directors to be chosen by the Trustees in December.

BRITISH METHODS SUPERIOR

London Actuary Says Letters from America Admit the Companies Here Can Learn from Abroad.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1905.]

LONDON, Oct. 24.—One of the foremost London actuaries made a suggestion to me to-day that may interest the persons in New York upon whom rests the responsibility for the reform of American life insurance management and methods.

"If," he said, "your New York people really believe that it is in the power of some of us life insurance men on this side of the Atlantic to give them valuable advice for the betterment of the conditions prevailing in the New York companies, I am sure it would give us pleasure to respond to any practical suggestion for putting our views before them. It has occurred to me that if one of your life companies should desire a commission of British life insurance men to go to New York and confer with its managers as to the best way to proceed in order to put the company on a proper footing it would be easy to find men here in the highest rank who would gladly undertake the work.

"From what we have heard from America we have formed the opinion that the general view of well-advised Americans is that the methods of the British life companies are superior to those of the American companies, and there is no douht that the results here are far more satisfactory to the policyholders than those obtained from the New York companies. I have had several requests recently from American newspapers for a statement of my views as to your insurance problem, and in each case the invitation has been based on the frank admission that the British life companies are better conducted than the American.

"Of course I have refused to enter upon a public discussion of the American life insurance question. It would not do anybody any good for me to give public expression to my tentative opinions as to what the American people should do to safeguard the interests of life policy holders. I do not even care to say that we in London are able to tell the New York insurance men anything that is not as well known in New York as here. All I say is that if the New Yorkers think we are capable of helping them in any way they have only to call upon us in a proper, businesslike way, and we will respond.

"My own idea is that the best results would come from a commission of two men selected with good judgment. I am sure the London actuaries would be very glad if they could help their brethren in New York, for whom they entertain the kindliest feelings."

WON'T REMOVE HENDRICKS

Or Kilburn, Higgins Says—Nothing to Warrant It, He Adds.

ALBANY, Oct. 24.—Gov. Higgins emphatically asserted to-day that in his opinion no charges had been filed against Superintendent of Insurance Hendricks or Superintendent of Banks Kilburn to warrant their removal. On his return from Olean this morning he told the reporters that a false impression might have been gained from the manner in which certain things he said in this connection while in New York last Friday were reported.

"When I said I had no power to remove certain officers," said he, "I did not wish to imply that I would remove them if I could. While I stand ready to remove any public officer who is either derelict in his duty or incompetent, I do not consider that there is anything at present in State affairs that demands such action."

The Governor then called attention to Section 22 of the Public Officers' law, which provides that any officer confirmed by the Senate upon the Governor's recommendation may be removed by the Senate on his recommendation.

"The Superintendents of Insurance and Banking come under this rule. So you see," he continued. "The final power in such matters does not reside in me."

Headquarters now at AEOLIAN HALL, New York's new musical center

WEBER PIANOS

NEVER in its over half century of existence was the superiority of the Weber Piano so apparent as it is to-day.

Not only has that peculiarly rich and sympathetic quality of voice been retained to the utmost, but the instrument has actually been developed and improved in several important respects.

The old Weber house never had such great manufacturing facilities as the Company to-day commands.

Never was the Factory so large as now.

Never was the demand so great; never so many men employed.

And never did it have the advantages of such an organization of musical and mechanical experts.

No expense, no effort has been deemed too great if it would add ever so little to the excellence of the instrument. Even in the last twelve-month the advance is readily apparent, and the Weber is to-day at the zenith of its fame, musically and artistically.

McCLELLAN STILL 4 TO 1.

Jerome and Osborne at Evens—Betting on Hearst's Vote.

One bet of $300 to $100 on McClellan was made in Broad Street yesterday. Bunnell & Co. offered the odds, and M. F. Broderick took the short end. Later Bunnell & Co. put up $50 against $200 on the field against McClellan. The regular odds were 4 to 1. J. J. Judge bet $4,000 to $1,000 with Frank Lawrence.

The estimates of Hearst's vote continue to rise. Even bets on his getting 135,000 votes were offered freely yesterday. One broker bet F. Schwade $250 to $500 that Hearst would get 170,000 votes. So far no bets have been made on his winning the election; but the brokers say that he will take his place as a betting proposition in a few days.

The betting on the Osborne-Jerome contest is at evens, with sometimes 10 to 9 offered on Osborne. Comparatively little money is being wagered on the District Attorneyship vote. Some one keeps pouring in McClellan money, offering 4 to 1 steadily, and it was said yesterday that the 3 to 1 bet was a "mistake." The name of Ivins rarely appears in any of the bets.

M'CLELLAN TO STAY FOUR YEARS, HE SAYS

me because I was entitled to the nomination on my record.

"Now, however, Jerome wants to sidestep. Now that I am nominated he wants to make his fight against some one else who is not running for the office at all—Charles F. Murphy. Well, if Jerome has anything against Murphy I am willing the two of them should get in a twelve-foot ring and fight it out by themselves. I don't care about their private quarrels.

"Jerome goes around asking 'Where did he get it?' Well, the District Attorney ought to know if he is on to his job. He says he is the greatest prosecutor that ever lived. If Mr. Murphy 'got it' through improper channels, why don't Jerome indict him and bring him up if the charge is true?"

Mr. Osborne demanded to know why Jerome had not convicted "John Doe," seeing that in his campaign of four years ago he declared he knew who John Doe was and would convict him if elected. He again attacked Jerome for the Grand Jury's refusal to indict the New York Central Directors for the tunnel disaster, and cited the action of De Lancey Nicoll against the New York Central board some years before. He also compared the Buddensick building conviction with the failure of Jerome to convict any one for the Hotel Darlington disaster.

"Then there was the Slocum disaster," said Mr. Osborne, "with its 1,000 dead. Jerome investigated the case, and the usual thing happened with Jerome. Now Jerome says that was a case for the Federal authorities. I will quote him the case of the People vs. Welch, in the New York reports. Welch was a tugboat Captain, and through his carelessness caused a fatal disaster. The District Attorney of the county convicted him, and the case was carried through all the State courts. The conviction stood. It went to the United States Supreme Court, and the judgment was affirmed, all Justices concurring.

"That shows whether Jerome could have done anything in the Slocum case. The Federal courts had jurisdiction only over the inspectors of the boats. The District Attorney had jurisdiction over the Captain, the crew, and over the Directors of the company. Did Jerome make good?"

John S. Crosby, in his speech before the Mayor entered, said that the Mayor did not own a newspaper and did not go about advertising the fact every time he accomplished anything.

"He's not the kind of hen that cackles every time she lays an egg," he declared.

Mr. McGowan in his speech said it was an old tradition of a lawyer, if he had no case, to abuse the other side. He said that was what the other Mayoralty candidates were doing to McClellan.

"But this city is not yet ripe for the rule of the revolutionist," he declared. "Even Mayor Dunne of Chicago has found he cannot carry out his platform pledges without endangering the business interests of his city."

Herman A. Metz, Senator Thomas F. Grady, and Nicholas J. Hayes, nominee for Sheriff, were the other speakers.

Mr. Osborne later addressed Tammany meetings at 104 West Forty-seventh Street and 107th Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The theme of his talks at those two meeting was "Has He Made Good?" He asked his audiences that question fifty times in referring to Mr. Jerome. Then he analyzed Mr. Jerome's record as District Attorney, covering the same points as in his Murray Hill Lyceum speech.

THAT I'M ANY ONE'S MAN IS A LIE, SAYS IVINS

Resents the Statement That He Was Put Forward as a Puppet.

CROWD CHEERS FOR JEROME

Mention of the District Attorney's Name Stirs Up an Enthusiastic Republican Meeting.

William M. Ivins, the Republican Mayoralty candidate, spoke at three meetings in Manhattan last night. The first was at the West Side Republican Club, the next at the Nineteenth Assembly District Club, and the last at the Harlem Casino.

The meeting at the Harlem Casino was the most genuinely enthusiastic meeting that Mr. Ivins has addressed since his campaign began, and a feature of it was the fact that an incidental reference by Judge William N. Cohen to District Attorney Jerome brought forth a whirlwind of applause.

President Frederick Fuller of the West Side Republican Club called the meeting at the club's headquarters to order, and created some amusement to the crowd and embarrassment to the Mayoralty candidate by introducing him as William M. Evans.

"Is it possible that the Republicans of this city are going to elect Mayor McClellan?" asked Mr. Ivins.

"Not much," responded a man with a fog horn voice.

"Well, if they remain faithful and loyal to their party candidate, Mr. McClellan cannot possibly be elected," Mr. Ivins continued. "Now, I intend to vote for myself. I wouldn't ask you to vote for a man I was unwilling to vote for. But a friend of mine made me to-day as between the other two candidates which I would prefer. I told him that in making such a choice I would feel that I was between the devil and the deep sea.

"I am no more honorable than the Democratic candidate, Mr. McClellan. Whether I am more industrious my past must tell, but I will say this, that against Mayor McClellan's two years' study of municipal problems I have thirty years of such study to help me. If there is any business that I do know, it is the municipal business.

At the meeting in the Arcade Building, Sixty-sixth Street and Broadway, held under the auspices of the Nineteenth District Republican Club, Mr. Ivins was introduced by the President of the club, Theodore P. Gilman.

"I am putting the best that is in me into this fight," said Mr. Ivins, "and if you will only put the best that is in you into it, we will win. Our opportunity is unique. Hearst is practically a member of Tammany Hall. He was elected to Congress by Tammany. His defection has no relation whatsoever to the independent voters of New York or to the Republican voters. His candidacy means simply that Tammany is split in the middle. That split is my opportunity."

Mr. Ivins said that every promise of Tammany had been "faithfully broken." "I voted for Hewitt, Grace, and Cleveland. They tell me that my record does not entitle me to expect unswerving loyalty from the Republican organization. Well, all I can say is that ever since 1886, when the Bryan spectre fell across the path of the body politic, I have worked zealously for the success of Republican tickets and Republican candidates. I have never yet voted for a man that was nominated by Tammany."

Referring to the talk that he had been put forward as a puppet, Mr. Ivins said:

"Whoever tells you that I am any man's man, in the language of the Scripture, lies in his throat." [Cheers.]

When the Harlem Casino was reached by the Ivins party at 9:45 o'clock the hall was jammed. Before the arrival of Mr. Ivins Judge Cohen, in addressing the audience, mentioned the name of Jerome in a way complimentary to the District Attorney. The audience was on its feet in an instant cheering lustily. The demonstration lasted several minutes.

HEARST PETITIONS ATTACKED.

Forgery Alleged in Certificates from the Twenty-ninth.

Justice Stover in the Supreme Court will take up the disputed election cases this afternoon. Maurice Blumenthal, counsel for Tammany Hall, has obtained an order compelling the Board of Elections to show cause why the independent certificates indorsing Edgar J. Lauer, Frederick De Witt Wells, and Clarence Freedman Republican candidates in the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, should not be declared void. The names have been sent to the Election Board to be printed on the Hearst ticket.

Lauer is a candidate for Municipal Court Justice, Wells is the Assembly candidate, and Freedman is the Aldermanic candidate. Mr. Blumenthal asks that their names be rejected so far as the Hearst ticket is concerned on the ground that many of the signatures to the petitions are either forgeries or names of persons not living in the district. Two of the Commissioners of Deeds, who got the names, counsel said, are now out on bail pending charges of fraud.

Counsel presented affidavits declaring that 108 names on one petition were fraudulent; that 175 on another were names of persons who denied signing, and that a third petition contained the forged names of Bayard Cutting, Joseph Fox, President of the Columbia Bank; A. Newbold Norris, Vice President of the Plaza Bank, and Stewart G. Nelson, cashier of the Seaboard National Bank.

Two Justices of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, denied applications made to them yesterday to have the names of candidates of the Municipal Ownership League stricken from the official ballot. The casea will be brought before the Appellate Division late in the week.

FOOD.

GAS FROM PASTE

When Used as Food Is Bound to Make Trouble.

The average cereal food as frequently prepared forms a pasty, gas-generating mass in the stomach, which gives the digestive apparatus considerable trouble and frequently puts it out of business. A young man writes from Trenton, N. J., to tell what it did for him:

"I lived in a boarding house for three years before I was married," he says, "and every blessed morning there was supplied me some sort of cereal breakfast food, which I ate simply because I had been trained to eat what was set before me—not because I particularly relished any of it. It used to lie heavy on my stomach and within an hour fill me full of gas, making me very uncomfortable. At last this sort of thing brought on a serious disturbance of my digestive apparatus, with loss of appetite, and in time I had to go under the doctor's care.

"He put me on a diet of milk and toast, which in a week or two lost me 13 pounds in weight. I had a package of Grape-Nuts food in my room, which I had bought as a matter of curiosity, but had never opened. When I finally tired of milk and toast I thought I would try the Grape-Nuts, without any expectation that I would like it, thinking that it was probably similar to all the rest of the prepared foods.

"I liked it with cream from the start, however, finding it entirely different from anything else that I had ever eaten, and indulged in it freely. In one week (I say it on my honor) I regained nine pounds in weight and the Grape-Nuts gave me the power to digest other kinds of food. It put me on my feet in a few days, and now is and always will be a regular food item in our house. My only trouble is to keep my wife from eating too much of it, she likes it so well." SIMPSON CRAWFORD CO., SELLING AGENTS FOR THE CELEBRATED KUPPENHEIMER CLOTHING.

COPYRIGHT 1905 BY THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER

OVERCOATS

THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER, celebrated for their custom made clothing, has come forward with a clothing business proposition that will be of interest to every well dressed man.

It concerns their custom made Winter Overcoats, for which the regular prices in the best clothing houses in America are 35.00 and 40.00.

To inaugurate the season in New York, they have allowed Simpson Crawford Co. as their selling agents 22.50 125 of these coats to be sold to-day at 22.50.

Each little detail about which men are most particular—the collar, the shoulder, the lapel, the padding, the lining, etc.—has the attention of a specialist. Ten masters of the tailoring art impart their skill and experience to each garment while in a merchant tailor's shop where you'd pay at least 50.00, the coat is tailored from beginning to end by one craftsman. This may be satisfactory if you pay enough to enable the tailor to take his time, but the point we want to make is that you may be equally well satisfied with one of our $35.00 or $40.00 Kuppenheimer Overcoats at 22.50.

The materials are foreign Elysians, Vicunas, Smooth Kersey and other Overcoatings, that go into the high grade merchant tailored Coats—lined throughout with silk, satin or serge. The lot includes the new ultra fashionable styles in all sizes.

Surtout Coats.

We announced a number of 25.00 Winter Surtout coats at 15.50 early last week, and sold all but ten or twelve, because they are the acme of style this season. Many men were ready to purchase, and they found the values exactly as stated. We have another lot of one hundred for to-day.

Of course we don't mean they are $25.00 coats from the merchant tailor's standpoint. He would say $35.00 for such a coat. They have all the style, quality and cut of the best made-to-order surtout, and we offer them to-day at less than the ready for-service price $15.50

The fabrics are of Vicunas in Black. The close, tight-fitting collar—heavy lapels—form fitting waist and a full sweep to the skirt—give that most desired effect demanded by all fashionably dressed men. Own one of these $25.00 coats at $15.50.

Men's 15.00 new Fall suits and overcoats at 10.50. Thirty-four correct styles are included. 10.50

Men's new Winter Overcoats, worth up to 25.00, and a superb line of ultra-fashionable Fall suits at 15.50

Boys' Clothing

Our special Boy's Suit, $3

A new lot of 2,000 of these popular suits have come from the manufacturer. Let us repeat what previous announcements have held. Through our making a specialty of a boy's $3 suit, the product of certain mill weaves is contracted for then in making such a large quantity of boys' suits the manufacturer is able to give a liberal discount.

These reasons are responsible for our offering this suit at $3.

Though a great number of suits are made on the same cut and pattern, that painstaking care and appearance that has so popularized our special $3 suit both with boys and parents is usually lacking.

Norfolk, sailor and double breasted, at $3—ideal for school wear and suitable for dress occasions.

3.95 Boys' Winter OVERCOATS—size 7 to 16 at 3.95

Those long, flowing, broad shoulder coats that make the boys feel like men—long enough to cover the shoe tops—single or double breasted styles—made of high grade Vicuna in black and Oxford—certainly a remarkable value at $3.95.

THE FAMOUS TOURIST OVERCOAT FOR BOYS.

Every boy that requires a size of 9 to 16 years will look his best in one of these famous tourist coats. They're so popular that it is not unusual to pay $7.50 for this same style and quality.

4.95 To-day we place on sale 450 boys' tourist overcoats at 4.95 each.

Fancy Scotch effects. They embody all the new "wrinkles" that go to make up a stylish, up-to-date overcoat—finely tailored—belted back—sizes 9 to 16 years, at 4.95. Second Floor.

PRESIDENT SAW PISTOL, CAUSED MAN'S ARREST

if he is decent and clean in his domestic life; if he does his duty by his neighbor; if he is the kind of a man whom we are glad to have as a neighbor, that man is all right; he is going to be a good citizen. It is just the same with women; if the woman is a good wife and mother, she is a good citizen, and not merely a good citizen, but she is the very best kind of citizen that this country can produce.

The Duties of Every Day.

"What we need is not the desire to perform the heroic duties under altogether exceptional circumstances, but the steadfast determination to perform the rather commonplace duties of every day, day by day, as they arise. Speaking broadly, the man who does that is the man whom you can trust if the need for heroism arises. Each boy here should remember that the way to fit yourself to be of the utmost possible use is to act so that your family likes to have you at home, instead of feeling a relief when you are gone; it is the same way with the girl.

"We all of us know an occasional foolish mother who says: 'I have had to work hard, I have had a pretty hard time; my daughters shall not have to work.' This is not kindness to the daughters. It is doing the very worst thing that can be done for them. Do not bring up your boys and girls to be useless, to avoid trouble, to get around trouble, to shirk work. The man or the woman who counts in life is the man or the woman who does not flinch from a task, but who does the task, who overcomes the obstacle. The boy or girl won't turn out that kind of man or woman if they are not brought up in that spirit from the beginning."

Mr. Roosevelt was then driven to the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, where he witnessed a parade of the students and visited the various departments of the institute.

Grateful to the President.

Principal Booker T. Washington presented the President in the following words:

"This is a great day for the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, too great to be described by words. We have gathered to hear but one voice, to see but one face.

"In presenting our guest to the students, teachers, and citizens, I must not omit to express the gratitude felt by the people of the Tuskegee Institute and by the people of both races in this section of Alabama for the honor which has been conferred upon them.

"That the Chief Magistrate of our beloved Republic of 80,000,000 people deemed it good and wise to include Tuskegee Institute in his trip through the South and spend a few hours seeing the work we are doing here, brings to the heart of every man and woman of our race in this country a degree of encouragement and inspiration which it is impossible for any American citizen not of our race fully to appreciate.

"My friends, without further words of mine, I have the pleasure and the honor of presenting to you the President of the United States, the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt."

Before he began his speech, the President said:

"Mr. Washington and each student and graduate of Tuskegee:

"You can't be as much inspired by anything I may say as I have been inspired by what I have seen here. Mr. Washington, it is a liberal education in itself just to come here and see this great focus of civilization.

"Now I had read a good deal of your work, and I believe in it with all my heart. I would not call myself a good American if I did not. I was prepared to see what would impress me and please me, but I had no idea that I would be so deeply impressed, so deeply pleased as I have been. I did not realize the extent of your work. I did not realize how much you were doing.

"I wish I had the time, not merely to go around and see the buildings and the grounds, but to see the finished product outside. I would like to go around and see the houses that are being built upon by those who leave this institution. I would like to see the effect in actual life of the training here, and wish that some man with the gift of description would come here and go from here out where the graduates go and visit them in their homes and follow out what they are doing and describe it all.

"I think there could not be anything better than that, so as to show what is being done, and, Mr. Washington, while I have always stood for this institution, now that I have seen it and realize as I had never realized by the descriptions of it all it means, I will stand for it more than ever."

Negro Must Be Encouraged.

The President then began his regular speech, which was as follows:

"To the white population as well as to the black it is of the utmost importance that the negro be encouraged to make himself a citizen of the highest type of usefulness. It is to the interest of the white people that this policy be conscientiously pursued, and to the interest of the colored people that they clearly realize that they have opportunities for economic development here in the South not now offered elsewhere.

"Within the last twenty years the industrial operations of the South have increased so tremendously that there is a scarcity of labor almost everywhere; so that it is the part of wisdom for all who wish the prosperity of the South to help the negro to become in the highest degree useful to himself, and therefore to the community in which he lives.

"The South has always depended, and now depends, chiefly upon her native population for her work. Therefore, in view of the scarcity not only of common labor, but of skilled labor, it becomes doubly important to train every available man to be of the utmost use by developing his intelligence, his skill, and his capacity for conscientious effort. Hence the work of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute is a matter of the highest practical importance to both the white man and the black man, and well worth the support of both races alike in the South and in the North.

"Your fifteen hundred students are not only being educated in head and heart, but also trained to industrial efficiency, for from the beginning Tuskegee has placed especial emphasis upon the training of men and women in agriculture, mechanics, and household duties. Training in these three fundamental directions does not embrace all that the negro or any other race needs, but it does cover in a very large degree the field in which the negro can at present do most for himself and be most helpful to his white neighbors. Every black man who leaves this institute better able to do mechanical or industrial work, adds by so much to the wealth of the whole community and benefits all people in the community.

"The professional and mercantile avenues to success are overcrowded; for the present the best chance of success awaits the intelligent worker at some mechanical trade or on a farm; for this man will almost certainly achieve industrial independence. I am pleased, but not in the least surprised to learn that many among the men and women trained at Tuskegee find immediate employment as leaders and workers among their own people, and that their services are eagerly sought by white people for various kinds of industrial work, the demand being much greater than the supply.

Education a Rich Investment.

"Viewed from any angle, ignorance is the costliest crop that can be raised in any part of this Union. Every dollar put into the education of either white man or black man, in head, in hand, and in heart, yields rich dividends to the entire community. Merely from the economic standpoint, it is of the utmost consequence to all our citizens that institutions such as this at Tuskegee should be a success.

"But there are other and even higher reasons that entitle it to our support. In the interest of humanity, of justice, and of self-protection, every white man in America, no matter where he lives, should try to help the negro to help himself. It is in the interest and for the protection of the white man to see that the negro is educated. It is not only the duty of the white man, but it is to his interest to see that the negro is protected in property, in life, and in all his legal rights. Every time a law is broken, every individual in the community has the moral tone of his life lowered.

"Lawlessness in the United States is not confined to any one section; lynching is not confined to any one section, and there is perhaps no body of American citizens who have deserved so well of the entire American people as the public men, the publicists, the clergymen, the countless thousands of high-minded private citizens who have done such heroic work in the South in arousing public opinion against lawlessness in all its forms, and especially against lynching. I very earnestly hope that their example will count in the North as well as in the South, for there are just as great evils to be warred against in one region of our country as in another, though they are not in all places the same evils. And when any body of men in any community stands bravely for what is right, these men not merely serve a useful purpose in doing the particular task to which they set themselves, but give a lift to the cause of good citizenship throughout the Union.

"I heartily appreciate what you have done at Tuskegee, and I am sure you will not grudge my saying that it could not possibly have been done save for the loyal support you have received from the white people round about; for during the twenty-five years of effort to educate the black man here in the midst of a white community of intelligence and culture there has never been an outbreak between the races or any difficulty of any kind. All honor is due to the white men of Alabama, to the white men of Tuskegee, for what they have done.

Way to Settle Misunderstandings.

"And right here let me say that if in any community a misunderstanding between the races arise over any matter, infinitely the best way out is to have a prompt, frank, and full conference and consultation between representatives of the wise, decent, cool-headed men among the whites and the wise, decent, cool-headed colored men. Such a conference will always tend to bring about a better understanding and will be a great help all around.

"Hitherto I have spoken chiefly of the obligations existing on the part of the white man. Now, let you remember on the other hand that no help can permanently avail you save as you yourselves develop capacity for self-help. You young colored men and women educated at Tuskegee must by precept and example lead your fellows toward sober, industrious, law-abiding lives. You are in honor bound to join hands in favor of law and order and to war against all crime, and especially against all crime by men of your own race; for the heaviest wrong done by the criminal is the wrong to his own race.

"You must teach the people of your race that they must scrupulously observe any contract into which they in good faith enter, no matter whether it is hard to keep or not. If you save money, secure homes, and lead clean, decent, modest lives, you will win the respect of your neighbors of both races. Let each man strive to excel his fellows, only by rendering substantial service to the community in which he lives. The colored people have many difficulties to pass through, but these difficulties will be surmounted if only the policy of reason and common sense is pursued. You have made real and great progress. According to the census the colored people of this country own and pay taxes upon something like three hundred million dollars' worth of property, and have blotted out over 50 per cent. of the illiteracy. What you have done in the past is an indication of what you will be able to accomplish in the future under wise leadership.

Race Must Learn to Await Its Time.

"Moral and industrial education is what is most needed, in order that this progress may continue. The race cannot expect to get everything at once. It must learn to wait and bide its time; to prove itself worthy by showing its possession of perseverance, of thrift, of self-control. The destiny of the race is chiefly in its own hands, and must be worked out patiently and persistently along these lines.

"Remember also that the white man who can be of most use to the colored man is that colored man's neighbor. It is the Southern people themselves who must and can solve the difficulties that exist in the South. Of course what help the people of the rest of the Union can give them, must and will be gladly and cheerfully given.

"The hope of advancement for the colored man in the South lies in his steady, common-sense effort to improve his moral and material condition and to work in harmony with the white man in upbuilding the Commonwealth. The future of the South now depends upon the people of both races living up to the spirit and letter of the laws of their several States and working out the destinies of both races, not as races, but as law-abiding American citizens."

On his return to Montgomery the President was escorted to the State Capitol, where he was welcomed on behalf of the city by Congressman Wiley.

President of All the Union.

Gov. Jelks delivered the address of welcome for the State and introduced the President, who said:

"Governor, Col. Wiley, and you, Fellow-Americans and Fellow-Citizens: I cannot sufficiently express the pleasure I feel in being here and being greeted with this more than a lavish warmth of hospitality. Oh, my friends, oh, my fellow-citizens, think what a privilege is ours, think what it means for this Nation, that there is no place in the Union where the President of the Union can feel more at home, and can feel more that he is indeed the President of all the Union, of a reunited and indissoluble Union, than speaking here under the shadow of the first Capitol of the Confederacy. Poor, indeed, would be the soul of a man who did not leave Montgomery a better American than he came into it after having been received as I have been received.

"After speaking to all of age, and younger still, you will not grudge me saying a special word of greeting to the veterans of the great war. Here, again, think how fortunate we are. There is no other country of which history tells, which, having passed through such a war as we have passed through, now after forty years finds not only that the flag which has been rent asunder is once again whole, without a seam, but all her people challenging as theirs the right to claim their part in the heritage of glory bequeathed to every American alike, by the American who wore the blue and the American who wore the gray in the great civil war.

"Here I have come to your mighty and beautiful State, with its wealth of agriculture, its wealth of manufactures, and, more than ever, I am impressed with the solidarity of our interests as a people.

"As the Governor pointed out, the greatest and most important single export of our people is the export of cotton. That is the most important crop among our exports, and the whole Nation is concerned in the welfare of the cotton growers. It is not only important for Alabama and the rest of the Gulf States, it is important for the entire Union, because it is the cotton crop which determines the balance of trade as being in favor of this Nation.

"Whatever is the business of any part of this Nation, the trade of the entire Nation and the National Government are bound to do everything possible in the interest of the cotton growers to preserve your markets, to do everything that can possibly be done to see that the demand for cotton, the natural demand for cotton abroad is kept up and is met here under fair conditions by our own people.

The Canal and Cotton.

"Probably no State in this Union is more interested in the building of what is to be the greatest engineering feat that the world has yet seen—the building of the Isthmian canal. The cotton crop largely goes to Asia, and, of course, the canal greatly shortens the route to Asia. Our influence in the Orient must be kept at such a pitch as will insure our being able to guarantee fair treatment to our merchants and manufacturers in the markets of China. We must insist upon having fair treatment, and as a step toward getting it we must give fair treatment in return. I would demand that on ethical grounds alone. I would demand it also on grounds of self-interest.

"And now, in greeting all of you today, having paid first of all special tribute to the veterans, I want to go to the other end of the procession and say a word about the children.

"As you know, I believe in children. I like your stock and I want to see it kept up. Nothing pleases me more than to see the care that you are devoting to education in this State, and that among the many splendid heroic deeds to be credited to the Southern people in peace as well as in war is the fact that having to face as they did the future in the midst of a broken and war-swept country, they not only built up their industrial prosperity, but they have provided steadily for the education of the coming generation.

"Now, as I passed up here I was awfully glad to see the men of the National Guard. The men in troops on horseback and the men on foot, they all know, as the veterans could tell them if it were necessary, that the man who is a good soldier is not the man who is always waiting until the chance comes to do something great and spectacular.

"You who were in the civil war know the man you wanted next to you in rank was the man whom you could count on doing his share whatever the work. You did not want him to drop his blanket at 10 o'clock because it was too hot, and then want to share yours at midnight, when it was cold. If you had to dig a kitchen sink you wanted him to do his share of the work and not derive the profits if you did the work. You wanted the man to do his duty as that day's duty arose; that is the important point.

"It is just so in the affairs of civil life. It is given to mighty few men ever to have the chance of doing anything heroic, and to those few men that chance, if it comes at all, comes but once or twice in a lifetime, and you do not judge a life by any two or three minutes in it. You judge it by the sum of days, the sum of the years.

The Man Who Does Good.

"Gentlemen, if you only think of it, the essential point in our lives is the likenesses in our lives, not the dissimilarities. Some people live their lives in positions of more prominence than others, but if they are decent people, if they are good people, they show just the same kind of quality, just the same kind of virtue in one place as the other, and the good citizen, the man who has done good to his country, is the man who, whether he is a very wealthy man or whether he has but a day's bread by that day's toil, whether he is an officer or a private in the ranks of life, has done his duty as the Lord gives him light to see his duty in the position that he occupies.

"It is not the President or the Senators or the Congressmen or even the Governors who make up our Nation, who make the great of our Nation. The average private citizen is the man that counts.

"I am not saying that to compliment you, but so that you may realize your responsibility. It is not a bit important that you should be flattered at the thought, but it is very important that you should realize the weight of responsibility that that thought implies. It is very important that you should realize what self-government is.

"Anybody can be governed by somebody else. It is the easiest thing in the world to be the subject of a despotism. Just sit still and take it—no trouble about that at all. But to be a member of a self-governing community means, if you are to do your part in that community, that you possess the powers of self-restraint, of self-rule, of courage, of honesty—that you be the follower of clean living and decent thinking. Those are the qualities needed if it is to be true that the average citizen is in our country the man who counts.

"It is just as it was in the civil war. You men, the veterans of the civil war here, know. It was a great thing that we should have developed mighty leaders of men, the great Generals who have left their names as memories and heritages of honor and glory to our people forever; but after all, the prime factor, alike in the Union and Confederate armies, was the man with the musket—the man behind the gun. The best officers in the world could not have done anything with the army if the army had not done the right thing—if the army had not been of the right kind. You had to have the right stuff in them, or else nobody could have got it out of them.

"Now, it is just so in citizenship. I don't care how wise the leaders are, self-government won't work unless you have the right type of men in the ranks—unless you have the right type of private citizen; and it has worked and will work in this country because we have got the right kind of citizens; because we have the right type of private citizen.

Must Not Merely Applaud.

"But he is not going to make himself the right type merely by applauding the sentiment. He is going to make himself the right type by understanding that it is hard work taking part in self-government. There has got to be some principle in control somewhere in every one, and the less of it there is within any man the more of it there is without him; the less a man is able to govern himself the more somebody else will have to govern, and if a man cannot govern his own appetite and passions somebody else will have to do the governing for him in the long run.

"People can govern themselves only by practicing the virtues of moderation, self-restraint, of understanding that the simple, homely virtues of honesty, courage, common sense are essential to the full development of citizenship in a free land, and, gentlemen, the successful performance of political duty depends absolutely upon the successful performance of domestic, of social duty. There can never be, there never will be a good government of which the average citizen is not a decent man in private life.

"It is a contradiction in terms to speak of good government if the government does not rest upon cleanliness and decency in the home, respect of husband and wife for one another, tenderness of the man for those dependent upon him, performance of duty by woman and by man, and the proper education of the children who are to make the next generation. The vital things in life are the things that foolish people look upon as commonplace; the vital things in life are those things which it lies within the reach of each of us to do, and the failure to perform which means the destruction of the State."

The President's train arrived in Birmingham promptly on time. Mayor George B. Ward, surrounded by a Reception Committee, delivered the formal address of welcome at the station, and immediately afterward the party entered carriages and began the march to Capitol Park.

A characteristic incident occurred at the close of the parade when the President asked the name of the lady riding at the side of his carriage. Miss Sammie Harris was sponsor for Troop D, one of the local cavalry organizations. The President was introduced to her by Mayor Ward, and as he reached over to shake her hand he crowded the Mayor. Excusing himself, he said:

"I would run over a man any time to shake hands with a lady."

At Capitol Park, under the glamour of thousands of electric lights, the party entered the speakers' stand. Gen. Rufus N. Rhodes welcomed the President on behalf of the citizens of Birmingham.

"Alabama," said the President in his address, "has made a wonderful record. At the close of the war, shattered, war swept, it seemed that it was impossible for her people, in the grip of poverty as they were, to rally, and any people less strong than you of Alabama would have failed, but you had the stuff in you and you succeeded.

"About the year 1880 the tide turned, and the last quarter of a century has seen in Alabama a progress that would have been impossible in any other age or in any other nation than ours. The agriculture of the State went upward by leaps and bounds, but even more marvelous was your mechanical and industrial success. You have here in your State coal and iron, the two basic elements in modern industrialism, and you have also a wealth of water power only partially used; and given that amount of natural resources and the right type of man to use them, the result is what we have seen.

"But, my friends, there is something that is ahead of any kind of natural resources, and that is the citizenship of the man of the soil. I want now to say that, proud though I am of your extraordinary industrial prosperity, I am prouder of the men who have achieved it.

"Think what it means for our Nation to have the President of the United States greeted as he has been greeted to-day, with on his right and his left hand as the guard of honor, the veterans of the civil war, the men who wore the blue, the men who wore the gray, united forever. Honor to us if we treat your great deeds as spurring us onward, and shame to us if we treat your great deeds as excuses for our idleness or folly.

"In the organizations of veterans after the civil war each hails to the other as comrades. It makes no difference whether the man was a Lieutenant General or whether he was the youngest recruit that served at the very end of the war. All that is asked is, Did he do his duty in the place in which he was? If he did, you are for him. If he did not, you have no comradeship with him.

"I ask that the same lesson that you of the civil war applied practically in your persons during and since that war be applied by the rest of us in civil life. I ask that they scorn alike the base arrogance of the rich man who would look down on his poorer brother and the equally base envy of the poor man who would hate his richer brother; and that you apply to every citizen of this Republic just this one test, the test that gauges his worth as a man. Does he do his duty fairly by himself, his family, his neighbor, and the State and Nation? If he does, be for him, whether he is rich or poor, because if you do not you are recreant to the spirit of Americanism."

On leaving Capitol Park the party boarded a special electric train and proceeded to the Alabama State Fair Grounds, where the President was introduced by T. H. Molton, President of the Birmingham Commercial Club, to another enormous crowd.

THIEVES FOLLOW PRESIDENT.

Reap Harvest in the Crowds—Score of Victims in Mobile.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 24.—Pickpockets reaped a harvest here last night after the reception to President Roosevelt, and up to to-night more than twenty persons have been robbed of cash, diamonds, and watches. The police report that over $2,000 was obtained by the thieves, who are mostly from the East.

James Ryan, giving his home as Buffalo, N. Y., and James Ward, a Cincinnati man, are under arrest.

Other cities in the President's itinerary have been notified to be on the lookout.

DENY LAWSON'S REQUEST.

New York Life Policy Holders in Kansas to Elect Representatives.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 24.—The Kansas policy holders in the New York Life Insurance Company will not yield to Thomas W. Lawson's request to vote their proxies in the next annual meeting. A convention will be held here to name a committee to perform this duty. Gov. Hoch will fix the date for the convention, and he expects other States to follow.

Col. E. C. Little in a published statement to-day says:

"The policy holders of the New York Life Insurance Company can easily elect officers who will administer the company's affairs in the interests of the policy holders. To do this it is not necessary that they should send the proxies to somebody in the East they do not know. Permit me to suggest that the policy holders in Kansas hold a State convention at Topeka and by vote select some Kansas policy holders to attend the next election of officers and cast the votes of the policy holders from Kansas."

CRUELTY IN TRUANT SCHOOL.

Grand Jury Investigates the Death of a Brooklyn Boy.

The Grand Jury in Brooklyn yesterday began an investigation of charges of cruelty to boys confined in the Brooklyn Truant School. Assistant District Attorney Van Wyck is conducting the inquiry, and yesterday fifteen witnesses, most of them boys who are inmates of the institution, were examined. The allegations of cruelty are made by parents of some of the lads.

A son of Joseph Silcock of 144 Frost Street is said to have died while at the school. The father alleges that when his son entered the institution he was strong and healthy, but that after three months he was in such a condition that he had to be taken home in a carriage, being too weak too walk. The boy was later sent back to the school, where he died about three months afterward. The father alleges that his son received harsh treatment at the institution.

TRIED TO JUMP FROM BRIDGE.

De Cardo Who Walked from California Was Tired of Life.

Alfred De Cardo, a homeless Italian, 24 years old, tried to end his life by jumping from the Williamsburg Bridge early yesterday morning. He had been unable to find his sweetheart, in search of whom he tramped from San Francisco. Policemen Evans and Dobson subdued De Cardo after a fight. He was tied with ropes and taken to the police station.

Fancier's Neighbors Turned Out to Help—Three Boys Caught.

John Demlein keeps a flock of carrier pigeons on the roof at 1,003 Park Avenue, the five-story apartment house in which he lives. Demlein puts a fancy value on each. Last night he and his wife were at dinner when they heard a great commotion on the roof. Demlein found Patrolman William Deans, who just joined the force yesterday. He got another policeman.

Neighbors formed a cordon around the house.

Soon three boys walked into the street and into the arms of their captors. From the coats of each of the three boys two pigeons were extracted. The lads said they were William Carroll, Harry Leat, and Michael Donahue.

Truck Load Worth $7,000 Vanishes.

J. Goldberg & Co., truckmen, who have a stand at Broadway and Tenth Street, lost a truckload of goods valued at $7,000 on Monday. The truck and horse were found yesterday in Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn. The Team Owners' Association has offered a reward of $250 for the capture of the driver. The truck was loaded with cases of worsteds.

"IF HE DIDN'T GET IT," THAT'S BOSS MORALITY

And the Bosses Hear Their Death Knell, Jerome Says.

THE CROWD CHEERS HIM

And Cries "Shame!" at the Tammany Attacks—Enthusiasm Enough Up in Gruber's District.

District Attorney Jerome went into Abraham Gruber's home district, the twenty-first, last evening, and held a large and enthusiastic meeting in Colonial Hall, where Col. Gruber generally holds his big rallies when fighting for his power. The bosses came for their usual share of flaying, but those who expected Mr. Jerome to use the occasion to repay Candidate James W. Osborne in his own coin were doomed to disappointment.

Mr. Jerome spoke of Mr. Osborne, but more in sorrow than in anger. It was the audience that showed the greatest degree of animosity. When Mr. Jerome repeated Mr. Osborne's statement of Monday night, which he repudiated later, the whole audience burst into scornful cries of:

"Shame on him. Shame on him!"

Murphy Through Osborne.

"I prophesied with absolute certainty," he said, "and it didn't take a very wise man to do it, that Mr. Murphy's trap would be closed, and closed by one J. Sergeant Cram. And it was closed. Mr. Murphy himself said 'the incident is closed.' And it was—it was closed on him, as a paper said. But he had said that two or three emissaries had been sent by me. They were going to be sprung on me. Yet not a word came—I challenged him to name them—but not a word. He was closed—he, the boss. He was not allowed to talk, but he made answer through a man that they put up to run against me—a man who had been an assistant of mine—a man who had been my friend and had been on my staff. A brave, honest fellow he was—and honest I believe him to be. They put him up to answer, and what did he say? 'If Jerome did not get it himself, he must be a fool.' [Hisses and cries of "Shame on him!"]

"These are the tragedies of politics, the brutalities of our political life. They are the indications of what boss rule in politics will do. When a brave, true, loyal fellow as I have always believed Jim Osborne to be can be brought to come forward in defense of a man like Murphy with a statement like that—[more cries of "Shame!"]—when that can be done, fellow-citizens, it shows how potent the boss rule is. It shows what the ring of boss morality is. It shows you what the lust of office can do. It shows you how temptation can warp the strongest man from his foundations.

There's Boss Morality.

"'If Jerome didn't get it, he must be a fool.' There is your boss morality. It spoke for Murphy. It wasn't Jim Osborne. It spoke through his lips, but it was the voice of Murphy, it was the heart of Murphy, it was the feeling of the boss all over this wide country—the feeling that a man who has opportunities for graft and who does not use them must be a fool." [Tremendous applause.]

A part of Mr. Jerome's speech was devoted to the Police Department and contained an unexpected commendation of First Deputy Police Commissioner McAvoy, coupled with another attack on the former leader of the Commissioner's private vice squad and on his secretary. There were at least forty uniformed policemen in the hall at the time, most of them standing in the aisles, and on the face of each shone a grin as broad as the Hudson, while Mr. Jerome was speaking of police matters.

"I mean," he said, "that the politicians of this city know that a District Attorney who plays favorites can turn any particular district leader out of business as easy as the turn of a hand. And there have been no favorites played in this office. The leaders in Tammany Hall, from McAvoy down, of whom I have said hard things at times, will tell you they have been dealt with squarely by me. I mention McAvoy in particular, for, contrary to the belief held by the people, if it had not been for McAvoy the Police Department would have gone to pieces during this administration. He held it together. [Warm applause.]

Mr. Jerome related how all the leading men in the Democratic Party, from Mayor McClellan down, went to Good Ground and demanded that he be put on the Tammany ticket.

"Did they get it?" Mr. Jerome resumed. A sleepy citizen on a front seat woke up and yelled. "Not much."

"The bosses are no fools. They saw what it meant to nominate me—and then, in their anxiety to rid themselves of me, they did the most foolish thing of all—from their point of view—they allowed me to run without the brand of any one of them on me. They allowed me to run on a clean and simple appeal to the decency and integrity of the people of this city. And we should be thankful for this. They have joined the issue. If I had been indorsed by Tammany, if I had been indorsed by the Republicans, if I had been indorsed by any party, we should not have had the issue clean cut as we have it now."

Jerome's Feeling.

The wildest outburst of enthusiasm in the entire meeting followed when Mr. Jerome added:

"On Oct. 3, the first day possible, I started my petition, not as a man turned down by the conventions and disgruntled, but as a man resolved on preserving his own manhood, at least, and on going down, if necessary, fighting for it."

Several references were made by Mr. Jerome in the evening to J. Sergeant Cram, but no longer as the boss's boss. The new name devised for Mr. Cram was "Murphy's little black man," a designation that tickled the audience every time it was used.

Here, to the intense delight of the audience, Mr. Jerome repeated several times his now famous question: "Where did he get it?" placing the stress successively on each one of its five words.

"Think what it means if every public servant elected is free and feeling that he need only serve you," Mr. Jerome concluded. That is what I am fighting for. That is why the eyes of the whole country are on this city now. The question is whether the public officer is to be a servant of the people or of the boss. I don't want to be the servant of the boss. I want to be your servant, and to do your will. And that is what I shall be, and do if you will give me your franchises and crush the boss."

Eager cries of "We will!" greeted Mr. Jerome's closing words. No sooner was he gone from the platform, on which Mrs. Jerome occupied a seat while he was speaking, than a wild rush ensued by volunteers who wanted to sign their names on cards provided for the purpose by Julius Henry Cohen, the Chairman of the meeting.

The other speakers at the meeting were Robert Fulton Cutting, Cyrus L. Sulzberger, and J. Aspinwall Hodge. Fully 2,000 attended the meeting. Among them were many women.

HELPING JEROME.

Lawyers, Laborers, Women, and Preachers—What Some Say.

The appeal for active support of Jerome, issued on Monday by eighteen leading members of the bar, headed by Joseph H. and William G. Choate, Joseph Larocque, and John E. Parsons, brought favorable replies yesterday from these well-known lawyers:

W. D. Guthrie,	Walter Alexander,
E. C. Henderson,	John L. Cadwalader,
G. A. Hubbard,	Charles T. Mathews,
Stewart L. Woodford,	R. Kelly Prentice,
Everett P. Wheeler,	Stanley W. Dexter,
George L. Rives,	Louis Marshall,
John Frankheimer,	Howard A. Taylor,
Charles B. Hubbell,	Joseph S. Daly,
Hamilton Odell,	Julien T. Davies,
Adrian H. Joline,	J. F. Kernochan,
Victor Morawetz,	Paul Fuller.
Charles P. Howland,

A writer signing himself "A Legal Voter" sent this communication to the Gilsey House headquarters, giving the name of the detective:

I am a resident and in business in the Eighth Assembly District. I am one of a number of voters who have been threatened with what will happen to us if we do not vote the Tammany ticket. Detective ——, who is under Inspector Flood, is being used by the Sullivans in force use to vote against you. This man has helped to colonize this district with illegal voters.

It was understood last night that the letter would be brought to the attention of Police Commissioner McAdoo.

Mr. Jerome accepted yesterday an invitation from the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur to speak in the Epiphany Church, Sixty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. In his letter of invitation, sent to one of Mr. Jerome's assistants, Dr. MacArthur wrote that he intends also to say a personal word in his own pulpit in Mr. Jerome's behalf, and sent his warmest assurances of interest in the District Attorney's campaign.

The work of posting marked sample ballots, showing how to vote for Jerome, in all the elevated and Subway stations, as well as on all street cars, elevated and Subway trains, will begin to-day. The Jerome Campaign Committee is also preparing for a house-to-house canvas by volunteers, whose task it will be to instruct any voter desiring to learn how to split the regular tickets and vote for Mr. Jerome. Six schools for election watchers will also be established, and the committee expects by election day to have a trained body of 3,000 volunteer watchers looking out for possible attempts at fraud.

To-morrow evening a meeting will be held in Madison Square Concert Hall, Twenty-sixth Street and Madison Avenue, expressly to reply to James W. Osborne's recent remarks about his former chief and present opponent. Mr. Jerome will not be there. The principal address of the occasion will be made by his chief assistant, William Rand, Jr. Ex-Judge William N. Cohen will preside.

Jacob Adler, the foremost Jewish actor of this city, if not of the whole world, has offered Mr. Jerome the free use of his Grand Street Theatre for any evening the managers of the District Attorney's campaign may find convenient. This means that Mr. Adler will surrender the proceeds of an entire evening.

The Women's Municipal League has opened campaign headquarters for Jerome in the Metropolis Building, 31 Union Square. Women interested in his election are asked to register at the headquarters for work. Among the members of the Campaign Committee are:

Miss Margaret L. Chanler, Chairman.
Miss Katherine S. Dreier, Secretary.
Miss Helen V. C. De Peyster, Chairman Finance Committee.
Miss Catharine S. Leverich, Chairman Press Committee.
Mrs. Gordon Wendell, Chairman Committee on Distribution of Literature.
Miss Helen Arthur, Chairman Committee on Speakers.
Mrs. Frederick Nathan, Chairman Committee on Ballot Instruction Booths.
Mrs. V. Sinkotitch, Mrs. J. Newton Perkins,
Mrs. George A. Strong, Mrs. Henry Villard,
Mrs. F. W. Longfellow, Mrs. James Seymser,
Mrs. Herbert Parsons, Miss Lillian D. Wald,
Mrs. Edward Curtiss, Mrs. Rosalie L. Whitney
Mrs. Henry Parsons, Miss Frances A. Keller.

Among others who have offered their services to the District Attorney for the campaign is Richard Washburn Child, one of the best known students in the Harvard Law School and a popular Harvard orator, who has already done good work as a member of the investigating committee of the Good Government Association of Boston. In his letter he wrote:

"I am ready and eager to give my energies to a cause which, I believe, involves issues not only important to the welfare of New York City, but of great import to the whole country."

The most valuable contributions received so far, according to the ideas of Mr. Jerome himself, were turned in yesterday in the shape of two silver half dollars. One came from a truckman, who remarked as he put it down:

"It ain't such much, but it may help a bit."

A half-grown boy gave the other, explaining as he did so that he had to do something, as he had no vote to cast for Mr. Jerome.

A circular sent out yesterday appealing for funds to meet the expenses for the spreading of sample ballots and the instruction of voters in the art of splitting tickets, gives a list of offenders prosecuted and convicted by Mr. Jerome on behalf of the commercial and industrial interests of this city. The list includes such names as those of Col. "Bob" Ammon of Franklin Syndicate fame; Max Kornfeld, the insurance swindler; Charles Kanter, who was sent to State prison for five years after being indicted on seven charges of grand larceny in the first degree; "Larry" Summerfield and three other members of his gang; David Rothschild, President of the failed Federal Bank; Louis Levin, a merchant who swindled wholesale houses out of more than $65,000 worth of goods on false pretenses; Edward M. Harlan, a pawnbroker, convicted of receiving stolen goods in large quantities after he had first tried to flee from the country and then escape by building up a chain of perjured testimony; James S. Alderdyce, a lawyer, sentenced to eighteen years in State prison for executing false deeds of property; John W. Wooten, who swindled the Weisell estate out of large sums.

"We have to-day," the circular says further, "many 'arm-chair' positions for politicians and their friends, whom it is almost a physical impossibility to remove, and as far as carrying out the laws is concerned, they are absolutely powerless. The office of the District Attorney can also become an 'arm-chair' position, and justice go for naught."

APPEALS FOR JEROME.

Citizens' Union Asks for $50,000 for the District Attorney's Campaign.

This appeal in behalf of District Attorney Jerome's candidacy has been issued:

The Finance Committee of the Citizens' Union, acting in concert with the local committee of the Jerome Campaign Fund, is in need of money to manage effectively Mr. Jerome's campaign. Fifty thousand dollars is urgently required as a minimum. Thus far about $25,000 has been contributed. It appears to us that all self-respecting and good citizens should aid, as far as practicable, in the efforts to elect this courageous officer, who has so splendidly and fearlessly performed his duties. Any contribution will be thankfully acknowledged.

Yours very truly,
ISAAC N. SELIGMAN,
Treasurer.

FOR JEROME AND IVINS.

Two More Campaign Clubs Formed in Columbia University.

Enthusiastic supporters of William Travers Jerome among the students of Columbia University formed a Jerome Club yesterday afternoon. The meeting called forth about 200 persons, among whom were many professors. Among those who addressed the students were Profs. Dennis, Burdick, and Scott. The members will stump the city for their candidate.

Not to be more backward than the Hearst and Jerome Clubs, the Republican students have formed a Republican Club with these officers: President—M. C. Ansorge; Vice President—R. A. Cohn; Treasurer—C. A. Smith; Secretary—M. V. Garlock; Chairman of the Executive Committe—A. M. Elsberg. The latter is a brother of State Senator Elsberg.

Beginning to-night they are to start out to make speeches for Ivins. They have a special college yell for the campaign.

SUIT OVER DILL'S POLICY.

Agent Claims Interest on the $75,000 Insurance the Judge Took.

Charles C. Curry, an insurance agent, with an office in Poughkeepsie, has begun a suit against the Prudential Life Insurance Company to recover $957.80, commissions on $75,000 of life insurance issued to Judge James B. Dill of New Jersey.

The company sets up as a defense that Curry was only the agent in getting a $10,000 policy, and that after agreeing to take out this Judge Dill consulted with the company's officials, who induced him to take out the $75,000 policy. Trial of the suit began yesterday before Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court.

HEARST ASSAILS TRUSTS AT TWO BIG MEETINGS

Says a Political Trust Is the Latest and Worst.

WARNS AGAINST ANARCHY CRY

It Is the Device of Thieves, Who Hope to Escape in the Confusion, He Asserts.

Candidate William R. Hearst pinned on a "Vote against the Gaa Man" badge last night, and went up to Harlem and the Bronx, where he took up the trusts as an issue in his campaign for municipal ownership at two crowded meetings. For turbulent demonstrativeness these meetings made everything that has gone before in the Hearst campaign look trifling.

While Mr. Hearst addressed two meetings he made only one speech. The first meeting was held at Zeltner's Hall, 170th Street and Third Avenue; the other at Marion Hall, in East 125th Street, which was the headquarters of the Subway strikers. Both halls were so densely packed that if a fire had occurred a terrible catastrophe must have resulted. At Marion Hall a man in the audience yelled, just as Mr. Hearst was closing his peroration:

"You and your people caused the assassination of President McKinley."

In an instant the hall was in an uproar. "Kill him!" "Put him out!" "He is Murphy's man!" were some of the cries. Then some one roared from the platform: "Leave the poor fool alone!" A dozen policemen plowed their way through crowded aisles to the rescue and built a living wall about him. Then he was escorted to the street, with the audience hissing and hooting.

Mr. Hearst is not using his automobile or even calling a carriage these nights when he goes out speechmaking. Last night he boarded a Third Avenue elevated train at the Twenty-eighth Street station, a block away from his house. The candidate was intent upon the manuscript of his address. Every minute or so he was disturbed by some one who wanted to shake hands with him and assure him that he would be elected Mayor.

At Zeltner's Hall, which is the biggest meeting place in the Bronx, the candidate was smuggled in through a side entrance on East 170th Street, after first having received a noisy welcome from 3,000 Bronx enthusiasts who had been unable to get into the hall and had to be content with remaining in the drizzle outside and listening to Hearst speakers in the glare of red fire.

"My friends," Mr. Hearst began at last, "you have had hard experience with many kinds of lawless and heartless trusts. The Ice Trust has pillaged you during the hot Summer when ice was necessary to your health and the very lives of your babies. The Coal Trust has plundered you during the cold weather. The Beef Trust has robbed you and your family. The Gas Trust has robbed you in the kind of gas it gives and in the kind of bills it renders.

"Beset by trusts on every side that take away your money, you are now confronted by a political trust, formed to take away your rights and liberties as citizens. And this political trust has been formed just as other trusts have been formed, and on the same plan and with the same purpose of rendering the citizen helpless and then robbing him at its leisure. The promoters of the Oil Trust or the Coal Trust or any other trust begin by buying up all sources of supply, and then when the citizen has need of their commodity he must secure it of the trust and on the trust's terms, or go without.

"Hurrah for our next Mayor!" yelled a man in the audience, and the others cheered and applauded.

"We'll make you our Govenor, Willie," shouted somebody else.

"You're the next President," yelled a third. Mr. Hearst smiled and looked pleased.

Mr. Hearst read extracts from the Directory of Directors, enumerating all the corporations in which Mr. Ryan and August Belmont, whom he characterized as another member of the political trust, are interested.

"And as a life insurance Director Mr. Ryan will probably use some of your money on election day to oppose your will," he added.

"Not on your life," "Not if we know it," were some of the yells that greeted this assertion.

"I would say," continued Mr. Hearst, "that the political trust consisted of Ryan, President, and Belmont and Rockefeller and McCurdy and McCall as Directors, and Murphy and McCarren and Odell as agents, and McClellan as office boy.

"Now, my friends, don't underestimate the importance of the office boy in modern high finance. Just remember that George Marshall, a colored messenger for the New York Life, signed a note for $4,208,000, and that George McClellan, the measenger boy for the political truat, signed the Remsen gas steal. [Applause.]

When Mr. Hearst finished speaking the band struck up "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." While it was being played the candidate left the hall. He boarded an elevated train and went down to 125th Street.

Many passengers came up and shook hands with him. At last the conductor came and shook his hand.

"You're for Hearst, but I don't see any Hearst button on your coat," said one of those in the Hearst party to the conductor.

The conductor unbuttoned his coat and waistcoat. The man who had spoken to him looked on the inside of the conductor's waistcoat and smiled with satisfaction.

WOMAN CASHIER SENTENCED.

Mary Golding Fainted When the Court Said Three Months.

Mary E. Golding, cashier of the Larkin Company, who confessed to larcenies of from $2,000 to $8,000 from her employers, was sentenced in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday. She was sentenced to three months in the penitentiary. When sentence was pronounced, the girl fainted.

Justice Olmsted, in pasing sentence, said:

"We have been at great loss to know what to do with you. If you were younger we would send you to the Bedford Home, but your years forbid that sentence, and I am forced to send you to the penitentiary."

Miss Golding fell in a faint. When she was revived she began to weep hysterically, and her aged mother shrieked aloud. The mother tried to follow her to the prison door, but was restrained.

QUEST FOR REVENGE FATAL.

Wrong Man, Attacked by Dying Father's Sons, Shoots One.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 24.—Robert F. Malden, an expressman, died to-day of injuries inflicted by Michael Reddington, 18 years old.

Late last night Malden's two sons, when told that their father could not live, started out to find Reddington. By mistake they attacked George Binlein. Believing that he was being assaulted by highwaymen, Binlein drew a revolver and fatally wounded Wiley Malden.

CANAL READY BY 1915, SAYS ISHAM RANDOLPH

Eight-Hour System a Mistake, Consulting Engineer Declares.

FRENCH MACHINERY NO GOOD

Labor Supply Not Equal to Demand—He Praises Feeding and Medical Care of Men.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The Isthmian Canal Commission to-day made public a letter written by Isham Randolph, a member of the Board of Consulting Engineers, to Zina R. Carter, President of the Sanitary District of Chicago. Mr. Randolph says:

"We may reasonably look for the passage of the great ocean freighters from the Caribbean to the Pacific before our calendars are headed 1915. How much before this deponent sayeth not. This is no easy triumph for the builders who must contend with and overcome difficulties not encountered in our temperate zone.

"When the equipment is on hand at least 24,000 men will be required in the various departments of industry. The source of supply for labor so far has been Jamaica. The efficiency of this labor is low, as low as 25 per cent., taking an average laborer in our latitude as the unit. The supply is not near equal to the demand. If a foreman undertakes to make them do a fair day's work they move on to the next camp.

"The introduction of the eight-hour system on the Isthmus seems a lamentable mistake. It adds about 25 per cent. to the labor cost of the work.

"The whole line is cluttered up with abandoned French machinery, the cost value of which, it is said, was $30,000,000. This machinery is valueless, out of date, and the efforts to use it have proved disastrous. I cast no reflections upon the work of the French; they left behind them evidences of engineering skill and successful battles with difficulties which convince me that if the honest workers had been sustained and the vast sums which were diverted into robber channels had been legitimately applied it might to-day be the mission of the United States only to enlarge the Panama Canal.

"As to the feeding of the men. On my last day in Panama, after hours of tramping in the rain through mud of the Culebra cut and laborious climbing up the jungle-clad hills, I arrived with two others of our party at a Government hash house. We went in unannounced and ordered dinner. There was no delay in serving, and there was a reasonable variety of well-cooked, wholesome food—better than I have found in 75 per cent. of the many contractors' camps in which I have eaten in the last thirty-seven years. The charge for this board is 25 cents a meal, or $22.50 a month.

"The hospitals are a source of just pride to our people. One of the privileges of our trip was meeting Col. Georgas, whose work as medical director places him in the front rank.

"You no doubt have seen statements which purport to have come from members of our board of consulting engineers foreshadowing our report. Until we are ready to make our official statement and sign our names we are not giving out individual statements relating to any of the fundamentals of the project."

TO TELL WHERE MONEY WENT.

Panama Canal Auditor Preparing a Report for Publication Soon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The Auditor for the Panama Canal Commission has prepared a report, which will be made public in a few days, giving a complete statement of expenditures on the canal from July 1, 1902, to July 1 this year. This will be classified so as to make clear where every dollar has gone and account for all work of preparation and construction.

On the first of this month there were employed on the canal 13,200 men. Since the suspension of construction work this large force has been engaged on buildings for hospitals and barracks, on railroad tracks, docks, and warehouses. The vast amount of preparatory work is, it is now said, so far advanced that the commission is encouraged to believe that digging may soon be taken up and prosecuted with a perfectly equipped force.

The work of sanitation is pronounced by the members of the commission essentially completed. For the present month, conceded to be the worst of the year, there has not been a single case of yellow fever in Panama or in the zone.

The causes of delay in the matter of railroad cars, locomotives, and machinery are beginning to disappear. Orders were given when the country was enjoying a high degree of prosperity and the manufacturers were unable to fill orders. The cars and locomotives for the Panama road had all to be made five feet in gauge instead of the United States standard gauge of four feet and a half.

The commission has the matter of letting the work of excavation by contract under consideration. There are complications in such a plan which may lead to trouble. The commission is inclined to think the quarters built by the commission would be available to rent to contractors if the contract system should be adopted.

UNION DENOUNCES HEARST.

Bricklayers Not to be "Caught by a Millionaire Demagogue."

At a meeting in the Labor Lyceum, 64 East Fourth Street, on Monday night, Bricklayers' Union No. 11, consisting of a thousand members, passed these resolutions:

Whereas, Hearst is trying his utmost to fool the workingmen of this city with the municipal ownership muddle.

Whereas, Progressive workingmen of this city have long before Hearst appeared on the scene taken their stand by indorsing the candidate of the Socialist Party, and have also shown that they cannot be caught by a millionaire demagogue.

Resolved, That this organization again indorse the candidate of the Socialist Party, and recommend to all of its members to vote for the candidates on the Socialist ticket on election day.

Resolved, That we see in Hearst only a tool of a certain financial group which is trying to use the workingmen for its own purposes.

ALDERMANIC TEMPEST.

Mr. Meyers Wanted the Bridge Wiring Contract Advertised—It Won't Be.

Alderman Twomey started a rumpus in the Board of Aldermen yesterday by asking the board to authorize Bridge Commissioner Best to let the contract for electric wires on the Williamsburg Bridge without advertising it. Alderman Meyers objected on the ground that this would be poor policy, and he doubted that $1,500 would be saved, as alleged, by avoiding the public advertisement.

Meyers was characterized as "narrow minded" by Alderman McCall and Alderman Sullivan. After about a dozen speeches had been made by different Aldermen the resolution was adopted by a vote of 64 to 2. The board also passed the appropriation of $50,000 to enable the Corporation Counsel to defend lighting suits against the city for lighting in the last three years.

TAFT ON CHINESE EXCLUSION.

Thinks Concessions Should Be Made to the Educated Classes.

Secretary of War Taft, in an interview which will appear in the next issue of The Churchman, says that, as a result of the war just ended, the immediate economic outlook in Japan is one of high prices, much work, and apparent prosperity. He believes that depression may follow, as was the case in the United States after the civil war. He does not think, he says, that the Japanese look toward the Philippines with any desire of acquiring the islands.

Speaking of the Chinese exclusion question, the Secretary said:

"There is a very decided resentment among the educated Chinese at the exclusion of their own class, but I am led to think that except in Canton, possibly, and in Amoy, whence the laboring coolies mostly come, they did not particularly object to the exclusion of the coolie class. My impression is that the wisest course for this Government to take is, by amendments to the existing treaties to ameliorate the conditions under which the classes of Chinese admitted to this country are to be admitted.

"If the certificates of American Consuls upon our examining officers at our ports are made conclusive, a long step will have been made toward the satisfaction of the Chinese."

A FAGIN TO SING SING.

Two Years and Five Months for the Man Who Taught Boys to Steal.

Louis Middle of 98 Attorney Street, who taught schoolboys to steal, was sent to Sing Sing for two years and five months for larceny by Judge Rosalsky, in General Sessions yesterday. He stole $17 from a man on a Delancey Street car. Judge Rosalsky said to the prisoner:

"I understand that you are a 'Fagin' of long practice—all your life, in fact. I understand the conditions on the lower east side, and I know that such men as you are continually making thieves of the young of that section. I am going to make an example of you."

BURGLARS GET $1,000 IN GEMS

Mrs. Matthews's Home in South Orange Ransacked in Daylight.

A robbery which netted the burglars nearly $1,000, was committed in daylight in the Montrose section of South Orange yesterday afternoon. The residence of Mrs. Mary C. Matthews of 190 Montrose Avenue, was entered while the family and servants were out. When Mrs. Matthews returned she missed two diamond rings, a diamond pendant, and a purse containing $15.

Bureau drawers and closets had been ransacked, and the burglars had gone about their work very thoroughly.

POLICE INDORSE HEARST AND STIR M'ADOO UP

He Had Told Them Not to Work, as Officials, for Anybody.

HE'LL LOOK INTO IT NOW

Probably It's a Spontaneous Recognition of Hearst's Three-Platoon Help, His Campaign Manager Says.

Commissioner McAdoo got wind yesterday of the fact that on Sunday policemen representing practically every precinct in the city held a secret meeting at which resolutions were adopted indorsing the candidacy of William R. Hearst for the Mayoralty. Mr. McAdoo immediately ordered an investigation. He said later that action of this character on the part of policemen was not to be tolerated.

"Policemen may, as citizens, do as they please; but as policemen they must not become identified with any meeting or movement in behalf of any political candidate for any office," said Mr. McAdoo.

Late yesterday afternoon an indefinite report of the meeting was made to Mr. McAdoo. It did not give the place of the gathering, the time of the meeting, nor were the investigators able to get a copy of the resolutions adopted. Mr. McAdoo's men are still investigating.

"I have been informed," he said last night, "that there has been a meeting of policemen, street cleaners, and firemen, and that resolutions indorsing Mr. Hearst's candidacy had been adopted. I asked that further facts be given me.

"From what I can gather the meeting was called by members of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, and as far as I know the representatives there were men in the various precincts who are members of this association. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association is a creditable organization and of good to the police, but it is not advisable for it to identify itself with this or that candidate for political office.

"I don't approve of this sort of thing, and will not tolerate it. I think that on Sunday I talked about the matter in a way that could not be misinterpreted. I then expressed my views of a policeman's duties in politics, and my language was exactly to the point—in fact, brutally to the point. I cannot increase the strength of that speech; all I can say is that policemen, as policemen, must refrain from political indulgences. As citizens they are as free as any other class. This is final.

"At election times, especially when the Mayoralty is involved, there is always more or less ferment among the men of the department. A change in Mayor means a great deal to them, and many of them are inclined to take a personal rather than a political view of the campaign and election, with reference to its prospective effect upon their status as policemen and not as citizens.

"Policemen are held by the politicians to be valuable in controlling a big vote. I have been told by politicians that every policeman in New York through his immediate friends can control not fewer, on an average, than five votes. Consider this when there are between 8,000 and 9,000 policemen on the force. It means an aggregate of probably 40,000 or more votes. It works after the fashion of the endless chain.

"My information is that the men who participated in this meeting were all privates or of the 'non-com' type. There were no Captains present. The police, as an organization, cannot indulge in politics. As individuals they can act as they please."

M. F. Ihmsen of the Hearst campaign management said:

"This meeting of policemen no doubt came spontaneously. Mr. Hearst's candidacy is popular with them. Mr. Hearst greatly and effectively interested himself in the three-platoon system when it was being urged in behalf of the police. For this and for other things Mr. Hearst has done in behalf of the police he has been appreciated by the members of the department."

According to the rumors, both street cleaners and firemen were represented at the meeting, but Fire Commissioner Hayes said he knew nothing of the participation of firemen. Street Cleaning Commissioner Woodbury made a similar statement on behalf of the street-cleaning employes.

STRIKERS VISIT WITTE; ARE ISOLATING MOSCOW

Besiege Telegraph Offices and Damage the Water System.

MANY MORE LINES TIED UP

Battle Between People and Troops at Kharkoff and a Large Number of Casualties—Gun Shops Raided.

MOSCOW, Oct. 24.—The strike is spreading in all directions. Yaroslav, Nizhni Novgorod, Simbirsk, Sizran, Sarotoff, Voronezh, Kharkoff, Simferopol, Ekaterinoslav, Kieff, and Smolensk are all affected.

At the Moscow and Kazan station 2,000 passengers are waiting. They are being paid by the railway administration, first and second class passengers, 50 cents daily, and third class passengers 25 cents. On the St. Petersourg line, with the exception of a train to-night which brought the Minister of Works, not a train was run to-day.

The strikers have damaged the water conduit between Moscow and Mytishtchi and some sections of Moscow are without water.

A meeting of 10,000 strikers to-day decided to prevent mail and telegraphic communication.

The strikers later began besieging the post and telegraph offices. They are determined to prevent the dispatch of all mail and telegrams, and the sending of messages is becoming very difficult.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 24.—At a meeting of 8,000 railway men in the university to-night it was decided to declare a strike on all the railways operating with St. Petersburg beginning to-morruw. It was also decided to send deputations to Prince Hilkoff, Minister of Railways, and Count Witte, demanding political reforms, including the convocation of a constitutional assembly elected by direct universal suffrage.

The meeting remained in session until the return of the deputations, the time being occupied by the delivery of speeches of the most revolutionary character.

Several more railway lines were tied up to-day. The Warsaw-Berlin line is still open, but it is feared that it is in the grip of the strikers.

St. Petersburg is threatened with a meat famine. Fortunately there is an amole supply of flour.

The employes of seven factories at Lodz struck to-day. There are now 38,000 workmen on strike there.

KHARKOFF, Oct. 24.—A conflict between troops and the people in which there were many casualties on both sides occurred here last night.

While a meeting of 20,000 citizens, students and workingmen, was in progress the cry of "The Cossacks are coming!" was raised and a panic followed. Many persons were injured in the crush.

Subsequently the crowd came in contact with a detachment of cavalry. Revolver shots were fired by some of the civilians, and small bombs were hurled among the cavalry. The troops thereupon fired two volleys with blank cartridges, and then fired with bullets.

Both sides suffered seriously. Many wounded were left on the ground when the crowd dispersed.

Strikers have since plundered the gunsmiths' stores and have armed themselves. A number of bakeries have been destroyed, and all work has been stopped at others.

Scarcity of the necessaries of life is already felt here.

RUSSIAN LOAN, $250,000,000.

It Is Said Only $40,000,000 Is to be Taken Here and in London.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cables. Copyright, 1905.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 24.—A Russian external loan of £50,000,000 ($250,000,000) has been arranged.

Part will be subscribed by British capitalists.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The Times in its City article to-morrow will say:

"Rumors regarding the forthcoming International Russian loan have been frequent of late. A story was circulated this (Tuesday) afternoon that it will be issued to-morrow. It was accompanied by particulars as to the amounts in fairly close accordance with what well-informed people think likely to prove correct, namely, that Paris will take £26,000,000, ($130,000,000,) Berlin £16,000,000, and London and New York each £4,000,000.

"The bonds, of course, will be 4 per cents., and the price mentioned is 90, but nothing is definitely known as to the terms. We recently stated that the total amount would be materially less than the sum at first talked of. We are inclined to think that no issue will be made for some days, at any rate."

New York bankers received advices yesterday that the new Russian loan had been allotted as follows: $130,000,0000 to Paris, $70,000,000 to Berlin, and $20,000,000 each to London and New York.

The New York allotment is much smaller than was considered probable when the negotiations for the loan were opened. The original plan, it appears, was to place $50,000,000 in this city, and a like amount in London.

New York bankers interested in the loan negotiations said yesterday that they had no definite information in regard to the reasons for the reduction in the New York allotment beyond the fact that the Continental bankers were desirous of taking the whole loan, and that probably for this reason their share had been made larger than had been originally planned.

The London and New York apportionment of the loan, it was stated yesterday, would be treated as one allotment. This renders it probable that the bonds sold in New York will be a good delivery in the London market, although probably not in Paris or Berlin.

OVER NIAGARA ON STILTS.

Bennett of the Hippodrome Will Attempt to Cross the Falls.

Frederick Bennett, the "Bogie Man" of "A Yankee Circus on Mars" at the Hippodrome, obtained permission last night of the mangers to attempt the feat of crossing Niagara Falls on stilts. He will make this trial on Sunday, Nov. 12, and a big delegation from the playhouse will cheer him on.

Bennett's route will be from the American shore to Goat Island. He will wear twenty-foot stilts, weighted with 180 pounds of lead to give him a firmer footing. The current at this point runs about twenty miles an hour.

"IF HE DIDN'T GET IT!"

Mr. Osborne Explains His Comment on the Foolishness of Mr. Jerome.

James W. Osborne, Democratic nominee for District Attorney, issued a statement last night explaining his speech of the night before, in which he said as to "getting it," that if District Attorney Jerome didn't get it he was a fool.

"What I really said was this," said Mr. Osborne, "that Jerome had started his investigation into the tunnel disaster where many lives were lost, and had accomplished nothing whatever, whereas a Democratic District Attorney, under similar circumstances, had all the Directors indicted and brought to trial. In the Darlington disaster, where many lives were lost, Mr. Jerome assumed the investigation of that case and nothing whatever was accomplished; whereas, a Democratic District Attorney under like circumstances brought to justice Buddensieck, the responsible person, and he was convicted and sentenced to State Prison.

"There are many other cases that I could name where Mr. Jerome had begun investigations and criminal prosecution against great corporations and had dropped the same without any excuse whatever. If a Democratic District Attorney under like circumstances had done the same people would have suspected that he had some motive for so doing, and I thought that Mr. Jerome ought to be judged by the same rule that he was either totally inefficient or else corrupt. I myself believe that he is not corrupt, only totally inefficient.

"I did not say that Mr. Jerome was a fool if he did not 'get it,' but, speaking of District Attorneys in general, I said that the District Attorney who brought criminal prosecutions against rich and powerful corporations and dropped the same without apparent reason rendered themselves liable to the suspicion that if they did not 'get it' they had the opportunity; that it was the duty of a District Attorney when he began a criminal prosecution to carry it on to the end, and that if one Grand Jury would refuse to indict a man whom he believed a criminal he should apply again and again to successive juries until the criminal was finally indicted, as I myself have done in similar cases."

Mr. Jerome had only this to say concerning the remarks of his Tammany opponent:

"Osborne's statement speaks for itself. The logic of it is plain. Poor Jim!"

Mr. Osborne's remarks caused surprise and amusement at the Jerome headquarters. Assistant District Attorney Gans remarked:

"I should say that when Mr. Osborne made that statement he must have been carried away by the exhilaration of his own tones. The only time there was any talk about money influencing the action of this office was during the Patrick case, which Mr. Osborne conducted, and we all realized then that that was calumny. It is hard to say just what Osborne could have been thinking of when he preached that doctrine last night."

Alfred Hodder, Mr. Jerome's secretary, said:

"It seems to me that when you start out to hit a man, you ought to hit him in a weak spot, not in a strong one."

Clarence J. Shearn, candidate for District Attorney on the Hearst ticket, sallied into both Jerome and Osborne last night. About Osborne he had this to say:

"I want you to understand that I am going to confine myself to arguments and a discussion of the issues and not indulge in any of the kind of twaddle and featherheadedness that Mr. Osborne got off last night."

SELIGMAN ARGUES FOR IVINS.

Jerome Is Not the Only Live Issue In This Campaign, He Says.

Isaac N. Seligman, who is one of the ardent supporters of District Attorney Jerome, and is also supporting the candidacy of William M. Ivins for Mayor, made public last night his reply to the letter of Francis Lynde Stetson, who has given as his ground for supporting Mayor McClellan the fact that the local Republican organization could not be induced by Mr. Ivins to support Mr. Jerome's candidacy for District Attorney. Mr. Seligman says:

Like you, I intend to support Mr. Jerome; but I cannot follow the reasoning in the rest of your letter. You say that the local Republican machine is untrustworthy and refused to nominate Jerome; therefore you will not support the candidacy of Mr. Ivins for Mayor. But the Tammany machine, like the Republican machine, turned down Mr. Jerome; and yet you announce your intention to support the candidate of the Tammany machine for Mayor. Your explanation is that under Mayor McClellan, who is "instinctively and usually wise and sound, Tammany government has been more endurable than I [you] suppose possible." You intend to support the Tammany candidate then, in spite of the fact that Mr. Ivins is well known to you, as he is to every New Yorker of mature age, as one of the most consistent and effective fighters for good city government we have ever had, and of such known independence of character that not even Jerome himself could surpass him in independence of machine control.

You write that "no one who knows Mr. Ivins would doubt that he possesses unusual qualifications for the office of Mayor of the City of New York, and, were he the candidate of the anti-Tammany Democracy, or were he the candidate of the Citizens' Union," you could support him. Yet every citizen of New York who has been observant of current events knows that Mr. Ivins received his nomination under circumstances which left him absolutely free of any personal or political obligation to the local Republican machine or to any other nominating body; that he will be far freer from such obligations than was Mayor Strong, for instance, or even Mayor Low; and that he is the only candidate for the Mayoralty who in his own person and record and by his express declarations embodies the platform of principles which you and scores of thousands of our fellow-citizens believe should control in the conduct of the City Government.

The issue raised by Mr. Jerome's candidacy is of vast importance, but it is not the only issue in this municipal campaign. The character, ability, and purposes of the man who exercises the enormous powers of Mayor under the city's charter are, after all, in any broad-minded and sane view of the political situation of such weighty moment to the public interests of the city as a whole that they should not be obscured in any one's mind by the character, ability, and purposes of the man who is the prosecuting officer of one of the counties within the city. Mr. Jerome should be kept in office as District Attorney of the County of New York in order to continue his fearless, able, and upright administration of that office; but Mr. Ivins should be the next Mayor of the entire City of New York to protect the public interests in every part of the city.

ELECTION BOARD DECISIONS.

Sugden and James J. Smith Will Remain on the Ballot.

In ten decisions announced yesterday by the Board of Elections in cases of protests made by the Municipal Ownership League against Assembly and Aldermanic candidates in New York County, six of them were sustained and four were not.

Among those who will remain on the ballot are Edward D. Sugden, former Detective Sergeant, who is the Republican nominee for Alderman in the Fourth District. Another is James J. Smith, Republican candidate for Alderman in the Twelfth District. Until recently, Smith was a Democrat. The other decisions are:

Frederick Meisholm, Eleventh Assembly, objection sustained; Anthony Guilotto, Fourteenth Assembly, objection sustained; George W. Corwin, Thirty-third Assembly, objection sustained; John S. McVea, Eleventh Aldermanic, objection sustained; Carl S. Brand, Fourteenth Aldermanic, objection sustained; Joseph Schloss, Twenty-first Aldermanic, objection not sustained; Max Griffenhagen, Twenty-fifth Aldermanic, not sustained; Alfred Samisch, Thirty-sixth Aldermanic, objection sustained.

DUEL IN A DINING CAR.

New Yorker In Affray with a Cook, Who Is Shot.

GREENVILLE, Penn., Oct. 24.—Daniel Potter, a cook, was probably fatally injured this afternoon as the result of a shooting affray with H. N. Smith of New York, on the dining car attached to a train on the Erie Railroad between Sharpsville and Greenville. The men fought all over the car, and the diners were compelled to dodge bullets.

When the train reached Greenville, Smith, who seemed to be under no restraint, leaped from the car and ran down the street, with police and a crowd in pursuit. He was captured, and says the shooting was in self-defense.

GERMANY WOULD DIVIDE AUSTRIA WITH RUSSIA

Proposal Designed to Prevent an Anglo-Russian Entente.

ATTEMPT APPARENTLY FAILS

Ambassadors Hardinge and Benckendorff Going Home in Order to Prepare for Negotiations.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cable. Copyright, 1905.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 24.—Sir Charles Hardinge, the British Ambassador, was received by the Emperor today in special audience before his departure on two months' leave. I understand that the audience was connected with the projected Anglo-Russian understanding.

The Ambassador's presence in London is necessitated by the preparation of pourparlers in this connection, and I learn that Count Benckendorff (the Russian Ambassador at London) is coming to St. Petersburg for a similar purpose.

With the negotiations confided to the capable hands of these Ambassadors, who have given such signal proof of an ardent desire to improve the relations of the two countries, the result can scarcely be doubted.

It is no longer a secret that Germany exerted every effort to defeat the Anglo-Russian entente. The precise nature of Germany's offers has not yet been divulged. I am informed, however, that the proposals had reference to joint action in the Baltic and the ultimate apportionment of Austria-Hungary.

SEEK RUSSIAN CONCESSIONS.

Americans Want a Share in the Post-Bellum Contracts.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 24.—Anticipating a big industrial revival in Russia as a result of the close of the war there is an influx of foreigners seeking commercial opportunities and concessions, including a liberal sprinkling of Americans.

A representative of an American syndicate has submitted elaborate plans for the projected railroad connecting Transcaucasia, Central Asia, and Tashkend with the Trans-Siberian and Tomsk lines. The road would involve the expenditure of $15,000,000. The syndicate asks the Government to guarantee the interest on the bonds and to grant mining and other concessions in the country traversed.

Robert Gross, representing American locomotive manufacturers, is looking for contracts for new equipment, of which the railroads of the empire are in urgent need.

Lewis Nixon is awaiting developments.

The Government's contracts for the electrification of the street car systems of St. Petersburg and Warsaw are about to be let. The Westinghouse people are bidding for both these contracts, and a representative of Murry Verner and Sellers McKee of Pittsburg is bidding for the former of them.

Charles R. Flint also has several projects in hand.

E. B. CHAFFEE NO BURGLAR.

He Entered Mr. and Mrs. Cross's Rooms Innocently, Jury Finds.

Without leaving their seats, a jury under Judge McMahon, in General Sessions yesterday acquitted Ernest B. Chaffee of 51 Manhattan Avenue, a salesman for the silk house of Passavant & Co. of 80 Greene Street, on a charge of burglary. He is a relative of Major Gen. Adna R. Chaffee, United States Army, and was graduated from Harvard in 1902.

Mr. Chaffee was charged with entering the apartment of Albert H. Cross, at 51 Manhattan Avenue, on the floor below his own rooms, on the night of July 16. He pleaded guilty in the Tombs Court, but he testified yesterday that he climbed up the fire escape to get into his rooms, having mislaid his key, and, as he had been drinking at the Harvard Club, became confused and got into the wrong apartment. He was held up there by Mr. Cross, whose wife had awakened him, and was turned over to the police. Chaffee stayed in the Tombs ten days awaiting bail.

Mrs. Cross appeared in court against Chaffee, but did not have to testify, as he pleaded guilty. She was at the trial yesterday, but was not called on to testify.

Chaffee was overjoyed at his acquittal, and was congratulated warmly by business and social acquaintances who heard the trial.

50 CHILEAN RIOTERS SLAIN.

Great Damage Done in Santiago—The City Now Calmer.

BUENOS AYRES, Oct. 24.—A dispatch from Santiago, Chile, says that about 50 persons were killed and 500 wounded in the rioting there yesterday.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 24.—The disturbances here caused by the opposition of the people to the import tax on Argentine cattle continued all day yesterday, and did not cease until late last night, when a small detachment of troops arrived here and a few shots were fired.

To-day more troops reached Santiago. Relative tranquillity now prevails, and the city is gradually assuming its normal condition. The banks and business houses were closed to-day.

Railroads Killed Fewer Employes and Injured More—Loss, $9,711,656.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The railroad accident statement recently issued by the Inter-State Commerce Commission covered only the last quarter of the last fiscal year. For the entire year the record follows:

Passengers killed in train accidents, 350; injured, 6,498; employes killed in train accidents, 798; injured, 7,052; killed in other than train accidents, 187 passengers and 2,463 employes, and 3,542 passengers and 38,374 employes injured. Total for all classes, 537 passengers killed; 10,040 injured; 3,261 employes killed, 45,426 injured.

This shows an increase of 117 passengers killed and 1,963 injured, a decrease of 106 employes killed and an increase of 2,160 employes injured.

There were 6,224 collisions and 5,371 derailments, with a total damage to railroad property of $9,711,656.

Truancy on the Decline.

The local School Board of District 3, which is in the heart of the lower east side, has just presented a very optimistic report to the Board of Education. The board declares that the conditions of the schools in the district are constantly improving and that truancy, one of the greatest evils of the district, is on the decline. The board urges the Board of Education to acquire a new school site at Clinton and Cherry Streets.

HARPER'S BOOK NEWS.

The Debtor

Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, whose New England tales have touched the hearts of thousands of readers in a way that few books have, in this novel draws a hero of no common sort. His chequered career is appealingly portrayed. It is a searching study of character and also a well-told tale—told in the true Mary E. Wilkins style. There is here a love story of the most alluring type, while the unusual fortunes of "The Debtor" are sure to be followed with eager interest.

The Travelling Thirds

Gertrude Atherton has written no more captivating story than this. The Moultons resolve to include Spain in their European trip, even if they have to travel third class. The warm Spanish sunshine brings about a sort of love madness among them, and what would otherwise have proved a sedate romance, flourishes in a most startling fashion. The climax is the most complete surprise of all. Altogether it is an unusually diverting story.

THE MAYOR'S DECISION.

Mayor McCLELLAN went down last evening among old friends in the Twelfth Congressional District. He addressed a crowded meeting. He expressed his pleasure in facing the constituency that had stood by him in the past and would, he was sure, stand by him now. A voice in the audience cried out: "We'll elect you Governor next year." It was a natural outbreak. It was but the echo of the voices at the City Convention, assenting to the well-known purposes of the organization and in harmony with the assumed desires and intentions of the Mayor himself. But the reply was as prompt and unhesitating and emphatic as it was unexpected: "No, gentlemen, you will not." Then followed the statement that "every year of my four years as Mayor I shall come before you to ask you to elect Democratic Assemblymen."

The only criticism to be passed on this decision is that it would have been better to announce it sooner, better not to permit Mr. LOGAN and others uncontradicted to proclaim the plan for the Governorship nomination, better, far, to accept as logical, obligatory, and necessary Mr. McCLELLAN'S side of the contract with the people of New York City to serve them in the office he sought for the full term to which he asked to be elected. We do not care to enter on surmise as to the motives that finally have induced the Mayor to reach this decision and to make it public. We have felt from the start that it would be more just to the city and more expedient for Mr. McCLELLAN publicly to put aside the Governorship. We have been convinced that, were he nominated for Governor, after having been chosen Mayor for four years, his election would, in the absence of some political revolution, have been extremely doubtful. And with the unexpected increase of the apparent sentiment for the Hearst ticket, we have been persuaded that a failure to pledge a four years' term as Mayor might affect enough conservative votes to influence the result. As it is, the Mayor's unqualified announcement has undoubtedly strengthened him.

A BACKING TO BE PROUD OF.

If any reasonably well-informed man were asked what are the qualifications a District Attorney should possess to make his re-election desirable to the public, he could not imagine a more succinct and complete statement than the following:

He has proved himself an able and successful prosecutor and an official of unswerving integrity, who has performed the duties of his high office without fear or favor and solely in the public interest.

If we ask who are the best judges of the District Attorney's possession of these qualifications, we could get no better than the leading members of the New York bar, and among those we could select no names more respected and authoritative than these who make the above statement as to Mr. JEROME:

Joseph H. Choate, William G. Choate, Joseph Larocque, John E. Parsons, Cephas Brainerd, William B. Hornblower, William N. Cohen, Edward Mitchell, Henry E. Howland, Charles E. Hughes, Robert W. De Forest, B. Aymar Sands, Paul D. Cravath, Horace Russell, Henry W. Taft, Lawrence E. Sexton, Lucien Oudin, and Charles C. Burlingham.

It is idle to pretend that any one of Mr. JEROME'S opponents has these qualifications in anything like the same degree. We all know by our own observation of the record of Mr. JEROME that he has them, and our knowledge is confirmed by the testimony of men whose knowledge is the greatest and whose opinion is the most trustworthy. Meanwhile, as our news columns show day by day, the one thing in our city election that is attracting attention throughout the country is the candidacy of Mr. JEROME. Nothing else is spoken of. And the general feeling is that the good sense, independence, the very fitness of our city for the work of self-government will be tested by the vote given to that fearless and able prosecuting officer.

THE FUTURE OF RUSSIA.

The promotion of M. WITTE is the most cheering thing that has happened for many generations, not only for Russians, but for well-wishers of the Russian Empire as the home of one-tenth or thereabout of the human race. There can no longer be any doubt about it. Whether the present rumor be true or not that the Czar has made the negotiator of the Peace of Portsmouth the head of his Ministry, with the portfolio of Finance, the Czar has made it abundantly evident that what assassination and war have left of the reactionary influence of the Grand Ducal Ring which forced on the war has been destroyed by the brilliant and unexpected success of M. WITTE in making peace. We say unexpected advisedly. Americans who have had the opportunity which the condition of being fellow-passengers across the Atlantic affords of intercourse with members of the Russian staff at Portsmouth know that those Russians were bewildered with the unexpectedness of their success. They were prepared, the Russians were, in the last resort, to give up the whole of Sakhalin. They were even prepared to pay a considerable indemnity, if it were palatably disguised as to its form. But M. WITTE saved Russia from either of these sacrifices, and succeeded in making peace on the simple basis of the "uti possidetis."

It was a very great achievement. And it is abundantly plain that the Czar appreciates its greatness. The unconfirmed rumor that WITTE is to be the Russian "Premier," in so far as that term is applicable to Russia, is less convincing than the fact that he has already been made "noble," or than the fact that Mme. WITTE has been "received" by the Czar, in a country in which a reception at Court is an unimpeachable social credential. Mme. WITTE, it is to be remembered, being the same Jewess of humble origin in reference to whom it is alleged that the Czar told her husband, when he first found it necessary to bestow office upon that husband, "Remember that you are not married."

We are just now having our attention especially called to the scandals of democracy. Surely we ought to be ashamed of them and to do our utmost to put an end to them. But they are really nothing in comparison with the scandals of autocracy—of that personal and dynastic Government of which intrigue and jobbery are the very substance. TWEED'S ring was not intrinsically more vulgar than the Grand Ducal Ring which has now been displaced. The common explanation, among well-informed Russians, of the vacillations of the Czar is that they are the results of the contrary efforts of two women, one the reactionary Empress mother, and one the progressive and liberalizing Empress Consort. It is most instructive to observe that the Empress Dowager is tired of being represented as the head and front of reaction in Russia. An evidently inspired account of her position, published in a Copenhagen journal, and republished in The London Times, sets forth that she is in favor of a much larger measure of recognition of the nationality of Finland, and of the demand of local self-government for the Finns, than the official policy of Russia has thus far sanctioned.

It is at this auspicious moment that M. WITTE enters the Russian councils as a controlling figure, armed with the prestige of his success, and with that title of nobility which is so trifling in itself, but which means so much in Russian politics. We have heretofore given our reasons for disbelieving that M. WITTE in the past has been more of a political Liberal than was necessary for a modern man of business put in charge of a very practical piece of business for Russia, in the extension of her railways. But an intelligent and open-minded man in Count WITTE'S present position and with his recent experience, simply cannot fail to become an advocate of the political liberalization and modernization of Russia. If the Czar's confidence in him continues, he has the best chance of any living Russian, perhaps of any Russian who has ever lived, of softening the inevitable transformation of his country and of aiding her "to spell Evolution without an initial R."

FINING AUTOMOBILISTS.

It is instructive to observe how the noble example of the statesmen of "up the State" from ODELL to RAINES and KRUM, in transferring the burden of the support of the Commonwealth upon the city, has fructified in suburban communities. Speed fines upon automobilists are a new and most fruitful source of revenue. The Township of Rye is probably entitled to the priority in perceiving that the holiday-making New Yorker, when held up by the representatives of the law, will in most cases prefer to pay a considerable fine than to take the trouble of proving that the fine was unjustly imposed. A fortiori would he rather pay blackmail to contribute to the personal "graft" of the enterprising constable than to be arraigned or detained at all.

Out of this indisposition of the automobilist the suburban communities are deriving handsome profits, to say nothing of the individual grafters of the constabulary. Last Sunday, for instance, it appeared in Monday's papers that there were held up by official highwaymen, meaning officials in charge of the highway, outside the city limits on Long Island, no less persons than Police Commissioner McADOO, who was in a hurry for evening service at the Garden City Cathedral; Mr. THEODORE HAVEMEYER, and our esteemed contemporary, Mr. WILLIAM R. HEARST, these latter two on the Jericho Turnpike. Since then the Commissioner and our esteemed contemporary have denied that they were on Long Island on Sunday at all. They were personated by humorous speed maniacs. Failing to arrange their affairs in a friendly way with the Deputy Sheriffs, the personator of Mr. McADOO was fined $25 for running at a speed which his constable guessed at twenty-six miles an hour; Mr. HAVEMEYER, who has not yet denied that it was he, for a speed which his estimated at thirty-five, and the personator of Mr. HEARST, whose real name may be "Raffles," for "going it," according to his guardian of the public peace, at twenty-eight. Why this discrimination? A labor leader would have pronounced that our esteemed contemporary, in his yellow automobile, was much the "easiest" of the three. And yet his representative got off, possibly by a secret sympathy with municipal ownership on the part of the Magistrate, ten dollars cheaper than the sham Commissioner or the actual "magnate."

It is plain that these fines, if they once get past the upholder of the rights of the community and holder-up of automobilists, will suffice to sustain the communal expenses of the suburban communities without asking the local agriculturist for a dollar. Of course there is danger of killing the goose that lays these golden eggs. But some automobilists will be so much pleased at finding an official record of forty miles an hour established for machines out of which they have never been able to get twenty that they will gladly pay. For the others, the example may be commended to them of Mr. RUDYARD KIPLING'S automobilist, who, being arrested by a rural constable for exceeding the permissible limit of speed, lured him into the "motor car" and swiftly wafted him seventy miles from home, where he dropped him to find his own way and institute his own reflections.

IS IT A CONSPIRACY?

Amazing charges are made in the Twenty-ninth District as to fraudulent certificates of indorsement by the Republicans of Hearst candidates. THOMAS E. RUSH, the Democratic leader in the district, submits to the Board of Elections affidavits that out of some 1,700 names attached to the certificates, all having been investigated, only four are genuine, that some 800 men had declared they did not sign their names which appear on the papers, that 167 of the men whose names are on the papers are unknown at the places of residence given, and that 39 are the names of dead men. Among the names alleged to have been forged are those of Senator DEPEW, Postmaster WILLCOX, BAYARD CUTTING, HOMER FOLKS, and others equally well known.

The outcome of the investigation that must follow will be watched with the utmost interest. If fraudulent papers of this sort have been resorted to it is a sign at once of recklessness and extreme discouragement. The facts point plainly to an understanding between the local Republican leaders and those of the Hearst faction, and it is the general talk of those engaged in "practical politics" that such an understanding exists. Its main object is to secure for Mr. ODELL the control of the next Assembly and the election of a Speaker satisfactory to him and subservient to his plans. Incidentally both parties to it seek the defeat of Mr. JEROME, whose election would be the sorest blow the boss system could possibly get in this campaign. When an agreement of this sort can be reached for such a purpose all good men and true should unite to combat it.

THE COTTON STRIKE SITUATION.

It is a curious situation when 30,000 cotton operatives refuse an advance of wages. It is all the more singular when such action follows an unsuccessful strike so recent that it would seem that its distress would still be remembered. Still that is the situation in Fall River, where the strike of 1904 is still technically on in some mills, although they are running with full forces of new operatives satisfied with their earnings. Yet now still other operatives refuse an offer of increased wages, although accompanied with a proffer of an agreement of further increase if business conditions warrant.

The cotton goods situation was just working into better conditions after prolonged depression when the operatives remarked that the price of the staple had taken such a dip that the difference between the price of the staple and the price of cloth had passed the figure at which the arbitrator had decided that an increase of 5 per cent. in the wage scale was justified. Forthwith the operatives demanded not the 5 per cent., but the restoration of the old scale, or an advance of 12½ per cent. Mr. BORDEN granted substantially this for his mills, but the other employers offered an advance of 5 per cent., accompanied with an offer of a dividend of 1 per cent. upon wages for each increase of 1 cent in the margin between the prices of cotton and of cotton cloth.

Obviously this is a profit-sharing plan, like that familiar in the coal trade. But there is this difference—there is more stability to prices in the coal trade. Suppose cotton options take a dip, would the operatives be content to have their wages drop? If not, they are demanding that the employers shall lose money, besides taking the risks of the business. Very few realize that employers, in selling ahead for future delivery goods still to be manufactured, are going short of labor. Selling short is thought to be a heinous practice of Wall Street bears alone, yet it is the commonest practice in industrial life. It is a great risk to sell large quantities of goods if the operatives are to watch the option market and demand an increase of wages weekly or monthly. Employers could not reduce wages in that manner. The entire trade would be disorganized, and there would be no stability or fair chance for making business engagements.

If the two sides could agree upon a minimum positive wage, with an agreement for both increases and decreases as the market rose or fell, it would seem that there might be peace with profit for both. The present difficulty seems to be a difference regarding the fixed sum labor should accept. Since the profit-sharing plan is not criticised, perhaps it would be accepted if the advance of 12½ per cent. were granted. For this there is some basis of argument in Mr. BORDEN'S concession. But if the employers concede an advance with the margin above 75 cents there ought to be an agreement to accept lower wages if the margin fell below 75 cents, as neither side now proposes. It is a singular sign of improved conditions in the industry when neither side thinks of a return of recent hardships, and the only disagreement is regarding the division of a very recent increment of prosperity. Each side has rejected the other's proposal, but it is possible that a strike may be averted.

Word comes that the Hearst ticket will go on the official ballot in one column, and under the emblem of the scales. The scales will do as well as another emblem, we suppose. For this campaign they will have the sinister meaning, but not the baleful potency, with which old HOMER endued them:

Jove weighs affairs of earth in dubious scales,
And the good suffers while the bad prevails.

To a man with a big head, an aureole is always a tight fit. Aureoles are made in assorted sizes, but all sizes are too small for the man whose head, like that of LOUIS QUARTOZE, or that of JOSEPH W. FOLK, has grown to proportions which make it a vital necessity for him to throw away crowns, aureoles, chaplets, and laurel wreaths, which press too closely the expanding forehead.—The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Is The Globe-Democrat really troubled about the size of Mr. FOLK'S head? Or is it still grieved that he once rejected the adaptable one of the Niedringhaus agateware brand?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Japanese Are Courteous.

It used to be the almost invariable custom, when one "civilized" nation captured the ships of another in war, for that nation to "rub it in" on the other by putting those ships into its own navy with their old names carefully retained. This was considered not only in itself a pleasing method of perpetuating the memory of a victory, but a particularly neat way of inflicting permanent pain on a neighbor, and even when friendship for a time replaced enmity as the emotional tie between the two there was as little thought of wooing forgetfulness of the past by painting out these irritating names as there was of giving back the ships themselves to their former owners. It has, indeed, been the custom in several navies, when one of the captured ships was worn out or lost in the natural course of events, to build a new one to wear the exultant title. More than one British vessel is thus named to this day, and in our service are several ships, once Spanish, that wear the old Spanish names, and therefore must be something else than a cause of satisfaction whenever they come in sight of Spanish eyes. But the Japanese, we notice, despite the avidity with which they utilize Occidental ideas, have not adopted this one in the case of the Russian vessels seized at Port Arthur and elsewhere. Every one of them has been equipped with a strictly new and strictly Japanese name, and in a year or two nobody need remember that their origin was at all different from that of the other ships in the Japanese Navy. The old custom appeals strongly to "the natural man," and there would have been no thought of criticism if the Japanese had followed it, for their excuse was certainly as good as that which any other nation ever had. But the Japanese, though so imitative, use their judgment in their imitation and are prompt to draw a line when to do so seems to be necessary or judicious. Apparently an innate sense of courtesy has led them to draw one in the matter of naming captured Russian vessels anew and inoffensively. In this, as in not a few other things, the scholars might well be teachers—teachers of international manners as something other than the laborious—and mendacious—formalities of orthodox diplomacy.

Citizens, Good and Bad.

President ROOSEVELT, like other wise men, is fond of definitions and fond of making them himself. For instance, in talking to the people of Mobile he said: "The man who is decent in his home relations, who is kind to those dependent upon him, who is a good husband, father, and son, is a good citizen." His hearers, as was to be expected, applauded this definition, but it is to be feared that after they have an opportunity to think about the words, doubts as to their accuracy and adequacy may arise. As a matter of fact, the admirable qualities listed by the President do not of themselves make a good citizen, and, to the knowledge of us all, are possessed, often in very notable measure, by men who are citizens of the worst and most dangerous sort—of a sort in comparison with which the ordinary criminal with all his brutality is, if not a pleasing spectacle, at least one to be viewed with equanimity. The fact is that at the moment the President forgot that the old formula, "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," is not mere legal verbiage and empty repetition, but a very carefully constructed and very useful definition, the product of long observation by keen minds that truth is not truth when it is not whole and unmixed. A man may be all the President demanded and yet be guilty of most crimes in the calendar except the few his definition excludes. That, perhaps, is something of an exaggeration, and a quibbling reply to it would be that a man could not be really "good" in any of the relations mentioned if he were not also "good" in all the other relations which his circumstances gave him a chance to form. The quibble, however, ignores the fact that "citizen" is itself a word of restricted meaning, and, as commonly and almost necessarily understood, refers particularly, if not only, to the individual's attitude toward his neighbors or countrymen as organized groups. So interpreted, the man described by the President might be a citizen good, bad, or indifferent, as might be determined by things entirely apart from his domestic virtues. Illustrations of this phenomenon will instantly be recalled by all who are reading the newspapers just now, and nobody will have any trouble at all in instancing men whose kindness to the members of their own families has shaken assorted civic pillars to or beyond the toppling point.

Buoys on the Great Lakes.

To string a line of buoys through the centre of each of the Great Lakes, as suggested by the American delegates to the International Waterways Commission now deliberating in Ottawa, would, indeed, be one way of marking the boundary between the United State and Canada in that part of the world, but somehow it doesn't seem to be a very pretty way, and we could wish that the suggestion had come from the other side, or rather that it had not been made at all. In the first place, this fence would be expensive to build and more expensive to maintain, and even while in place it would not be highly creditable to the courtesy, good sense, or honesty of the two neighbors whom it separated. Wouldn't it be distinctly better to make the lakes no man's water—and everybody's? Something analogous to the three-mile limit would be convenient and perhaps necessary for certain purposes of domestic police, but the lakes themselves would be much more valuable if not held as private property, and the fishing privileges could be trusted to the covenanted mercies of an intelligent and united exploitation. If interests of that kind were common instead of separate there would be no excuse for miserable little wars against the fishing boats of either country, and no petty enmities would keep up a division of peoples in all essential respects identical in character and aims. Neither Canadians nor Americans are so built that they will ever refrain from "poaching" while there is an arbitrary and absurd line inviting them to cross it, and the claim that a string of buoys would put an end to pleas of ignorance as to crossing into forbidden waters has nothing in it.

LIFE INSURANCE PROFITS.

Effect of the Steady Decline of the Earning Power of Money.

From The Insurance Press.

Stress has been placed on the fact that, although the life insurance business has prospered, as indicated by the accumulation of about $2,500,000,000 of assets, the so-called dividends on paid-up policies, that is, policies on which the holders have completed the payment of premiums (say ten, fifteen, or twenty premiums) have decreased in amounts. Some persons have the belief that the increase of assets should have been accompanied by an increase of dividends instead of a decrease.

As a matter of fact, the increase of assets has caused, to a certain extent, a decrease of dividends, the earning power of money having decreased as the amounts increased. The evidence of the decrease of the earning power of money has been a matter of common observation.

At the first convention of officials of the Insurance Departments of the States a committee reported that in 1870 the companies doing business in Massachusetts earned more than 6 per cent. interest on average gross assets.

David A. Wells, Shepard Homans, Elizur Wright, David P. Fackler, and C. F. McCay, all eminent actuaries, expressed the opinion that 6 per cent. interest would be obtainable on first-class securities for a generation to come. Six years later United States 4 per cent. bonds were selling at par. On Jan. 1, 1880, the legal rate of interest in the State of New York dropped from 7 per cent. to 6 per cent. The average rate of interest received by the life insurance companies doing business in the State from 1871 to 1897 showed a decrease of about 1½ per cent.

The investments of the life insurance companies in recent years have been approximately in the following proportions: Bonds, 40 per cent.; mortgages, 27 per cent.; real estate, 8 per cent.; stocks, 7¾ per cent.; premium notes, &c., 7 per cent.; cash, 4¾ per cent.; collateral loans, 3 per cent.; other investments, 3 per cent. It has been the policy to place the bulk of the assets in long-term investments at fair, and necessarily low, rates of interest.

The average rate of interest earned on mean invested funds by thirty life insurance companies from 1885 to 1904 inclusive, was 4.90. In that period the highest average rate was 5.47, (1887;) the lowest 4.58, (1902.) The average rate for 1900 to 1904 inclusive was 4.66.

The small margin of the interest earnings in the life insurance business over the interest charges for reserves has steadily decreased, and there has been no help for it.

One of the fundamental principles of life insurance—help one another—has been sustained during all of the period of the decrease of interest rate. Wherever the interest for old policy reserve liability at a high rate has not been provided for by earnings at that rate, the difference has been covered later by earnings at rates in excess of the rate assumed for a new policy-reserve liability. For example: If all policies issued in 1862 were on a 5 per cent. basis for reserve, and if the net interest rate of the earnings of assets at present were 4½ per cent., the amount held in reserve for the policies would be shy one-half of 1 per cent. on interest charge. By issuing new policies on a 3 per cent. basis for reserve and earning 4½ per cent., there would be 1½ per cent. to the good to cover the deficit of one-half of 1 per cent. on old policies issued on a 5 per cent. basis.

By taking from the surplus, accumulated from various sources during a long period, an amount sufficient to increase the reserve, started on a 5 per cent. basis, to an amount for a 3 per cent. basis, the earnings for old policies can be maintained, with a good margin for safety.

Necessarily, the decrease of the earning rate has caused the reduction of dividends on paid-up policies, dividends on such policies being derived only from excess interest earnings.

If the earning rate and the liability rate be equal, no dividends can be paid or credited on paid-up policies.

It might be said that, in the event of an earning rate of interest not being equal to the assumed rate for reserve liability on paid-up policies, old policy holders ought to begin again to "chip in" to keep the account good, having taken dividends from excess interest earnings in previous years.

In such an event, however, the mutuality of life insurance, carried on and guided by wisdom and experience, would take care of the deficit, helping one another being the human interest factor.

As to Press Agents.

From The Albany Argus.

Australia has a "State journalist," a newspaper man engaged at $2,000 per annum, to write boom articles on Australia for the foreign papers. Maybe this was what suggested to the President the appointment of Mr. Loeb as editor-in-chief of America.

The Baltimore American has just issued a handsome "anniversary jubilee edition" to celebrate getting into its new building at Baltimore and South Streets. The publication, which is printed upon plated paper and elaborately illustrated, serves admirably to exhibit not only The American's fine new house and its appointments, but the other new buildings which have risen in Baltimore since the fire, and in general to show how marvelously the Maryland city has sprung from its ashes.

JEROME.

His Challenge to the Bosses Rouses the Independent Voter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Let him come and take them." This was the manly reply of Leonidas to a blustering leader of ye olden times who, with insolent confidence in his might, sent to demand the Spartan arms. There lived a man. We have fallen on a time when the stairs to public office are often constructed of materials which cannot bear the strain of a man and his manhood, and yet the etepe are full of men. Men worship politically at the shrine of grafters and put their boasted independence in shackles and do not seem to know it.

That which we have come to know as a "pull" has spread its blighting influence until many in our industries believe that to be a favorite by any means is of the first importance and the performance of duty a legend of the long ago.

Who has not seen the drug of party so powerful that it stupefied ambitious people until they could not see that currying favor, stooping and creeping, were symptomatic of a lackey and not of a man?

Mr. Murphy, the owner of the Democratic vote, has challenged the manhood of the citizens of New York. His measure of their intelligence is discovered in the evidence he presents that Mr. Jerome bowed to his outfit. He indorses it as perfect. It's good enough for Murphy and we must bow also.

Mr. Jerome may lose. I pray not, but if so the lesson will be taught. Amid the parasites—there lived a man.

JEROME WAS GLAD TO ACT.

Frederick H. Cox Tells What Goddard Said About the "Al" Adams Case.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I quote from to-day's TIMES concerning the Al Adams conviction, whereon Mr. Osborne, candidate for District Attorney, is reported as saying that he is "trying to get an affidavit." Mr. Osborne is further reported as saying as follows:

"Capt. Goddard, now dead, got the evidence against Adams, but he told a friend of mine before he died that Jerome wanted to dismiss the case, and only on the threat of Capt. Goddard that he would take the case to the Governor did Jerome push the case."

If Mr. Osborne will come or send to my office, Room 1, No. 235 Broadway, I will make an affidavit on the subject desired by him. But I do not believe that the late Capt. Goddard would ever have told the matter to different persons with any material variation, and he actually told the matter materially different from Mr. Osborne's version in a talk which he made at a meeting of the Civic Club shortly after Adams was sentenced. I remember Capt. Goddard's words very clearly, partly because his talk was given upon my request or motion, and he happened to feel and express thanks to me in his talk more hearty than was usual with him, as it seemed to me, for the very small thing which I did to give him the opportunity so to tell his story of the anti-policy fight from its inception.

Upon the part of the matter to which Mr. Osborne alludes, Capt. Goddard said to the effect that, after Adams had been once tried, with the result of a disagreement of the jury, the District Attorney delayed—I do not remember how long—in moving the indictment for retrial; that, before any motion for retrial had been made, Capt. Goddard interviewed Mr. Jerome and discussed with him the probability of obtaining a conviction of Adams on retrial, and the Captain said that, after he had expressed his belief that Adams could be convicted and had shown his reasons therefor, Mr. Jerome seemed glad to direct a move for the second trial—which resulted in the conviction.

It seems to me that the usual complaint made against Mr. Jerome is that he is too willing to reattempt the indictment or conviction, as the case may be, of an accused person. Therefore, I am surprised at Mr. Osborne's claim, and the claim as to Capt. Goddard's threatening Mr. Jerome with taking the case to the Governor seems to me to be preposterous.

Outside Views of Jerome's Fight.

From The St. Louis Republic.

The country at large is exhibiting an interest in what ordinarily would be but a small municipal matter—the election of New York's District Attorney; but the interest of the country is quite natural and a most wholesome indication of general public morals.

The public is for Jerome against the field, without concerning itself as to who may be in the field, and the reason is that Jerome conspicuously stands for aggressive and fearless honesty in office. Politics as ordinarily understood does not enter into the question in the slightest degree.

From The Philadelphia Ledger.

It is not too much to say that the eyes of the country are centred to-day not on the Democratic or radical Mayoralty candidates, but on Jerome, unattached and unsupported by any party, but in actual war on all organizations. He stands for much more than Jerome; he represents the great revolt spreading all over the land against organizations and bosses and the inevitable corruption which Secretary Taft well says the must breed.

Christian or Mohammedan?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Are not the gay young scribes of the metropolis romancing somewhat over the devotions of El Hadji Abdullahi Aly Sadik Pasha, Hakel of Harar, Abyssinia? They make him pay his devotions in the approved Moslem fashion, but as most school children learn early, Abyssinia is distinguished as a Christian country, and is it not more probable that our distinguished visitor is a Coptic Christian?

The Question of Franchise Values.

Why is it that franchises are so extremely valuable when the city proposes to resume ownership and so valueless when private interests are acquiring them? DOLLAR BILLS DEFACED.

Invitations to Vote for Hearst Written on Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the last few days I have come across, in the course of business, a large number of dollar bills on the backs of which are written these words:

"For Mayor, vote for William Randolph Hearst, the friend of the plain people and the sworn enemy of graft and bossism. Put your money on Hearst."

I don't know whether Mr. Hearst's campaign bureau is responsible for this malicious defacement of Uncle Sam's money or not, but those who are ought to be severely dealt with if caught. The writing on the bills that I have seen was not in the same hand in every case, although the wording was identical—a fact which tends to show that the perpetrators of this silly and impudent boosting scheme are organized.

WHY HE IS FOR HEARST.

Has No Faith in Him, but Wants to Rebuke the Bosses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How is the independent voter to cast his ballot at the coming election? I, for instance, have always voted for good government and reform. Can I cast my vote in favor of Mayor McClellan and the machine which he represents? Not on your life. Can I vote for Mr. Ivins and the machine which he represents? That is equally impossible. Shall I throw my vote for Mayor away, and mark on my ballot only one name—that of William Travers Jerome for District Attorney? That is what I am sorely tempted to do, but such an act represents the evasion of a duty. It is a course that only a faineant can pursue.

There remains only one thing to do and that is to vote for William R. Hearst. I have no faith in Mr. Hearst. His papers are an abomination to me. I have no idea what kind of a Mayor Mr. Hearst would make. Yet I feel that he is the only candidate for the Mayoralty for whom I can vote with any show of self-respect and with any hope of getting the city out of the hands of the grafters and plunderers.

The way I see it is that he is better than "Sir Chawles" of Good Ground or the Newburg groceryman.

There are a great number of men, I find, who feel just the same way, and it looks as if Mr. Hearst, as well as receiving an enormous number of votes from the so-called "working class," will receive the ballots of the majority of the independent voters.

PRACTICING AS THEY PREACH.

A Catholic Tribute to the Nonconformist Ministers of England.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following is from a recent number of the principal Catholic newspaper in the English language, the Tablet of London:

One must give the Nonconformist his due. We are glad therefore to bring to the attention of our readers some remarkable figures quoted by the Bishop of Croydon at the Church of England Congress as to the number of Nonconformist ministers who, for the sake of example to their flocks, are total abstainers. Saying that there are many people for whom, humanly speaking, total abstinence is the only path to safety, and a path to which they must be led and not driven, the Bishop continued:

The ministers of the Nonconformist bodies seem to feel this, if we may judge by the large proportion of them who are total abstainers. Here are figures which are only some three years old:

Denomination.	Ministers.	Abstainers.
Congregationalists	2,877	2,551
Free Methodists	395	380
Presbyterian Church of England	325	247
Society of Friends	369	350

These are certainly very remarkable figures, and the Nonconformist bodies may well point to them with pride.

Every Catholic priest that knows the British climate and the consequent craving for stimulants will join in applauding the heroism of those Protestant ministers.

A CHANCE FOR CAPITAL.

An Oklahoma City That Is Anxious for a Street Railway.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Enid, Oklahoma, is willing to grant a fifty-year franchise for street railroads to any set of capitalists who will guarantee to begin work within a reasonable time, and then lay six or eight miles of track in this city.

Enid has a population of 12,000, having increased 8,000 since the last United States census was taken, in 1900, giving Enid 3,444. Railroads extend out from Enid in ten different directions, and regular trains are running on all these lines. Eight of these roads have been constructed since 1899, and Enid is the division terminal of the entire eight, having three different railroad roundhouses.

Any additional information regarding Enid will be cheerfully furnished by the Mayor, Secretary of the Commercial Club, or the editor of The Enid Daily News.

THE WANDERER.

I.

A wanderer! No sacred tie can bind
The master passion of his restless mind;
No love so strong he will not cast it by,
Another and another love to try.
Without the reverence or power to pause,
And, driven like the sea, by mystic laws,
He roams forever, nor inquires the cause.

II.

A wanderer! The utmost ends of earth
Have been his tenting grounds, yet are not worth
Revisiting. He seeks with weary pace
Oblivion, but not a resting place.
The distance ever beckons, and his lust
For sights and scenes, though tainted with disgust, Consumes him still. He plods on for he must!

III.

His pride is bitter, for he is imbued
With all the rancor of his solitude,
With all the pity, all the tenderness
Of longings that he never dare confess.
To Fate and circumstance a bonded slave,
He still must bear—whatever else he crave—
The dust of barren roadsides to the grave!

WHOLE CLASS SUSPENDED IN ACADEMY OF DESIGN

Out Two Days Now, and Will Be Kept Out Till It Confesses.

WHO PAINTED A CLEAN WALL?

Faculty Resents a Portrait in Red of Ajax Defying His Mother-in-Law, and Wants the Painter's Scalp.

So far as the male students of the painting, antique, and life classes are concerned, the National Academy of Design, at 109th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, has gone out of business, and it will remain out of business, says the School Committee, until the creator of an oil painting entitled "Ajax Defying His Mother-in-Law" is discovered. Ajax was discovered defying his mother-in-law in a panel on the dressing room wall.

Not long ago the Academy was damaged by fire. It had to be renovated from basement to roof. This work was completed only a few weeks ago when the Winter and work season began.

The bright new furniture, easels, and desks, the spotless white of the ceilings, and the drab of the walls seemed to excite the resentment of the students. Wads of chewing gum were hurled against the roof, and wet paint brushes sometimes fell on the stained floor. But Ajax and his mother-in-law proved the climax of vandalism.

The janitor of the Academy, who has watched the art school rise, Phoenixlike, from its ashes, was going through the rooms to see that all the windows were closed for the night. In the dressing room he switched on the electric light. Then the janitor, who at different times had posed as an Arab chief, the Corsair King, the village blacksmith, and other strenuous persons, staggered back in horror.

Confronting him on the wall was "Ajax Defying His Mother-in-Law." And that wall had just been painted a beautiful cream color. Both Ajax and his wife's mother were done in pristine vermilion, which added to the natural ferocity of Mrs. Ajax-in-Law and cruelly revealed the cringing attitude of the famous Gresk who feared not the lightning.

The janitor rushed up stairs to George W. Maynard, instructor of the painting class, who came down stairs to view the production. He was joined by Instructor Ward of the life class. Together they watched Ajax defy his mother-in-law. Then silently they marched out and went to Will H. Low, Chairman of the School Committee.

There were no classes held on Sunday, but the janitor painted a Sahara desert in drab over the domestic tragedy of Ajax and his mother-in-law. On Monday morning the paint had dried. Ajax and his relative were of the past, except for this notice on the bulletin board:

> Unless the name of the person who defaced the walls of the dressing room on Saturday is made known by 1 o'clock to-day, all male members of the painting class will be suspended.
> By order of the School Committee.
> WILL H. LOW.

There was a rush to the dressing room to see the famous work, the title of which had got out. But there was left only a painting of the Sahara desert in Autumn. The classes assembled as usual, but there was an ominous silence on the part of Instructor Maynard, broken occasionally by whispers which rippled through the rooms.

Amateur sleuths in the meantime were hunting clues. The vermilion and the breadth of the brush sweep seemed promising for a time, but it came out that on Saturday all of the painting class had been putting red tiles on the roof of a Spanish fonda. At 1 o'clock the mystery of "Ajax Defying His Mother-in-Law" was unsolved.

A council of war was held by the instructors and Chairman Low. At 1:15 Instructor Maynard said:

"Gentlemen, the painting class is suspended until the student who painted—who daubed the wall of the dressing room comes forward to acknowledge his guilt."

There was silence. Then one by one the suspended students filed out.

Yesterday morning this further notice was posted:

> All male students are suspended from the schools of the National Academy of Design until further notice, or until the detection of, or the voluntary acknowledgment by, the student or students responsible for the damage to the property of this Academy in the men's dressing room on Saturday.

This also was signed by Mr. Low, the Chairman of the School Committee.

"It's a shame," said one of the students last night. "That fellow, whoever he is, ought to get up and tell the committee that the Ajax was from his brush. He's a fool, for never in this world will one of his paintings get as much notice from the newspapers as this will."

DIDN'T PICK OUT SUSPECT.

Mrs. Morrill Failed to Identify Fagan as Her Assailant.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Antoinette C. Morrill, daughter of Edmund C. Converse, who was shot by a burglar in her Summer home in Greenwich on Sept. 12, went with her parents and several domestics to Police Headquarters at Bridgeport to-day in an effort to identify Charles Fagan of Bridgeport, the suspect who has been under arrest for the past week.

Mrs. Morrill picked from a score of men two policemen in civilian clothing as resembling her assailant, but failed to recognize Fagan.

James Fox, a boy neighbor of Mrs. Morrill, identified Fagan as closely resembling a man who a few days before the burglary asked him who occupied the Converse mansion.

Miss Isabella Burns, the nurse who was beaten with the butt of a revolver by the masked burglar, almost immediately pointed out Fagan as resembling the intruder in form.

Fagan is still held.

CLUBS FOR A WEDDING CRUSH.

Crowd Storms St. Louis Cathedral—Fire Menaces Gifts at Bride's Home.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—Miss Stella Marie M. Wade, daughter of Festus J. Wade, President of the Mercantile Trust Company, and Charles L. R. Scullin, youngest son of John Scullin, street railway financier, were married this morning in New Cathedral Chapel by Archbishop J. J. Glennon. Two hours before the arrival of invited guests police found it necessary to swing clubs freely to keep a throng of the curious from invading the church.

Last night while $100,000 worth of wedding presents were being unpacked at the Wade residence, fire started in the basement. Firemen promptly extinguished the flames.

TOKIO GREETS SEA VICTORS.

Reception to Togo and His Men—Bryan Meets the Admiral.

TOKIO, Oct. 24.—Tokio's reception today to Admiral Togo and the officers and men from the combined fleets was a notable affair. The weather was splendid and the public enthusiasm was unparalelled. The procession moved from the Shimbashi Railway Station to Uyeno Park along crowded streets. The air was rent with thunderous cheers.

Admiral Togo's carriage was profusely decorated with flowers, and the public feeling toward him was next in warmth only to that manifested toward the Emperor.

William J. Bryan was present at the reception in honor of Admiral Togo. The Mayor introduced Mr. Bryan to the Admiral. An exchange of cordial sentiments followed. The Admiral was delighted at the unexpected presence of Mr. Bryan.

It is learned to-day that Admiral Togo did not anchor even once in five months from the time of the big naval battle of Aug. 10, 1904, till the Russian battleship Sevastopol was torpedoed, at the end of December.

NO PRISON GRAFT, THEY SAY.

Wardens Fallon and Flynn Resent a Charge by Ivins.

Replying to William M. Ivins, the Republican Mayoralty candidate, letters were given out at Tammany Hall yesterday from Warden John J. Fallon of the Blackwell's Island Penitentiary and Warden William Flynn of the Tombs to Commissioner Francis J. Lantry, denying the charges of graft in those institutions.

Warden Fallon declared the charges to be "gross and infamous falsehoods, absolutely without any foundation of truth to sustain them."

"This prison," he wrote, "is daily open to the inspection of visitors on presentation of a pass obtained from the Commissioner's office. I defy any person, public or private, to justify the assertion made. As regards the charge of pilfering city property and material, it is a gross fabrication."

Warden Flynn's denial was as emphatic. He said he had been connected with the department for fifteen years and never had any charges preferred against him by anybody.

CABLE CHESS MATCH NOV. 11.

Contest Between Berlin and Manhattan Clubs to Begin That Day.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Dates for the cable chess match between this country and the United States were decided by the committee of the Berlin Chess Club upon the receipt last night of an urgent request from the Manhattan Chess Club. The days chosen are Nov. 11 and 12. The German team of six players will be stationed in the salon of the Landed Proprietors' Club.

Owing to the shortness of the intervening time the plan of approaching Emperor William with a request for an international trophy has been abandoned.

Chairman R. W. Ferguson of the Manhattan Chess Club said yesterday that the dates selected by the Germans would be entirely satisfactory to his club, and that the contest would be arranged accordingly.

POLICE CHIEF TO BE TRIED.

Left Middletown to Investigate Murder and Aldermen Are Angry.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Because he left the city without permission, taking with him two policemen, to investigate the Ingerick-Olney triple murder on the night of Oct. 6, the Police Committee of the Board of Aldermen of Middletown decided last night to try Chief of Police Joseph D. Brinckerdoff.

The charges are insubordination, using insulting and abusive language, and conduct unbecoming a police officer. The charge of insubordination is made because the Chief left the city on receiving the first news of the murder, and the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer arises from the fact that when the Aldermen began to reprimand him the Chief walked away.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

No date has yet been set for the wedding of Miss Daisy McClure and Dulany Howland, but it will take place before Lent, probably in February.

Announcement has been made in Tuxedo of the engagement of Miss Catharine Cossitt Dodge, daughter of Mrs. George Egleston Dodge, to John Shillito Rogers, son of Henry Pendleton Rogers. Miss Dodge is a granddaughter of the late William Earle Dodge and a cousin of Mrs. John McCullough. Her mother was Miss Mary Cossitt. She made her début a couple of years ago, and is well known in New York and Tuxedo society. Mr. Rogers's mother, before her marriage, was Miss Mary Shillito, and he is a grandson of the late John Shillito of Cincinnati. He is a Yale graduate, class of '98, and a member of the Knickerbocker and other clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Julien Ripley (Miss Helen Bell) sailed yesterday on the Kronprinz on their wedding tour, and others booked on the same ship were Peter Cooper Hewitt and Stuyvesant Le Roy, and also Mrs. George L. Peabody.

***

Mrs. Herbert S. Carpenter will give a large dinner on Nov. 6 at Sherry's for her daughter, Miss Cara Carpenter. The latter's marriage to George A. Legg will take place in November.

Guilty of Selling Pirated Songs.

Garrett J. Couchois, music publisher, 41 West Twenty-eighth Street, whose home is in Rutherford, N. J., was found guilty yesterday, in Special Sessions, of violating the trade mark law. He was remanded to the Tombs for sentence to-day. It was charged at the trial that Couchois sold thousands of copies of pirated songs.

STATUS OF FAIRBANKS WITH PRESIDENT AT SEA

Washington's Armchair Debate Turns on "Unwritten Law."

McKINLEY'S CAUTION CITED

Question of What Constitutes Inability Gets New Lease—Does a Warship Make a Difference?

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The armchair Constitutional philosophers are agitated over the question whether Vice President Fairbanks may not have opportunity to step into the White House and seize the reins of Government in the interval while the President is outside the geographical limits of the country on a warship making the run from the Gulf coast to the Virginia Capes. The entire basis for the discussion rests on the "inability clause" in the Constitution relating to the duties of the President and the powers of the Vice President.

What constitutes inability is a matter not definitely settled and full of possibilities. The burden of opinion is that the Vice President is the judge of what constitutes "inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office." That point arose when President Garfield was dying, and it seemed the opinion of lawyers that it was for Vice President Arthur to decide whether the President's illness was such as to constitute "inability," and also the moment at which his condition reached the point of disqualification.

There are many who ridicule the idea that absence from the country constitutes "inability," and point to the silence of the Constitution on the subject of absence. It is precisely because of the unsettled definition of "inability" that Presidents generally have refused to leave the country, even for a brief space.

President Arthur once sailed in the Dolphin beyond the marine league. President Cleveland went down the Chesapeake and around outside the limit to Pimlico Sound in the lighthouse tender Violet when he went duck hunting. President Roosevelt has once or twice got outside the three-mile limit in a similar way.

President McKinley was known twice to go to the limit, and just stop from going out of the country. Once was a few days before his death while he was at the Pan-American Exposition. Driving with friends he went out on the suspension bridge to view Niagara Falls, and midway ordered the carriage turned back to the American side. The matter was not discussed for the public, but it was known among his friends that the President had in mind the "unwritten law" and respected it.

A similar incident occurred when McKinley made his journey to the Pacific Coast. It had been partially arranged that he was to meet President Diaz of Mexico at El Paso, Texas, but Diaz could not make the journey to the United States. President McKinley drove out on the international bridge to the boundary and stopped. Diaz consented to visit this country last year for the St. Louis Exposition, and expected to go hunting with President Roosevelt, with the plan that President Roosevelt should return the call. This fell through from Diaz's conviction that he should not go outside his own country.

There is but one official opinion of record on the subject of the right of the President to go out of the country, and it came from President Grant. At the time Judge Alphonso Taft, father of the present Secretary of State, was Attorney General, and doubtless wrote the opinion. In 1876 the House of Representatives passed a resolution asking the President whether any executive offices, and what, had been performed at a distance from the seat of Government. There was at the time a feeling that the President was staying at Long Branch too much, and that he should remain in Washington.

President Grant replied in a message denying the authority of the House to question his right to take the office of President wherever he might choose to go. In this message he said:

"The President's civil powers are no more limited or capable of limitation as to place where they shall be exercised than are those which might be required to discharge in his capacity of Commander in Chief of the army and navy, which latter powers it is evident he might be called upon to exercise possibly even without the limits of the United States."

There accompanied the message a statement showing that every President had spent a large portion of his term of office away from the capital, and that some of the most important official acts of the various Presidents had been performed away from the seat of government.

There have been probably two occasions when the President of the United States was constructively out of the country. One was when President Cleveland attended the funeral exercises in honor of the Czar Alexander III., father of the present ruler of Russia, at the Russian Embassy in this city. The other was the official return by President Roosevelt in 1902 of the formal call of Prince Henry of Prussia at the White House, spending half an hour at the German Embassy.

In the present case some of the armchair debaters are inclined to draw a distinction on the basis of the fact that the President, while beyond the limits of the country, will be on an American warship, under the flag, instead of on a merchantman. It also is pointed out that he will be in touch by wireless telegraph with the land, and so within reach of Washington.

HOADLEY CASE ENDS TO-DAY.

Plaintiffs' Counsel Says District Attorney May Be Asked to Act.

After Justice Amend sums up to-day, the case of Franklin, Scott & Co. against Joseph H. Hoadley and Josepb Leiter will go to a jury in the Supreme Court. On the jury's verdict will depend whether or not the case is to be brought to the attention of the District Attorney. The brokers are suing to recover $65,800 which they lost while operating in International Power Company stock which they carried in the name of Cyrus Field Judson, who, the plaintiffs say, was a partner in a pool controlled by the defendants.

Yesterday Edmund L. Mooney, counsel for the plaintiffs, summed up, and told the jury that Judson was a victim of a conspiracy. He referred to the fact that Hoadley said Judson was only his agent in the many deals made.

"But I can't let it go at that," continued counsel. "It is a fine kind of finance for a man who could drop $3,000,000 a day, and representing a corporation capitalized at $7,000,000. What did Hoadley do with the $130,000 that he took from Judson's personal account? Did the money go to the International Power Company, or where did it go?"

Referring to the charge that Judson had helped Hoadley to bolster up a case, counsel said:

"This is a conspiracy, and I may as well state to you that a Grand Jury may be asked to consider the disgraceful and illegal acts of Judson and those with him."

American Control of Customs Brings Prosperity to Their Republic.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Advices received here through official channels state that the effect of the successful collection of customs duties for the past six months in San Domingo by United States officials has had a powerful influence on public sentiment in the island.

The business men are agitating the idea of adding several of their local taxes to the present system of collection. They urge that the American officials do their work so well and have so greatly increased revenues and checked smuggling and knocking down that the stamp taxes should all be placed under their control.

The stability that has followed the experiment of collection of customs by outsiders has quickened business in every line, and investors from the United States are buying lands and launching into all sorts of enterprises.

$5 FOR SEWING DOG'S EAR.

Court Approves Cutting in Half of Physician's $10 Fee.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 24.—Marshall Stearns, a New York lawyer, who is associated with Durr, Strong & Whitehead, at 50 Wall Street, was upheld to-day in his refusal to pay Dr. C. B. Keeler of New Canaan, Conn., $10 for sewing up the ear of Mr. Stearns's bulldog.

The dog was bitten in a fight with a couple of mongrels, and Dr. Keeler was called out at midnight by a friend of Mr. Stearns's, who was caring for the dog, to attend it. Mr. Stearns paid Dr. Keeler $5 and refused to pay a cent more. Mr. Stearns acted as his own counsel, and Justice Silliman returned a verdict in his favor, giving judgment for costs. Exclusive of the attorneys' fees the costs are $6.

LOST HIS JOB AT 104 YEARS.

Then Omaha Man Tried to Drown, but Was Saved.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 24.—Frank Michan, aged 104 years, attempted to commit suicide to-day by jumping into the Missouri River because he had lost his job and was unable to obtain another. The old man was fished out by a policeman and raised a disturbance because he was not permitted to die.

Michan is without friends and money. He worked around a brewery for a number of years, but was discharged a few days ago because of his age. He has been sent to the County Hospital.

PLAY'S TOUR HELD UP.

Money Gone and the Manager Is Held for Larceny.

Frank Eldridge of 213 West Thirty-fourth Street, who says he is a theatrical manager, was held for trial yesterday by Magistrate Steinert in the West Side Court on complaint of George Clarke, who was once a stage manager for Augustin Daly. Clarke charges Eldridge with larceny.

He says a "Pudd'nhead Wilson" company was unable to leave the city after $105 had been given to Eldridge to pay railroad fares to Schenectady. In Schenectady, according to the story, $800 taken in the advance sale for seats had to be returned to the purchasers.

Clarke also told Magistrate Steinert that Eldridge appropriated $50 of $150 given to him to pay for printing. Eldridge said all the money intrusted to him had been properly expended. He was released on bail.

"The Marriage of William Ashe."

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, Oct. 24.—"The Marriage of William Ashe," William A. Brady's production of the dramatization of Mrs. Humphry Ward's novel, was presented for the first time at the Academy of Music here to-night, with Miss Grace George in the rôle of Lady Kitty Ashe. The theatre was crowded. In the dramatization of Mrs. Ward's story Miss Margaret Mayo has followed the lines of the book closely.

Independents May Get This Theatre.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Oct. 24.—The New Brunswick Opera House Company was incorporated here to-day for the purpose of purchasing New Brunswick's only theatre, owned by Richard S. Shortridge, on Liberty Street. The deeds of the property will be passed on Saturday. The purchasers have not been named, but it is reported that the newly formed company will sell out to the Belasco-Fiske-Shubert combination.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

H. H. COOK BEQUEATHS MILLIONS IN CASH

Four Daughters Will Each Receive More Than $2,500,000.

LARGE GIFT TO ST. THOMAS'S

Charities, Friends, and Servants Are Remembered—Works of Art to Go to Metropolitan Museum.

Henry H. Cook, railroad man and banker, whose will was filed for probate in the Surrogates' Office yesterday, left about $100,000 in public bequests. Mr. Cook, who was 83 years old, died Oct. 10 at his home, 1 East Seventy-eighth Street. Under his will each of his four daughters will receive an income of about $15,000 a year for six years, and at the end of that period they will each receive about $2,500,000 in cash. Each is to receive $10,000 in cash in addition to other bequests, and their husbands and children have also been liberally provided for under Mr. Cook's will.

The sum of $50,000 is bequeathed to the rector and Trustees of St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, to form the Henry H. Cook Endowment Fund, on condition that the church raise a similar amount within two years after the testator's death. The sum of $20,000 is bequeathed to the Presbyterian Hospital and $5,000 to the Protestant Episcopal Mission, with $5,000 to the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church and $5,000 to St. Thomas's Church, at Bath, N. Y.

To the Home for Old Men and Aged Couples is bequeathed $2,000, and to the Metropolitan Museum of Art each of the testator's art treasures as the Museum may select for exhibition purposes.

Mr. Cook, who accumulated his fortune in railroading and banking, was known both here and abroad as an art collector who had gathered many valuable paintings and statues.

To his secretary, Charles A. Clarke, Mr. Cook bequeathed $2,000 and the use of the house in which Mr. Clarke resides in Brooklyn rent free. Samuel Ray, Mr. Cook's coachman, also receives $2,000, and each of the other servants, seven in number, receives $100. Eva Thomson, who is described as "the family friend," receives $3,000 under the will.

To his daughter Georgie Bruce, wife of Carlos M. De Heredia, Mr. Cook bequeaths his country seat, Wheatleigh, at Stockbridge, Mass. Mrs. De Heredia is also to receive the house which Mr. Cook was building at 973 Fifth Avenue, and the stable at 103 East Seventy-seventh Street, with all the horses and carriages.

A country house at Tarrytown which Mr. Cook was building for another daughter, Mariana, wife of Clinton D. MacDougal, is to be completed by the executors and then turned over to Mrs. MacDougal. She is also to receive all the silver which Mr. Cook inherited from his father. Various works of art are bequeathed to the remaining two daughters, Marie Louise, widow of M. Rumsey Miller, and Sarah McCay, widow of Charles F. Ganaon.

The executors and trustees, Elihu Root and the testator's son-in-law, Carlos M. De Heredia, are directed to complete the building of the rectory of St. Thomas's Church at Bath, N. Y. The executors are empowered to sell the Cook home at 1 East Seventy-eighth Street in case they are unable to rent it.

Mr. Cook retired from business many years ago. He constructed the branch of the Erie Railroad running from Binghamton to Corning, projected the Buffalo, New York and Corning Road, was President of the Bank of Bath for several years, a Director in the Van Norden Trust Company, Director of the National Bank of North America, Trustee of the American Surety Company, and several other corporations.

From Europe.

Among the arrivals on the North German liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, in yesterday from Bremen, were Prof. H. V. Hilprecht of the University of Pennsylvania, Herr von Humbracht, the new German Minister to Cuba; Mrs. Claus Spreckels and Miss Spreckels, Arturo Vigna, the Metropolitan Opera House conductor; Edward M. C. Tower, Dr. and Mrs. L. L. McArthur, and Col. James P. Donahue.

EX-CONSUL HUGHES SUES.

Again Asks $50,000 Damages for Injuries Caused by a Runaway.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Oct. 24.—Joseph B. Hughes, who was Consul to Birmingham, England, under President Cleveland, began in the United States Court here to-day his second suit for $50,000 against Felix M. Warburg of New York, asking that amount for injuries he received in a runaway accident at Seabright in June, 1902, when he contends, his horse was frightened by an automobile driven by Mr. Warburg. Mr. Hughes got a verdict for $12,000 in his first suit, but the defendant appealed and the verdict was set aside.

Mr. Hughes says he has made two trips to Europe and spent thousands of dollars in a vain effort to cure himself of nervousness caused by the runaway.

DR. J. HOWARD TAYLOR DEAD.

Nerve Specialist Was Brother of Bayard Taylor the Poet.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Dr. J. Howard Taylor, a specialist on nervous diseases, died at his home here to-day of senile debility, eighty years old. He fell on the sidewalk several weeks ago and never fully recovered from the shock.

Dr. Taylor had been identified with the Bureau of Health for half a century and was at one time the Chief Medical Inspector. He was a brother of Bayard Taylor, the poet and traveler, and was prominent in Masonry, having been a Past Master of Lodge No. 51.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Ex-Senator Coffey's Wife Dead.

Mrs. Mary E. Coffey, wife of ex-Senator Michael J. Coffey, died yesterday at her home, 42 Fourth Place, Brooklyn. She was a daughter of James Coleman, and was born in Manhattan. Mrs. Coffey was actively identified with the charities of the Church of St. Mary Star of the Sea, and was one of the organizers of the Immaculate Conception Day Nursery. She is survived by her husband, two sons, and three daughters.

Obituary Notes.

Gen. JONATHAN A. HILL, well known in the tanning and leather industry of Pennsylvania, died suddenly at his home in Towanda yesterday. He served in the civil war as Colonel of the Eleventh Maine Regiment, losing his right arm at the battle of Deep Bottom, was brevetted Major General at the close of the war, and served as President of a military commission at Richmond, Va.

A Noted Picture Collector Dead.

ROME, Oct. 24.—Father Marcello Massarenti, who sold his famous art collection to Henry Walters of Baltimore, died last night at the age of 88. He lived in the Vatican, where he was a characteristic figure. Father Massarenti helped Pope Pius IX. in his flight to Gaeta when Rome was proclaimed a republic under Mazzini and Garibaldi.

De Forest System Helped Him.

BAN ON PROFESSIONAL COACH

Football Now Makes High Scholarship Impossible, Says Professor.

OLIVET, Mich., Oct. 24.—"The professional coach must go," declared Prof. W. D. Seaman of De Pauw University in a discussion at the college conference today preceding the inauguration of Ellsworth Gage Lancaster as President of Olivet College. "The teams should be the guests of the institutions they visit. I am convinced that football at present makes high scholarship impossible."

"Physical training and the work of the physical director of the student body," said President Joseph W. Mauck of Hillsdale College, "must be placed ahead of that of the coach. I believe that if the faculties would withdrawn from the control of athletics and allow the students to govern themselves there would be a higher moral standard."

PHYSICIANS VIEW SITE FOR CONSUMPTIVE CAMP

City Delegation Delighted with Shawangunk Mountain.

BIG DAIRY FARM PLANNED

It Will Supply Municipal Institutions—Country Folk Greet Dr. Darlington's Guests.

Special to The New York Times.

OTISVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Dr. Thomas Darlington, Commissioner of the New York Board of Health, arrived here this afternoon on a special train, bringing with him many physicians of New York, representatives of the Advisory Board of his department; a committee of the National Society for the Study of Tuberculosis, and a delegation from the Society for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor.

Twenty-seven carriages were at the Erie station to meet the visitors, who were welcomed by many villagers, chiefly old men. Uncle Isaac Youmans, 84 years old, gave up a day of fine October hunting to see the arrival of the special train. Close at his side was Hiram Jones, a chum of equal age. The train was on time, but for fear that it might be an hour or two ahead of time, because it was a special, the venerable sightseers had been sitting on the platform since dinner time.

Most everybody else within a radius of ten miles was there to see the doctors come from New York. They knew that neighboring communities had refused to give their assent to the establishment anywhere near them of a tuberculosis camp, and they were proud of the fact that they were prepared to dare the danger of a consumptive colony on Shawangunk Mountain.

The physicians from New York entered the carriages and carry-alls waiting for them. Among the doctors in the party were:

A. Jacobi, George F. Shrady, William E. Studdiford, Livingston Farrand, William S. Gardner, William S. Cherry, Francis J. Quinlan, Charles F. Roberts, C. Johnstone Imperatori, C. T. Graham Rogers, W. K. Simpson, H. Du Bois Goelchins, John B. Manning, Joseph H. Raymond, De Witt J. Seligman, James A. Uttiler, Arthur J. Weil, E. J. Richardson, Charles S. Benedict, Henry F. Koesler, L. Emmett Holt, Walter F. Chapell, A. Blauvelt, A. H. Doty, W. R. Townsend, Herman R. Briggs, Joseph D. Bryant, and S. A. Knopp.

Ezikahel Smith, who had driven twelve miles to help the party to go to the top of the mountain, kept shouting aloud that he wanted for his passenger Mayor McClellan. When he found that the Mayor was not there he started driving homeward, remarking as he left the party that he had served under "Little Mac, the greatest General of the war," and that he much regretted that his son, the Mayor, had failed to come.

At the top of the mountain Dr. Herman M. Biggs, standing on top of a stone fence, explained that it was planned to have the patients camp there in the Summer time and in the plateau below in the Winter, where they would be sheltered from the winds, but have the full benefit of all the sunlight. He said it was fortunate that previous sites desired had not been acquired, as it had driven the Health Department to select the best of all. He said that the stone fences about the land would be used for building the foundations of the hospital houses to be used in addition to the twenty farm houses acquired by purchase.

Drs. Jacobi and Shrady looked over the water sources and declared that they were splendid.

Dr. Darlington was delighted with the approval of the other physicians of the site on which he holds options from the farmers. As far as one can see there are rolling hills. On the property contracted for the cattle and the chickens will belong to the city.

Dr. Darlington said that soon after the property was paid for, these cattle and chickens, augmented by others, would not only supply the fruit, vegetables, milk, and eggs necessary for the contemplated 400 patients, but also for the city institutions.

The party returned to New York City on a special train in the evening.

DOCK LEASED PRIVATELY.

Controller Grout Objects, but His Protest is Voted Down.

Controller Grout and Dock Commissioner Featherson had a dispute at yesterday's meeting of the Sinking Fund Commission, and the Commissioner came out ahead. Featherson reported two weeks ago that he had leased to O'Brien Brothers of 54 South Street a dock in the Wallabout section, with a dumping privilege. The term was for five years at $1,500. He also recommended a renewal privilege for five years at 15 per cent. advance. The Controller suggested there should be no such rentals by private agreement.

Mr. Featherson said the price agreed upon was more than four times the rental hitherto paid. Alderman McCall and the Mayor voted with Mr. Featherson.

NEW MUSICAL SHOW AT THE MAJESTIC

Pretty Girls and Pretty Music in "Wonderland."

A HORSE THAT LAUGHS

Mechanical Comedian Makes the Biggest Hit of the Night—A Novel Ensemble Number.

Julian Mitchell's "Wonderland," which was seen for the first time at the Majestic last night, is not different enough from its thousand and one predecessors to justify the name, but, if in no way wonderful, it is in many respects just the sort of show to please those gladsome and light-hearted souls whose whole idea of enjoyment is centred in pretty girls, wearing pretty costumes, and singing pretty songs, to the tinkling accompaniment of pretty music. It is in fact a very elaborate sort of vaudeville entertainment with many changes of scene to keep the interest up, and enough variety to satisfy many tastes.

Once upon a time "Wonderland" was known as "Alice and the Eight Princesses," with a book by Glen MacDonough, founded on a fairy tale by the Brothers Grimm. But that time has passed. What remains is just the slenderest sort of a thread upon which to hang the specialties. There need be no regret. What is left of the book is enough, unless the remainder was of a far different quality, which there seems reason to doubt.

Victor Herbert provides the music, and if it seldom equals his better work it is never quite down to the level which usually prevails in this class of score. There is a highly spirited march to end the first act, the full effect of which is impaired by the fact that it is employed as an accompaniment for a singer whose voice is not strong enough to stand the strain. A most agreeable number is the "Nature Chorus," sung by a dozen or more girls who, in the guise of schoolgirls, recite their lessons, poke fun at the teachers, and indulge in the various pranks incident to a classroom. This number won repeated encores and deserved them. The idea is quaint, and the "business," the grouping, and the entire general effect distinctly original.

Aimee Angeles, as heretofore, danced and sang her way into favor, introducing several of her capital imitations, and winning much applause for a song, "Joggraphy," which enabled her to ring in popular hits on various cities. But the success of the night was scored by two unnamed actors who represented respectively the front and hind legs of a horse. This animal, one of those artificial affairs whose actions are regulated by strings in his interior operated by human tenants, literally gave everybody else in the show the horse laugh. He, or it, or they—as the case may be—was distinctly funny. Which only goes to show, after all, that we might have more humor at times if our actors' personalities were less emphatically projected.

All the others showed their faces, and mugged and strained and labored, but with hardly a suggestion of real fun. Once in a while Eva Davenport was amusing, but there was something too much of her, as there was of Mr. Chip, Mr. Barry, and Mr. Fay. But each of these men had a good specialty. Mr. Chip, for instance, burlesques a foreign gymnast very amusingly, and the two others did a grotesque song and dance that was clever of its kind.

DAILY RAIDS ON POOLROOM.

Capt. Cruse Usually Finds It Empty and a Crowd Outside.

Police Captain Cruse made his fourth visit to an alleged poolroom in East 108th Street yesterday afternoon. He arrived with a patrol wagon and a dozen policemen, and as on the occasion of his previous visits a large crowd was there to witness the result of the investigation. The police had some difficulty in dispersing the crowd, but the investigation was barren of results; the place contained nothing but three chairs. Capt. Cruse declared that he would repeat the performance to-day and on each succeeding day until assured that the poolroom has gone out of business.

The place was raided by Capt. Cruse last week and Harry Jacobs and Francis McManus, the alleged proprietors, were arrested. They were arraigned on Friday and released on bail. Capt. Cruse says he received information that operations were in full swing in the poolroom on Saturday. He went there with several of his men and tried to get in, but ammonia had been sprinkled over the floors and stairways, and the fumes drove the raiders back.

On that occasion a large crowd assembled and obstructed traffic. The crowd was dispersed, and the Police Captain announced that he would try again on Monday.

He kept his promise. With the patrol wagon and a dozen policemen he went to the place, blanketed his horses, and formed a cordon around all possible exits. The alleged poolroom is in a small two-story brick building, and the only entrance is through a cigar store.

A crowd bigger than any on the previous days was there. They saw the Captain and his men march up the stairs and down again. The place was empty. But the crowd had to be driven away as usual, while a storekeeper next door complained bitterly that the police were interfering with his business.

This same performance was enacted yesterday, and Capt. Cruse says it is going to be a continuous performance until he sees a good reason for raising the siege.

WOMAN ATTACKED AT HOME.

A Neighbor Finds Her Lying Unconscious on Front Porch.

CALDWELL, N. J., Oct. 24.—Miss Ella Price, who lives with her brother, Winfield Price, of Cedar Grove, was found unconscious on the front porch of her home this afternoon with bruises on her throat made by a man for whom the police are looking. Miss Price was alone at home when she was attacked. She has been in a hysterical state since.

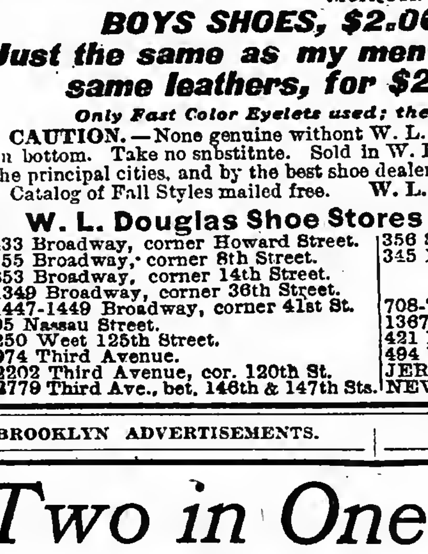
W. L. DOUGLAS
THE BEST $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN



W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

$10,000 REWARD to anyone who can disprove this statement.

W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes have by their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities, achieved the largest sale of any $3.50 shoe in the world. They are just as good as those that cost you $5 to $7—the only difference is the price. If I could take you into my factory at Brockton, Mass., the largest in the world under one roof making men's fine shoes, and show you the infinite care with which every pair of Douglas shoes is made, you would realize why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the best shoes produced anywhere.

If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes, you would understand why Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day.

AS GOOD AS $7.00 TO $8.00 CUSTOM SHOES.

"I have worn the W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoe for the past twelve years. Find them to be just as comfortable, more stylish and wear just as long as custom made shoes that cost me $7.00 to $8.00." MARTIN KELLY, 103 E. 113th Street.

BOYS SHOES, $2.00 AND $1.75. Just the same as my men's $3.50 shoes, the same leathers, for $2.00 and $1.75.

Only Fast Color Eyelets used; they will not wear brassy.

CAUTION.—None genuine without W. L. Douglas name and price stamped on bottom. Take no substitute. Sold in W. L. Douglas exclusive shoe stores in the principal cities, and by the best shoe dealers everywhere.

SIDNEY C. LOVE WINS AMAGANSETT STAKES

Warm Favorite Easily First for Jamaica Feature Event.

SUNRAY WINNER AT LONG ODDS

Outsider, Backed at 30 to 1, Captures Selling Mile and a Sixteenth—Four Favorites Beaten.

Selling-class horses had the biggest part of the programme at the Jamaica track yesterday, four events of the six on the card, including the stake feature, being with selling conditions, while a fifth race, for maiden fillies, was of about the same grade. Popular favorites were beaten in four of the six events, and the two post choices that won both were at short prices, Sidney C. Love, first in tha Amagansett Stakes, starting at a shade better than even money, and Leonora W., winner of the selling sprint for two-year-olds, starting at 6 to 5.

Sidney C. Love's race, at a mile and a sixteenth, was the real triumph of the day for the betting men, for while there was diversity of opinion that caused several of Leonora W.'s opponents to be backed to beat her, the tip on Sidney C. Love was so well distributed that the crowd generally looked no further, but left it to the form followers and handicappers to back the others in the Amagansett Stakes. Six horses ran, four of them with apprentice allowance, Sidney C. Love being one of the four.

The start was made with Sidney C. Love first away, but Wiley, who rode him, promptly took him up, and permitted Monet, the second choice, to go on in the lead, the favorite galloping under restraint in second place for seven furlongs, with Jennie McCabe and Gamara alternating second and third to the head of the stretch. There Sidney C. Love moved after Monet, and found tha pacemaker still full of running and with a good turn of speed left, for Love had to be hustled hard to the last furlong pole before he got up. Once abreast of Monet, Sidney C. Love had the stakes secure, and galloped out the remainder of the distance, winning in clever style by a length, with Monet second and Gamara third. Louis H., which practically was left at the post, went on after the field with nearly half a furlong to make up, and closed so much ground that he fought out for third place with Gamara, after running a race which caused bettors to speculate as to how he might have run had he got away with his field.

Leonora W., bought at private sale from W. Gall, ran for the first time in the colors of M. L. Hayman, and showed to be a lot the best of the eleven that ran in the selling five and a half furlongs. Ridden by Sewell, she went to the front in the first few strides, and raced in the lead all the way, attended for nearly half a mile by Cassandra, which the favorite shook off at the head of the stretch. Leonora W. then galloped in alone.

The longest chance winner of the day turned up in the second event, for which fifteen horses ran, Goldsmith starting favorite. This was at a mile and a sixteenth, and in the run to the stand after the start, Sunray, backed from 30 to 1 down to 15 to 1, went out and took the track, and held his place in the lead to the end, winning by a head, hard ridden, from Wyeth.

Another long chance, Water Dog, from the stable of Sydney Paget, starting at 15 to 1 in the opening race, a handicap for two-year-olds, managed to get home first by a very short head in the best finish of the day, Water Dog having to jam his way between two horses in the last furlong to get up. Inquisitor, Lancastrian, and Hector were the best-backed horses in that order for the race, and Water Dog squeezed his way between them at the finish after Hector had made the running into the last furlong, Water Dog, under the whip, then winning by a head, with Inquisitor second.

In the selling mile and a quarter, Hippocrates made all the running and won, ridden out, hips before the post favorite, Mabel Richardson. In the last race twelve maiden fillies, two years old, ran, with Usury the favorite. Usury and Duenna raced in front in that order into the stretch, where both quit, Meddling Daisy, which closed from seventh place, then bursting out of the crowd and winning easily.

TURF CONGRESS LIFTS BARS.

Outlawed Horsemen Reinstated to Help New Orleans Meeting.

The first move by the Western Turf Congress against the American Turf Association, preliminary to the expected race track fight in New Orleans the coming Winter, was annonnced at the Jamaica race course yesterday by George C. Bennett of the Turf Congress, who stated that the congress had reinstated a number of the prominent men who last Winter were outlawed by that body for engaging in racing on the City Park track at New Orleans, controlled by the American Turf Association, and racing in opposition to the Fair Grounds meeting, under the control of the Turf Congress.

Among the men reinstated are P. H. McCarren, M. L. Hayman, T. D. Sullivan, W. H. Snyder, James Arthur, and Charles Ellison, all of whom sent horses to the City Park track to race in defiance of the congress rule, which classed City Park as an outlaw course. Bennett, who is a Memphis bookmaker, is a stockholder in the Memphis track and in the Fair Grounds course at New Orleans and otherwise is interested with John Condon, the controlling spirit of the Turf Congress, in the fight on the American Turf Association, in which Ed Corrigan is the chief individual.

A big part of the turf quarrel is in the personal enmity existing between Condon and Corrigan, and the reinstatement of the owners of important stables of the East that last Winter sided with Corrigan has for its purpose the recruiting of strength for the congress. The Turf Congress track wants good horses for the Winter meeting, but it is a matter to be decided still whether the men who have been restored to favor by the Congress will accept the action and go over to the Condon track, in opposition to the Corrigan racing.

UNITED HUNTS' CHASES.

Good Cross-Country Racing in Prospect at Morris Park To-day.

The second day's programme of the United Hunts Racing Association at Morris Park will be decided this afternoon, with six events on the card, in all of which amateur riders from the various hunt clubs will ride. Four of the races are for steeplechasers and two are on the flat, one being confined to horses that have run and been placed in steeplechases under the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association rules.

The success of the opening day of the meeting last Saturday was such that even better things are expected for to-day and Saturday, when the meeting will close. The fashionable patronage and the attendance of the hunting and riding element from the country clubs made up the most important part of the crowd on Saturday, but a larger public patronage as anticipated as the result of the excellent sport on the opening day, and the officers of the United Hunts Association are convinced that the meeting has been established as a permanent thing.

The entries for the races this afternoon follow:

FIRST RACE.—Galloway Scurry, for three-year-olds and upward, special weights, penalties, and allowances; about five furlongs.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

Jockey "Willie" Davis, retained for the stable trained by A. J. Joyner, had his first winning mount in a long time, mixed in with a lot of misfortune, yesterday, when he rode Water Dog in the first race. Before the event he was called up by the Stewards and lectured severely for his ride on Ormonde's Right, when that horse was beaten in the last race Monday, that following what Trainer Joyner had to say on the same subject. At the post, on Water Dog, Davis got the promise of suspension for the remainder of the meeting for failure to obey the starter's orders, and when the field went away Davis was in a humor to take it out on anything handy. Water Dog was convenient for the purpose, and when Davis went at him with the whip he laid it on to the best of his ability. Davis usually is not partial to riding into close quarters, but he was in a temper to ignore risks at the time and whipping Water Dog through the last half mile he kept that surprised horse going and jammed him through between two horses at tha finish to win on the post by a head. The suspension in his case was made for a week on the starter's recommendation.

The inquiry into the identity of the horse Snow King and into his ownership was completed yesterday by the Stewards of the Jamaica meeting, and as it was established that the horse is the property of T. J. Craighead, a Hot Springs, Ark., man, who is in good standing, the order suspending Snow King's entries was revoked.

Sunray, winner at long odds at the Jamaica track yesterday, was a "good thing" that has been long in preparation. The filly, running now as the property of the Grassland Stable, and trained by P. M. Burch, is one that a year ago at Jamaica won her maiden race for E. R. Thomas, and that had not showed anything like a good race since. The good race was there, however, and the filly was backed to win in a large sum by the stable and stable connections.

The apprentice jockeys and lightweights were conspicuous once more at the Jamaica course yesterday, when three of the six winners were ridden by apprentices, Wiley, Sewell, and Meyers, and two more winners by lightweight boys just out of their apprenticeship, Miller and Notter.

When Water Dog won at Jamaica yesterday, the race made sixty one winners that Trainer A. J. Joyner has sent to the post this season from the stable under his care. Last year Joyner's record was sixty-two races won by the several owners whose horses he handles, and just now he is keenly eager to tie or beat his record of last season.

HARD FOOTBALL WORK FOR LEADING ELEVENS

Seek to Remedy Weaknesses Apparent in Recent Games.

HARVARD MAKES CHANGES

Knowlton Back in His Old Place at Tackle—Yale After New Strength—Columbia's Secret Practice.

There was hard practice at all the big universities yesterday in preparation for Saturday's games, and in several instances important changes in the personnel of the teams. The first move was made at Harvard to strengthen the right side of the Crimson line, of which complaint has been made almost from the start of tha season. Dan Knowlton was placed at right tackle, and appears likely to remain there. Burr was again tried at guard, where he may get a chance on account of his kicking. The other changes were rather to give tha regular men a rest than of any real significance.

Yale tried Turner at tackle instead of Bigelow, who was severely scored for his poor play in the Pennsylvania State game, and put Gillis at centre instead of Flanders. In the opinion of good judges there is no great likelihood of either change being permanent.

Columbia worked behind closed doors. Here, too, changes in the line-up are said to be imminent, though any hint of their nature is a carefully guarded secret. It is believed Escheverria will be given another chance at full back and Fisher moved to half, as was done in tha second half of the Amherst game, provided Carter is not allowed to play.

Princeton made changes also, but only to replace Brashear at end because of his incapacitation. The only real question regarding the make-up of the Tigers seems to be whether Dillon or Tenney will play quarter, and which of the half backs, if either, Simons shall displace.

Secret practice was again tha order yesterday at American League Park in preparation for the Princeton game. The Columbia coaches are working hard with the eleven to make a creditable showing against the Tigers. Yesterday the play was mostly hard scrimmage practice. Tha eleven did not show up any too well.

There is much speculation as to how tha team will line up in the back field. In the Amherst contest Escheverria was sent in at full back and Fisher went to half back. On defensive play this combination worked fairly well, but it did not have much chance to show its ability on the offense.

Those who have been watching the practice of the men in secret are uncommunicative as to what has been done. Several new formations are being perfected to be sprung on tha Tigers on Saturday.

Princeton had no let-up yesterday. Main attention was paid to the attack, the defense being virtually neglected. Every effort centred in advancing the ball. Tha squad showed more snap than on the previous day. After pushing the weak scrub about the field for an hour, considerable time was devoted to kicking practice. Bard kicked splendidly for the first team and averaged nearly 45 yards on his punts, while Tenney did almost as well for the scrub. Fryer and Tooker filled the end positions, as Brasher is on the injured list with a broken nose. They got down the field well, but Fryer proved to be erratic in tackling.

Moscrip seems to have recovered from the injury to his knee, and was in the game again at full back. Herring at right tackle will strengthen the line considerably. He is getting into condition fast and, undoubtedly, will hold his old position against Columbia on Saturday.

A change was made to strengthen the defense, Dillon and Rafferty being transposed.

The Yale eleven was kept at defensive work most of the time yesterday, as the coaches are not over-confident of the line's ability to hold the West Point attack on Saturday. The scrubs scored on the 'Varsity and were kept in possession of the ball long enough to drill the veterane in the Army's style of attack. The secret practice opened with an offensive drill by the 'Varsity, who had no trouble in scoring a touch-down. Roome, Morse, and Levine composed the back field, while Andrews and Hockenberger were tried at guard. Cates played left end all the half. In the line-up for signal drill, Cates and Congden took the ends, Forbes and Turner the tackles, Andrews and Tripp the guards, Gillis centre, Hutchinson quarter back, Wylie and Morse half back, Levine full back. Brink Thorne, the '95 half back, joined the Yale coaches yesterday.

The West Point cadets practiced yesterday, but no regulars played. The 'Varsity ran through signals on another field. All were out but one, Johnson, the "pleba" from Oregon, getting his first trial. He may play on Saturday. The line-up between the second and third teams was fierce, neither side scoring. Ellis made long gains around the end, but could not get across the goal line. Hanlon was in the practice, having made up his deficiency in studies. To-day the first team will be given a hard practice game, and after that the men will be saved until Saturday.

Harvard's practice yesterday showed a decided improvement. The offense was especially good, the men getting well together and playing a really high-class article of football. Several shifts were made. Dan Knowlton, all-America tackle in 1903, was back in his old position at right tackla. Brill was given a rest, and his place taken by Spear. Burr, the star freshman punter, was at left guard, and in the absence of O'Brien, the freshman end, who has broken his nose, Whitman and Hurd played left end. Grant played at right, and in place of MacDonald.

Cornell took a day off yesterday. Half a dozen of the regulars were absent, including Costello, Thompson, Rice, and Halliday. An irregular 'Varsity eleven was given a long scrimmage. After a lot of hard work they scored a touch-down upon the scrubs and were then put on the defensive on the five-yard line. Birmingham played half back in brilliant fashion, but he is still under a low scholarship ban.

The Carlisle Indians played a hard game in the mud yesterday. Coach Woodruff, when asked as to their chances against Pennsylvania on Saturday, said that he expected them to give the Quakers a hard tussle. He coached the redskins again on fundamentals with the idea of keeping down the chances of fumbling. The scrimmage work was short, but ferocious. Mount Pleasant was out again, showing marked improvement in his kicking. Wahoos also returned to the field and seemed in fine fettle.

After being reported as about to enter a half dozen institutions and play football, former Capt. Tom Thorp of Columbia yesterday turned up at Ithaca, where he is making arrangements looking toward his admission to the Sibley School of Mechanical Engineering. He visited Percy Field and watched the work of tha Cornell eleven interestedly. He would say nothing as to whether he intends to remain at Ithaca long enough to qualify under the Cornell eligibility code for the team.

There seems to be no diminution in the casualties that have been hovering over tha University of Pennsylvania football warriors this season. Tha third broken leg of the season happened yesterday during the scrimmage work between the 'Varsity and scrub elevens. Takarki, the plucky little Japanese of the scrub team, who has been working faithfully to learn the American intercollegiate game, was the victim of this accident, and has now joined his fellow-playmates, Weede and Hollenback, in the hospital, who have suffered the same mishaps. Fortunately Takarki's fracture is one where the tibia of the lower limb near the ankle is injured, and it is thought will not be so serious as his college mates. Strange to say, all three injured legs have been left ones, and tha three victims played left end for their respective teams. This position seems to be the hoodoo at Franklin Field.

In the practice yesterday the two 'Varsity teams ran signals for a half hour. The spirit displayed in this work shatters all rumors that the team is about to slump. The helping and handling of the ball was excellent, as every one seemed to know just what he was to do in each play. Following the signal drill the 'Varsity, after a two days' rest since Saturday's game with Brown, lined up against tha scrub for a short scrimmage. Here the team worked like a machine.

PILGRIMS BEAT OLD PENN.

English Football Players Score Ten Goals to Nothing.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Sir Charles Kirkpatrick's Pilgrim team of Association football players met an eleven of past and present University of Pennsylvania players to-day on Franklin Field and scored a most decisive victory. At the end of ninety minutes of play the score stood 10 goals to nothing in favor of the Englishmen. A crowd of 5,000 persons, mostly devotees of the intercollegiate football game, were in the north and south stands, eager to note a comparison between the Red and Blue team and the British players. It was a hypercritical crowd, too, as it evidently looked upon the imported game as an invader. The student body of Pennsylvania, which completely filled two sections of the south stand, were derisive in their cheering. This was not aimed at the visitors, but at the sorry showing of Penn's team. Indeed, the Englishmen gave a grand exhibition of the "socker" game, when it is considered the handicap they were carrying.

In the first few minutes of play the Pennsylvania players proved that they were woefully lacking in team work, a branch of the game in which the Englishmen are well nigh perfect. As a result, the visitors could not extend themselves, and at time, to use a nautical expression, were working "under one bell." Only twice during the game was the English goal threatened, while ten times was the leather sphere kicked across the Red and Blue goal line.

Sidney Thayer, who guarded Pennsylvania's goal, seemed to misjudge the kicks, and was utterly unable to defend the coveted line. As a result, when the ball had been dribbled near the Quakers' line, scoring was comparatively easy. The line-up:

Pilgrims, 10.	Position.	Pennsylvania, 0.
Sir Charles Kirkpatrick	Goal	St. Clair
Milne	Right full back	S. Thayer
Walmsley	Left half back	Cassell
Storey	Right half back	Graham
Nuttall	Centre half back	James
Barnsdale	Left half back	Sheppard
Raine	Right outside	Orton
Fletcher	Right inside	Eglen
Woodward	Centre full back	W. Thayer

Goals—Woodward, (4,) Bryning, (3,) Milne, Fletcher, and one on a Pennsylvania fluke. Referee—P. Bishop, Haverford School. Linesmen—C. A. Murray for Pilgrims, P. Leroy for Pennsylvania. Time of halves—Forty-five minutes.

BOYS WILL DROP FOOTBALL.

Students of St. John's Military School Say It Is Rough and Demoralizing.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 24.—The students of St. John's Military School in the adjacent Town of Manlius have decided to abandon football matches at the close of this season, owing to "professionalism, roughness, and demoralizing influences" of the game as played at present. The decision is the first move in an effort to bring about a revolution in the methods of playing the game. Copies of the following resolutions adopted by the students have been sent to many preparatory schools and medical papers, with a letter asking co-operation in the movement:

Resolved, That we, the students of St. John's School at Manlius, drop the game of football after playing out the season, except among ourselves on our own grounds.

"That football as it is now played is more for colleges than for preparatory schools.

"That professionalism and fake scholarships are largely responsible for the unnecessary roughness, slugging, and demoralizing influences of another noble game.

"That we endorse President Roosevelt's efforts to cleanse the game."

Col. William Verbeck, principal of the school, has sent a letter to President Roosevelt and other prominent men of the country asking their co-operation in the movement, and believes that the preparatory schools will establish a sentiment against ruffianism in football which will have an influence on the colleges.

AFTER HOCKEY HONORS.

Columbia Hopes to Take Away Championship from Harvard Team.

Preparations are already under way for the starting of play in the Intercollegiate Hockey League. At Columbia, where the promise is exceptionally good for a strong team this year, it is planned to begin work early and to sift down the available material as quickly as possible to develop concerted team play. With the nucleus of the strongest seven they have had in years the Blue and White are confident that they will be able to displace Harvard from her proud position at the head of the college organizations.

It is proposed to try the experiment of flooding a portion of South Field and developing there an ice pond which will be available for constant practice. If the weather proves cold enough to admit of its successful culmination tha plan ought to result in greatly increased efficiency in the seven. Manager Spence has evolved the idea, and has it in charge.

Harvard last year, by her third consecutive victory in the championship contests, carried off the trophy. This year a new cup is offered, which will have to be won three times to be held permanently. Columbia is anxious to start with the first leg, and to this end is eager to leave nothing undone that may bring success.

The Harvard team has lost three of last year's men, while Yale is weakened by two graduations. It is said that some of the Yale players are deficient in scholarship as well. Columbia finished next to these teams, and has five of the regular players back, and two men who are equal to the players lost by graduation. No fears are entertained of either Brown or Princeton.

NO CHALLENGE THIS YEAR.

But Sir Thomas Lipton Announces Intention to Try Again for Cup.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Sir Thomas Lipton to-day set at rest the stories that he might be a challenger for the America's Cup this year, by declaring he would not make another attempt to lift the cup until 1907.

When asked if he had given up the idea of making further efforts to take the trophy back to England he said that he was as keen as ever to win it, and would certainly make another try, but he declared it was too late to consider the question this year. If all went well in the meantime, however, he said that he would again appear at Sandy Hook with a new challenger in the Fall of 1907.

TRI-CITY GOLF MEET.

Boston, Philadelphia, and New York Will Play for Trophy This Week.

A number of golfers who will compete in the tri-city team matches on Friday and Saturday are practicing on the links of the Garden City Golf Club, where the matches will be played. On Friday New York and Philadelphia will meet, and the winning team will play the Bostonians in tha final contest on Saturday. Each match will be thirty-six holes, divided into individual eighteen-hole play in the morning and an eighteen-hole foursome in the afternoon. Walter J. Travis, who will captain the metropolitan team, said yesterday that he had great hopes of victory.

Hart Accepts $15,000 Offer to Fight.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 24.—Marvin Hart, the champion heavyweight pugilist, to-day accepted the offer of tha Colma Club of San Francisco for a match with Al Kauffman. The club's offer, made through "Billy" Roche, calls for an unlimited-round fight for a purse of $15,000. The offer is contingent on Kauffman's winning Friday night over Jack O'Brien in San Francisco.

MOTOR BOAT OWNERS TO FORM NEW CLUB

E. R. Thomas Anxious to See National Organization Perfected.

HEADQUARTERS ON HUDSON

Over Fifty Members Already Secured—Will Meet To-night to Plan Active Campaign Next Year.

A number of motor boat owners and others interested in the practical development of the industry for sport and pleasure will meet this evening at the Hotel Manhattan for the purpose of discussing plans to form a National motor boat club. Tha need for such a club has been long felt. Last year a number of the neighboring yacht clubs added motor boat races to their regular schedules and, to a smaller extent, it was repeated this season. But the motor boat races held under the auspices of tha yacht clubs, while furnishing good sport in a few cases, have contributed neither to the interest in nor to the advancement of motor boating as had been expected.

The number of motor boat owners in both the Automobile Club and the various yacht clubs is relatively so small in comparison with tha total club memberships tha the sport cannot fail to occupy an inferior position.

Ever since the motor boat carnival in September held by the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, the need of a representative club that will gather in one fold all active motor boat owners and lovers of the sport has been seriously felt. The meeting to-night will be the direct outcome of a number of discussions upon the subject. Many of the local yacht clubs will be represented among those who are anxious to see a lively, hustling motor club organized and one that will at the same time be recognized both here and abroad as America's National club.

It is quite probable that the organization will be known as the Motor Boat Club of America. E. R. Thomas, owner of the 150 horse power Dixie, the fastest motor boat of the year on this side of the Atlantic, has shown his interest in the new club by consenting to become one of its charter members, and he has offered several valuable suggestions that will be discussed to-night. Over fifty members have already been obtained, and it is confidently expected that with this permanent organization, the club will begin its existence with fully 100 members. A Board of Directors or Trustees will be chosen to-night, so that the necessary articles of incorporation may be filed as soon as possible at Albany. Those who have consented to become members are:

Edward R. Thomas, Charles L. Seabury, Henry R. Sutphen, George J. Vestner, F. P. Prial, F. W. Belknap, Andre Massenat, Seymour Oppenheimer, M. D.; Samuel S. Thornton, Richard H. Stearns, A. D. Proctor Smith, James Craig, Jr., Louie Annin Ames, Jacob Siegel, Louis Neumann, M. D.; Albert E. Eldredge, H. L. Aldrich, J. A. H. Dressel, John H. Norris, Charles Francis, H. A. Lozier, Jr., Emil Heuel, M. D.; A. de Magnin, George Gillig, William H. Williams, Jr., J. G. Fraser, J. W. S. Harding, Jr., Charles M. Riedell, H. H. Brautigam, Joseph Devantery, W. McMaster Mills, Charles P. Tower, George E. Shaw, John D. Roach, Walter J. Hewlett, M. W. Houck, George H. Terry, Frederick M. Crossett, J. Burt Green, Charles L. Doit, C. M. Hamilton, Clinton R. Mabley, J. S. Bunting, J. J. Amory, and H. N. Whittlesey.

Plans are already being laid, subject to official action, to secure permanent club quarters on the Hudson River. This will be a thoroughly up-to-date clubhouse, equipped with all facilities for storing and taking care of motor craft. Lectures upon technical topics and subjects of more general interest will be given occasionally during the year. Negotiations will also be opened with foreign motor boat clubs for the purpose of arranging one or more international events.

No American boat was sent abroad this season to compete for the Harmsworth Cup, which was raced for in France. An English boat won, and tha race will be held in English waters next season.

"America will have a boat in the race next year," said one of the leaders in the new organization yesterday, "and there is a strong possibility that two boats will be sent across the water. The International trophy offered by the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers last month has also stimulated interest abroad, and the officers have received letters from three or four prominent motor boat owners in Great Britain asking for information regarding next year's race. It is more than likely that some of the best boats on the other side will be seen in American waters next season."

EASTERN LEAGUE'S NEW CHIEF

Harry L. Taylor of Buffalo Succeeds P. T. Powers as President.

Patrick T. Powers, who for twelve years was the presiding genius of the Eastern League of Professional Baseball Clubs, resigned his position as President at a meeting of the club owners at the Imperial Hotel, Broadway and Thirty-second Street, yesterday, and Harry L. Taylor of the Buffalo Club, this year's champions of the league, was unanimously elected in his place. The retirement of Mr. Powers was the result of a combination of dissatisfied managers, aided by ex-President Griffiths of the Jersey City Club, who at the annual meeting of the league last year petitioned that Mr. Powers should resign. The old warhorse did not want to retire under fire and beat his opponents, but seeing that his deposition was inevitable, he concluded some time ago to resign, and so apprised the club owners.

The new President of the league, Harry L. Taylor is a graduate of Cornell University, and at present is one of the Trustees. He is thoroughly versed in all the departments of the game, and ranked high as a first baseman during his career on the diamond in the minor leagues.

VANDERBILT HORSES BEATEN.

Chicago Judges Awarded Prizes to Jordan and Moore Entries.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—In the second day of the Chicago Horse Show there was close competition in several of the leading classes. The horses of Reginald Vanderbilt were beaten in both of the important harness classes. Eben D. Jordan's crack Boston pair, Kittie Gray and Norina, took the blue ribbon for pairs of park horses shown to phaeton over Fancy and Folly, the Vanderbilt pair receiving the red, while third place was accorded to Herald, the Vanderbilt entry in the road class. James H. Moore won both blue and red with King John and Baldy.

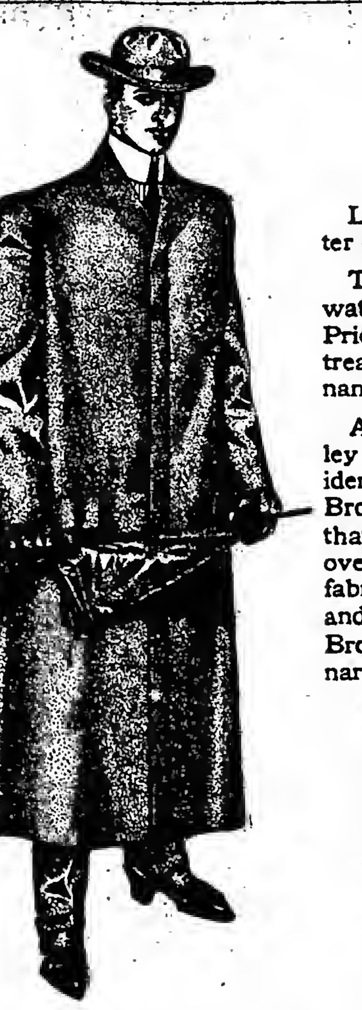
E. D. Jordan was especially prominent in the lists of winners, and was commended upon his excellent show string. The prizes awarded in the leading classes were:

Trotters, Breeding Class, stallions three years old or over, shown in hand.—First prize $150, Lawrence Jones's Guy Fortune; second prize $75, Willowdale Farm's Crosswill; third, Dr. C. Cann's Glenbrook.

Harness Ponies, shown before appropriate vehicle.—First prize $50, E. B. Jordan's Lady Ecclas; second prize $25, Mrs. Charles E. Foss's Montgomery George; third prize $10, Mrs. Charles Bunn's Lady.

Harness Horses, suitable for road work to gig or dog cart.—First prize $150, James Hobart Moore's King John; second prize $50, James Hobart Moore's Baldy; third prize $25, Reginald Vanderbilt's Herald.

Harness Horses, pair of park horses, shown before T cart, phaeton, and like vehicles.—First prize $150, E. D. Jordan's Kittie Gray and Norina; second prize $50, Reginald Vanderbilt's Fancy and Folly.



Vogel Brothers Cravenette Overcoats.

Let us set you straight on the matter of Cravenette overcoats.

The most successful process for waterproofing a garment is that of Priestley's, and every Cravenette treated to their process bears their name.

And when in addition to the Priestley Cravenette stamp an overcoat is identified with the label of Vogel Brothers, the combination is one that insures not only a waterproof overcoat, but also an overcoat of fine fabric, with all the knacks of fashion and style that distinguish a Vogel Brothers' Cravenette from the ordinary sort.

At $15—Loose, 52-inch long Cravenettes, in oxford gray worsted, like cut alongside.

At $20—Cravenettes in Scotch plaid fabrics, fancy cheviots and oxford gray worsteds in greatcoat and belted back models.

At $25—The fashionable gray tones, light and dark shades of worsted in long overcoats and the swagger paddock and paletot models. A custom tailor could not promise as much for $40.

NO GENERAL STRIKE.

Teamsters' Council Decides Not to Order One at Present.

No general sympathetic strike in support of the truckmen who are on strike for the closed shop against Thomas Orr of 332 Twenty-first Street is to be ordered at present. This announcement was made last night after a meeting of the joint council of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, held at Eighteenth Street and Eighth Avenue.

Michael Rogan, representing the Building Material Handlers, made this statement for the committee:

"The council decided to indorse the strike and to assist the strikers in any way possible. Strikes will be ordered individually against members of the New York Team Owners' Association who assist Thomas Orr. There will be no general strike at present. We have reason to believe that the strike will be settled this week."

The new drivers employed at Orr's stables in place of the strikers had a hard time yesterday in getting to the piers with their trucks. Mr. Orr took out a truck himself. His destination was the Troy Line pier. As soon as he neared the pier a crowd of strike sympathizers gathered about, threatening him. Trucks were driven so as to bar his path.

On finally reaching the pier he had to do most of the unloading himself, the freight handlers refusing to work. He had just as hard a time getting back. In the afternoon the strikers caused an hour's blockade at the Erie pier, Duane and West Streets, by cutting the traces of a truck driven by a strike breaker.

THROAT CUT ON HIS DOORSTEP

Carleton Macy's Cook Attacked in Far Rockaway—No Arrest.

Jennie Anderson, a cook in the home of Carleton Macy in Central Avenue, Far Rockaway, went into the yard to get some kindling wood Monday morning. An hour or so later the waitress found the cook lying unconscious at the foot of the steps. She had been beaten senseless and an attempt was made to cut her throat.

She suffered from a concussion of the brain and a slash across the throat. She said that when she went into the yard a man she did not know hit her on the head. She did not know her throat was cut.

Nothing was stolen, though the door was open almost an hour. The woman declared that no one had cause for personally attacking her.

LIVELY POOLROOM RAID.

Factory Workers Screamed at Sound of Hammer and Axe.

Capt. Hodgins of the Mercer Street Police Station and Detectives McGee, Farley, and Fitzgerald raided an alleged poolroom on the second floor of a five-story building in East Tenth Street, near Broadway yesterday afternoon. The raiders used a sledge hammer, a crowbar, and three axes, and the blows of the attacking party were accompanied by the frightened screams and shouts of a hundred or more men and women employes of factories on the three upper floors of the building.

Hodgins and his men beat down three doors and forced their way into a room in which about 125 men were congregated. There were two telephones in the place, and, the police say, a quantity of racing sheets. The names and addresses of all in the room were taken, and three men were arrested on a charge of running a poolroom.

JOSEPH STANFORD HURT.

Cousin of the Late Californian Seriously Injured in a Runaway.

Joseph Stanford of East Orange, a cousin of the late Leland Stanford of California, lies in the J. Hood Wright Hospital with a fractured skull. With William Eedy Mr. Stanford was out driving yesterday, when the horse took fright at 138th Street and Edgecomb Avenue and 138th Street and Edgecombe Avenue and of the light runabout struck that of a heavy truck, and both men were thrown out.

Eedy was not so badly injured as his companion, although he received a number of bad bruises. He, too, was taken to the hospital.

W. S. HANCOCK HELD.

Jury Decides General's Nephew Was Accessory to Girl's Death.

Special to The New York Times.

HYATTSVILLE, Md., Oct. 24.—The jury of inquest into the death of Emma Smallwood, a maid employed by the family of Col. Hancock, brother of the late Gen. Hancock, held Winfield Scott Hancock and his sister, Mrs. Amanda Mackall, as accessories to her death.

DELIRIUM TREMENS VERDICT.

Railroad Must Pay $5,000 for Death of Injured Truckman.

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Leary, whose husband, Arthur O'Leary, died in the Bellevue Hospital of delirium tremens, recovered a verdict of $5,000 yesterday from the New York Central Railroad Company, which she sued in the Supreme Court, alleging that O'Leary's death was indirectly due to negligence on the part of the railroad company.

Mrs. O'Leary asserted that in October, 1904, her husband, who was a truckman, was injured at the Thirtieth Street freight depot. She alleged that both his legs were broken by a packing box thrown upon O'Leary by one of the company's employes. O'Leary was taken to Bellevue Hospital and there developed delirium tremens, dying twelve days later. Counsel for the plaintiff contended that delirium tremens would not have developed had it not been for the accident.

"CURFEW ARRESTS" STOP.

Last Woman Taken to the Tenderloin Station on Sunday Set Free.

Annie Webber, who was arrested on Sunday night by Policeman Willemse of the Tenderloin as a vagrant because he saw her frequently on the street, and whose case was adjourned yesterday in Jefferson Market Court for a hearing, yesterday was discharged for lack of evidence.

The policeman said he had seen the woman almost every night for two years, and that complaints about her had been received at his station, but he could not swear that she did not have lawful means of supporting herself. Detective Brooke, who was called by Willemse, was unable to swear that the woman had no legal way of earning a livelihood.

Arrests of women on the vagrancy charge in the Tenderloin have suddenly ceased.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular; Call Money Rates, 4½@3 Per Cent.

Market After Early Strength Loses Ground at Close — Russian Loan Situation.

Money rates eased again yesterday, and it was to this development that the stock market owed the firmness displayed by it during the morning session when London was selling stocks freely here. There were numerous advances in this period, but there was lacking the vigor which characterized recent upward movements, and prices were rather irregular. In the afternoon this irregularity became more pronounced, and a sharp selling movement at the close sufficed to cancel earlier gains generally and to substitute for them fractional losses. The late selling represented apparently only a continuation of the profit taking of the previous day, and while comprehensive was at no time urgent. There appeared to be some genuine liquidation in the shares of the Rock Island Company, which were heavily traded in at declining prices. The preferred stock, which is very closely held, lost 1¾ points, and the common stock slightly less than a point. So far as could be learned, this selling was for speculative account and based on analyses of the company's recent report, which figure earnings on the common shares at less than a half of 1 per cent. The stocks of the coal roads were strong, and in the afternoon their strength offset in part the effects of the declines elsewhere. Delaware and Hudson, Jersey Central, and Reading scored gains in this market, while in Philadelphia Lehigh Valley shares rose to new high-record figures. Advances were also made by several of the low-priced railroad issues and by the industrial shares led by Pressed Steel Car, hitherto prominent in the trading, but at the end of the day losses predominated.

Announcement of the terms of the long-pending Russian loan discloses the interesting fact that forecasts of the American participation were overdrawn. Of the total of $210,000,000, which is less also that had been expected, London and New York are to take $20,000,000 each, while Berlin takes $70,000,000 and Paris $130,000,000. Perhaps the most important point in the flotation, from this market's point of view, is the success which it is understood has attended the effort of the French bankers to devise a plan to prevent unloading of other holdings on the Paris market. While this lacks official confirmation, banking information yesterday was that the London and New York participations, which will be treated as one subscription, will not be good deliveries in the French market, where only the French participation will be listed. This inhibition also applies to the German allotment, and in turn only this allotment will be deliverable on the Berlin Boerse. Thus New York and London will have to confine their sales to their own markets, and there seems little doubt that the bonds taken by investors here in any offering will, like many of the Japanese securities, soon find their way to the London market. It would be possible to construe this restriction, if this turns out to be what yesterday's private dispatches indicate, as distrust in the issue by the French bankers or as a disinclination to draw too heavily on their accumulations in the present uncertain money market. The second reason, added to a natural unwillingness to make a market for other participators' bonds and present heavy French holdings of Russian securities, undoubtedly explains the matter. Bearing on the money position the optimistic utterances yesterday of the President of the Imperial Bank of Berlin are of much interest, and explain the easier feeling abroad. Exchange advanced again yesterday, while the banks once more gained heavily in their transactions with the Sub-Treasury.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—The anthracite stocks were again the prominent local leaders. Reading and Lehigh Valley established new high records, while Lehigh Navigation Trust certificates advanced from 112 to 113½ and closed even higher—113¾ bid.

The latter's unassented stock sold only at 110, but closed with 111¾ bid. New York was again a large buyer of Lehigh Valley, and, as has been customary of late, the buying was credited to the First National Bank interests. The stock's extreme advance this week so far has been 4¾ points, which is equivalent to 9½ per cent. in New York, the par value of the shares being $50. Allegheny Valley preferred was up 1½ points, Catawissa second preferred 1, Keystone Telephone preferred 15, and Thirteenth and Fifteenth Streets Passenger 1.

The threatened suit against the United Gas Improvement management on the charges of having fraudulently diverted the $3,000,000 of preferred stock of the Equitable Illuminating Company, the concern which operates the city gas works for the United Gas Improvement Company, did not have much effect upon the latter's stock. Bonds were a little more active and firm.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Money was in good demand in the market to-day and supplies were somewhat curtailed by yesterday's Treasury bills payment. Discounts were harder. Yesterday's relapse in Paris exchange called attention to the uncertainties of the future, and bill brokers were very cautious.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was dull. There was little doing beyond arranging the mining account and preparing for the general carry over. Consols and home rails were slightly easier in the absence of support.

Americans opened steady, afterward became quiet and irregular, and occasionally easier on profit taking, but the undertone was good. They rallied on New York support and closed below the best quotations of the day.

Foreigners were fairly firm. Japanese were supported. Russians were rather firm.

Japanese Imperial 6s of 1905 were quoted at 101⅞.

Bar silver steady at 28⅞d per ounce.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 27.95; Lisbon, 5.50.

The amount of bullion taken into the Bank of England on balance to-day was £114,000.

CORN PRODUCTS CO.'S INCOME

Its Net Receipts for the Last Six Months $150,277.

The statement of the Corn Products Company for the half year ended Aug. 31 was made public yesterday. It shows that in the half year the company received as dividends and profits from its subsidiary companies $183,586, from which was deducted $33,308 for management and other expenses, leaving a net income of $150,277.

The report does not include the operations of the New York Glucose Company for the reason that the books of that company do not close for audit until the end of the calendar year. The profit and loss account of the other two subsidiary companies, the Glucose Sugar Refining Company and the National Starch Company shows that the net profits of those two companies for the six months were $288,955, out of which the Corn Products Company is entitled to $285,967.

These two companies had on Aug. 31 a surplus of $1,760,921, the interest of the Corn Products Company in this surplus being $1,754,656.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—The local money market is slightly easier. The usual table of rates, &c., follows:

Call loans, 5@5½ per cent.; time loans, collateral, 4¾@5 per cent.; time loans, mercantile paper, 4¾@5¼ per cent.; Clearing House loans, 5 per cent.; New York funds at par. Clearings, $29,923,156; balances, $2,219,423; Sub-Treasury debit, $109,730.

There was considerable selling throughout the copper list in the early trading, but prices were well maintained. Local stocks are inclined to follow the trend of the New York market, but on weak spots this market gets dull, and any strength or activity in the New York market is quickly followed by advancing prices locally.

The feature to-day was Centennial, which advanced two points to 34¼. The general market closed strong and in good tone.

Houston & Texas Central First Mortgage Bonds.

Notice of Bonds Drawn for Payment.

The Houston & Texas Central Railroad Company, having in its possession cash proceeds from sales of lands covered by Trust Indenture between Frederic P. Olcott, the Central Trust Company of New York, and the Southern Pacific Company, dated April 1, 1890, which are applicable to the purchase of the Houston & Texas Central Railroad Company's first Mortgage Bonds, secured by such Indenture to an amount sufficient at the price limited in said Trust Indenture to purchase and retire 250 of such bonds, and, it having been found that such bonds cannot be purchased at or below 110 per centum of the par value thereof and accrued interest thereon, there have been drawn by lot, under the provisions of such Trust Indenture, bonds secured thereby bearing the distinguishing numbers hereinafter stated, to be paid for out of such proceeds of such land sales at the said rate of 110 per centum of the par value thereof, and accrued interest thereon.

The distinguishing numbers of the bonds so drawn are as follows, viz.:

The Precious Metals In Copper Ores

The SAN LUIS MINING COMPANY is producing copper in constantly increasing quantities and the gold and silver in the ores pays the entire cost of production. The copper is a by product and costs nothing. With the exception of the George A. Treadwell Mining Company there is no other large copper producer in the world of which this can be said.

The importance of this precious metal product is easy to be seen. The present dear copper market is sure to be followed by a period of cheap copper. Many producers are now making copper at a cost of twelve cents a pound. They can sell it at seventeen cents at a good profit and pay handsome dividends, but when copper falls to ten or eleven cents, they will have to draw on their surplus or put up their shutters to escape bankruptcy.

The SAN LUIS can make money and pay dividends whatever the price of copper may be. It can give away its copper without puting up its shutters.

There is no investment that pays so well to-day as a copper investment, but in making your choice among the coppers, take the one that has enough gold and silver in its ores to pay the cost of production so that the copper is ALL profit.

To provide funds to increase its equipment and open new mines so as to vastly increase its production and its profits, the SAN LUIS MINING COMPANY is offering for sale the balance of its Treasury stock. Experienced and successful investors believe it to be the best investment on the market to-day.

Prices will be quoted on application.

62½% More Yield

per acre than the U. S. average, 65% more value, are the government figures on Idaho's seven leading crops—wheat, oats, barley, rye, corn, flax, and potatoes. A fruitful country for farmers is a profitable field for investors who seek employment for their capital at good rates of interest combined with substantial and ample security. Fruitful fields bring rich returns where the demand always exceeds the supply, wherein both labor and capital get large profits in the Idaho region. Exact information on request.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The methods of a very successful circus follower, whose stock in trade was a bag of watchchains and whose equipment consisted of a folding table and a shrewd knowledge of human nature, are brought vividly to mind by the way in which professional pools operating in special stocks pretend to keep faith with those who act upon their gratuitous tips. They make good their promises one after another in a seemingly philanthropic manner. All that the follower needs is faith. The original predictions naturally are received with general distrust, but they are made good, and then, for the benefit of those who were too skeptical in the first instance to come in, fresh promises are given. These are likewise redeemed, and so on progressively until a following has been attracted on which the pool can unload. It was to the same weakness of human nature that the circus follower aforesaid appealed so successfully. His business was with the rural patrons of the show. In the presence of a group of these country people he would spread out his table, display upon it his stock, and begin with the fakir's usual harangue. Then he would offer one kind of chain for 50 cents. Of these he would sell perhaps two or three, or at the most five, and promptly buy them back for $1 each. Then he would offer a little better chain for $1, and sell twice as many, and these he would buy back for $2 each. Advancing to chains of the two-dollar brand, he would sell still more of those, and buy them back for $4 each, or possibly for $5 each, according to the temper of the crowd. The reader anticipates the sequel. In the end a lot of chains are unloaded on the people at $10 each and the table folds up. The buyers of the ten-dollar chains have no redress.

Every recent professionally conducted movement in stock market "specialties" has been advertised beforehand. The trader, on arriving at his broker's office a little before 10 o'clock, hears what stocks are to be put up during the day, and is told just how much he may expect to make—1 point, 2 points, or possibly 3 points. It seems that all he needs to do to make money is to act on these tips. He disbelieves in them at first, but they are made good day after day, and finally, unless he is inordinately suspicious, he becomes credulous. All bull markets have these tipping phases. It is a phase that often marks the culmination, at least temporarily, of an advance in the general list. Sometimes, of course, it is transitory. It is almost invariably indicative of a highly professional speculation. Experienced traders follow these tips, too, depending upon their agility to get their profits before the pool makes its turn. Traders of this class are under no delusions concerning that phase of a market. They cease to inquire about conditions or general influences. They ask in the morning what the "pea stocks" are going to be for that day, and if they like the selections they play them.

There is nothing philanthropic about stock market manipulation. An original following is permitted to make money because the interest is thereby multiplied.

* * *

The general market clearly showed the effects yesterday of the heavy selling which had been done on Monday's bulge in prices. Its tone in the main was reactionary. Such declines as occurred, however, were, with few exceptions, unimportant—no more than were to have reasonably been expected after so strong a market on Monday. A reaction of some kind almost invariably follows a strong and active Monday market.

* * *

For the expedients to which the bull crowd resorted in order to keep the market moving there is an expressive English term—donkey whacking. Something was kept active all the time. Thus interest shifted abruptly from Pennsylvania, Norfolk and Western, and Chesapeake and Ohio to Southern Pacific, then to Kansas City Southern preferred, then to American Smelting, then to Ontario and Western, then to Reading, and lastly to Brooklyn Rapid Transit. The list could be made longer. Shortly after 2 o'clock Reading suddenly developed unusual activity and advanced on very aggressive buying to 125¼. This movement subsided, and in the last 20 minutes Brooklyn Rapid Transit advanced sharply on excited trading, transactions appearing on the tape in such blocks as one of 1,600 shares, another of 2,200, and another of 2,700 shares in rapid succession. The general market continued to sag and some of the principal issues, notably Union Pacific and Steel common, closed at the lowest quotations of the day.

* * *

The weakness of the Rock Island issues, which has been commented upon before, became a matter of general interest yesterday, when the heavy selling of the common stock and a break of 2 points in the preferred on small transactions exercised for a time an unfavorable influence was given to several ridiculous ru- No member of the Moore crowd being present to make explanations, if any were required, the Street was at liberty to interpret the matter as it pleased, and credence was given to several ridiculous rumors. One of these referred to a possible reduction in the preferred stock dividend and another foretold the retirement of Mr. Leeds from the affairs of the company. It cannot be supposed that Mr. Leeds's retirement would affect the market position of Rock Island securities. He is the least active member of the Moore crowd. The Rock Island collateral trust 4s declined ½ per cent., to 82⅝.

* * *

There has been for a long time a stale bull account in Rock Island common. The most plausible explanation of the recent weakness is that some tired speculative holders have been letting go and that professional traders, seeing this liquidation, have been selling the stock short. There was a good deal of short selling yesterday. The stock has been disappointing to nearly all who have touched it in a speculative way in the last eighteen months. The insiders bulled it last year to the level of 35, and then apparently left it to take care of itself. The Western crowd got up a bull pool and tried to carry the movement further, but its campaign was abortive. Since then various operators have tried to bull it with no success. The Moore crowd has shown a preference all through the bull market for bullish other people's stocks. As an organization it was very active on the bull side last year, its operations covering nearly the whole active list, and again in the early part of this year it turned over a big line of stocks at a tremendous profit. The only misleading prediction on the market which the speculative leader of the Moore crowd is known to have made in the last eighteen months was that Rock Island common would sell at 40.

* * *

A campaign in low-priced stocks which does not embrace the low-priced railroad issues is unconvincing from the point of view of the average observer. It is a contradiction for the cheap industrial stocks to advance while the low-priced railroad list is either featureless or distinctly heavy. Many brokers believe that a broad and active market could be made in the low-priced railroad stocks, but there seems to be no initiative in that quarter. Perhaps the reason is that it is easier to bid up the industrial stocks owing to the manner in which they are held. Because the low-priced railroad stocks are so much more widely distributed, a sustained campaign in them would appeal more to the general public.

* * *

The prominence of the issue of municipal ownership in the political campaign has had no effect so far upon the stocks of public service corporations. In the traction list Brooklyn Rapid Transit has been a prominent feature of the bull side of the market for several weeks. Other traction stocks have been simply dull. Consolidated Gas has been heavy, but there is very little speculative interest in it at the present time. The stock had a considerable decline from above 200 before the municipal campaign began. Brooklyn Union Gas advanced 2⅜ per cent. yesterday. That is purely an investment stock. The quotation was made on a transaction in only 100 shares.

* * *

It is expected that the Norfolk and Western dividend will be increased. Well-informed persons are not looking forward confidently to an increase of the Chesapeake and Ohio dividend. The strength of Pennsylvania stock recently has been based partly upon the prospect of a larger return from the company's holdings of Norfolk and Western. Baltimore and Ohio, however, which is also a "Pennsylvania stock," has not reflected the increase both in the market valuation of its Reading holdings and its return on them.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24.—The trading was well distributed in a fairly active market to-day. Investment bonds were in good demand at prices, but little changed from the recent level. There were fractional gains in Cotton Duck 5s, United Railways 4s, and Western Maryland 4s, Baltimore City 3½s were a point up, and Alabama Coal and Iron 5s were also a point higher. The common of the Alabama Company advanced ½ point in sympathy. There was marked activity in Seaboard new common.

Local financial circles are figuring on the prospective sale of $3,000,000 of 1954 3½ per cent. Baltimore City Dock Improvement stock. Several syndicates are forming with a view of bidding for this block, and there is also some inquiry from New York and other financial centres.

The market closed dull and firm. Shares, 2,515; bonds, $109,000.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—New York exchange was at par. Time and call loans, 4@5 per cent. Trading in stocks on the local Exchange broadened out somewhat to-day, and business was well distributed over the list.

Subway was the leader in point of activity, about 1,100 shares going during the morning on the scale up to 47¾. Box Board common was active around 2, and the preferred sold up fractionally to near 14. Metropolitan Elevated issues were strong, the common running up to 28½ and the preferred to 72 before noon. Quaker Oats common attained its recent high level of 125. Swifts continued to feel small liquidating pressure and went at 107.

In the bond department, Western Stone 5s went at 98 and Tool bonds at 79½.

JAMES J. HILL COMING HERE.

And Rumors of Another War with Harriman Precede Him.

James J. Hill is expected back in New York from the West to-day or to-morrow. His coming has been anticipated by reports circulated in Wall Street that Mr. Hill and E. H. Harriman are once more on the war path and will fight for points of vantage in the Northwestern railroad field.

Wall Street has taken these reports calmly, despite the fact that they have been backed up by specific reports of the competitive building of new lines, and so forth. Those directly concerned with the Great Northern's affairs are in no wise disturbed by the reports which in some instances at least have been traced to quarters where stock market exigencies are the controlling influence.

There were more reports about Mr. Hill's doings yesterday, which were likewise denied by those likely to know the real facts. It was reported that Mr. Hill had acquired the Hudson Bay Railroad of Canada, though for what purpose was not stated.

Guggenheims Probable Purchasers.

It is highly probable that the control of Utah Consolidated will soon pass to the Guggenheims. There will be a meeting of stockholders Friday in Jersey City, and then the purchase proposition will be voted on. One of the men interested said yesterday that negotiations are pending.

FOR STATEN ISLAND PLANT.

Procter & Gamble Co. Will Issue $3,000,000 Common Stock.

The Procter & Gamble Company, for the financing of its new plant on Staten Island, will increase its common stock 50 per cent., or from $6,000,000 to $9,000,000. Formal action on the proposition to increase the stock will be taken at the stockholders' meeting next month. The additional stock will be offered at par to holders of common stock. At present the stock is quoted at $450 a share in Cincinnati.

The Procter & Gamble Company manufactures soap, candles, and glycerine. With its original plant in Cincinnati, it built another in Kansas City a year or so ago. When the Staten Island plant is complete thousands of dollars now paid out in freight charges will be saved to the company. Actual work on the new plant will probably begin next Spring, and will be completed in little over a year. William A. Procter is President of the company and James N. Gamble is Vice President.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Importers Must Specify Tariff Paragraphs in Their Protests—Other Decisions.

In overruling a protest filed by George W. Kavanaugh of Albany, the Board of United States General Appraisers decided yesterday that it is not enough for an importer to specify in his protest the correct rate of duty, but he must go further and point out the applicable provisions of the law, either by citing the paragraph by number or by describing the goods in such terms that the Collector may know the true nature of the claim and the provision of the law under which it is made. In the case at bar, the board holds that the importer failed to make a proper protest, and, although the Collector's classification is erroneous, the customs tribunal holds that no relief can be granted the firm making the entries.

In a decision by I. F. Fischer, the board denied a claim made by A. Hilbert of New York against the action of Collector Stranahan in levying duty at the rate of 60 per cent. ad valorem on certain silk trimmings and embroidered articles. The Custom House authorities took the view that the articles came within the tariff definition of embroideries. On the other hand, the importer maintained that the merchandise should be returned as manufactures of silk with assessment at 50 per cent.

Other importers' protests overruled were those of the American and Foreign Trading Company, New York; O. G. Hempstead & Son, Philadelphia, and the H. & L. Chase Bag Company, St. Louis.

The board sustained claims by the Havana Tobacco Company and the H. B. Maclea Company, New York, and H. Hamano of Honolulu.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

WHEAT.—All grain markets had a strong upward movement yesterday, wheat closing ½@⅝c net higher and within a fraction of the top. Bull support was in evidence, but a still greater influence of strength was the broadening of speculative interest and a general improvement in outside demand. Cables were all higher on account of the disturbing strike and political news from Russia. Liverpool advanced ⅜@½d and Paris was unchanged to 5 points higher. The Berlin market closed 2@2½ marks up, while there was an advance of 4 points at Budapest. The only period of depression came after 1 o'clock, when more or less realizing was induced by the visible supply increase of 3,595,000 bushels, compared with an increase last year of 1,236,000 bushels. Before the market had a chance to react very far, however, bulls rallied to its support and there was an immediate return of confidence, which lasted pretty much throughout the afternoon. The interior movement continued liberal, but did not seem to have much effect on the market. Receipts were almost 300,000 bushels greater than last year, but as a partial offset, the Southwest reported a light country movement, in part due to recent unsettled weather. There was an improving cash demand at Kansas City and country mills in the Northwest were said to have sold a good line of flour recently for export. Northwest receipts amounted to 931 cars, against 867 cars the year before. There was firmness in the local cash market and exporters reported sales of ten loads at all ports. No. 2 red here was quoted 92⅝c, elevator, and 93⅞c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 96⅝c; No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, 95⅛c, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—An unusually active trade directed attention to the New York corn market yesterday. It closed strong at from ¾@1¼c net advance, with shorts heavy buyers on the strength West and the bullishness of the local spot situation. There was a decrease of 630,000 bushels in the visible supply, which was about 130,000 less than the decrease a year ago. At the West some very heavy buying of December and May by an elevator house was one of the leading features during the day. Receipts continued light, owing to bad weather, and only eighty-three cars were expected at Chicago on Wednesday. The total Western movement for the day was 317,000 bushels, compared with 291,000 bushels last year. Liverpool closed ⅛@¼d net higher. Export business was a little more active, sales reaching twenty loads, all ports. No. 2 corn was quoted 62c, elevator, and 62c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 65c, and No. 2 yellow, 65c, free on board, afloat.

COTTON—The cotton market was more active and excited than any day since early last Winter, sales being estimated at nearly 1,000,000 bales. Prices scored a sensational advance early, considering the gains from the low point of last week, but later the market yielded to heavy realizing and the close, while a few points up from the lowest, was barely steady with the net gain cut down to a matter of 11@13 points.

The opening was very strong at an advance of 11@32 points, with active months selling 30@32 points higher during the early session on active covering by yesterday's sellers, and a continued demand for long account through wire and commission houses which was promoted by the excited advance in the English market and reports to the effect that the National Ginners' Association placed the amount of cotton ginned to Oct. 18, at 4,342,000 bales against the official report of 6,420,000 bales last year. The association, it is said, estimates the amount ginned to Oct. 18 as 45 per cent. of the yield, which would point to a total crop of about 9,650,000 bales. This report was in Liverpool early, and when due to come only 3 points higher, that market opened excited at an advance of 8@12 points, and without paying attention to the somewhat reactionary tendency here, closed excited at a net advance of 20@22 points. Private cables claimed that English spinners, being heavily short of goods, and not protected against an advance in the raw material, were becoming uneasy, and this view was colored to some extent by the fact that the advance of 17 points in the English spot market was accompanied by sales of 10,000 bales. There was very heavy realizing at the initial advance here, which carried January to 10.70 against 0.62, the low point of last week, but there was such a large fresh demand through wire and commission houses that prices yielded very slowly. The market at midday was about 15 points off from the top, and recovered 5 points of the loss following the report of the Weekly Weather Bureau, which was considered bullish, but this had comparatively little influence, and the low point of the day was reached in the late trading when January sold at 10.49, or 21 points down from the best. January closed at 10.52. Late reports stated that heavy rains were falling at some points in the central belt, and Southern spot markets were reported firm at an advance of 3-16@⅜c, with fair sales at several leading points. The private wire received during the day said that holders were selling freely at 10¼c, but the majority of advices stated that holders were taking the 11c minimum fixed by the Southern Cotton Association. Liverpool t' s morning is due to come 8 to 0 points higher.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 24.—Spot cotton—Fair business doing; sales, 10,000 bales; speculation and export, 1,000 bales; American, 9,000 bales; receipts, 15,000 bales; American, 4,000 bales; middling upland, 5.77d. Futures opened excited and irregular, 8@12 points higher; closed excited, at a net advance of 20@22 points. October and October-November, 5.74; November-December, 5.73; December-January, 5.79; January-February, 5.81; February-March, 5.83; March-April, 5.85; April-May, 5.86; May-June, 5.87; June-July and July-August, 5.88. Manchester—Yarns, the higher prices asked checks business; cloths, more demand.

COFFEE.—The coffee market was moderately active, and an early decline showed a steadier tone on a slightly increased demand. The opening was steady, net unchanged to 5 points lower, and shortly afterward near months were 10 points lower under liquidation, while two or three of the later positions remained unchanged. There was some switching around this level, and the market later steadied, with the close steady, 5 points lower to 5 points net higher. Sales, including switches, were about 60,000 bags. Generally speaking, the outside news seemed to be about a standoff. The European cables, if no worse than expected, seemed to hold out little encouragement, with Havre ¼ franc and Hamburg a partial ½ pfennig lower at the hour of the local opening, and the Brazilian markets were rather unsettled, Santos being barely steady at the price of the previous day, while Rio was 25 reis lower, notwithstanding a decline of 1-32d in the rate of Brazilian exchange. On the other hand, however, primary receipts ran under the figures of a year ago for the first day in some time. The two ports had 67,000 bags, against 76,000 bags last year, and the Jundiahy had 40,000 bags, against 44,000 bags last year. The closing cable from Havre reported the recovery of the early loss, which aided in the improvement here. The market for spot coffee was steady, with quotations on the basis of 8½c for Rio No. 7.

METALS.—The London tin market lost part of the recent gain, closing at £148 15s for spot and £147 17s 6d for futures. Locally the market was dull but unchanged, with spot closing at 32.50@32.75c. Copper was rather irregular abroad, closing about 5s lower at £72 7s 6d for spot, while futures were 5s higher at £71 2s 6d. Locally the situation is reported unchanged. Lake is quoted at 16.37½@16.75c, electrolytic at 16.25@16.62½c, and casting at 16@16.37½c. Lead was lower at £14 17s 6d in the London market. Locally the market is practically nominal for the time being, and it is said that orders for future supplies are being accepted, conditional on the market price at time of shipment. The spot market is quoted at 5.15@5.40. Spelter was unchanged at 6.15@6.25c in the local market and £28 15s in London. Iron closed lower in the English market, with Standard foundry quoted at 51s 10d and Cleveland warrants at 53s 6d. Locally the situation is reported firm. No. 1 foundry Northern is quoted at $18.25@$18.50, No. 2 foundry Northern at $17.75@$18, No. 1 foundry Southern at $18.25@$18.50, and No. 2 foundry Southern at $17.75@$18.

The market for regular pig iron certificates on the Produce Exchange was about steady early, but on the late call ruled firm at higher prices. Foundry grades closed generally easy. In regular grades there were sales of 100 tons October at $15.95 and 100 tons November at $16.05. Regulars are quoted as follows: Cash, $15.50@$16.25; October, $15.90@$16.20; November, $16@$16.10; December, 16.05@$16.25; January, $16.15@$16.40; February, $16.25@$16.60, and March, $16.20@$16.50.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT FOR THE SOUTHern District of New York.—HENRY HANF, bankrupt.

Notice is hereby given that Henry Hanf, bankrupt, has filed his petition, dated October 2, 1905, praying for a discharge from all his debts in bankruptcy, and that all creditors and other persons are ordered to attend at the hearing upon said petition before United States District Judges in the United States Court House and Post Office Building, in the City and County of New York, on Nov. 6, 1905, at 10:30 A. M., and then and there show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted, and also attend the examination of the bankrupt thereon.

WILLIAM ALLEN,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

New York, Oct. 25, 1905.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Large Plot Sold on Washington Heights—Deal for Entire Block on Upper Park Avenue—St. Nicholas Avenue Apartments Bought by Investor.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have sold for Isaac and Henry Mayer to Charles M. Rosenthal and Clementine M. Silverman the plot, 100 by 100, at the southeast corner of Fort Washington Avenue and 169th Street, together with a plot 200 by 100, adjoining on the street; also, for Charles Sooysmith to the same buyers, the plot, 52 by 280, on the east side of Fort Washington Avenue, 100 feet south of 169th Street.

Samuel G. Hess and B. Klingenstein have bought from H. Matz the plot, 175 by 100, on the north side of 175th Street, 95 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue.

Henry Arnstein has sold to Loudin & Stand the plot, 75 by 100, on the south side of 175th Street, 150 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue, for improvement.

Manheim & Weinstein have bought from Hoffberg & Bookstaver two lots, 50 by 100, on the south side of 149th Street, 175 feet west of Broadway.

William L. Rosenfeld has bought from William Henderson the plot, 50 by 100, on the east side of St. Nicholas Place, opposite 153d Street, together with a lot, 25 by 100, abutting on Edgecombe Avenue. Mr. Rosenfeld owns adjoining property.

Sale of New Apartment House.

Slawson & Hobbs have sold for A. C. & H. M. Hall, to a client for investment, the Iona, a new six-story elevator apartment house, with stores, 108 by 118, at the northeast corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 124th Street, facing Hancock Square. The price was about $300,000.

Slawson & Hobbs have also sold for the Realty Company of America to Herman Oppenheim the plot, 100 by 100.11, on the north side of 115th Street, 175 feet west of Broadway. The buyer will proceed at once with the erection of a six-story apartment house on the site.

Widmayer & Co., in conjunction with Joachim & Goldschmidt, have sold for C. V. Smith to Henry Marks and Caspar Levy the southwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 165th Street, a five-story apartment house, with stores, on lot 25 by 100.

Emil Arnstein has sold, through D. Greenwald the five-story double flat 1,454 Amsterdam Avenue. The same broker also negotiated the recent sale of the adjoining property, No. 1,456.

Operators Buy Entire Block.

Bert G. Faulhaber & Co. have sold for Mrs. Elizabeth Lyon and the estate of William Remsen to Lowenfeld & Prager the entire block, containing 32 lots, bounded by Lexington and Park Avenues, 130th and 131st Streets, 199.10 feet on each avenue and 405 feet on each street. The property has not been sold since 1863, when Henry Hart, former owner of the Third Avenue Railroad Company, bought it in conjunction with William Remsen. Mrs. Lyon inherited it at Mr. Hart's death in 1901. The property will be resold in plots.

Aldrich Estate Auction Sale.

To-day the holdings of the Elizabeth Aldrich estate, said to be valued at about $5,000,000, will be offered at auction in the Vesey Street Salesroom by Bryan L. Kennelly. Included in the list of properties to be sold are the Columbia Building, at Broadway and Morris Street, and Aldrich Court, at 41 to 47 Broadway.

Rosina Vollhart has resold 316 Church Street, a five-story store and loft building, on lot 24.10 by 75.2. The buyer is the present tenant.

Dwellings Sold on West Side.
